℣ The yeare hath.xii. monethes. lij. wekes, and one daye.
And it hath in all, thze hundzed and.lxvi. dayes,
and thze houres.

Scripture gathered out of the Byble:

Christ vnto the people. John.v.

Searche the Scriptures: For they are they that testifye of me.

Paul to Timothy ij. Timo. iij.

All Scripture gyuen by inspiracion of God is profitable to teach, to improue, to amende and to instructe in ryghteousnes, that the man of God maye be perfecte and prepared to all good wozckes.

The same to the Roma.xv

What thinges soeuer are wzytten, are wzytte foz oure lernynge: that we thozowe pacience and confozte of the Scripture, myght haue hope.

Salomon Prouer.xxx

All the wozd of God is pure and cleane, it is a shylde vnto them that put theyz trufte in hym. Put nothinge vnto his wozdes, lest he repzdue the and thou be founde a lyer.

Moses to the people Deute.xij

Ye shall not do euery man what semeth him good in his awne eyes. But what soeuer I commaunde you, that take hede ye do: and put nought therto, ner take ought ther from.

The Lozde vnto Josua Josue.i

Let not the booke of thys lawe departe out of thy mouth. But recoarde therin daye and nyght, that thou mayest be circumspecte to do accozdynge to all that is wzytten therin. Foz then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, ad then shalt thou haue vnderstandinge Turne therfoze neither to the ryght hande, ner to the lefte: that thou mayest haue vnderstandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people Deu.xvij

And thou shalt shewe thy sone at that tyme, sayeng: This is done because of that which the Lozd dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfoze it shalbe a sygne vnto the vpon thyne hande, and a remembzaunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lozdes lawe maye be in thy mouth. Foz with a stronge hande the Lozde bzought the out of Egypte.

Moses Deute.xxxi.

Se that thou reade thys lawe befoze all Israel in theyz eares. Gather y people together. both men, wemen, and chyldzen, and straungers that are in thy cyties, that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lozde your God, to kepe all the wozdes of thys lawe.

Rom. xvi. 1. Timot. ii. Gene. xvii. Exod. xx. Gene. i. Psal. x. Prou. iii. Jerem. ix. Roma. ix. Esaye. liiii. Jere. x.

Fyrst the holy writinges of the Byble teach

vs, that there is one God almyghtye, that hath neither begynnyng nor endynge: whiche of his owne goodnesse dyd create all thynges: of whom all thynges procede, and without whō there is nothynge: which is rygh teous and mercyfull: and which worketh all thynges in all after his wyll: of whom it ma ye not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Gene. i. Sapien. ii. Roma. v.

Then that this verye God dyd create Adam

the fyrst man after his owne ymage and symilitude, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym lorde of all the creatures in the earth. Whiche Adam by the enuye of the deuyll disobeyinge the commaundement of his maker dyd fyrst synne, and brought synne into this worlde, suche and so greate, that we whiche be spronge of hym after the flesh are subdued vnto syn, death and dampnacion, brought vnder the yocke and tyranny of the deuyll.

Ephesi. ii. Gene. iii. Psal. xcv. xcvi. Hebre. ii.

And further that Chryst Jesus his son was promised of God the father, to be a sauiour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid, and the other fathers: whiche shoulde delyuer them from theyr synnes and tyrannye of the deuyll, that with a quycke and lyuynge fayth wolde bylene this promysse: and trust to this Jesus Chryst, hoppynge to haue this delyueraunce of hym and by hym. And truly this promysse is very oft rehearsed in the bokes of the olde Testament, yea, and the olde Testamēt is this promysse: as it is called the newe, which teacheth that this promysse is fulfylled.

And that in the meane season / whyle the fathers loked for saluacion and delyueraunce promysed, bycause mannes nature is suche that he not onely can not, but also wyll not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specyally suche a synner that hath nede of the saupnge healthy promysed, the lawe was gyuen wherethrough men myght knowe synne, and that they are synners: when they se that they doo none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth with so glad and wyllynge a mynde as God requyreth: but rather agaynst theyr wylles, without affection, and as though they were cōstrayned with the feare of that hell whiche the lawe threateneth, saying: Cursed be he that maynteyneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gyuē, to thintent that synne and the malyce of mennes hertes being therby the better knowen, mē shulde the more feruently thyrst the commynge of Chryst, whiche shoulde redeme them from their synnes. As it was figured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonyes, hoostes, and sacrifyces, which were ordeyned of God, not to thintent to take awaye synnes, but to shewe & declare that they shoulde be put awaye by fayth, in the saluation promysed thorowe Chryst: and whiche nowe are put awaye by the cōmynge of that Chryst, whiche is the very hoost of the father that taketh awaye all synne.

Last of all by the bokes of the newe testamēt

we are taught, that Chryst whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde Testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym selfe, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednesse florysshed. And that he was sent, not for any mannes good workes (for they all were synners) but to thintent that he wolde trulye shewe the aboundaunt rychesse of grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the new Testament therfore is moost evidently declared, that Jesus Chryst the true lambe and hoost, is come to thintent to recōcyle vs to the father, payinge on the crosse the punyshment due vnto our synnes: and to delyuer vs from the bondage of the deuyll (vnto whome we serued through synne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, syth he hath gyuen vs the true peace and tranquyllitye of conscyence, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put awaye by the fayth, confydence and assuraunce that the father gyueth vs drawynge vs vnto his sonne. For that fayth is the gyfte of God, wherby we bylene ỳ Chryst is come into this worlde to saue synners, whiche is of so greate pyth ỳ they whiche haue it desyre to perfourme all the dutyes of loue

¶ A descripcyon and succesſe of the kynges of Juda and Jerusalem, declarynge whan & vnder what kynges euery prophet lyued. And what notable thynges happened in theyr tymes, translated oute of the Hebrue.

DAuid rayned ouer Israell the. iii. C. xxix. yere of theyr enterynge into the lande, whych was the. iiii. C. yere of their passynge out from Egypt, and the ii. M. viii. hundred. lxxviii. yere after the creacion of the worlde: and he raygned. xl. yere and begat Salomon. Salomon buylte the temple. Ano in hys dayes, Jonathan Iddo & Ahia Sylonytes were prophetes. And hys sonne Rehabeam raygned after him. xvii. yere. Semaiahu and Iddo prophecyenge. And after hym Abiahu hys sonne raygned. iii. yere, and Iddo was the prophete. Asa hys sonne raygned after hym. xli. yere. Asariahu the sonne of Odad, Hanani the Sear, ād Jehu the sonne of Hanani prophecyinge. After hym raygned hys sonne Josaphat. xx. yere. Jehu the sonne of Hanani, Obadia, Micha, Jehiel the sonne of zachary, and Eleazar the sonne of hys vncle prophecyenge. Jotam his sonne succeaded him in hys kyngdome ād raygned. viii yere, and the prophete was Elias. After hym raygned Ahaziahu his sonne one yere, & Elisa was prophete. After this, Athalia the mother of Azahia dyd ryse and destroyed the kynges stocke, and there was none lefte, but the lytle chylde Joas: and Athalia raygned. vi. yeare, and they kylled her. And Joas raygned. xl. yere. After hym raygned hys sonne Amaziahu. xxix. yere. The prophetes were Amos and Amazia brethren, and Amos the father of Esaye. After hym raygned Uziahu hys sonne. lii. yere. The prophetes were Hosea Amos & Esaye, Hys sonne Jonathan raygned after hym. xvi. yere. The prophetes were Hosea, Esaye, Amos and Uziahu and Micha Morasthites. Then hys sonne Ahas raygned after hym. xvi. yere. And Hosea, Esaye, Amos, Micha ād Odad dyd prophesye. Hys sonne Ezechias raygned after hym. xxix. yere: Hosea, Esaye, Amos, Micha were prophetes. Whome succeaded Manasse raygnynge. lv. yere, Jobell, Nahum and Habakuck were the prophetes. The prophetes were zephania Jeremye and Holda, Jehoaz hys sonne raygned after him thre monethes & Jeremy was prophet. Whose brother Jehoakim raygned after him. xi. yere, Jeremye and Uria were prophetes. The. iii. yere of his raygne Nabuchadnezer kynge of Babylon toke hym captyue, and he dyed in his prison, that it myght be fulfylled whiche was sayde: the Buryall of an asse shalbe buryed. And he transposed Jerusalem and al the gouerners, and toke captyue. vii. M. of Beniamyns, and the other trybes, whyche were all valyaunt men of warre. After hym raygned his sonne Jehoachin thre monethes and. x. dayes, Jeremye prophecyenge, and Nabuchadnezer kynge of Babell carped hym awaye prysoner, and. xviii. M. with hym: and made Ezekia the brother of hys father, the sonne of Josiahu kynge, whych raygned. xi. yere, Jeremy and Ezechiel prophecyenge. The. v. yere of his raygne the host of Babylon came agaynst Jerusalem, and in the xi. yere of his raygne the cytie was taken captyue and Jurye was altered from hyr lande: this was the. viii. C. and. iii. yere of theyr enterynge into the lande: and the. iii. M. iii. C. & viii yere of ỳ creacion of the worlde. And there was now lefte of Dauids stocke but only Jechoniah, which begat Salathiell, Malkirā, Pedaiā and Gemariam. Nabuchadnezer raygned vntyll the. xxxvii. yeare of the transmygracion of kynge Jehochim and Euylmedozach his sonne raygned. xxiii. yeare, and the fyrst yere of hys raygne he brought Jehoacin out of pryson, and after this dyed in Babell after the death of Ezekia. Moreouer, Belchezer raygned iii. yere, and Salathiell dyed: and after hym hys sonne zerobabell raygned, that was the. lii yere of the destruccion of the temple, and the. lxx. yere of the dompnion of Babylon. Whyle Darius Medo raygned, the Chaldees kingdome was destroyed, and zerobabel ascended into Jerusalem the fyrst yere of Chozes kynge of the persyans, & the trāsmygracion with him Then was Jehosua the sonne of Jezozadac the great prest, and Haggai zacharia and Esdra were prophetes. But Ahasuerus raygnyng, dyd let the worke of the house of the tabernacle and indeuored to subuerte Israel. But the holy which is blessed, delyuered the worlde both of hym and also of Haman. The. xviii. yere of the Medians whych was the. lxx. yeare of the destruccion of the tēple Ezra the scribe ascended into Jerusalē and the other transmygraciō wyth hym, and he buylte the wall of Jerusalem and restored the house of the tabernacle: ād zerobabell retorned into Babell and dyed there. After hym raygned hys sonne Nehemiah, and in his dayes the kyngdome of Grece had the domynion. The.lii. yere of the Medians & Perſians dyed Haggai, zachari, and Malachi, and at that tyme ceaſſed prophecynge in Iſraell. Thys is the yere from the creacyon of the worlde. iii.M. viii.C. and.iiii. From hense forth geue thyne eare and herken the wordes of wyſe men. Alexãder Macedo kyng of Grece raygned.xii. yere and dyed at Meſullam, and after him raygned his ſonne Hanania. The Cxl. yere of the Grecians dyed Hanania and Mathathia the ſonne of Johatha beynge the ſonne of Symeon. And after him raygned his ſonne Berechia. In his tyme was Seluchus and Antiochus whych buylt Antiochia and Ptolome whych wryte pentatuchon, (that is the .v. bookes of Moſes.) The hundred.lxx. yere of the Grecians Berechia dyed. After hym raygned hys ſonne Haſadia. In hys dayes there was a great trouble agaynſt Iſraell, that was in the tyme of Nicanor kynge of Grece the chyldren of Haſmomin whych were called the Machabytes, ſteppynge forth kylled hym and all hys hoſte. Thys was. Clxv. yere of the Grecians. And Johanan the ſonne of Simon the ſonne of Mathathia, the ſonne of Haſmoni raygned. xxxv. yere. And when Haſadia was deed, after hym raygned Ieſaia and Janai the ſonne of Johanan the great preſte raygned. xxvii. yere. And when Janai was deed, Ariſtobolus his ſonne ſtode vp after hym, and raygned. xiii. yere and was ſlayne. After him raygned Antigonus his ſonne. xxvi. yere, and was ſlayne the. Ciii. yere of the raygne of the ſtocke of the Machabytes. After hym raygned Herode the ſonne of Antipater ſeruaunt of the Machabytes, which makynge an inſurrecciõ kylled all that were of his maſters ſtock, and contynued ſo. xl. yere. After him Agrippas the ſonne of Herode raygned, and agayne after hym raygned his ſonne Hunabas. The. Ciii. yere of the Romaynes raygne whyche was. iiii. C. xl. yere of the temple buylt vp, ãd the. iii. M. v. C. lviii. yere from the creacion of the worlde came veſpaſyan and deſtroyed the temple, and caryed Iſrael & many of the ſtocke of Dauid and Iehuda into ſpayne.

A prologue or preface made by the mooſt reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbyſhop of Canturbury Metropolytan and Prymate of Englande.

For two ſondrye ſortes of people/it ſemeth moche neceſſary that ſomthynge be ſayde in the entrye of thys booke, by the waye of a preface or prologue: wherby herafter it maye be both ẏ better accepted of them, which hitherto coulde not well beare it: & alſo the better vſed of them, which hertofore haue myſuſed it. For truly, ſome there are that be to ſlowe, and nede not the ſpurre: ſome other ſeme to quycke, and nede more of the brydell. Some looſe theyr game by ſhorte ſhotynge, ſome by ouer ſhotynge. Some walke to moche on the lefte hande, ſome to moche on the ryght. In the former ſorte be all they that refuſe to reade, or to heare redde the ſcripture in theyr vulgar tonges, moch worſe they that alſo let, or diſcourage the other from the readynge or hearynge therof. In the latter ſorte be they, which by theyr inordinate readyng, vndiſcrete ſpeakyng, contentious diſputyng, or otherwyſe, by theyr licencyous lyuinge, ſlaũder and hynder the worde of God, mooſte of all other, wherof they wolde ſeme to be greateſt furtherers. Theſe two ſortes albeit they be mooſt farre vnlyke the one to the other, yet they both deſerue in effecte lyke reprochе. Neyther can I well tell whyther of them I maye iudge the more offender, hym that doth obſtinately refuſe ſo godlye and goodly knowledge: or hym that ſo vngodly and ſo vngoodly doth abuſe the ſame: And as touchynge the former I wolde maruayle moche that any man ſhulde be ſo madde, as to refuſe in darcknes, lyght: in honger, foode: in colde, fyer: for the worde of God is lyght: Lucerna pedibus meis, verbum tuum. Foode: Non in ſolo pane viuit homo, ſed in omni verbo dei. Fyer: Ignem veni mittere in terram, et quid volo, niſi vt ardeat? I wolde maruayle (I ſaye at thys) ſaue that I conſyder, howe moche cuſtome and vſage maye do. So that yf there were a people as ſome wryte, de Cymerijs, which neuer ſawe the ſunne, by reaſon that they be ſituated farre towarde the northe pole, and be encloſed and ouerſhadowed with hygh mountaynes: it is credyble and like ynough, that yf, by the power and will of God, the mountaynes ſhulde ſynke downe, and geue place, that the lyght of the ſunne might haue entreaunce to them: at the fyrſt, ſome of them wolde be offended therwith. And the olde proverbe affermeth, that after tyllage of corne was fyrſt founde: many delyted more to feade of maſte and acornes, wherwith they had ben accuſtomed, then to eate breed made of good corne. Soche is the nature of cuſtome that it cauſeth vs to beare all thynges well and eaſelye, wherwith we haue bene accuſtomed, and to be offended with all thynges therunto contrary. And therfore, I can well thynke them worthy pardon, which at the cõmyng abroade of ſcripture doubted and drewe backe. But ſuch as wyll perſyſte ſtyll in theyr wylfulnes, I muſte nedes iudge, not onely foolyſhe frowarde and obſtinate: but alſo peruyſhe, peruerſe and indurate. And yet, yf the matter ſhulde be tryed by cuſtome, we myght alſo allege cuſtome for the readynge of the ſcripture in the vulgare tonge, and preſcribe the more auncient cuſtome. For it is not moche aboue one hundreth yeare agoo, ſens ſcripture hath not bene accuſtomed to be redde in the vulgar tonge within this realme, and many hundred yeares before that, it was tranſlated & redd in the Saxones tonge, which at that tyme was oure mothers tonge. Wherof there remayneth yet diuers coppes founde lately in olde abbeis, of ſoch antique maners of writyng and ſpeaking, that fewe men nowe ben able to reade and vnderſtande thẽ. And when this language waxed olde and out of comen vſage, becauſe folke ſhulde not lacke the frute of readyng, it was agayne tranſlated in the newer language. Wherof yet alſo many copies remayne and be dayly founde. But nowe to lett paſſe cuſtome, and to weye as wyſe men euer ſhulde, the thyng in hys awne nature. Let vs here diſcuſſe. What it auayleth ſcripture to be had and redde of the lay and vulgare people. And to this queſtion I entende here to ſaye nothyng: but that was ſpoken and wrytten by the noble doctoure and mooſt worall diuine ſaynt John Chriſoſtome, in hys thyrde ſermon de Lazaro: albeit; I wylbe ſomthynge ſhorter, and gether the matter into fewer wordes and leſſe rowme thẽ he doth there: becauſe I wolde not be tedyous. He exorteth there hys audience, that euery man ſhulde reade by him ſelfe at home in the meane dayes and tyme, betwene ſermon and ſermon: to the entente they myght both more profoũdely fyxe in their myndes and memories that he had ſayde before vpon ſoch textes, wherupon he had allready preached: and alſo that they myght haue theyr myndes the more ready and better prepared to receyue and perceaue that which he ſhulde ſey from thenforth in hys ſermones, vpõ ſoche textes, as he had not yet declared and preached vpon: therfore ſayth he there: My comen vſage is to geue you warnynge before,

matter I intende after to entreate vpon, ỹ you youre selues in the meane dayes maye re the boke in hande, reade, wepe, and perceyue the summe and effect of the mattier: and marke what hath bene declared, and what remayneth yet to be declared: so ỹ therby youre mynde maye be the more furnyshed, to here the reste, that shalbe sayde. And that I exhorte you (sayth he) and euer haue & wyll exhorte you, ỹe (not only here in the churche) geue eare to that, that is sayde by the preacher: but that also, when ye be at home in youre houses, ye applye youre selues from tyme to tyme to the readyng of the holy scriptures: which thyng also I neuer lynne to beate into the eares of them that bene my kamplers, and with whom I haue prpuate aquayntaunce and conuersacyon. Lett no man make excuse and saye: (sayeth
he) I am busyed aboute mattiers of the cõmon welth, I beare this office or ỹ, I am a craftes man, I must applye myne occupacyon, I haue a wyfe, my chyldren must be fedde, my house-holde must I prouyde for. Brefly I am a man of the worlde, it is not for me to reade the scriptures, that belõgeth to thẽ that hath bedden the world fayre well, which lyue in solitarenes and contemplatyon, that hath bene brought vp, and contynually nosylled in learnynge and religyon. To thys answeryng: what sayest thou man (sayeth he) is it not for the to studye and to reade the scripture, because thou art encõbred and distracte with cures and busynes?
So moch the more it is behouefull for the to haue defence of scriptures, howe moche thou art the more distressed in worldly daungers. They that bene free and farre from trouble and en-tremedlyng of worldly thinges, lyueth in sauegarde and tranquilyte, and in the calme or within a sure hauen. Thou art in the myddest of the see of worldely wickednesse, and therfore thou nedest the more of ghostlye succoure and comfort: they sytte farre from the strokes of battayll, and farre out of gonneshoute, and therfore they be but seldome wounded: thou ỹ standest in the forefrounte of the hoost, and nyest to thyne enemyes, muste nedes take nowe and then many strokes, and be greuously wounded. And therfore thou hast more nede to haue thy remedyes and medecynes at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh the to anger, thy chylde gyueth the occasyon to take sorowe and pensyuenes, thyne enemyes lyeth in wayte for the, thy frende (as thou takest him) somtyme enuyeth the, thy neyghboure mysreporteth the, or pycketh quarels agaynst the, thy mate or partyner vndermyneth the, thy lorde iudge, or iustyce threteneth the, pouertye is paynefull to the, the losse of thy deare and welbeloued causeth the to morne. Prosperite exalteth the, aduersyte bryngeth the lowe. Brefly, so diuerse and so manyfolde occasyons of cares, tribulacyons and temptacions besetteth the and besegeth the rounde aboute. Where canst thou haue armoure or forteresse agaynst thyne assautes? Where canst thou haue salue for thy sores, but of holy scripture? Thy fleshe must nedes be prone and subiecte to fleshly lustes, which dayly walkest and art conuersaunte amongest women, seyst theyr bewtyes, set forth to the eye, hearest theyr nyse and wãton wordes, smellest their balme, cyuet and muske, with many other lyke prouocations and sterynges, except thou hast in a redynes wherwith to suppresse and auoyde them, which cannot elles where be had, but onely out of the holy scriptures. Lett vs reade and seke all the remedyes that we can, and all shalbe lytell ynough. Howe shall we then do, yf we suffer and take dayly woũdes, and whã we haue done, wyll sytte styll and serche for no medecynes? Doest thou not marke and consider, howe the smyth, mason, or carpenter, or any other handy crafte smã, what neade so euer
he be in, what other thynge soeuer he make, he wyll not sell or laye to pledge the toles of hys occupacyon, for then howe shulde he worke his feate or get hys lyuinge therby? Of lyke mynde and affeccyon ought we to be towardes holye scripture, for as mallettes, hammars, sawes, chesylles, axes, and hatchettes be the tooles of theyr occupacyon. So bene the bokes of the prophetes, and apostelles, and all holye wryte inspired by the holy ghost, ỹ instrumen-tes of oure saluacyon. Wherfore, let vs not stycke to bye and prouyde vs the Byble, that is to saye, the bookes of holy scripture. And lett vs thinke that to be a better Juell in our house then eyther golde or syluer. For lyke as theues bene lothe to assaute an house, where they knowe to be good armoure and artillary, so where soeuer these holy and ghostly bookes bene occupied, there nether the deuell, nor none of hys angelles dare come neare: And they that occuppe them bene in moche sauegarde, and hauen greate consolacyon, and bene the readyer vnto all goodnes, the slower to all euyll, and yf they haue done any thing amysse, anone euen by the syght of the bookes theyr consciences bene admonished, and they waxen sory & ashamed of the facte. Paraduenture, they will saye vnto me: howe and yf we vnderstande nott that we reade, that is conteyned in the bokes. What then? Suppose, thou vnderstande nott the depe and profoũde misteryes of scriptures, yet can it not be, but that moche frute and holynes must come and growe vnto the by the reading: for it cannot be that thou shuldest be ignoraunte in all thinges alyke. For the holye ghost hath so ordered and attempered the scriptures, that in them aswell publicanes, fyschers, and shepherdes maye fynde theyr edyficacion, as greate doctoures theyr erudityon: for those bookes were not made to vayne glorye, lyke as were the wrytinges of the gentyle philopholers and rethoryciyans, to the entent the makers

makers shulde be hadd in admiration for theyr hye styles and obscure maner of wry-wherof nothyng can be vnderstande without a master or an expolitoure. But the apostand prophetes wrote theyr bokes so, that theyr speciall entent and purpose might be vnde-standed and perceaued of euery reader, which was nothing but the edificacyon and amende-mente of the lyfe of them that readeth or heareth it. Who is that reading or hearing reade in the gospell, Blessed are they that bene meke, Blessed are they that bene mercyfull, Blessed are they that bene of cleane herte: and soch other lyke places, can perceyue nothing excepte he haue a master to teache hym what it meaneth? Like wyse, the signes and myracles with all other hystoryes of the doynges of Christ or hys apostells, who is ther of so simple witte and capacite, but he maye be able to perceaue and vnderstande them? These be but excuses and clokes for the rayne, and keuerynges of theyr awne ydell slouthfulnes, I cãnot vnderstande
it. What maruaylle? Howe shuldest thou vnderstande, yf thou wylt not reade, nor loke vpõ it? take the bookes into thyne handes, reade the hole storye, and that thou vnderstandest kepe it well in memorye: that thou vnderstandest not, reade it agayne and agayne: yf thou can nether so come by it, counsaylle with some other that is better learned. Go to thy curate and preacher, shewe thy selfe to be desirous to knowe and learne. And I doubte not, but God seynge thy diligence and redynesse (yf no man elles teache the) wyll hym selfe vouchsaffe ỽ hys holy spyrete to illuminate the, and to open vnto the that which was locked from the.

Remember the Ennuchus of Candace quene of Ethiopye, which albeit he was a man of a wylde and barbarous countrye, and one occupped with worldly cures and busynesses, yet ryding in hys charet, he was readynge the scripture. Nowe consider, yf thys man passyng in hys iorney, was so diligent as to reade the scripture, what thinkest thou of like was he wõte to do sittyng at home? Agayne, he that letted not to reade, albeit he dyd not vnderstande, What dyd he then, trowest thou, after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderstanding? For that thou maye well knowe that he vnderstode not what he reade: herken what Philippe there sayth vnto hym. Vnderstandest thou what thou readest? And he nothynge ashamed to confesse hys ignoraunce, answereth: Howe shulde I vnderstande hauyng no body to shewe me the wey? Lo when he lacked one to shewe hym the weye and to expounde to hym the scriptures, yet dyd he reade: and therfore God the rather prouyded for hym a gyde of the wey, that taught hym to vnderstande it. God perceyued hys wyllynge and towarde mynde: and therfore he sent hym a teacher by and by. Therfore, let no man be negligẽt about hys awne health and saluation: though thou haue not Philippe all wayes when thou wol-dest, the holy ghost, which then moued and stered vp Philippe, wilbe ready and not faile the yf thou do thy diligence accordingly. All these thinges bene written for vs to oure edifycatiõ and amendement, which be borne towardes the latter ende of the worlde. The readyng of scriptures is a greate and strong bulwarke or forteresse against synne, the ignoraunce of the same is the greater ruyne and destruccyon of them that will not knowe it. That is the thing that bringeth in heresyes, that is it, that causeth all corrupte and peruerse lyuing, that it is, ỹ bryngeth all thinges out of good order. Hetherto, all that I haue sayde, I haue takẽ and gathered out of the forsayde sermon of this holy doctour saynct John Chrisostome. Nowe yf I shulde in lyke maner bryng forth, what the selfe same doctour speaketh in other places, and what other doctoures and wryters saye, concerning the same purpose, I myght seme to you to wryte another Byble, rather then to make a preface to the Bible. Wherfore in few wor-des to comprehende the largenes and vtilytie of the scripture, howe it conteyneth frutefull instruction and erudityon for euery man, yf any thinges be necessarye to be learned: of the ho-lye scripture We maye learne it. Yf falshed shall be reproued, therof we maye gather wherwith all. Yf any thynge be to be corrected and amended, yf there nede any exhortation or cõsolatyon, of the scripture we maye well learne. In the scryptures be the fatte pastures of the soule, therin is no venymouse meate, no vnholsome thynge, they be the very dayntie and pure fedynge. He that is ignoraunte, shall fynde there what he sholde learne. He that is a peuerse synner, shall there fynde his damnatyon to make hym to tremble for feare. He that la-boureth to serue God shall fynde ther his glorye, & the promissiõs of eternall lyfe, exhortyng him more diligently to laboure. Herin maye prynces learne howe to gouerne their subiectes: Subiectes obediẽce, loue and dreade to theyr prynces. Husbandes, howe they shulde be haue thẽ vnto their wyfes: howe to educate theyr children and seruaũtes. And contrary the wyfes, chyldren, and seruauntes maye knowe there dutye to theyr husbandes, parẽtes and masters.
Here maye all maner of persons, men, wemen, yonge, olde, learned, vnlerned, ryche, poore, prestes, laymen, Lordes, Ladyes, officers, tenauntes, and meane men, virgyns, wyfes we-dowes, lawers, marchauntes, artificers, husbande men, and almaner of persons of what estate or condityon soeuer they be, maye in thys booke learne all thynges what they ought to beleue, what they ought to do, & what they shulde not do, aswell concerning almyghtye God concernynge them selues and all other. Wherfore to the readyng of the scrypture none ne enemye, but that eyther be so sycke, that they loue not to here of any medecyne: or as that be so ignorannte, that they knowe not scrypture to be the most helthfull medecyne.

Therfore as touchynge thys former parte. I wyll here conclude and take it as a conclusion sufficyently determyned and approued, that it is conuenient and good, the scrypture to be redd of all sortes & kyndes of people, and in the vulgare tonge without farther allegatiõs or probatiõs for the same, which shall not nede, syns ỹ thys one place of John Chrysostome is ynough & sufficyente to persuade all thẽ ỹ be not frowardly and peruersly sett in their awne wyllfull opinon, specially nowe that the kynges hyghnes beynge supreme hede nexte vnder Christe of thys churche of Englande hath, approued with his royall assente the setting furthe herof, which onely to all true and obedient subiectes ought to be a sufficiente reason, for the alowance of the same, without farther delaye, reclamation, or resystaunce allthough there were no preface nor other reason heare in expressed. Therfore nowe to come to the secõde and latter parte of my purpose there is nothyng so good in thys worlde but it maye be abused, and turned from frutefull and holsome, to hurtfull and noysome. What is there aboue, better then the sunne, the moone, the starres? Yet was ther ỹ toke occasion by the great bewtye and vertue of them to dishonoure God, and to defyle them selues with ydolatrye, geuing the honour of the lyuing God and creatour of all thinges, to suche thynges as be had created.
What is there here beneth, better then fyer, water, meates, drynckes, metalles of golde, syluer, yron and stele? Yet, we se daylie great harme and moch mischefe, done by euery one of these, aswell for lacke of wisdome and prouydence of them that suffer euyll, as by the malice of them that worketh the euyll. Thus to them that be euyll of them selues, euery thynge setteth forwarde and encreaseth their euyll, be it of his awne nature a thing neuer so good, lyke
as contrarelye, to them that studyeth and endeuoreth them selues to goodnes, euery thynge prenayleth them, and profiteth vnto good: be it of hys awne nature a thyng neuer so badde.
As sayncte Paul sayth, his qui diligunt deum omnia cooperantur in bonum: euen as out of moost venomouse wormes is made triacle, the moost soueraygne medecine for the preserua-tyon of mans helth in tyme of daũger. Wherfore I wolde aduise you all, that cometh to the readyng or hearyng of this boke, which is the worde of God, the moost precious Juell, and moste holy relyque, that remayneth vpon earth, that ye bring with you the feare of God, and that ye do it with all due reuerẽce, and vse youre knowledge therof, not to vayne glorye and frinolouse disputatiõ: but to the honour of God, encrease of vertu, and edifycation both of yõ selues and other. And to the entent that my wordes maye be the more regarded, I wyll vse in thys parte the auctorite of sayncte Szegorye Nazianzene, lyke as in the other I dyd of S.
John Chrysostome. It appereth that in hys tyme there were some (as I feare me, there bene also nowe at these dayes a great nomber) which were ydell bablers, and talkers of the scripture out of reason, and all good order, and without any encrease of vertu, or exãple of good lyuing, to them he wryteth all hys fyrst boke, de theologia. Wherof I shall breefly gather ỹ the hole effecte, and recite it here vnto you. There ben some (sayeth he) whose not onely eares and tonges, but also their fystes bene whitted and ready bent all to contencyon and vnprofitable disputation, whom I wolde wisshe as they bene vehemente and ernest to reason the matter with tonge: so they were also ready and practise to do good dedes. But for asmoche as they, subuertyng the order of all godlynes, haue respecte onely to thys thynge. Howe they maye bynde and loose subtile questions, so that nowe euery market place, euery alehouse and tauerne, euery feasthouse: briefly euery company of men, euery assembley of wemen is fylled with such talke. Sens the matter is so (sayth he) and that our fayth & holy religion of Christ begynneth to wax nothing els: but as it were a sophistrye or a talkyng crafte, I can no lesse do but saye somthing therunto. It is not fitte (sayth he) for euery mã to dispute ỹ hygh questions of diuinite, nether is it to be done at all tymes: nether in euery audiẽce must we discusse euery doubte: but we must knowe whã, to whom, and how farre we ought to enter into soch matters. Fyrst, it is not for euery man: but it is for suche as be of exacte and exquisite iudgementes, and suche as haue spente theyr tyme before in studye and contemplatyon: and suche as before haue clensed them selues aswell in soule, as bodye: or at the least, endeuored them selues to be made cleane. For it is daungerous (sayth he) for the vncleane to touch that thynge, that is moost cleane: lyke as the sore eye taketh harme by lokynge vpon the sunne.
Secondarelye, not at all tymes but when we be reposed: and at reste frome all outwarde dregges and trouble, and when that oure headdes be not encombred with other worldelye and wanderynge ymaginatyons: as yf a man shulde myngle balme and dyrte together. For he that shall iudge and determyne suche matteres and doubtes of scryptures, muste take hys tyme, when he maye applye hys wittes therunto, that he maye thereby the better see, and discerne what is truethe.

Thyrdelye where, and in what audience. There and amonge those that bene studious arne, and not amonge suche as haue pleasure to tryfle with suche mattyers as with other thynges of pastyme, which repute for there chyefe delicates the disputacion of hygh questiones, to shewe there wittes, learnynge and eloquence in reasonynge of hygh mattyers. Four-thlye, it is to be considered howe farre to wade in suche mattyers of difficultie. No further (sayeth he) but as euery mannes owne capacytie wyll serue him, and agayne no further thẽ
the weakenes or intelligence of the other audience maye bere. For lyke as to great noyse hurteth the eare, to moche meate hurteth a mannes bodye, to heuye burdens hurteth the berers of them, to moche rayne doth more hurte then good to the grounde, breifly in all thynges to moch is noyouse, euẽ so weke wittes & weke cõsyrẽces maye sone be oppressed w̃ouer hard questiõs. I say not this to disuade mẽ frome ỹ knowledge of God, & readyng or studying of ỹ scripture. For I saye, ỹ ỹ is as necessarye for the lyfe of mãnes soule as for ỹ body to breathe.
And yf it were possyble so to lyue, I wolde thynke it good for a man to spende all hys lyfe
in that, and to do no other thynge, I comende ỹ lawe whyche byddeth to meditate & studye
the scryptures all wayes both nyght and daye, and Sermons and preachynges to be made both mornynge none and euentyde. And God to be lawded and blessed in all tymes, to bedd
I forbydde to reason. Nether forbydde I to reason so farre as is good and godlye. But I alowe not that is done oute of season, and out of measure and good order. A man maye eate to moche of honey be it neuer so swete, and ther is tyme for euery thynge, and that thynge, that is good is not good, yf it be vngoodly done. Euen as a flower in wynter is oure of season, and as womans apparell becometh not a man, nether contrarilye, the mannes, the woman: nether is weppynge conuenient at a brydeale, nether laughynge at bery all. Nowe yf we can obserue and kepe that is comely and tymely in all other thynges, shall not we then the rather do the same in the holye scriptures? Let vs not runne furth as it were wyld horse that can suffer nether brydell in there mouthes, nor syter on there backes. Let vs kepe vs in oure boundes, and nether let vs go to farre on thone syde, leste we retorne into Egypte, nether to farre ouer ỹ other, leste we be caried awaye to Babylon. Let vs not synge the songe of our Lorde in a straunge lande, that is to saye, let vs not dispute the worde of God at all auentures, aswell where it is not to be reasoned, as where it is, and aswell in the eares of them ỹ be not fytte therfore, as of thẽ that be. If we can no wyse forbere, but that we must nedes dispute, let vs forbere thus moche at the leaste, to do it oute of tyme, and place conuenient. And let vs entreate of those thynges which be holye, holilye, and vpon those thyn-ges ỹ bene mysticall, mistically, & not to vtter the dyuine misteryes in the eares vnworthye to heare them, but let vs knowe what is comely aswell in oure sylence: and talkynge, as in oure garmentes werynge, in oure fedynge, in oure gesture, in oure goynges, and all oure other behaynge. Thys contencyon and debate aboute scryptures, and doubtes therof (specially whan suche as pretende to be the fauorers and studentes therof cannot agre within thẽ selfes, doth moste hurte to oure selfes, and to the furtherynge of the cause & quarells that we wolde haue forthered aboue all other thynges. And we in this (sayeth he) be not vnlyke to them that beynge madde, sett there awne houses on fyer, and that se there awne chyldrẽ, or breate there awne parentes. I marualle moch (sayth he) to recounte wherof cõmeth all this desyre of vayne glorye, wherof commeth all this tongue itche, that we haue so moch delight to talke and clatter. And wherin is our cõmunication? Not in the cõmendations of vertuous and good deades of hospitalitie, of loue betwene christiane brother & brother, of loue betwen man & wyfe, of virginitye and chastitie, and of almose towardes the poore. Not in Psalmes and godly songes, not in lamentynge for oure synnes, not in repressynge the affections of the body, not in prayers to God. We talke of scripture, but in ỹ meane tyme we subdue not our fleshe, by fastinge, watchynge, and weppyng, we make not this lyke a meditation of death, we do not stryue to be Lordes of oure appetites & affections. We goo not aboute to pull downe oure proude & hygh myndes to abate oure rumpyhe & rancorouse stomakes, to restrayne oure lustes & bodely delectations, oure vndiscrete sorowes, oure lasciuious merthe, oure inordinate lokynge, oure vnfaciable herynge of vanities, oure speakyng without measure, oure in-conuenient thoughtes, and breifly, to reforme oure lyfe and maners: but all oure holynes cõsysteth in talkynge. And we pardon eche other frome all good lyuynge, so that we may stycke fast together in argumentacyon, as though there were no moo wayes to heauen, but thys alone the waye of speculatyon and knowledge (as they take it) but in very dead, it is rather the waye of superfluous contention and sophisticatiõ. Hetherto haue I receyued the mynde of Szegorye Nazianzene in that booke which I spake of before. The same authour sayeth also in an other place that the learnynge of a Chrysten man ought to begynne of the feare of God, to ende in matyers of hygh speculatyõ, and not cõtrarily to begynne with speculation

...de in feare. For speculatiō (saieth he) other hye conning and knowledge, yf it be not, sayed with the bridell of feare to offende Godde is daūgerous and enough to tumble a man hedelinge downe the hyll. Therfore, sayeth he, the feare of God must be the fyrst begynnynge and as it were an abce or an introductiō to all them that shall enter to the very trew and most frutefull knowledge of holye scriptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is, sayeth he, the kepinge of the commaundementes, and where as is the kepyng of the cōmaundemētes, there is the clensynge of the flesche, which flesshe is a cloude before the soules eye, and suffereth it not purelye to see the beame of ỹ heuenly light. Where as is the clensynge of the flesche, there is the illumination of the holy ghost, thende of all oure desyres, and the very lyght wherby the veryte of scriptures is seen and perceyued. This is the mynde and almost the wordes of Gregorie Nazianzene doctour of the greke churche of whom saynt Jerome sayth, that vnto hys tyme, the laten churche had no wryterable to be compared, and to make an euen matche with him. Therfore to conclude this latter parte, euery man that commeth to the readynge of this holye booke ought to bringe with hym fyrst and formoste thys feare of almyghtye godde, and then nexte a fyrme and stable purpose to reformo hys awne selfe accordynge ther vnto, and so to contynue procede, and prospere frome tyme to tyme, shewynge hym selfe to be a sober and frutefull herer and lerner, which yf he doo, he shall proue at the lēgth well able to teache, though not with hys mouth, yet with hys lyuynge and good example, which is euer the most lyuely, and moste effectcouse formo and maner of teachyng. He that other wyse intermedeleth with this booke, let hym be assured, that ons he shall make accompte therfore, when he shall haue sayde to hym as it is wrytten in the Prophete Dauid, Peccatori dicit deus &c. Unto the vngodly sayde God, why doest thou preache my lawes, and takest my testament in thy mouth? Where as thou hatest to be reformed, and hast caste my wordes behynde the. When thou sawest a theke, thou consentydest vnto hym and hast bene partetaker with aduouterers. Thou hast lett thy mouth speake wyckednes, and with thy tonge thou hast letforth disceyte. Thou sattest and spakest agaynst thy brother and hast sclaundered thē awne mothers sonne. These thynges hast thou done, & I held my tong and ỹ thoughtest (wyckedly) that I am euen suche a one as thy selfe. But I wyll reproue the, and sett before the, the thynges that thou hast done. O consyder this, ye that forget God lest I plucke you a waye, and ther be none to deliuer you. Who so offereth me thākes and prayse he honoureth me, and to hym that ordereth hys conuersation ryght: wyll I shewe the saluation of godde.

God saue the kynge.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Howe heauen and earth, the lyght, the fyrmamēt, the sunne, the moone, the starres, and all beastes, foules, and fisches in the see were made by the worde of God. And howe man also was created.

In the begynnynge * God created heauen and earthe. The earth was voyde and emptye: and darcknes was vpon the face of the depe: and the spyrete of God moued vpon the face of the waters. And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was light made. And God sawe the light that it was good. And God made a diuision betwene the light and darknesse. And God called the light, daye: and the darknesse called he, nyght. And the euenyng and the mornyng was made one daye.

And God sayde: let there be a firmamēt betwene the waters: and let it make a diuision betwene waters and waters. And God made the firmament, and set a diuision betwene the waters which were vnder the firmamēt, and the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament, heauen. The euenynge also and the mornyng was made the secōd daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters vnder heauen be gathered togethers into one place, that the drye lande maye be sene. And so it came to passe. And God called the drye lāde Earth: and the gatheryng together of waters called he the seas. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the earth bryng forth grene herbe, which maye engendre seed: and frutefull tre, yeldyng frute after hys kynde, whose seed maye be in it self vpon the earth. And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makynge seede after hys kynde: and tree yeldynge frute, whose seed was in it selfe after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good. The euenynge also and the mornynge was made the thyrde daye. And God sayde: * let there be made lyghtes in the firmament of heauen: and let them make a difference betwene the daye and the nyght, and let them be vnto signes, and vnto appoynted seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeares. And let them be vnto lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, that they maye geue lyght vpon the earthe. And so it came to passe:

And God made * two greate lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, & a lesse lyght to rule the night (And he made) sterres also: And God set them in the firmament of heauen, that they myght geue lyght vpon the earth, and that they might rule the daye and the night: and to make a difference betwene the lyght and the darknes. And God sawe that it was good. The euenyng also and the mornyng was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters bryng forth mouynge creature that hath lyfe, and foule that maye flye vpon the earth in the face of the firmament of heauen. And God created great whalles and euery lyuing and mouyng creature, which ỹ waters brought forth after their kynde: and euery fethered foule after their kynde. And God sawe that it was good. And God blessed them, sayinge: Growe & increace and fyll the waters of the see: and let fethred foules be multiplyed in the earth. The euenynge also and the mornyng was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth lyuing creature after his kynde: catell, worme and beast of the erth after his kynde: and so it came to passe. And God made the beast of the earth after his kynde, and catell after their kynde: and euery thynge that crepeth vpon the earth after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man * in oure ymage after oure lyckues, and let them haue rule of the fysh of the see: and foule of the ayre and catell, and all the earth, and of euery crepyng thyng that crepeth vpon the erth. And so God created man in his awne ymage: in the * ymage of God created he hym, * male and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God sayd vnto them: Growe and increace and replenyshe the erth, and subdue it: and haue * dominion of the fish of the see, and foule of the aire: and of euery lyuing thyng that moueth vpō the earth. And God sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen you euery herbe sowynge seed, which is in the vpper face of all the earth: and euery tre in the which is the frute of tree, and that soweth seed, that they maye be meate vnto you. To euery beast of the earth also, and to euery byrde of the ayre, and to euery suche thinge as crepeth vpon the earth (wherin is a lyuing soule) I haue geuē all greenes of herbe to be meat. And it came so to passe. And God sawe euery thyng ỹ he had made, * and beholde, it was exceading good. The euenyng also and the mornynge was made the syxth daye.

¶ The second Chapter.

¶ The halowynge of the Sabbath daye. The foure floudes of Paradise. The settyng in of man in Paradise. The tre of knowledge is forbidden him: how Adam named all creatures. The creacion of Eua. The institucion of mariage.

A The heauēs also and the erth were fynished, and all the hoost of them. And in the seuenth daye God ended his worke which he had made. *Exo.xx.d. Deu.iiij.b In the seuenth daye also, he rested from all his worke which he had made. And God blessed the seuenth daye, and sanctifyed it, because þ in it he had rested from all his worke, which God ordeyned to make.

These are the generacions of the heauēs and of the earth when they were created, in the daye, when the Lorde God made þ earth and the heauēs and euery plant of the felde, before it was in the earth: and euery herbe of the felde, before it grewe. For the Lord God had not caused it to raygne vpon the earth, nether was there a man to tyll the grounde. And there went vp a myste frō of the earth, and watred the whole face of the grounde.

B The Lorde God also *shope man, euen dust from of the grounde, and *brethed into his nastrels the breth of lyfe: and Adā was made a lyuing soule. And þ Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Edē, and there he put mā whō he had made. Moreouer, out of the grounde made the Lorde God to growe, euery tre that was pleasaūt to the sight, and cōmodious for meate. The *tre of lyfe also and the tre of knowledge of good and of euyll was in the myddes of the garden. And out of Eden, there went forth a riuer to water the garden. And from thence it was deuyded, and became into foure heades. The name of one is * Pison. The same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Hauilah, where there is golde. And the golde of that lande is good. There is also Bdellium, and the onix stone. The name of þ second ryuer is, Gihon: the same is it þ compasseth the whole lande of Ethiopia. The name of the third ryuer is Hidekel, & it goth towarde þ eastside of Assiria. And þ fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

The Lorde God also toke Adam, and put him into the garden of Eden, that he myght dresse and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaūded Adā, saying: Eating, þ shalt eate of euery tre of the garden. But as touchynge the tre of knowledge of good and euell, thou shalt not eate of it. Els, in what daye soeuer thou eatest therof, thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lord God sayd: It D is not good that Adam shulde be alone I will make him an helpe, which maye be present wt̄ him. And so out of the grounde shope the Lorde God euery beast of the felde, and euery foule of the ayre, and brought it vnto man, that he myght se howe he wolde call it: For like wyse as mā hym selfe named euery liuyng thyng, euen so was the name therof. Man him selfe therfore named the names vnto all catell, and foule of the ayre, and to euery beast of the felde. And for man founde he not an helpe that myght be present with him. The Lorde God also caused a slomber to fall vpon Adam, and he slept. And he toke one of his ribbes, & closed vp þ flesh in stead therof. And the rybbe which the Lorde God had taken from man, * made he a woman, and brought her vnto man. And man sayde: This is nowe bone of my bones, and flesche of my flesche. She shalbe called woman, because she was take out of man. For this cause shall a man leaue his father and his mother, & shalbe ioyned with his wyfe, and they * shall become one flesh: and they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

The.iij. Chapter.

The serpent deceaueth the woman. The serpent, the woman, and the man are cursed, and dryuen out of Paradyse. Christ our sauiour is promysed.

BUt the serpent was sotyller then A euery beast of the felde, which the Lorde God made. And he sayde vnto the woman: yee, hath the Lorde God sayde: ye shall not eat of euery tre of the garden? And the woman sayde vnto the serpēt: we eate of the frute of the tre of the garden: but as for the frute of þ tre which is in the middes of the gardē, God hath sayde: ye shall not eate of it, nether shal ye touche it, lest happly ye dye. And *the serpent sayde vnto the woman: ye shall not dye the death: but God doth knowe, that the same daye that ye eat therof, your eyes shalbe opened, & ye shalbe euē as goddes, knowing good and euyll. And so the *woman (seyng that the same tre was good to eate, and lusty to the eyes, & that the same tre was pleasaunt to get wildome) toke of the frute therof, and dyd eate: and gaue vnto her husband beynge with her, which dyd eate also. And the eyes of them both were opened: and they knewe that they were naked, & they sowed fygge leaues together, and made thē selues aperns. And they heard þ voyce of the Lord God walkynge in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam & his wyfe hyd thē selues frō the presence of þ Lorde God amōg the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd vnto hym: where art thou?

thou? which sayde: I heerde thy voyce in the garden, & was afrayed, because I was naked, & hyd my selfe. And he sayde: Who tolde the, that thou wast naked? hast thou not eaten of the same tre, concernynge the which I cōmaunded the, that thou shuldest not eate of it? And Adam sayd: The woman, whom thou gauest to be wyth me, she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

C And the Lorde God sayde vnto the woman: Why hast thou done this? And the woman sayde: yonder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto the serpēt: because thou hast done this, thou art cursed aboue all catell, and aboue euery beast of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & dust shalt thou eate all þ dayes, of thy lyfe. I will also put enemyttie betwene the & the woman, betwene thy sede and hyr sede: & *The same shall treade downe thy head, and thou shalt treade vpon hys hele. Iof.iij.c.

But vnto the woman he sayde: In multiplienge wyll I multiplye thy sorowe & thy conceyuynge: In sorowe shalt thou brynge furth chyldren, & thy lust shall pertayne to thy husbande, & he shall haue the rule of the.

Unto Adam he sayde: Because thou hast herkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, & hast eaten of the tree (cōcernynge the which I cōmaūded the, sayinge: Thou shalt not eate of it) cursed is the groūd for thy sake. In sorowe shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. Thorne also & thystle shall it cause to growe vnto the, & thou shalt eate the herbe of the felde. In the sweat of thy face shalt þ eate bread, tyll thou be turned agayne into the grounde, for out of it was thou taken, in asmuch as thou * art dust, & into dust shalt thou be turned agayne. Iob.xxviiii

And Adā called his wyues name Heua, because she was the mother of all lyuinge. Unto the same Adam also & to his wyfe dyd the Lorde God make lethern garmentes, & clothed them. And the Lorde God sayde: Beholde, yonder man hath bene euen as one of vs, that he myght knowe good and euell. And nowe lest happly he put furth his hāde, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and eate, & lyue forever. And the Lorde God sent them furth from the gardē of Eden, to tyll the groūde that he was taken out of. And so he droue out man, & at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubins, & the glysterynge flame of a shakynge swerde, to kepe the waye of the tre of lyfe.

The.iiij. Chapter.

Cain doth not onely kyll his righteous brother Abel, but also dispayreth: and is cursed. The generacyon of Enoch: Mathusael: Tubal: Lamech: Seth and Enos.

ADam knewe Heua his wife: who cō- A ceauynge, bare Cain, sayinge: I haue gotten a man of the Lorde. And the proceadynge furth, brought furth hys brother Habel, and Habel was a keper of shepe. But Cain was a tyller of the grounde. And in processe of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the frute of the grounde an oblacyon vnto the Lorde. Habel also brought of the fyrstlynges of hys shepe, and of the fat therof. And the Lorde had respecte vnto Habel, & to hys oblacyon. But vnto Cain and to hys offrynge he had no respecte. For the whych cause Cain was exceadyng wrothe, and his countenaunce abated. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wrothe, & why is thy countenaūce abated? yf thou do well, shall there not be a promocion. And yf thou dost not well, lyeth not thy synne in the dores? Unto the also pertayneth the lust therof, and thou shalt haue dominiō ouer it. And Cain spake vnto Habel hys brother (let vs go furth.) *Iob.xxxiiii

And it fortuned * whan they were in the B felde, Cain rose vp agaynst Habel hys brother, and slue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Where is Habel thy brother? Whych sayd: I wote not. Am I my brothers keper? And he sayde: What hast þ done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude crieth vnto me out of the grounde. And nowe art thou cursed from of the erth, whych hath opened hyr mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloude from thy hande. If thou tyll the grounde, she shall not proceade to yelde vnto the hyr strength. Fugityue, and vagabounde shalt thou be in the erth. And Cain sayde vnto the Lorde: Wyne * iniquite is more, then þ it maye be forgeuē. Beholde, thou hast cast me out this daye from the vpper face of the erth, and frō thy face shall I be hyd: Fugityue also and a vagabounde shall I be in the erth. And it shall come to passe: euery one that fyndeth me, shall slaye me. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: * (it shall not be so) yee, but whosoeuer slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged seuen folde. *Iob.xx.c. *

And the Lorde set a marke vpon Cain, C lest any mā fyndynge him, shulde kyll hym. And Cain wente out frō the presence of the Lorde, & dwelt in the lōde of Nod eastward frō Eden. Cain also knewe his wife, whych cōceaued & bare Henoch: & buyldinge a cyte, he called the name of the same cyte after the name of hys sonne Henoch. Unto the same Henoch was borne Irad, Irad begat Mehuiael, hulael, & Mehulael begat Methuschael. Methuschael begat Lamech. And Lamech toke vnto hym two wyues: The name of the one was Ada, & the name of the other was zilla. And Ada begat Jabal, whych was the father of such as dwell in tentes, & of suche as haue catell. His brothers name was Thubal, whych was the father of such as handle harpe & organe. And zilla also begat Thubal Cain, which wrought connyngly euery craft of brasse & of yron. The syster of Thubal Cain, was Naema.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and zilla: Heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, herken vnto my speche: For I haue not slayne a man to the woundynge of my selfe, & a yonge man to myne owne punyshment. If Cain shalbe auenged seuenfolde, truly Lamech seuentye tymes and seuen tymes.

Adam knewe his wife agayne, & she bare a sonne, and called his name Seth: For God (sayde she) hath appoynted me another sede in stede of Habel, whō Cain slew. And vnto the same Seth also there was borne a sonne, & he called his name Enos. Then began they to make inuocacyon in the name of the Lorde.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ The genealogie of Adam and of the other fathers vnto Noe.

This is the boke of the generacyons of Adā. In the daye that God created mā, in the lykenesse of God made he him. Male and female created he them, & blessed them, and called their name Adam in the daye of their creacyon.

And Adam lyued an hundreth & thyrtye yeres, & begat (a sonne) in hys owne lykenesse after his ymage, & called his name Seth. All the dayes of Adam (after he had begotten Seth) were eyght hundreth yeres, & he begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes that Adam lyued, were nyne hūdreth and thyrtye yeares, and he dyed.

Seth lyued an hūdred & fyue yeares, and begat Enos. And Seth lyued (after he begat Enos) eyght hundreth yeares & seuē yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Seth were, nyne hundreth & twelue yeares. And he dyed.

Enos lyued nyntye yeares & begat Kenā. And Enos lyued (after he begat Kenā) eight hūdreth, and fyftene yeares, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Enos were nyne hundreth & fyue yeres. And he dyed.

Kenan lyued seuentye yeres, & begat Mahelael. And Kenan lyued (after he begat Mahelael) eyght hūdreth yeares and fortye yeres, and begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Kenan were nyne hundreth yeares and ten yeares, and he dyed.

Mahelael lyued fyftye yeares & fyue yeares, & begat Jared. And agayne, Mahelael lyued (after he begat Jared) eyght hundreth & thirtye yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Mahelael were eyght hūdreth nynetye & fyue yeares. And he dyed.

Jared lyued an hundred & fyftye and two yeares, & begat Henoch. And Jared lyued (after he begat Henoch) eyght hūdreth yeares, & begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Jared were nyne hundreth and fyftye and two yeares. And he dyed.

Henoch lyued fyftie & fyue yeares, & begat Methuselah. And Henoch * walked wyth God after he begat Methuselah, thre hūdreth yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Henoch were thre hundreth fyftie & fyue yeres. And Henoch ‡ walked with God, & he (was * no more sene,) for God toke hym awaye.

Methuselah also lyued an hundreth yeares, & eyghtye & seuē yeres, & begat Lamech. And agayne Methuselah lyued (after he begat Lamech,) seuen hundreth yeares, and eyghtye, & two yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Methuselah were nyne hundreth yeares and fyftye & nyne yeares. And he dyed.

Lamech lyued an hundreth yeres & eyghtye & two yeres, & begat a sonne, & called his name Noah, sayenge: This same shall cōforte vs as cōcernynge oure worke & sorowe of oure hādes, frō of the erth, which God cursed. And Lamech lyued (after he begat Noah) fyue hūdreth yeres & nynety & fyue yeares, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Lamech were seuē hūdreth yeares, and seuentye and seuen yeares, and he dyed.

Noah was fyue hūdreth yeare olde. And Noah begat Sem, Ham, and Japheth.

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ The cause of the floude. God warneth Noe of the cōmynge of the floude. The preparynge of the Arke.

And it came to passe, that man began to be multiplied in the vpper face of the erth, and there were daughters borne vnto thē. The sonnes of God also sawe the daughters of mē that they were fayre, and they toke them wyues from amonge all they had chosen. And the Lorde sayde: My spyrete shall not allwaye, stryue in mā, because he is flesh, and hys dayes shalbe * an hundreth & twentye yeares. But there were gyauntes in the erth in those dayes: yee and after that the sonnes of God came vnto the daughters of men, and they had gēdred vnto them, the same became myghtye mē of the worlde, and men of renowne.

But God sawe that the malyce of man was greate in the erth, and all the ymaginacyō of the thoughtes of hys * hert was onely cuell euery daye. And it ‡ repented the Lorde, that he had made mā in the erth, & he was was touched with sorow in his harte. And the Lorde sayde: I wyll (from the vpper face of the earth) destroye man, whom I haue created: both man, catel, worme, & foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me that I haue made them.

But Noah founde grace in the eyes of the Lorde. These are the generacyons of Noah * Noah was iust & perfect in his generacions, and † walked wt God. Noah begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. The earth also was corrupte before God, & the same earthe was fylled wt crueltye. And God loked vpō the erth, and beholde it was corrupt: For al flesche had corrupt hys waye vpon earth.

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all flesche is come before me, for the earthe is fylled with crueltye from the face of them. And beholde, I wyll destroy them with the erth, Make the an Arke of pyne trees. Habitacyons shalt thou make in the Arke, and shalt pytch it within & without with pytch. And of this fashyon shalt they make it. The lengthe of the Arke shalbe thre hundreth cubytes: The bredth of it, fyftye cubites, & the heygth of it thyrtye cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make in the Arke, and in a cubite shalt thou fynyshe it above, but the doore of the Arke shalte thou set in the syde therof. With thre loftes one above an other shalte thou make it.

And behode, I, euen I, do bring a floude of waters vpon the earthe, that I maye destroye all flesshe wherin is the breth of lyfe vnder heauen: And euery thynge that is in the earth, shall dye. With the also wyll I make my * couenaunt, & thou shalte come into the Arke: thou & thy sonnes, thy wife & thy sonnes wyues wt the. And euery lyuing thinge, and of all flesshe, a payre of euery one shalt they bringe into the Arke, to kepe them alyue wt the. They shalbe male & female. Of fethered foules also after their kynde, & of catell after their kynde, of euery worme of the earth after his kynde: two of euery one shall come vnto the, that thou mayst kepe them alyue. And take thou with the of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt laye it vp with the, that it maye be meate for the & them. Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ The entraunce of Noe, and of them that were with hym: into the Arke. The rising of the floude: whereto rowe all thynges dyd perysshe.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Noah: Come thou and al thy house into the Arke for the haue I sene * rygytuous before me in thys generacyon. Of euery * cleane beaste thou shalte take with the seuen and seuen: The male and hys female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and his female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, the male & the female, to kepe alyue vpon the face of al the whole erth. For yet after seuen dayes I wyll rayne vpon the erth fortye dayes & fortye nyghtes. And all substaunce that I haue made, wyll I destroye from of the vpper face of the earth.

Noah therfore dyd accordynge vnto all that God cōmaunded hym. And Noah was syxe hundreth yeres, & the * floude of waters was vpon the earth. And Noah came (and his sonnes, & his wyfe, & his sonnes wiues with hym) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catell, & of vncleane catell, & of flyenge foules, and of euery suche as crepeth vpon the erth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the Arke, the male and the female, as God had cōmaunded Noah. It fortuned also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

In the syxe hundrethe yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde Moneth, the seuenth daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the great depe broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earthe fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes. In the selfe same daye entred Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wiues of his sonnes with them into the Arke: They, & euery beast after hys kynde, and all catell after theyr kynde, yee & euery worme that crepeth vpon the earthe after his kynde, and euery byrde after his kynde, and euery fleyng & fethered foule.

And they came vnto Noah into the Arke two and two, of all flesh wherin is the breth of lyfe. And they entryng in, came male and female of all flesche, as God had cōmaunded hym. And God shut hym in rounde about. And the * floude came fortye dayes vpon the earth, & the waters were increased, and bare vp the Arke, whiche was lyfte vp above the erth. The waters also preuayled, & were increased exceadyngly vpon the earthe, and the Arke went on the vpper face of the waters. And the waters preuailed exceadingly vpon the earth, & al the hye hylles that are vnder the whole heauen, were couered. Fyftene cubytes vpwarde dyd the waters preuayle, so that the mountaynes were couered.

And all flesche dyed that moued vpon the earth, in foule, in catel, in beast, and in euery worme that crepeth vpon the earth: yee and euery man also. What soeuer was (in whose nostrels the breth of lyfe dyd brethe, all these in the drye lande dyed.) And * euery thyng was destroyed, that remayned, & that was in the vpper parte of the grounde (both man and catell, and worme, and foule of the ayre) they were euen destroyed from of the earth. And Noah onely remayned alyue, and they that were with hym in the Arke.

waters prcuayled vpon the earth an hūdr

¶After the sendynge oute of the rauen and the doue.
Noe goeth forth of the Arke: and offereth sacrifyce.
The naturall corrupcyon of mans herte.

AND God remembred Noah, and euery beaste, and all ẏ catell that was with him in ẏ Arke. And god made a wind to passe vpon the earth, and the waters ceassed. The fountaynes also of the depe and the windowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heauen was restrayned. And the waters from the erth were returned, goyng and commynge agayne. And after the ende of the hundreth and fyftieth daye, ẏ waters were abated. And in the seuenth moneth in the seuenteenth daye of the moneth, the Arke rested vpon ẏ mountaines of Armenia. And the waters truely were goynge and decreacyng vntyl the tenth moneth: for in ẏ tenth moneth, & in the fyrst daie of ẏ same moneth
were the toppes of the mountaynes sene.

And after the ende of the fortieth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowe of the Arke which he had made. And he sent forth a rauen, whiche went out goyng forth and returnynge agayne, vntyll ẏ waters were dryed vp vpon the earth. And agayne
he sent forth a doue from hym, ẏ he myghte
se yf the waters were abated from ẏ vpper face of the grounde. And the done founde no rest for ẏ sole of her foote, & she returned vnto
hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in ẏ vpper face of the whole erth. And he, whan he had put forth his hāde, toke her,
and pulled her into hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and proceadynge further, he sent forth the doue out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in ẏ euentyde, and lo, in her mouthe was an olyue leaf ẏ she had pluct, wherby Noah did knowe, that the waters were abated vpon
the earth. And he abode yet other seuē dates and sent forth the doue, whiche proceaded
not to returne vnto hym any more.

And it came to passe in the syxe hundreth

daye of the moneth, the waters were dryed vp from the earthe. And Noah remoued the couerynge of the Arke, & loked, & beholde, the vpper face of ẏ grounde was dryed vp. And in the secōde moneth, in the seuen & twentye
daye of the moneth, was the earth dryed.

And Noah buylded an altare vnto ẏ lorde,
and toke of euery *cleane beast, and of euery *Leuit.vi.a.

And the Lorde smelled a swete (or quyete)

¶The genealogye of Japheth Sem: and Ham.

A THese are the generaciōs of the sōnnes of Noah, Sem, Ham and Japheth: And vnto them were chyldren borne after the floude.

The chyldren of *Japheth: Gomer and Magog, and Madai, and Jauan, and Thu-bal, Meschech and Theras. The chyldren of Gomer: Askenas and Riphath and Thogarma. The chyldren of Jauan: Elisa and Tharsis, Kitthim, and Dodanim. Of these were the Iles of the Gētiles denyded in their landes, euery man after hys tonge, & after hys kynreds in their nacyons.

The childrē of Ham: Cusch & Mizraim, and Phut and Chanaan. And the chyldren of Cusch: Seba and Hauilah and Sabtha, and Rahma, and Sabthecha. The chyldren of Rahma: Scheba and Dedan. Cusch also begat *Nimrod. The same beganne to be my- B that londe came Assur, and buylded * Nin- * Jonas.i.b.

also betwene Ninive and Calah, and it is a greate cite. Mizraim begat Ludym, & Enamim, & Lehabim, and Nephtuhim. Pathru-sim also and Casluhim, out of whom came Philistiim and Capthorim.

Chanaan begat Zidon his fyrst borne son- C
ne, and Heth, & Jebusi, and Emori, & Girgosi. Hahiui also and Haarki and Hasini, and Haaruadi, and Hazmari, and Hahemathi:
And afterwarde were the kynreds of ẏ Ca-nanites spred abrode. The border of the Ca-nanites was from Zidon, as thou cōmest to Gerar vntill Gazan, and as thou goest vn-

Zeboim, euen vnto Lesa. These are the chyldren of Ham in their kynreds, in theyr ton-ges, countrees and in theyr nacyons.

Vnto Sē also the father of all the children of Eber (and elder brother of Japheth) there were chyldren borne. The chyldren of Sem:
Elam and Assur, Arphachsad, and Lud and Aram. The children of Aram: Uz and Hul, D
Gether & Mas * Arphachsad begat Selah, *1.Par...
& Selah begat Eber. Vnto Eber also were borne two sōnes: The name of the one was Peleg, for in hys dayes was the erth deny-
ded. And hys brothers name was Jaketan.
Jaketan begat Almodad and Saleph hazarmaueth and Jerah, and Hodoran & Uzal
and Dickla, Obal also & Abimael and Sche ba, and Ophir, and Hauila, and Jobab. All these were the chyldrē of Jaketan. And their dwellinge was from Mesa, as thou goest vnto Sephar a mount of the east. These are the children of Sem after their kynreds and tonges in their londes and nacyons. And so these are the kynreds of the chyldren of No-

These are the generacyons of Sem: Sem was an hundreth yeare olde, and begat Arphachsad two yeare after the floude. And Sem lyued (after he begat Arphachsad) fyue hundreth yeares, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Arphachsad lyued fyue and thyrtye yeares, & begat Selah. And Arphachsad lyued (after he begat Selah) foure hundreth & thre yeares, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Selah lyued thyrtye yeares, & begat Eber. And Selah lyued (after he begat Eber) foure hundreth and thre yeares, and begat sonnes and daughters.

¶ Eber lyued foure and thyrtye yeares, and begat Peleg. And Eber lyued (after he begat Peleg) foure hundreth and thyrtye yeares, & begat sonnes and daughters.

Peleg lyued thyrtye yeares, & begat Reu. And Peleg lyued (after he begat Reu) two hundreth and nyne yeares, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Reu lyued two and thyrtye yeares, and begat Serug. And Reu lyued (after he begat Serug) two hundreth and seuen yeares, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug lyued thyrtye yeares, & begat Nahor. And Serug lyued (after he begat Nahor) two hundreth yeares, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And Nahor lyued nyne & twentye yeares, and begat Terah. And Nahor lyued (after he begat Terah) an hundreth and nynetene yeares, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Terah lyued seuentye yeares, and begat Abzam, Nahor, and Haran.

These are the generacyons of * Terah: Terah begat Abzam, Nahor & Haran. Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed in the presence of Terah hys father, in the lode of hys natyuitye, euen in Ur of the Caldees. Abzam and Nahor toke them wyues: The name of Abzams wyfe was Sarai, & the name of Nahors wyfe was Milca, the daughter of Haran the father of Milca & the father of Jisca. But * Sarai was baren, & had no chylde.

*i.Par.i.b. Iosu.xxiiii.c. *Heb.xi.c. *Ios.xviii. & Ecc.iv.b.

And Terah toke Abzam * his sonne, and Lot the sonne of Haran, hys sonnes sonne, & Sara hys daughter in lawe, hys sonne Abzams wyfe. And they departed together fro Ur of the Caldees, that they myght go into the lode of Chanaan, & they came vnto Charan, & dwelt there. And the dayes of Terah were two hundreth and fyue yeares, and Terah dyed in Haran.

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

¶ Abzam is blessed of God: & goeth wyth Lot vnto the lode of Chanaan, whych God promised to geue vnto hym and his sede. Abzam goeth into Egypte: & causeth Sarai hys wyfe to call hyr selfe hys syster: for whom Pharao is plaged.

AND the Lorde sayd vnto Abzã: * Get the out of thy countrey, & out of thy nacyon, and from thy fathers house, vnto a lode that I wyll shewe the. And I wyll make of the a greate people, and wyll * blesse the, & make thy name greate, that ỹ mayest be euen a blessynge. *Act.vij.a. Heb.xi.c. *Gen.xviij.c. and.xxij.c. Actes.iij.b.

And so Abzã departed euen as the Lorde spake vnto him, & Lot wẽte wyth hym. And Abzã was seuentye & fyue yeares olde, whã he departed out of Haram. And Abzam toke Sarai his wife & Lot his brothers sonne, & all theyr * substaunce that they had in possessyõ, & the soules that they had begotten in Haran. And they departed, ỹ they myght come in to the londe of Chanaan, and in to the lode of Chanaan they came. Abzam passed thorowe the londe vnto the place of Sichem, & vnto the playne of Moreh: And the Cananite was then in the londe.

*Gen.xviij.c. and.xiij.c.

And the Lorde apearynge vnto Abzam: sayd: Unto thy * sede wyll I geue this lode. And there buylded he an altare vnto the lorde, euen where he had appeared vnto hym.

*Gen.xiij.d. xb.d. and xbiij b. Deu.xxxiiij.d

And

¶ And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was eastwarde from bethel, he pitched his tent, hauynge Bethel on the west syde, & Hai on ỹ east. And he buyldynge an altare vnto the Lorde, dyd call on the name of the Lorde. And Abzam wente furth goinge and departynge towarde the south.

But there was a derth in that londe, and therfore wente Abzã downe in to Egypte, ỹ he myght sotourne there, for there was a sore derth in the londe. And it happened whã he was come nere to entre in to Egypte, he sayde vnto Sarai hys wyfe: Beholde, I knowe, that thou art a fayre woman to loke vpon. Therfore shall it come to passe ỹ whã the Egyptyans se the, they shall saye: She is hys wyfe. And they shall kyll me, but they shall saue the alyue. Saye (I praye the) that *Gen.xx.a.d * thou art my syster, that I maye fare well for thy sake, and that my soule maye lyue thorowe thy occasyon.

And so it happened, whan Abzam was come in to Egypte, the Egyptians behelde ỹ womã, for she was very fayre. The princes also of Pharao sawe her, and commẽded her before Pharao, and the woman was taken into Pharaos house. And he truly intreated Abzam well for her sake, and he had chepe & oxen and he asses, men seruauntes and mayde seruauntes, she asses & camels.

And the Lorde smote Pharao and hys house with greate plages because of Sarai Abzams wyfe. And Pharao callinge Abzã, sayde (Why hast thou done thys vnto me? Why dyddest thou not tell me, that she was thy wyfe? Nowe therfore beholde, there is thy wyfe, take her, and go thy waye: And Pharao gaue the men commaundemẽt concernynge him and they conuayed him furth, and his wyfe, and all that he had.

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

¶ Abzam and Lot departe out of Egypte. And Abzã deuyded hys lande & catell with Lot hys brothers sonne. Here agayne is promysed to Abzam the lande of Canaan.

AND so Abzam gat him vp out of Egypte, he & his wyfe, & * all that he had, & Lot wyth hym, towarde the south. *Ge.xij.b. And Abzam was very ryche, in catell in syluer & golde. And he wente furth on hys iourney from the south towarde Bethel, vnto ỹ place where hys tent had bene at the begynnynge, betwene Bethel & Hai: Euen vnto ỹ place of the * altare which he had made there at the fyrst, and there Abzam called on the name of the Lorde. *Gene.xij.c.

Lot also wych went with Abzam had shepe, cattell & tentes: & the lande was not able to receaue them that they myght dwell together, for the * substaũce of their ryches was greate, & they coulde not dwell together. And there fell a stryfe betwene ỹ herdmen of Abzams catell, & the herdmẽ of Lots catell. Moreouer the * Cananytes and the Pherezytes dwelled at that tyme in the lande. Then sayde Abzam vnto Lot: Let there be no stryfe (I praye the) betwene the and me & * betwene my herdmen and thyne, for we be ☞ brethren. Is not all the * hole lande before the? Departe I praye the fro me. If thou wilt take the lefte hande, I will go to the ryght: or yf thou departe to the ryght hande I will go to the left. And so Lot lyftynge vp hys eyes, beholde all the contre of Jordane, which was a plenteous contre of water euery where, before ỹ Lord destroyed Sodome & Gomorra, euen as the garden of the Lorde, lyke the lande of Egypte as thou commest vnto Zoar. *gene.xij.b. *Eccl.xxb.a. ☞ *Pierre.xi.a.

Than Lot chose all the playne cõtrey of Jordane & toke hys iourney from the east. And so departed the one brother from the other. And Lot departed out of Zoar & dwelled in the mountayns wt his.ij. daughters, for he feared to tary in Zoar, but dwelled in a caue, he & his.ij. daughters. And the elder sayde vnto ℘ yonger: oure father is olde, and there is not a man in the erth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all the worlde. Come, we will make oure father dronken with wyne, & lye with him, that we maye saue sede of oure father. And so they made their father dronken wyth wyne that nyght. And the elder daughter went & laye with her father. And he perceaued it not, nether when she laye doune, nether when she rose vp.

G And on the morowe it happened that the elder sayde vnto the yonger: beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let vs make him dronke with wyne this nyght also, & go thou & lye with him, that we maye rayse vp seed of oure father. And they made their father dronke with wyne that nyght also. And the yōger arose & laye with him. And he perceaued it not: nether when she laye downe, nether when she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot wt chylde by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called hys name Moab. The same is the father of the Moabytes vnto thys daye. And the yonger bare a sonne also and called hys name Ben Ammi, The same is the father of the chyldren of Ammon vnto this daye.

¶ The.xx. Chapter.

¶ Abraham went as a straunger in to the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar taketh awaye his wyfe.

A AND Abraham departed thence towarde ℘ south cōtrey, and dwelled betwene Cades & Sur, and sojorned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde of Sara hys wyfe: she is my * syster. And Abimelech kynge of Gerar sent & fett Sara awaye.

*Ge.xij.c. and.xxvi.b.

But God came to Abimelech in a dreame in ℘ nyght and sayde to hym: Se, thou shalt dye for the womās sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mās wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, & he sayde: Lorde wylt thou sley ryghtewes people? sayde not he vnto me, she is my syster? yee, & sayde not she herselfe: he is my brother? with a pure herte and innocent hādes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto him by a dreame: I wot it well that thou dydest it in the purenesse of thy herte. I kepte ℘ also that thou shuldest not sinne agaynst me, & therfore sufferd I the not to touch her. Nowe therfore delyuer the man his wyfe agayne, for he is a prophete. And he shall praye for ℘ that thou mayst lyue. But and yf thou delyuer her not agayne, be sure that thou shalt dye the deth, both thou, and all that thou hast.

Therfore Abimelech rysynge vp betymes in the morynge called all his seruauntes, & tolde all these sayinges in their eares, and ℘ men were sore afrayde. And Abimelech called Abraham & sayde vnto hym: What hast thou done vnto vs? what haue I offended the that thou hast brought on me and on my kyngdome so great a synne? thou hast done dedes vnto me ℘ ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayde vnto Abraham: What sawest thou that thou hast done this thynge?

C

Abraham answered. For I sayde: surely the feare of God is not in thys place, & they shall sley me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede she is my syster, for she is the daughter of my father: though she be not the daughter of my mother: and she became my wyfe. And after, God caused me to wandre, out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: Thys kyndnesse shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, he is my brother.

D

Than toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, men seruauntes & wemen seruauntes & gaue them vnto Abraham, and delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, my lande lyeth before the, dwell where it pleaseth ℘ best. But vnto Sara he sayde: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer, beholde, it shall be a couerynge of thyne eyes vnto all that are wt the, & thus with all was she reproued.

E

And so Abraham prayed vnto God, and God healed Abimelech and his wyfe and his maydens, & they bare chyldren. For ℘ Lorde had closed to, all the matryces of the house of Abymelech: because of Abrahams wyfe.

The.xxj. Chapter.

The Lorde

A THe Lorde visyted Sara as he had sayde and dyd vnto her * accordynge as he had promysed. For Sara was wyth chylde and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euen the same season which ℘ Lorde had appoynted him. And Abrahā called his sonnes name that was borne vnto hym which Sara * bare him, Isahac: & Abrahā + circumcysed Isahac his sonne whē he was. viii. dayes olde: as God cōmaunded hym. And Abrahā was an hūdred yere olde: whē his sonne Isahac was borne vnto hym. But Sara sayde: God hath made me a laughynge stocke: so that all that heare: wyll laugh at me. She sayde also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abrahā: that Sara shulde haue geuen chyldrē sucke: for I haue borne him a sonne in hys olde age. The chylde grewe: and was wened: and Abraham made a great feast: the same daye that Isahac was wened. Sara sawe also the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian (whyche she had borne vnto Abraham) to be a mocker.

Gen.xvii.c. xxi.a. Rom.ix.a. Gala.iiij.d. Hebr.xi.d. Gen.xvii.c.

B Wherfore she sayde vnto Abraham: * put awaye this bondemayde & hyr sonne: for the sonne of thys bondewomā shall not be heyre with my sonne Isahac: & thys sayinge was very greauous in Abrahams syght because of hys sonne. And God sayde vnto Abrahā: let it not be greauous in thy syght, because of the ladd and of thy bondmayde. All ℘ Sara hath sayde vnto the, heare hyr voyce, for + in Isahac shall thy seed be called. Moreouer of the sonne of the bondewoman wyll I make a nacyon: because he is thy * seed.

And so Abrahā rose vp early in the morninge, and toke bread and a bottell of water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttynge it on hyr shulders with the ladd also, & sent her awaye. who departynge, wandred vp and doune in the wyldernes of Beer Seba. And the water was spent in the bottell, and she cast ℘ lad vnder a bushe and went and satt on the other syde a greate waye, as it were a bowshote of: for she sayde: I will not se the death of the chylde. And she syttynge doune on the other syde, lyfte vp hyr voyce and wepte.

C And God herde the voyce of the chylde. And the angell of God called Hagar oute of heauen and sayde vnto her: what ayleth the Hagar? feare not, for God hath herde the voyce of the childe where he lyeth. Aryse, and lyfte vp the ladd, and take hym in thy hande, for I wyll make of hym a greate people. And God opened hyr eyes: and she sawe a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell with water, and gaue the boye drynke. And God was wyth the ladd, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, and became an archer. And he dwelt in ℘ wyldernesse of Pharan. And hys mother gatt hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

And it chaūced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicoll hys cheke captayne spake vnto Abraham sayinge: * God is wyth the in all that thou doest. And nowe therfore swere vnto me euen here by God, that thou wylt not hurt me nor my chyldren, nor my chyldrens chyldrē. But that thou shalt deale with me and the contre where thou hast bene a straunger, accordynge vnto the kyndnesse that I haue shewed the. And Abraham sayd: I wyll swere.

And Abrahā ☞ rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, which Abimelechs seruauntes had violently takē awaye. And Abimelech sayde: I wote not who hath done thys thinge. Also thou toldest me not: nether herde I of it, but thys daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxē, and gaue thē vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bonde together. And Abraham set. vii. ewe lambes by thē selues. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abrahā: what meane these. vii. ewe lambes which thou hast set by them selues? He answered: For these. vii. lambes shalt thou take of my hāde, that they maye be a wytnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged thys well. Wherfore the place is called ☞ Beer Seba, because that there they sware both of them. Thus made they a bonde to gether at Beer Seba. And Abimelech & Phicol his cheke Captayne rose vp, and turned agayne vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wodd in Beer Seba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerlastyng God: and sogeourned in the Philistins lāde a longe season.

ABraham was olde and stryken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abrahã sayde vnto his eldest seruaunte of his house whych had ỹ rule ouer all ỹ he had: Put thy hande vnder my thygh, & I wyll make the swere by the Lorde God of heauen and God of the erth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of Chanaan, amonge whych I dwell. But the seruaunte sayde vnto hym: peraduenture the woman wyll not agree to come wyth me vnto thys lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lãde whych thou cammest out of? To whom Abraham answered: be ware, that thou bringe not my sonne thyther agayne. The Lorde God of heauen whych toke me frõ my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, and whych spake vnto me and that sware vnto me, sayinge: vnto thy seed wyll I geue thys lande, he shall sende hys angell before the, and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. If she saye also: drynke, and I wyll geue thy camels drincke: the same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruaunte Isahac: yee, and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe yer he had left speakynge, beholde, Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuell, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and hyr pytcher vpon hyr shoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled hyr pytcher and came vp. And the seruaũte rennynge vnto her, sayde: let me suppe a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayde: drincke my Lorde.

Gen.xxix.d. And Jacob serued * vij. yeares for Rahel and they semed vnto him but a fewe dayes, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayde vnto Labã: geue me my wyfe, that I maye lye with hir. For ☞ my dayes are fulfilled.
E Than Laban gathered together all the men of that place, ¶ made a feast. And when euen was come, he toke Lea hys daughter ¶ brought her to hym: and he went * in vnto hyr. And Laban gaue vnto hys daughter Lea, Zilpha hys mayde, to be hyr seruaunte.
Gen.xxx.c. (To whõ whã Jacob came in accordynge to ỹ custome.)
F And when the morynge was come, beholde it was Lea. Thã sayde he to Labã wherfore hast thou played thus wt me? dyd not I serue the for Rahel: wherfore thã hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of thys place, to marye the yõgest before the eldest. Passe out thys weke, and thã shall thys also be geuen the for the seruyce wyche thou shalt serue me yet. vij. yeres more. And Jacob dyd euen so, and passed out ỹ weke, and thã he gaue him Rahel hys daughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rahel hys daughter, Bilha hys handmayde to be hyr seruaunte. So laye he by Rahel also,
Gen.xxxi.e and loued Rahel more thã Lea * and serued hym yet. vij. yeares more.

When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despised, he made her frutefull. And Rahel remayned baren. And Lea conceaued and bare a sonne, and called hys name Ruben, for she sayde: the Lorde hath loked vpon my
G tribulacyõ. Nowe therfore my husbãd wyll loue me. And she conceaued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayde: the Lorde hath herde that I am despysed, and hath therfore geuẽ me thys sonne also, and she called hys name

And she conceaued yet, ¶ bare a *Gen.xxix.c.c. sonne, and sayde: nowe thys once wyll my husbande kepe me company, because I haue borne hym .iij. sonnes: and therfore was hys name called Leui. And she cõceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, sayinge: nowe wyll I prayse the Lorde: therfore she called hys name Juda, and left bearynge.

¶ The.xxx.Chapter.

¶ Rahel and Lea bepnge bothe baren geue theyr maydens vnto theyr husbãde: and they beare hym chyldren. Jacob deceaueth Laban in the conceyuynge of the shepe ¶ kydes. Jacobs rewarde for hys seruyce.

R AHel whan she sawe that she bare Jacob no chyldren, she enuyed hyr syster, and sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me childrẽ, or els I am but deed. And Jacob was wroth wt Rahel sayig: Am I in Goddes stead, which kepeth frõ the the frute of thy wõbe? Then she sayd: here is my mayde Bilha, go in vnto her, ¶ she shall beare vpon my lappe, that I maye be encreased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha hyr handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob went in vnto her, and Bilha conceaued ¶ bare Jacob a sonne. Than sayde Rahel. God hath geuen sentẽce on my syde, and hath also heard my voyce, and hath geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rahels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare Jacob another sonne. And Rahel sayde: * wyth Godly wrestlynges haue *
I wrestled wyth my syster, and haue gottẽ the vpper hande: And she called hys name: Nepthali.

B When Lea sawe that she had left bearinge, she toke Silpha hyr mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Than sayde Lea: Good lucke: and called hys name Gad. And Silpha Leas mayd bare Jacob another sonne. Thã sayde Lea: happy am I, for the daughters wyll call me blessed. And called hys name Asser.

And Ruben went out in the dayes of the whet haruest and founde mandragoras in the feldes, and brought them vnto hys mother Lea. Than sayd Rahel to Lea: geue me of thy sonnes ☞ mãdragoras. To whõ Lea answered: Is it not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my housbãde, but woldest take awaye my sõnes mãdragoras also? Thã C sayde Rahel: well, let hym slepe wt the thys nyghte, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And Jacob came from the feldes at euẽ, and Lea went out to mete hym, and sayde: come into me, for I haue bought the wyth my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slepte wyth her that nyghte. And God herde Lea, that she cõceaued ¶ bare vnto Jacob the .v. sonne. Thã sayde Lea. God hath geuen me a rewarde, because I gaue my maydē to my housbāde, & she called hym Isachar. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the.vi. sōne. And Lea sayd: God hath endewed me wt a good dowrye. Nowe wyll my husbande dwell wyth me, because I haue borne hym. vi. sonnes: & called his name zabulon. After that she bare a daughter, and called hyr name * Dina.

*Gene.xxx.a.

D And God remembred Rahel, heard her, and made her frutefull: so that she conceaued & bare a sōne, & sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And she called hys name Joseph, sayinge: The Lorde geue me yet a nother sonne. As soone as Rahel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde to Labā: Hē de me awaye that I maye go vnto my awne place and cōtrey, geue me my wyues and my childrē for whom I haue serued the, and let me goo: for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the. To whom Labā answered: yf I haue foūde fauoure in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lord hath * blessed me for thy sake) appoynte what thy reward shall be, and I wyll geue it the. But he sayde vnto hym: thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the, and in what takynge thy catell haue bene vnder me: For it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came, and nowe it is encreased into a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But nowe when shall I make prouisyon for myne awne house also? And he sayde: what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothynge at all, yf thou wylt do thys one thynge for me: and then wyll I turne agayne, and fede thy shepe and kepe them.

I wyll go aboute all thy shepe thys daye, and separate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of dyuers coloures, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes, & the partye, and the spotted amonge the kyddes: and the same shalbe my reward. So shall my ☞ ryght welnes answere for me ☞ to morowe, and shall come for my reward before thy face, and euery one that is not speckled and partye amonge the goates and blacke amonge the shepe, ỹ same shalbe theft wyth me. And Laban sayde: Go to, wolde God it myght be accordynge to thy sayeng. Therfore he toke out that same daie the he goates that were partye and of dyuerse coloures, and all the she gootes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in thē, and all the blacke amonge the shepe, and put them in the keppynge of hys sonnes, & set thre dayes iourney betwixte hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the rest of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke roddes of grene popular, hasell & of chestnut trees, & pylled whyte strakes in them, & made the whyte apere in the roddes. ✓ (wt they that were whole: remayned grene:

and thus was it made a variable coloure.) And put the roddes whyche he had pylled, euē before the shepe, in the gutters & watrynge troughes when the shepe came to dryncke: that they shulde conceaue when they came to dryncke. And the shepe conceaued before the roddes, & brought forth lambes straked, spotted and partye. And Jacob parted the lambes & turned the faces of the shepe towarde spotted thynges, and towarde all maner of blacke, that was amonge the shepe of Labā: Namely, put tynge hys awne flockes by thē selfe, & not put tynge them wyth Labās shepe. And it fortuned ỹ in euery rāmynge tyme ☞ of the stronger shepe, Jacob layed the roddes before the eyes of the shepe in ỹ gutters: namely, that he myght make them cōceaue before the roddes. But whē the shepe were feble, he put thē not in. And so the febler were Labans, and the stronger Jacobs. And the man increaced exceadyngly, and had a great flocke, mayde seruauntes and man seruauntes, camels and asses.

The. xxxj. Chapter.

That at the commaundement of God: Jacob departed from Laban: & toke hys goddes wyth hym. Rachel stealeth hyr fathers ymages. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

BUt he heard the wordes of Labās sonnes sayenge: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was oure fathers, and of oure fathers goodes hath he gotten all thys honoure. And Jacob beheld the countenaunce of Laban, & beholde, it was not ☞ as yesterdaye and yerpesterdaye. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of thy fathers and to thy kynred, & I wyll be wyth the. Therfore Jacob sent and called Rahel and Lea to the felde vnto hys flocke, & sayde vnto them: I se youre fathers countenaūce that it is not towarde me as yesterdaye & yerpesterdaye. But the God of my father hath bene wyth me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued youre father with all my myght. But youre father hath disceaued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayde, the spotted shall be thy wages, than all the shepe bare spotted. And whan he sayde: the straked shall be thy reward, than bare all the shepe straked: thus hath God taken awaye youre fathers shepe, and geuen them me. But in rāmynge tyme it happened, ỹ I lyfted vp myne eyes & sawe in a dreame, & beholde the rāmes leaped vpon the shepe ỹ were straked, spotted & partye. C Than answered Rahel, and Lea, & sayde vnto hym haue we a porcion & inheritaunce in our fathers house? Doth not he count vs euen as straūgers? for he hath solde vs, and hath euen eaten vp oure monye. But all the riches whych God hath taken from oure father, that is ours & oure childrēs. And now what soeuer God hath sayde vnto the, that do. Thā Jacob rose vp, & set his sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, & caried awaye all hys flockes & all hys substaūce which he had procured, hys riches and possessiōs which he had gotte in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isaac hys father vnto the land of Canaā. *Ge.xxxi.c Leuit.xiii.c Laban was gone to * shere hys shepe, & Rahel had stolen hyr fathers ymages. And Jacob stale awaye the herte of Laban the Syriā, in that he tolde hym not that he fled. So fled he & all that he had, and made hym selfe redy, & passed ouer the ryuer, & set hys face streyght toward the mount Gilead.

D Upō the thyrde day after, was it told Labā that Jacob fled. Thā he toke his brethrē with hym and folowed after him. vii. dayes iourney, & ouer toke hym at the moūte Gilead. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by night, & sayd vnto hym: take hede, that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And Labā ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched hys tente in the mounte. And Laban with hys brethren pitched their tente also vpon the moūte Gilead: And Labā sayde, to Jacob: Why hast thou thys done to steale awaye my herte, and carye awaye my doughters as though they had bene taken captyue wyth ỹ swerde? Wherfore wētest thou awaye secretely vnknowen to me, & diddest not tell me, that I myght haue brought the on the waye wyth myrth, syngyng, tymrel & harpe, and hast not suffred me to kisse my childrē and my daughters? Thou wast * able now to do it, for I am able to do you euyll. But the God of your father spake vnto me yesterdaye, sayīg take hede that ỹ speake not to Jacob ought saue good. *Leuit.xiii.c Num.xxii.c

E Jacob answered and sayde to Laban because I was afrayed, & thought that thou woldest haue taken awaye thy doughters frō me. But ✓ (where as thou lacest theft to my charge wyth whome soeuer thou fyndest thy goddes, let hym dye, here before oure brethren. Seke that thyne is by me, & take it to the. But Jacob wyst not that Rahel had stolen thē. Than went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tēte, & into the. ii. maydēs tentes: but founde them not: Than went he out of leas tente, and entred into Rahels tente. And Rahel had taken the ymages & put thē in the camels strawe, & sate downe vpō thē. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Than sayde she to hyr father: my lord, be not angry ỹ I cā not ryse vp before the for ỹ custome of womē is come vpō me. So searched he but founde not those ydols.

And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Labā. Jacob also answered & sayde to hym: what haue I trespaced or what haue I offended, ỹ thou folowedest so after me? Thou hast searched all my stuffe, & what hast thou founde of all thy housholde stuffe? put it here before thy brethrē & myne ỹ they maye iudge betwixte vs both. Beholde: Thys. xx. yere haue I bene wyth the, thy shepe & thy goates haue not bene baren, & the rāmes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. What soeuer was borne of beastes I brought it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande dydest thou require it, euen as it that was stollen by daye or nyght. But God beholde my tribulacyon, and the labour of my handes, and rebuked the yesterdaye.

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob: these daughters are my daughters, and these chyldren are my chyldren, and these shepe are my shepe, and all that thou seyst, is myne. And what can I do thys daye vnto these my daughters, or vnto theyr chyldrē whych they haue borne? Now therfore come on & let vs make a bonde, I & thou, which maye be a witnesse betwene the and me. Thā toke Jacob a stone and set it vp an ende, & Jacob sayde vnto hys brethren: gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, & they did eate there vpō the heape. sayde moreouer to Jacob: beholde, thys heape and thys marke whych I haue set there, betwixte me and the: thys heape be wytnesse and also thys marke that I will not come ouer thys heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer thys heape and thys marke vnto me: to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, & the God of theyr fathers be iudge betwyxte vs.

And Jacob sware by the feare of hys father Isahac. Then Jacob dyd sacrifyce vpō ỹ mounte, & called his brethrē to eate breed. And they dyd eate breed & taryed all nyght in the hyll. And early in the morynge Laban rose vp and kyssed kys children and hys daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departynge, went vnto hys place agayne.

And vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne
harkened all that went out at the gate of D hys cytie. And all the men chyldren were circumcised whatsoeuer went out at the gates of his cytie. And it happened the thyrde daye (when it was payne full to them) .ij. of the sonnes of Jacob Symeon and Leui Dinas *Ge.xlix.a. Judith.ix.a. brethrē, toke ether of them his * swerde and wēt in to the cytie boldly, and slewe all that was male, and slewe also Hemor and Si-chem hys sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina out of Sichems house, and went their waye.

And the sonnes of Jacob cōmynge vpon
the deed, spoyled the cytie, because they had defyled their syster: & toke their shepe, oxen, and their asses and whatsoeuer was in the cytie and also in ỹ feldes. And all their goo-des & all their chyldren, and theyr wyues to-ke they captiue and made hauouck of all that was in the house.

But Jacob sayde to Simeon and Leui:
ye haue troubled me and made me stynche
before the inhabitours of the lāde, before the Canaanyte and the Pherezite. And I beynge fewe in nombre, they shall gather them selues together agaynst me & slay me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: shulde they deale with oure syster as with an whoore.

¶ The.xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Jacob goeth vp vnto Bethell, and buryeth hys
ymages vnder an oke. Debora dyeth. Jacob is called Israell. The lande of Canaā is promysed him.
Rachel dyeth in laboure: Ruben laye wyth hys fathers concubyne. The death of Isaac.

A And God sayde vnto Jacob, aryse
and get ỹ vp to Bethel, and dwell
there. And make there an aulter vnto God that apeared vnto the,
*Ge.xxviij.c * when thou fleddest from the face of Esau
thy brother. Than sayde Jacob vnto hys houshold and to all that were wyth hym:
☞ put awaye the straunge goddes that are amōge you and be cleane, and chaūge youre garmentes, for we wyll aryse and goo vp to Bethell and I wyll make an aulter there, vnto God, which herde me in the daye of my tribulacyon, and was with me in the waye which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the strauge goddes which they had in their hāde, and all their earinges which were in their eares, & Jacob hyd thē vnder an ooke whych was by Sichem. And whan they departed, the feare of God fell vpon the cyties that were rounde aboute them. And they dyd not folo-we after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus which is in the lande of Canaan. B
The same is Bethell, he & all the people that was with him. And he buylded there an aulter, and called ỹ place: The God of Bethell,
because that God appered vnto hym there,
when he fled from the face of his brother.

But * Debora Rebeccas norse, dyed, & * Ge.xxxv.
was buryed beneth Bethell vnder an ooke.
And the name of it was called: the ooke of lamentacyon. And God appeared vnto Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia and blessed hym, and God sayde vnto him: thy name is Jacob. Notwythstondinge thou shalt be no more called * Jacob, but * Ge.xxxij.
Israel shalbe thy name. And he called hys name Israel.

And God sayde vnto him: I am God all-myghtye, growe and multiplye, people and a multitude of people shall sprynge of the,
yee and kynges shall come out of thy loy-
nes. And the lande whych I gaue Abraham and Isahac, will I gene vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the will I gene that lāde also:
And so God departed vp from hym in the place where he had talked wyth hym. And Jacob set vp a marke in the place where he talked with hym: euen a marke of stone and powred ☞ dryncke offrynge theron, & powred also oyle theron, and Jacob called the name of ỹ place where God spake with hym
* Bethell. * The house of God. C

And they departed from Bethel, and whē he was but a felde bredth frō Ephrath, Rahel began to trauell, and in trauelynge
she was in parell. And it happened as she was in paynes of hyr labour, the mydwyfe sayde vnto her, feare not, for thys sonne is thyne also. Then as hyr soule was a departynge, ỹ she * must dye, she called his name. *1.Reg.iiij.
Ben Oni. (the sonne of my sorowe.) But hys father called hym Ben Jamin. (The sonne of the ryght hande.) And thus dyed Rahel and was buryed in the waye to Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob sett vp a stone vpō hir graue, which is called Rahels graue stone vnto thys daye. And Israel went thence, & pytched vp hys tent beyonde the * *xxxvij.iiij.
toure of Eder. And it chaunced as Israel dwelt in the lande, that Ruben went and laye with

*Ge.xlix.a. laye * wyth Bilha hys fathers concubyne, and it came to Israels eare. The sonnes of Jacob were .xij. in nombre. The sonnes of Lea. Ruben Jacobs eldest sonne, and Simeon, Leui, Juda, Isachar, and zabulon.
The sonnes of Rahel: Joseph and Ben Ja-
min. The sonnes of Bilha Rahels mayde:
Dan and Neptali. The sonnes of zilpha Leaes mayde, Gad and Aser. These are the sonnes of Jacob whych were borne hym in Mesopotamia.

And so Jacob came vnto Isahac hys father to Mamre vnto kyriath Arba which is Hebron: where Abraham & Isahac soiour-ned as straungers. And the dayes of Isahac were an hundred and .lxxx. yeres: & Isahac fell sycke and dyed, and was put vnto hys people, beynge olde and full of dayes. And his sonnes Esau and Jacob buryed him.

And Esau toke his wyues and hys son-nes and daughters and all the soules of hys house: hys goodes and all hys cattell and all hys substance whych he had gott in the lan-de of Canaan, and went into a countre awaye from the face of hys brother Jacob: for *Gen.xiij.a. their * ryches was moche, and they coulde not dwell together, and the lande where in B they were straungers, coulde not receaue thē: because of their possession. Thus dwelt Esau in mounte Seir. The same Esau is Edom. These are the generacyons of Esau father of the Edomites in mounte Seir, and *1.Para.i.c. these are the names of Esaus sonnes: * Eliphas the sonne of Ada ỹ wyfe of Esau, and Reguel the sonne of Basmath the wyfe of Esau. And the sonnes of Eliphas were:

Esaus wyfe. These were the chyldren of Aholibama Esaus wyfe: duke Jeus, duke Gaelan, duke korah, these dukes came of Aholibama ỹ daughter of Ana Esaus wyfe. These are the chyldren of Esau, and these are the dukes of thē: which Esau is Edom.
These are the chyldren of Seir the horite,
the inhabitoure of the lande: Lothan, So-bal, zibeon, and Ana, and Dison, Ezer and Disan. These also are the dukes of the hori-tes the chyldren of Seir in the lande of Edō.
And the chyldren of Lothan were: Hori and Heman. And Lothans syster was called Thymna.

The chyldren of Sobal were these: Ja-uan, Manahath and Ebal, Sepho & Onā.
These are the chyldren of zibeon. Aia and Ana, thys was that Ana that founde mules in the wylderne, as he fed hys father zibeons asses. The chyldren of Ana were these. Dison and Aholibama the daughter of Ana. These are the chyldren of Dison, Hem-dan and Eshan, Jethran and Cheran. The chyldren of Ezer are these: Bilhan, Seauan

these: Uz and Aran. These are the dukes that came of Hori: duke Lothan, duke So-bal, duke zibeon, duke Ana, duke Dison, D duke Ezer, duke Disan. These be the dukes ỹ came of Hory after their dukedomes
in the lande of Seir. These are the kynges that reygned in the lande of Edom before there raygned any kynge vpon the chyldren of Israel. Bela the sonne of Beor reygned in Edomea, & the name of hys cytie was Din-haba. And when Bela dyed, Jobab the sonne of Serah out of Bozra, reygned in hys steade. When Jobab also was dead, Husam of the lāde of Themany reygned in his stea-
de. And after the deth of Husam, Hadad the sonne of Bedad which slewe the Madianyt-es in the felde of the Moabytes, reygned in hys steade, and the name of hys cytie was Auith. When Hadad was dead, Samla of Masreka reygned in his steade. Whē Sam-la was dead, Saul of the ryuer Reboboth reygned in hys steade. When Saul was dead, Baal hanā ỹ sōne of Achbor reygned
in his

in his steade. And after the deth of Baal Hanan the sonne of Achbor, Hadad reygned in his steade, and ỹ name of his cytie was Pahu. And hys wyfes name Mehetabeel the daughter of Matred, ỹ daughter of Mesaab.

These are the names of the dukes that came of Esau, in ỹ. xij. kynredes, places and names: duke Thymma, duke Alua, , duke Jetheth, duke Aholibama, duke Ela, duke Pinon, duke Kenas, duke Theman, duke Mibzar. duke Magdiel, duke Jram. These be the dukes of Edomea accordynge to theyr habitacyons, in the lande of theyr possessions. Thys Esau is the father of the Edomytes.

¶ The. xxxvij. Chapter.

¶ Joseph accuseth hys brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of hys brethren and is solde to the Ismaelytes. Jacob bewayleth Joseph.

A Jacob dwelt in the lande where in his father was a straunger, euen in the lãde of Chanaan. These are the generacyons of Jacob. when Joseph was. xvij. yere olde, he kepte shepe wyth hys brethren, and the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and with the sonnes of zilpha his fathers wyues. And he brought vnto their father an euyll sayinge of them. But Israel loued Joseph more than all hys chyldren, because he begat him in hys olde age, and he made hym a coote of many coloures.

And when hys brethren sawe that theyr father loued him more than all his brethren, they hated hym & coulde not speke peaceably vnto hym. Moreouer whan Joseph * had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren whych hated hym yet the more. ✠ And he sayde vnto them: heare I praye yowe thys dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were byndinge sheues in the felde: & lo, my sheffe arose, and stode vp rycht, and youres stode rounde aboute and made obeysaunce to my sheffe. To whom hys brethren sayde: shalt thou be oure kynge in dede / or shalt ỹ in dede haue dominyon ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of hys dreames, and of his wordes.

C And he dreamed yet another dreame and tolde it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the sonne and the moone & .xj. starres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and hys brethren, hys father rebuked him & sayde vnto him: what is thys dreame which thou hast dreamed: shall I & thy mother and thy brethrẽ come to fall on the grounde before the? And hys brethrẽ hated him, but hys father noted the sayinge.

Hys brethren also went to kepe their fathers shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayde vnto Joseph: do not thy brethren kepe in Sichem? come, and I wyll sende the to thẽ. He answered * here am I. And he sayde vnto him: goo and see whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe, and brynge me worde agayne. And so he sent him out of the vale of Hebron and he went to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym, and beholde he was wandrynge out of hys waye in the felde, and the mã asked him: what seketh thou? He answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I praye the where they kepe shepe. And the mã sayde, they are departed hence, for I herde them saye: let vs goo vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

tes for .xx. peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

And when Ruben came agayne vnto ỹ pytt & founde not Joseph there, he ☞ rent his cloothes and went agayne vnto his brethrẽ sayinge: the lad is not yonder, and whether shall I goo? And they toke Josephs coote and kylled a goote, & dypped the coote in the blonde. And they sent that partye coloured coote, and brought it vnto their father and sayde: Thys haue we founde: se whether it be thy sonnes coote or no. And he knewe it sayinge, it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beast hath * deuoured hym, Joseph is rent in peces. And Jacob rent hys cloothes, and put sacke clothe aboute his loynes, and sorowed for his sonne a longe season. But all his sonnes and all hys doughters rose vp to comforte him. Neuertheles he wolde not be comforted, but sayde: I wyll go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mournynge. And thus hys father wepte for hym. And the Madianytes * solde hym in Egypte vnto Putiphar a Lord of Pharaos, and his cheke Steward.

¶ The marlage of Juda. The trespas of Er and Onan, and the vengeaunce of God that came ther vpon. Juda laye with his daughter Thamar. The byrth of Pharez and Zarah.

A IT fortuned at that tyme, that Judas went downe from his brethrẽ, and gatt hym to a man called Hira of Odollam, and there he sawe the daughter of a man called * Sua a Canaanyte: And he toke her and wẽt in to her. And she conceaued & bare a sonne and called hys name Er. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne and called him Onan. And she conceaued agayne, & bare yet a sonne, whom she called Sela: ✠ and he was at Chesyb when she bare him.

Gen.xxiij.a

And Judas gaue Er hys Eldest sonne a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. And Er Judas eldest sonne was ☞ wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, & the Lorde slewe hym. And Judas sayde vnto Onan: goo into thy brothers wyfe and marye her, ỹ thou mayest stryre vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the seed shulde not be his, therfore when he went into his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, and gaue not seed vnto hys brother. And the thynge whych he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe him also. Than sayde Judas to Thamar hys daughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growne: for he sayde: Lest peraduenture he dye also, as hys brethren dyd. And Thamar wente and dwelt in her fathers house.

¶ The.xxxix.Chapter.

¶ God prospereth Joseph. Pharaos wyfe tempteth him. He is accused & cast in prison. God hath mercye vpon hym.

A Joseph was brought vnto Egypte, and Putiphar * a Lorde of *ge.xxxvij.g. Pharaos (& his chefe stewarde an Egyptian) bought him of the Ismaelytes which had brought him thyther. And God was with Joseph, & he became a luckye man, cõtinuynge in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that God was with him, & that God made all that he dyd to prosper in his hande. And Joseph founde grace in hys masters syghte, and serued him. And made hym rular of hys house, and put all that he had in his hande. And it fortuned from the tyme that he had made him rular ouer hys house and *Ge.xxvi.d. ouer all that he had, the Lorde * blessed the Egyptyans house for Josephs sake, and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had: in the house, and in the felde. And therB fore he left all that he had in Josephs hande, and loked vpon nothynge that was wt hym, saue only on the bread whych he dyd eate.
* i.Re.xvi.c. And Joseph was a * goodly persone & a well fauored. And it fortuned after thys, that his masters wyfe cast hyr eyes vpõ Joseph and sayde: come lye with me. But he refused, and sayde to hys masters wyfe: Beholde, my master wotteth not what he hath in the house with me, and hath committed all that he ✓* hath to my hande. ✓* There is no man greater in the house than I, Neyther hath he kepte any thynge frõ me, but only the, because thou art hys wyfe. Howe than can I do this great wyckednes, and synne agaynst God? And after thys maner spake she to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.

C And it fortuned on a certayne conuenient daye, that Joseph entred into the house, to do hys busynes: and there was none of the housholde by, in the house. And she caught him by the garment sayinge: come slepe with me. And he lefte hys garment in hyr hande and fled, and gott hym out. And it chaunced. When she sawe that he had lefte his gar-

¶ Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prysoners.

A And it chaunced after this, that the butteler of ỹ kynge of Egypte and hys baker had offended their Lorde the kynge of Egypte. And Pharao was angrye agaynst his two officers: agaynst ỹ chefe butler & the chefe baker: and put them in warde in hys chefe stewardes house: euen in the prison and place where Joseph was bounde. And the chefe Stewarde gaue Joseph a charge with them, & he serued thẽ. And they contynued a season in warde.

And they dreamed ether of them in one nyght: both the butteler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte which were bounde in the prison house, ether of them his dreame, and eache mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretacyon. When Joseph came in vnto them in B the morynynge, and loked vpon them: beholde, they were sadd. And he asked Pharaos officers that were with hym in hys masters warde sayinge: Wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them: Do not interpretynges belonge to God: yet tell me? And the chefe butlar tolde his dreame to Joseph, and sayde vnto him: In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me, and in the vyne were. iij. braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shott forth: and the grapes there of waxed rype.

And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande and
C tooke of the grapes and wronge them into Pharaos cuppe, and delyuered Pharaos cuppe in to hys hãde. And Joseph sayde vnto hym: thys is the interpretacion of it. The three braunches are three dayes; wythin three dayes shall Pharao lyft vp yne heade, and restore the vnto thyne office agayne, and thou shalt delyuer Pharaos cuppe in to hys hande, after the old maner wherin thou wast wont to geue hym drynke. But yf thou thynke on me wyth the, when thou art in good case, shewe mercye (I praye the) vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharao, and brynge me out of thys house: for I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrues, and here also haue I done nothynge at all, wherfore they shulde haue put me in to thys dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that the interpretacyon was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: me thought also in my dreame, that I had. iij. wyker basshettes on my heade. And in the vppermost basket there was of all maner bakemeates for Pharao. And the byrdes dyd eate thẽ out of the basket that was vpon my head.

D And Joseph answered and sayde: thys is the interpretacyon therof. The three basshettes are three dayes, for thys daye three dayes shall Pharao take thy heade from the, and shall hãge the on a tree, and the byrdes shall eate thy flesshe from of the.

And it came to passe ỹ thyrde daye whych
Mat.xiiij.a was Pharaos * byrth daye, that he made a feast vnto all hys seruauntes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chefe buttelar and of the chefe baker amonge hys seruauntes. And restored the chefe buttelar vnto hys buttelarshyppe agayne: whych also reched the cuppe in to Pharaos hande, but he hanged the chefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Neyther dyd the chefe buttelar remembre Joseph, but forgat hym.

¶ The.xlj.Chapter.

¶ Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egipt. He hath two sonnes: Manasses & Ephraim. The derth beginneth in Egypte.

A And it fortuned after two yeres, that Pharao dreamed, and beholde, he stode by a ryuers syde, & there came out of the ryuer seuen goodly kyne and fatt fleshed; and fedd in a medowe, &. vij. other kyne came vp after them out of the ryuer, euel fauored and leane fleshed, and stode, by the other kyne vpon the brynke of the ryuer. And the cuyll fauored and leane fleshed kyne dyd eate vp the seuẽ well fauored and fatt kyne: and Pharao awoke. And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the seconde tyme. And beholde, seuen eares of corne grewe vpõ one stalke, ranche and goodly. And agayne, seuẽ thynne eares blasted wyth the east wynde, sprange vp after them: and the seuen thynne eares deuowred the seuen ranche and full B eares. And Pharao awaked: and se, it was a dreame. And whẽ the morynynge came, his spyrete was troubled. And he sent and called for all the sothesayers of Egypte, and all the wyse men therof, and Pharao tolde thẽ hys dreame: but there was none of thẽ that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharao. Than spake the chefe buttelar vnto Pharao sayinge: I do remembre my fawtes thys daye. Pharao beynge angrie wyth hys seruaũtes, put in warde i the chefe Stewardes house both me & the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche mãns dreame ofa sondrye interpretacyon.

And there was wyth vs a ponge man, an Hebrue borne, seruaunte vnto the chefe Stewarde. To whom whã we tolde them, he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to ether of oure dreames. And as he declared thẽ vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. For he restored me to myne office agayne, & hanged hym.

Pharao sent therfore and called Joseph. *19 Sal.cij.b
And they brought hym haistely out of * prison. And he shaued hym selfe and chaunged hys rayment, and came in to Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I haue sene a C dreame, and no man can interpretate it, and I haue herde saye of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst interpretate it. Joseph answered Pharao, sayinge: Not I, but God shall gene Pharao an answere of peace. And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: in my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer seuen fatt fleshed, and well fauored kyne, & fedd in the medowe. And then seuen other kyne came vp after them, poore and very euell fauored and leane fleshed: such as I neuer sawe in all the lande of Egypte, they were so euell fauored. And the seuen leane & euell fauored kyne dyd eate vp the fyrst. vij fatt kyne. And when they had eaten thẽ vp, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten them: but they were still as euell fauored as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame & beholde, vij. eares sprange out of one stalk, full and fayre, and .vij. other eares agayne, wythered, thynne and blasted with the east wynde, sprange vp after the. And the thynne eares deuowred the .vij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the soth sayers, but there was no man that coulde tell, what it meaneth. And Joseph answered Pharao: both Pharaos dreames are one. And God hath shewed Pharao what he is aboute to do. The .vij. good kyne are .vij. yeares: and the .vij. good eares are seuen yeares also, and it is but one dreame. Lykewyse, the .vij. thynne and euell fauored kyne that came out after the, are .vii. yeares: and the .vii. emptye and blasted eares shalbe .vii. yeares of hunger.

D Thys whych I haue sayde vnto Pharao, is it that God is aboute to do, and sheweth it vnto Pharao.

Beholde there come .vii. yeare of great plenteousnes throughout all the lande of Egypte. And agayne there shall arise after them .vii. yeares of hunger. And all the plenteousnes shalbe forgotē in the lāde of Egypte: And the hūger shall cōsume the lāde: neither shall the plenteousnes be knowē in the lande, by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shalbe exceadinge great. And as concernynge that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the secōde tyme, beholde, the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, & God wyll shortly bringe it to passe.

Nowe therfore, let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstondynge and wysdome, and sett hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And let Pharao do thys also, that he make officers ouer the lāde, and take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypte in the .vii. plenteous yeares, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come, and lay vp corne vnder the hande of Pharao, that there maye be foode in the cytes, and there let them kepe it: that there maye be foode in stooze in the lande, agaynst the seuen yeares of hunger whych shall come in the lande of Egypte, that the lande perysshe not throwe hunger.

E And the sayinge pleased Pharao and all hys seruaūtes. Then sayde Pharao vnto hys seruaūtes: where shall we fynde soch a man as thys is, in whom is the spyrete of God? And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: for as moche as God hath shewed the all thys, there is no man of vnderstondynge or of wysdome lyke vnto y. Thou therfore shalt be * ouer my house, and accordynge to thy worde shall all my people be ruled, only in y kynges seate wyll I be aboue the. And Pharao sayde agayne vnto Joseph: beholde, I haue sett the ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of hys ryng from hys hande, and put it vpon Josephs hande, and arayed hym in cloth of raynes, and put a golden cheyne aboute hys necke, and sett hym vpon the best charett that he had, saue one. And they cryed before hym: Bowe the knee, and Pharao made hym ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte.

F And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharao, wythout the shall no man lyfte vp hys hāde or foote in all the lande of Egypte. And he called Josephs name ☞ zaphnath Paena. And he gaue hym to wyfe Asnath the daughter of Putiphar preast of On. Than went Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypte. And he was thyrtye yeare olde ☞ when he stode before Pharao kynge of Egypte. And Joseph departynge from the presence of Pharao, went throwe out all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seuen plenteous yeares they made sheues and gathered vp all y foode of the seuē plenteous yeares which were in the lande of Egypte, and layed vp the same in the cyties. The foode of the feldes that grewe rownde aboute euery cyte, layed he vp in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in stooze, lyke vnto the sande of the see, in multitude out of mesure, vntyll he left nōbrynge: for it was wythout nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes (before the yeares of hunger came) whych Asnath the daughter of Putiphar preast of On, bare vnto hym. And Joseph called the name of y G fyrst sonne * Manasse, for God (sayde he) *Gen.xlvi. hath made me forgett all my labour āð all my fathers housholde. The name of the seconde called he Ephraim, for God (sayd he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seuen yeares of plenteousnes that was in the lande of Egypte were ended, then came the seuen yeares of * derth *Act.vij.b. accordyng as Joseph had sayde. And y derth was in all lādes: but in all the lāde of Egypte was there yet foode. And when the lande of Egypt also began to hunger, the people cryed to Pharao for bread. And Pharao sayde vnto all the Egyptyans, goo vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that doo. And the derth was throwow out all the land. And Joseph opened all that was in the cyties, and solde vnto the Egyptyans. For the hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte: And all cōtrees came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because that the hūger was so sore in all landes.

¶ The .xlii. Chapter.

¶ Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. And he knoweth them and tryeth them. Symeon is put in pryson: the other retorne to theyr father to fetche Ben Jamin. Hys father is lothe to let hym go: but at the last he graunteth it.

And Jacob

A And Jacob seynge y there was corne in Egypt, sayde vnto hys sonnes: why gape ye one vpon another? And he sayd: beholde, I haue hearde that there is corne in Egypte. * Gete you downe thyther & bye vs corne from thence, that we maye lyue & not dye. So went Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne of the Egyptyans. But Ben Jamin Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sende with his other brethrē, for he sayd: lest some myshortune happen hym:

*Gen.xlij.b.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derth in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in the lande, and solde to all the people of the lande. And hys brethren came, and fell flat on the grounde before hym.

B When Joseph sawe hys brethren, he knewe them: and made hym selfe straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them, sayinge: Whence come ye? They answered: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vytayle. And Joseph knewe hys brethren, but they knewe not hym.

*Gen.xxxvij.d And Joseph remēbred his * dreames which he dreamed of them, and sayd vnto them: ye are spies, and to se where the lande is weake is youre compynge. And they sayd vnto him: nay my Lorde: but to bye vitayle thy seruauntes are come. We are all one mās sonnes, and meane truly, and thy seruauntes are no spyes. And he sayd vnto them agayne, nay, but euen to se where the lande is weake, is youre compynge. And they sayde: we thy seruauntes are .xii. brethren, the sonnes of one C man in the lande of Canaan. And beholde, the yongest is thys daye wyth oure father, and one, no man woteth where he is. And Joseph sayde vnto them, y is it that I spake vnto you, sayinge: ye are spyes. Here by ye shall be proued. By the lyfe of Pharao, ye shall not goo hence, excepte youre yongest brother come hyther. Sende out one of you whych maye fett youre brother, & ye shalbe kepte in presone, that youre wordes maye be pued, whether there be any trueth in you: or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye are but spies. And he put them in warde thre dayes.

And Joseph sayde vnto them the thyrde daye: Thys doo and lyue, for I feare God. D If ye meane no hurte, let one of youre brethren be bounde in the house of youre presō, and goo ye bringe the necessarye foode vnto youre housholdes, but bringe youre yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes maye be tryed, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

And one sayde to another: we haue verely synned agaynst oure brother, in that we sawe the anguyth of hys soull when he besought vs, & we wolde nat heare him: and therfore is thys trouble come vpon vs. And Ruben answered them sayinge: sayde I not vnto you that ye shulde not * synne agaynst the lad, and ye wolde not heare. And see, hys bloude is ☞ requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wepte * and turned to them agayne, and comened with them, & toke out Symeon from amonge the, and bownde hym before theyr eyes, and Joseph cōmaunded to fyll theyr sackes wyth corne, and to put euery mans money in hys sacke, and to geue them vytayle to spende by the waye. And thus dyd he vnto the. And they laded theyr asses wyth the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sacke, for to gene hys asse prauender in the Inne, he spyed hys money: for it was in hys sackes mouth. And he sayde vnto hys brethren: my money is restored me agayne: For lo, it is euen in my sacke. And they harte fayled them, and they were astonyed, and sayde one to another: why hath God dealt thus wyth vs? And F they came vnto Jacob theyr father vnto the lande of Canaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them, sayinge: The man, euen the Lorde of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes of the cōtre. And we sayd vnto him: we meane truely & are no spyes. We be .xii. brethren, sonnes of oure father, one is awaye, and the yongest is thys daye wyth oure father in the lande of Canaan. And the Lorde of the countre sayde agayne vnto vs: here by shall I knowe yf ye meane truly: leaue one of youre brethren here with me, and take foode necessary for youre housholdes and get you awaye, & bringe youre yongest brother vnto me, that I maye knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truely: So wyll I delyuer you youre brother, & ye shall occupye in the lande.

And it fortuned as they emptyed theyr sackes, beholde: euery mans bundell of money was in his sacke. And whē both they & their G father sawe the būdells of money, they were afrayde.

And Jacob theyr father sayde vnto them: Me haue ye robbed of my chyldren: Joseph is awaye, and Symeon is awaye, and ye take Ben Jamin awaye. All these thynges are agaynst me. Ruben sayde vnto hys father: Slee my two sonnes, yf I bringe hym not to the agayne. Delyuer hym to my hande, and I wyll bringe hym to the agayne: And he sayde: my sonne shall not go downe wyth you. For hys brother is dead, & he is left alone. If some myshortune happen vnto him by the waye which ye go, yee ☞ shall * bringe my gray head with sorowe vnto *Gen.xlvij.c the graue.

¶The.xliij.Chapter.

¶When Ben Jamin was brought: they retorned wyth gyftes: Symeō is delyuered out of pryson Joseph goeth aſyde and weepeth. They eate together.

AND the derth was greate in the lande. And it fortuned whē they had eatē vp ꝑ corne whych they brought out of ꝑ lāde of Egypt theyr father sayde vnto them: goo agayne, & by vs a lytle food. Juda answered hym, and sayde: the man dyd teſtifye vnto vs, sayinge: * loke that ye see not my face, excepte youre brother be wyth you. If thou wylt sende oure brother wt vs, we wyll go downe, and bye the foode. But yf thou wylt not sende hym, we wyll not goo downe: for the mā sayde vnto vs: loke that ye see not my face, excepte youre brother be wyth you. And Israel sayde: wherfore delt ye so cruelly wyth me, as to tell the man that ye had yet a brother? They answered: The mā asked vs straytly of oure kynred sayinge, is youre father yet alyue? haue ye not another brother? And we tolde hym accordynge to these wordes. Cowld we knowe ꝑ he wolde saye: bringe your brother downe with you? Than sayde Juda vnto Israel hys father: Sende the lad with me, that we maye ryse & goo, & that we maye lyue & not dye: both we, thou & also oure childzen. I wyll be suertye for hym, of my hādes shalt thou requyre hym. If I bringe hym not to the agayne, & set him before thyne eyes, * than let me bere ꝑ blame for euer. Truly except we had made thys tarryenge: by thys, we had bene there twyse and come agayne.

And theyr father Israel sayde vnto thē: If it must nedis be so nowe: than do thus. Take of the best frutes of the lāde in youre vesselles, and bringe the man a present, a curtesye bawme, and a curtesye of hony, spyces and myrre, notts & almondes. And take double money in youre hande. And the money that was brought agayne in youre sackes, take it agayne wyth you, lest peraduenture it was some ouersyghte.

Take also youre brother wyth you and, aryse and goo agayne to the man. And God almyght ye geue you mercye in the syghte of the man, ꝑ he maye delyuer you youre other brother, & this Ben Jamin, and I ☞ shalbe robbed of my chylde, as I haue bene.

Thus toke they the present and twyse so moch more money in theyr hande with Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypte, and stode before Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin wyth them, he sayde to the rular of hys house: bringe these men home, and sley and make redye: for these men shall dyne wt me at noone. And the mā dyd as Joseph bad, & brought thē into Josephs house.

Whē the men were brought into Josephs house, they were afrayde, and sayde: because of the money ꝑ came in oure sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought in, ꝑ he maye pycke a quarell wt vs, & to laye some thynge to oure charge, and to bringe vs in bondage and oure asses also. Therfore came they to the man that was the rular ouer Josephs house, & cōmened with hym at the doore of the house, and sayde:

E Oh Syr, we came downe hyther at the fyrst tyme to bye foode: & as we came to an inne, it happened ꝑ we opened oure sackes: and beholde, euery mannes * money was in hys sacke wyth full weyghte: And we haue brought it agayne in oure hande, and other mony haue we brought also in oure handes, to bye foode, but we cannot tell who put oure money in oure sackes. And he sayde: ☞ peace be vnto you, feare not: youre God and the God of youre father hath geuē you that treasure in youre sackes, I had youre money. And he brought Simeō out to thē, and the man led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to washe theyr fete, & gaue theyr asses prauender: And they made redye theyr present agaynst Joseph came at none, for they herde saye that they shulde ☞ eate bred there. Whē Joseph came home, F they brought the present into the house to hī, whych was in their handes, & fell flat on the groūde before hym. And he welcomed them courteously sayinge: is youre father that old man whych ye tolde me of, in good healthe? and is he yet alyue? they answered: thy seruaunte oure father is in good health, ād is yet alyue. And they bowed downe theyr heades, and made obaysaunce.

And he lyftinge vp his eyes, beheldē his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and sayde: * is this youre yōger brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And he sayde: God be mercyfull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (for * hys hert dyd melt vpon his brother) & sought where to wepe, ād entred into his chābre, & wepte there. And he washed his face & came out and refrayned hym selfe, and sayde: set bread on the table.

And they prepared for hym by him selfe, G and for them by thē selues, & for the Egyptians which dyd eate with him by them selues, because the Egyptians maye not eate bread with the Hebrues, for that is an abhomynacyon vnto the Egyptyans. And they satt before hym: the eldest accordynge vnto hys age, & the yongest accordynge vnto hys youth. And the men merueled amonge them selues. And they broughte rewardes vnto thē frō before hym: but Ben Jamins parte was fyue tymes so moch as any of theyrs ☞ And they dronkynge ☞ were dronke with hym.

AND he commaunded the ruler of his house sayinge: fyll the mēs sackes wt foode, as moch as they can carye, and put euery mans money in his sacke mouth, and put my syluer cup in the sackes mouth of the yongest, and hys corne money also. And he dyd accordinge to the worde that Joseph had sayde. And in the morynynge assoone as it was lyghte, the men were let goo, they and their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet farre awaye, Joseph sayde vnto the ruelar of hys house: vp and folowe after the men, and whan thou dost ouertake them, thou shalt saye vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe ☞ in the which my Lord drynketh, ☞ and for the which he prophecyeth? ye haue euell done that ye haue done.

B And whan he ouertoke them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayeth my Lord soch wordes? And he fell on hys brother Ben Jamins necke and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte on hys necke. Moreouer he kyssed all hys brethren and wepte vpon them. And after that, hys brethren talked wyth hym. And the tydynges came vnto Pharaos house, so that they sayde: Josephs brethren are come, & it pleased Pharao well and all hys seruauntes.

E And Pharao spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beestes and get you hence, vnto the lande of Canaan, Take youre father, and your housholdes and come vnto me, and I wyll geue you the good of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fatt of the lãde. Also, regarde not youre stuffe, for the good of all the lande of Egypt is youres.

F And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so, And Joseph gaue them charettes accordyng to the commaundement of Pharao, and gaue them vytayle also to spende by the waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue. iij. hundred peces of syluer and. v. chaunge of rayment. And vnto hys father he sent after the same maner. x. asses ladē wyth good, out of Egypt, and. x. the asses laden wyth corne, bred and meate: for hys father by the waye. So sent he hys brethren awaye to departe: And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not out by the waye.

They departed therfore from Egypt and G came in to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob theyr father, and tolde hym sayinge: Joseph is yet alyue, & is gouerner ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Jacobs hert waucred, for he beleued them not. And they tolde hym all the wordes of Joseph, whych he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe the charettes whych Joseph had sent to carye hym, the spyrete of Jacob theyr father reuyued. And Israel sayde: I haue ynough that Joseph my sonne is yet alyue: I wyll goo, and se hym, yer that I dye.

¶ The.xlvii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob cometh before Pharao: and vnto hym is geuen the lande of Gosan. He maketh hys sonne to swere for hys buryall.

A Joseph came therfore and tolde Pharao and sayde: my father and my brethrẽ, theyr shepe and their oxen and all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan, and beholde, they are in the lande of Gosan. And Joseph tolke of the hynmost of hys brethren: euen fyue men, and presented them vnto Pharao. And pharao sayde vnto hys brethren: what is youre occupacyon? And they answered Pharao: shepherdes are thy seruauntes, both we & also oure fathers. They
*Ge.xxiiii.a. sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to * sogeorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruauntes haue no pasture for theyr shepe, so sore is the famesshment in the lãde of Canaan. Nowe therfore let thy seruauntes dwell in the lande of Gosan.

And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: thy fa- B
ther and thy brethren are come vnto the. The lãd of Egypte is before the: In the best place of the lande make both thy father and thy brethren dwell: euen in the lande of Gosan let them dwell. Moreouer yf thou knowe any men of actuite amonge them, make them ruelars ouer my catell. And Joseph brought in Jacob hys father, and sett hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pha- ☞
rao. And Pharao sayde vnto Jacob: howe olde art thou? Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: ☞ the dayes of my pilgremage are an hundred and. xxx. yeares. Fewe & euell haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeares of the lyfe of my fathers in the dayes of theyr pilgremages. And Ja- ☞ cob blessed Pharao, and went out from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellynges for ☞ hys father and hys brethren, and gaue them possessyons in the land of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao had commaunded. And Joseph made prouisyon for hys father, hys brethren & all his fathers houlholde wyth bread, euen as yonge chyldren are fedd.

There was no bread in all the lande, for C
the derth was exceadynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte and the lande of Canaan, were famesshed by the reason of the derth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte and of Canaan, for the corne whych they boughte: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the lande

of Egypte & of Canaan, all the Egyppeyans came vnto Joseph and sayde: geue vs bred:
wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the D whan oure money is spent? Then sayde Joseph: brynge youre catell, & I wyll geue yow for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought theyr catell vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them bread for horses & shepe,
and oxen, and asses, and fed thē wyth bread
for all theyr catell that yeare.

But when that yeare was ended, they ca me vnto hym the nexte yeare, & sayde vnto him: we will not hyde it from my Lord how ỹ oure money is spent, my Lord also had our catell & beastes, neyther is there ought left in the syght of my Lorde, but euen oure bodies and our lādes. Wherfore letest thou vs dye before thyne eyes, & the lande to goo to noughte? by vs & our lādes for bread: & both
we and oure landes will be bōde to Pharao.
Onely geue vs seed, that we maye lyue and not dye, & that the lande goo nat to wast.

E And so Joseph boughte all the lād of Egypte for Pharao. For ỹ Egyppeians solde eue-ry man hys lande because the derth was sore
vpon thē: & so the lāde became Pharaos.
And he appoynted the people vnto ỹ cyties,
frō one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of the Prestes bought he not. For the prestes had an ordinaunce of Pharao, ỹ
they shulde eate that which was appoynted
vnto thē: which Pharao had geuē thē wherfore they solde not theyr landes.

Thē Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde
I haue boughte you thys daye & youre lāde for Pharao. Take there bread & sede & sowe F the lād. And of the encrease, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, & .iiij. partes shal-
be youre awne, for seed of the feld: & for you,
and them of youre housholdes, and for youre chyldren, to eate. And they answered: Thou haste saued oure lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syght of my Lord, & we wyll be Pha-raos seruaūtes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto thys daye:
that Pharao shulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the prealtes only, whych was not Pharaos.

And Israel dwelt in Egypte: euen in the coūtre of Golan. And they had theyr posses-syons therin, & grewe and multiplied exceadyngly. Moreouer, Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte .xvij. yeares, so that the hole age
of Jacob was an hundred and .xl vij. yeare.

G When the tyme drewe nye, ỹ Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, & sayde vn-
to hym: If I haue foūde grace in thy syght, oh, put thy hande nowe vnder my thye, and deale mercyfully and truely wt me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but I will lye with my fathers, and thou shalt carye me out of Egypte, & burye me in theyr buryall. And he answered: I wyll do as thou hast sayd. And he sayde * swere vnto me. And he sware vn- * Gen.xlvij.

& Ephraim which were borne vnto the in ỹ lande of Egypte, before I came to the in to Egypte, are myne: euē as Ruben & Symeō are myne. And the childzen which thou hast gotten after thē, shalbe thyne awne: & shal-be called after the names of theyr brethrē in theyr enheritaunce. And whan I came from B Mesopotamia, Rahel * dyed vpon my hād * Ge.xxxv.
in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when ther was but a feldes brede to come vnto Ephrat. And I buryed her there in ỹ waye to Ephrat. The same is Bethlehem.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes and sayde: what are these? Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes which God hathe geuē me here. And he sayde: oh, bryng them to me, & let me blesse thē. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so ỹ he coulde not well see. And he brought them to hym, and he kyssed them and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thought to C
haue sene thy face, ād yet loo, God hath shewed it me and also thy seed. And Joseph to-ke them awaye from his lappe, & wozshypped on the grounde before hym.

Than toke Joseph them both: Ephraim with his ryghte hande towarde Israels left
Israels

Israels ryghte hande, & brought them vnto
hym. And Israel stretched out hys ryghte hande & layde it vpon Ephraims heade
which was the yonger, & hys lyfte hāde vpō Manasses heed, gydinge hys handes wyse-ly, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph & sayde: God, before whome my fathers Abraham & Isahac dyd walke, God
whych hath fedd me all my lyfe longe vnto
thys daye, And the angell whych hath delyuered me from all cuyll, blesse these laddes: &
let my name be named in them, & the name of my fathers Abrahā & Isahac, & that they maye growe into a multitude in the myd-des of the erth.

When Joseph sawe that hys father layde
hys ryghte hāde vpon ỹ heade of Ephraim,
it displeased him. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims
heade vnto Manasses heade, & Joseph sayde
D vnto hys father: Not so my father, for thys is the eldest. Put thy ryght hande vpon hys heade. And hys father wolde not, but sayde:
I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well.
He shalbe also a people & shalbe great. But hys yonger brother shalbe greatter than he,
and hys seed shall be full of people. And he blessed them that daye and sayde: In the let Israel blesse & saye: God make ỹ as Ephraim and as Manasses. And sett Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: beholde,
I dye. And God shalbe wyth you and bryn-ge you agayne vnto ỹ lāde of youre fathers.
Moreouer I haue geuen vnto the, a portyō

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The chyldren of Jacob are nombred. The newe Pharao oppresseth them. The acte of the godly mydwiues.

THese are the names of the childzen of Israel, which came to Egypte wyth Jacob, euery man came wt hys housholde: Rubē, Simeō, Leui, and Juda, Issachar, Zabulon, and Beniamin, Dan, Nephtali, Gad and Aser. All the soules ỹ came out of the loynes of Jacob were. lxx. But Joseph was in Egypte allredie. And Joseph dyed and all hys brethren and all that generacyon, and the * chyldren of Israel grewe, encreased, multiplyed, ād waxed exceadinge myghtye: and the lande was full of them.

*Act.vij.c. Psa.cxvij.c.

But there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte whych knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde, the people of ỹ chyldrē of Israel are greater and myghtyer than we. Come on, let vs playe wisely wyth thē, lest they multiplye, & lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne thē selues vnto oure enemyes and fyghte agaynst vs, and so gete them out of the lande.

Therfore dyd they sette taskmasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder wt burthens. And they bylte vnto Pharao treasure cities: Phiton and Rameses. But the more they vexed thē, the moare they multiplyed and grewe, so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israel. And the Egyptiās helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage without mercye. Therfore was their lyfe bytter vnto thē in that cruell bondage, in claye & brycke, and all maner of worke in ỹ feldes. For all their bōdage which they serued them, was full of tyrannye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwines of the Hebruel women, of which the ones name was Sephora and the other Phua: when ye do the office of a mydwife to the women of the Ebrues and se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, ye shall kyll it. But yf it be a daughter, it shall lyue. Notwithstondynge the mydwiues feared God and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte cōmaunded them: but saued the men chyldren.

And the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwiues and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on thys maner, and haue saued the menchyldren? And the mydwiues answered Pharao, that the Hebrues wemen are not as the wemen of Egypte: for they are sturdie women, and are delyuered per the midwyues come at thē. And God therfore delt well with the midwyues. And the people multiplyed and waxed very myghtye. And it fortuned because the midwyues feared God, ☞ he made them houses.

And Pharao charged all hys people, sayinge: All the menchyldren that are borne, cast into the ryuer, and saue the maydechyldren alyue.

¶ The seconde Chapter.

¶ Moses is borne and cast into the flagges. He is take vp of Pharaos daughter. He kylleth ỹ Egyptian. He flyeth and marryeth a wyfe. The Israelites crye vnto the Lorde.

AND ther went a mā of * the house of Leui. And toke a daughter of Leui. And the wyfe conceaued and bare a sonne. And when she sawe that it was a proper chylde * she hyd hym thre monethes. And when she coulde no longer hyde him, she toke a basket of bulrusshes and dawbed it with slyme and pytche, and layde the chylde therin, and put it in the flagges by the ryuers brynke. And his sister stode a farre of, to wete what wold come of it. ‡ And the daughter of Pharao came doune * to washe herselfe in the ryuer, and hyr maydens walked alonge by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge ỹ flagges, she sent hyr mayde to fetch it. And when she had opened it, she sawe it was a chylde: and beholde, the babe wepte. And she had compassyon on it, and sayde: it is one of the Hebrues chyldren. Then sayde hys syster vnto Pharaos daughter: shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the Hebrues wemen, to nurse the, the chylde? Pharaos daughter answered her: Goo. And the mayde ranne and called the chyldes mother. To whom Pharaos daughter sayde: Take thys chylde a waye, and nurse it for me, I wyll rewarde the. And the woman toke the chylde, and nursed it vp.

The chylde grewe, & she brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, & it was made hyr sōne, & she called the name of it ☞ Moses, because (sayde she) I toke him out of ỹ water. And it happened in those dayes, when Moses was waxed waxed great, that he went out vnto his brethren and loked on their burdens, & spied an Egyptian smytynge an Hebrue whych was one of hys brethren. And he loked rounde a-boute, and when he sawe no mã by, he sle we the Egyptiã, and hyd him in the sonde. And whã he was gone out another daye: beholde

two hebrues stroue to gether. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: wherfore

ℂ The. iiij. Chapter.

ℂ Moses receaued signes of his callynge and was sent into Egypte. Hys wyfe Zephora circumcysed hyr sonne. Aaron meteth wyth Moses. Moses taketh hys leaue of hys father in lawe.

A MOses answered and sayde: Se, they wyll not beleue me nor herken vnto my voyce: but will saye the Lorde hath not apeared vnto the. And ỹ Lorde sayde vnto him: what is ỹ whych is in thyne hande? he answered a rodd. And he sayde: cast it on ỹ grounde. And he cast it on the grounde, and it became a serpent. And Moses fled from the syght of it. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: put forth thyne hande and take it by the tayle. And therfore he put forth hys hande & caught it, and it became a rodd in his hande. For thys thinge (sayeth he) shall they beleue the, that the Lorde God of their fathers, the B God of Abraham, the God of Isahac & the God of Jacob hath apeared vnto the.

And the Lorde sayde forthermore vnto hym: thrust thyne hande in to thy bosome. And he thrust hys hande in to hys bosome. And whã he toke it out agayne, beholde, his hande was leperous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thyne hande in to thy bosome agayne. And he put hys hãde into his bosome agayne, and plucked it out of hys bosome, & beholde, it was turned agayne as hys other flesshe. Therfore yf they wyll not beleue the nether heare the voyce of the fyrst token, yet wyll they beleue for the voyce of the seconde token. But and yf they wyll not beleue the two signes, nether herken vnto thy voyce, C thou shalt take of the water of the ryuer, & powre it vpon the drye lande. And ỹ water which thou takest out of ỹ ryuer, shall turne to blonde vpon the drye lande.

Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: oh my Lorde, I am not eloquent from ☞ yester daye & ☞ yerysterdaye, & namely sence thou hast spokẽ vnto thy seruaũte: but I am slowe mouthed and slowe tonged. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: who hath made mans mouth, D or who hath made the domme or the deaff, the seynge or the blynde: haue not I the Lorde? Therfore * I will be with thy mouth, & teache the what thou shalt saye. He sayde: oh my Lorde, sende I praye the ☞ by the hãde of him whom thou wilt sende. And ỹ Lorde was angrye with Moses, & sayde: do not I knowe Aaron thy brother the leuyte, that he can speake? For lo, he commeth forth to mete the, & when he seyth the, he wylbe glad in his herte. Therfore thou shalt speake vnto hym, and put these wordes in hys mouth, and I wylbe with thy mouth and wyth hys mouth, and wyll teache you what ye ought to do. And he shalbe thy spokesman vnto the people: ☞ he also shall be thy mouth & ☞ thou shalt be hys God: and thou shalt take this rodd in thy hande, wherwith thou shalt do myracles. *Mat.x.b. ☞ ☞

Therfore Moses went and returned to Jethro hys father in lawe agayne, & sayde vnto him: I wyll go nowe, and turne agayne E vnto my brethren whych are in Egypte, and se whether they be yet alyue. And Jethro sayde to Moses, goo in peace. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses in Madian: goo, and returne agayne in to Egypte * for they are dead which wẽt about to kyll the. And Moses toke hys wyfe, and his sonnes, & put thẽ on an asse, and went agayne to Egypte, & Moses toke the rodd of God in his hande. *Mat.ij.b.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: when thou art entred & come into Egypte agayne, se that thou doo all the wondres before Pharao which I haue put in thy hande: but I wyll holde * hys herte, and he shall not let the people goo. And thou shalt saye vnto Pharao, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and I haue sayde vnto the that thou shuldest let my sonne goo, that he maye serue me. And thou woldest not let hym goo: beholde, I wyll * slee thyne eldest sonne. *Exo.xj.a. F. *Exo.xij.c.

And it chaunced by the waye in the ynne that the Lorde mett hym, and wolde haue kylled

kylled him. And Zephora toke a stone, & cut a waye the foreskyne of hyr sone, & fell at his fete, & sayde: a bloudy husbande art thou vnto me. Then he lett him goo. And she sayde a bloudy husbande, because of the circumcysion. Then sayde the Lorde vnto Aaron: Go vete Moses in the wilderneße. And he went and met hym in the mount of God, and kyssed him. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lorde which had sent him, and all the tokens which he had charged him withall. So went Moses & Aaron and gathered all the elders of the chyldrē of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes whych the Lorde had spoken vnto Moses, and dyd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people beleued. And whē they herde that the Lorde had visited the chyldren of Israel and had loked vpon their tribulacyon, they bowed their head, and worshypped.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Moses & Aaron goeth vnto Pharao. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, & they crye oute vpon Moses & Aaron therfore.

AMoses & Aaron went in after warde, and tolde Pharao, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: Let my people goo, that they maye kepe holye daye vnto me in the wilderneße. And Pharao sayde: who * is ỹ Lorde, that I shulde heare hys voyce, & let Israell goo? I knowe not the Lorde, nether will I let Israel goo. And they sayde: the God of the hebrewes hath mett with vs: and therfore wyll we go. iij. dayes iourney into the deserte, and sacrifyce vnto the Lorde oure God: lest there happen vnto vs ether pestylence or swerde. Then sayde the kynge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore do ye, Moses and Aaron let the people from their worke, get you vnto your labour. And Pharao sayde furthermore: beholde, there is moche people nowe in the lande, and ye make them leaue their worke.

And Pharao commaūded the same daye vnto the taskemasters which were amonge the people, and vnto the officers, sayinge: ye shall geue the people no more strawe, to make bricke wyth all, (as ye dyd in tyme passed.) let them goo and gather them strawe them selues and the nombre of bricke whyche they were wont to make in tyme passed, laye vnto their charges also, and mynych nothynge therof. For they be ydell and therfore crye sayinge: we wyll goo & do sacrifyce vnto oure God. They must haue more worke layed vpon them, that they maye labour therin, & not regarde vayne wordes.

Than went the taskemasters of the people and the officers out: and tolde the people Thus sayeth Pharao: I wyll geue you no moare strawe, goo youre selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of youre labour be minyshed. And so were ỹ people scatered abrode thorowe out all the lande of Egypte for to gather stubbyll in stead of strawe.

And the taskemasters hasted them forward sayinge: fulfyll youre worke daye by daye, euen as yf ye had strawe. And the officers of the chyldren of Israel whych Pharaos taskemasters had sett ouer them, were beate. And they sayde vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfylled youre taske in makinge bricke, both yesterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes past?

The officers also of the chyldrē of Israel came & complayned vnto Pharao, sayinge: wherfore dealest thou thus wyth thy seruauntes? there is no strawe geuē vnto thy seruauntes, and they saye vnto vs: make bricke. And thy seruauntes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. He sayde: ydell are ye, ydell, and therfore ye saye: We wyll goo and do sacrifyce vnto the Lorde. Goo therfore nowe and worke, and ther shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet shall ye delyuer the hole tale of bricke.

And the officers of the chyldren of Israel dyd wyth heynes loke on them that sayde: ye shall minyshe nothynge of youre daylye makynge of bricke. And they mett Moses and Aarō, which stode in there waye as they came out frō Pharao, & sayde vnto thē: The Lorde loke vnto you and iudge you, whych hath made the sauoure of vs stincke in ỹ eyes of Pharao & in the eyes of his seruaūtes, and haue put a swerde in their hande to slee vs.

Moses returned vnto the Lorde & sayde: Lorde wherfore hast thou dealte cruelly wt this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharao to speake in thy name, he hath fared foule wyth thys folke, and yet thou hast not delyuered thy people at all. Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Nowe shalt thou see, what I wyll doo vnto Pharao, for in a myghtye hande shall he let them goo, and * in a myghtye hande shall he dryue them out of hys lande. *Exo.vi.d

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ God promyseth delyueraunce of the Israelites, and the lande of Canaan. The genealogye of Ruben, Simeon and Leui.

AND God spake vnto Moses, and sayde vnto him: I am the Lorde, I appeared vnto Abraham Isahac and Jacob as an allmyghtye God: and in my name Jehouah was I not knowne vnto them. Moreouer * I made an appoyntment with them to geue thē the lande of Canaan: ỹ lande of their pilgremage where in thy were straungers. And I haue also herde the gronynge of the chyldren of Israel, whō the Egyptians kepe in bondage, and haue remembred my couenaunt. *Ge.xvii.

Wherfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I am the Lorde, I wyll bringe you out from ỹ burdens of the Egyptians, and wyll rydd you out of their bondage, & wyll delyuer you in a stretched out arme and in great iudgementes. And I wyll take you for my people, & wyll be to you a God. And ye shall knowe, ỹ I am the Lorde youre God which bringe you out frō the burdens of the Egyptians. And I wyll bringe you vnto the lande concernynge the whych I dyd lyft vp my hāde to geue it vnto Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, and wyll geue it vnto you for a possessyon: euen I the Lorde. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel euē so: But they harkened not vnto Moses, for anguyshe of spyrete and for cruel bondage.

The Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: Goo in, & speake vnto Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he let the chyldren of Israel goo out of hys lande. And Moses spake before the Lorde sayinge: beholde, the chyldren of Israel herken not vnto me, howe than shall Pharao heare me, which am of vncircumcised lyppes? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and vnto Aaron, and gaue them a charge vnto the chyldren of Israel and vnto Pharao kynge of Egypte: to bringe the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte. These be the heedes of theyr fathers houses. The * chyldren of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel are these: Hanoh, and Pallu, Hezron, and Charmi, these be the households of Ruben The chyldren of Simeon: Semuel, and Jamin, Ohad, and Jachim, Zohar, ād Saul the sonne of a Cananytesh wyfe: these are the kynreddes of Simeon. These also * are the names of the chyldren of Leui in their generacyons: Gerson, and kahath and Merari. Leui lyued an hundred & .xxxvij. yere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Semei by their kynreddes. The chyldrē of kahath: Amram, and Jesear, Hebron and Uſiel. And kahath lyued an hundred and .xxxiij. yere. The chyldren of Merari: Mahely and Musi: these are the kynreddes of Leui by their generations.

* Amram toke * Jochebed hys nece to wyfe and she bare hym Aaron and Moses. *(And Mariam.) And Amram lyued an hundred and .xxxvij. yere. The chyldren of Jezear, Korah, Nepheg and Sichri: The chyldrē of Uſiel: Misael, Elzaphan and Sithri.

And Aaron toke Elizaba daughter of Aminadab and syster of Nahason, to wyfe: whych bare hym Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. The chyldren of Korah: Assir, and Elkana and Abiasaph: these are the kynreddes of the Korahites. Eleazar Aarons sonne toke him one of the daughters of Putuel to wife, which bare him Pinchas: and these be the pryncipall fathers of the Leuites thorowe out their kynreddes.

This is that Aaron and Moses to whō the Lorde sayde: carye the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, accordynge to theyr armyes. These are ỹ Moses and Aaron which spake to Pharao kynge of Egypte, that they myghte bringe the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte. And in the daye when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the lande of Egypte, he spake vnto hym, sayinge: I am the Lorde. Speake thou vnto Pharao ỹ kinge of Egypte all that I saye vnto ỹ. And Moses sayde before the Lorde: Beholde, I am of * vncircumcised lyppes, and howe shall Pharao geue me audience? *Exo.vi.b.

¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ The tokens to knowe God. The rodde of Moses is torned to a serpēt. The sorcerars do euen the same. The waters are tourned into bloude.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: beholde, I haue made the Pharaos God, and Aaron thy brother shall be thy pphete. Thou shalt speake all that I commaunded the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharao, that he sende the chyldren of Israel out of hys lande. And * I wyll harden Pharaos hert, and multiplie my myracles and my wondres in the lande of Egypte. But Pharao shall not herken vnto you, that I maye sett myne hand vpon Egypte, and bringe out myne armyes, and my people the chyldren of Israel out of the lāde of Egypte, in great iudgementes, and the Egyptians shall knowe, that I am the Lorde: when I stretche forth my hande vpon Egypte, and bringe out the chyldren of Israel from amonge them. *Exo.iiij.e.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded thē, euen so dyd they. Moses was lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron. lxxxiij. whē they spake vnto Pharao. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: yf Pharao speake vnto you sayinge: shewe a wondre, thou shalt saye vnto Aaron: take thy rodd and caste it before Pharao, that it maye be a serpent. Than went Moses and Aaron in vnto Pharao, and dyd euen as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron caste forth his rodd before Pharao and before his seruauntes * and it turned to a serpente. Than Pharao called for the wyse men and enchaunters, & those wyse men of Egypte dyd in like maner wt there sorcery. For they cast downe euery man hys rodd, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde dyd eate vp theyr roddes: and he hardened Pharaos herte: that he herkened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde. *Exo.iiij.a. 2.Tim.iij.d

The Lorde also sayde vnto Moses. Pharaos herte is hardened, he refuseth to let the people people goo. Get the vnto Pharao tyȝ mo-nynge, lo, he wyll come vnto the water, and thou shalt stonde vpon the ryuers bȝynke

ȝaynst he come, and the rodd whyche turned to a serpẽte, shalt thou take in thyne hãde. And thou shalt saye vnto hym: the Lozde God of the Hebzues hath sente me vnto the,
*Exo.viij.a. sayinge * let my people goo, that they maye
serue me in the wildernes: And beholde, hy-ther to thou woldest not heare. Thus sayth D the Lozde: In thys thou shalt knowe that I am the Lozde. Beholde, I wyll smyte (with the staffe ẏ is in myne hande) the water that is in the ryuer, and it shall turne to blonde.
And the fysshe that is in the ryuer shall dye,
and the ryuer shall stynke: and it shall greue
the Egyptians to dȝyncke of the water of the ryuer.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, saye
vnto Aaron: take thy staffe, and stretche out thyne hande ouer ẏ waters of Egypte, ouer
their streames, ouer their ryuers and ponds and all pooles of water, whych they haue, ẏ
they maye be blonde, and that there maye be blond thozowe out all the lande of Egypte:
both in vessels of wodd and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd euen as the Lozde commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe and smote the waters that were in the ryuer in the syghte of Pharao and in ẏ syght-
e of hys seruauntes, and all the water that *Psa.lxxviij.c. and.civ.c. was in the ryuer, turned into blond. And the fysshe that was in the ryuer dyed * and the ryuer stanke: and the Egyptians coulde not dȝyncke of the waters of the ryuer. And there was blonde thozowe out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters of Egypte dyd ly-ke wyse wyth their sozceries, and he hardened Pharaos hert: neyther dyd he harken *Exo.viij.d. aud.bij.a. vnto them * as the Lozde had sayde. And Pharao turned hym selfe, and went agaynst
into hys houlse, and set not hys herte there vnto. And the Egyptians dygged rounde aboute the ryuer for water to dȝynke, for they coulde not dȝynke of the water of the ryuer. And it continued a weke after that the Lozde had smyten the ryuer.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

¶ The plage of frogges: Moses prayeth for Pha-
rao. The plage of flyes.

A THe Lozde spake vnto Moses: Goo vnto Pharao & tell him, thus sayeth the Lozde:
*Exo.bij.c. iij.d.i.a. * lett my people goo, that they maye serue me. If thou wylt not let them goo: be-holde, I wyll smyte all thy bozder wt frogges. And the ryuer shall scrall wyth frogges, whych shall go vp and come into thyne house and in to thy preuy cham-
bze where thou slepest, and vpon thy bedd,
and into the house of thy seruauntes, & vpon
thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpon thy meates. And the frogges shall come vpõ
the and on thy people and vpon all thy seruauntes.

*Psa.lxxvij.e. * And the Lozde spake vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron: stretche forth thyne hande with B thy rodd ouer the stremes, ouer the ryuers,
and ouer the ponds, that thou mayest bȝynge vp frogges vpon ẏ lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched hys hande ouer the waters of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, & coue-red the lande of Egypte. And the sozcerers dyd lyke wyse wt theyze sozcery, and bzought
frogges vp vpon the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharao called for Moses & Aaron *iij.re.xij. Exo.ix.f. Psa.c. Act.vij.a. and sayde * praye ye vnto the Lozde, that he maye take away the frogges from me &
from my people, and I wyll let the people
C goo, that they maye do sacrifyce vnto the Lozde. And Moses sayde vnto Pharao:
☞ * reioysse thou ouer me, and appoynte
when I shall praye for the and for thy serua-untes, and for thy people, to dȝyue away
the frogges frõ the, and thy houses, and that they maye remayne but in the ryuer only. He sayde: tomozowe. And he sayde: euen as thou hast sayde, that thou mayest knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lozde oure God.
And so the frogges shall departe from the
and from thy houses, from thy seruauntes and from thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer only.

Moses and Aaron went out from Pha-
D rao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lozde vpon
ẏ apoynt ment of frogges, which he had made vnto Pharao. And the Lozde dyd accozdynge to the sayinge of Moses. And ẏ frogges dyed out of ẏ houses, out of the courtes and feldes. And they gathzed them together
vpon heapes, & the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had rest
geuen him, he hardened hys herte and herkened not vnto them, as the Lozde had sayde.
And the Lozd sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron: stretche out thy rodd and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyse thozowe out all the lande of Egypte. And E they dyd so. For Aarõ stretched out his hãde & with his rodd he smote the dust of the erth, which turned to lyse in mã and beest, so that all the dust of the lande turned to lyse, tho-

And the enchaunters allayde lykewyse

both vpon men and beestes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: it is the ☞ fynpraye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I will go out frõ the, & praye vnto the Lozde,

that the flyes maye departe from Pharao, & from his seruauntes and from his people to mozow. But let Pharao from henseforth de-

And Moses went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lozde. And the Lozde dyd

And Pharaos seruaūtes sayd vnto him: Howe longe shall he be a slaunder vnto vs? Let the mē go, that they maye serue ỹ Lorde their God: knowest thou not yet ỹ Egipt is destroied? And Moses & Aarō were brought agayne vnto Pharao, and he sayde vnto them: Go, and serue the Lorde youre God. Who are they that shall go? And Moses answered: we will go with oure yonge and with our olde: yee, and with our sonnes and with oure daughters, and with oure shepe, and wt oure oxen we must go. ## ¶ The.xviii.Chapter:

¶ Jethros councell is receaued of Moses.

A JEthro the preest of Midiam Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done for Moses and for Israell hys people, and that the Lord had brought Israel out of Egypte. * Therfore he toke ziphora Moses wyfe, (After he had sente her backe) and hyr two sonnes, of which the one was called *Gerson, for he sayd: I haue bene an alient in a straunge lande. The name of the other was Eliesar: for the God of my father (sayde he) was myne helpe, and delyuered me frō the swerde of Pharao. And Jethro Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes & his wyfe vnto Moses into the wildernesse: where he abode by the mount of God. And he sayde vnto Moses: I thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also ād hyr two sonnes with her. And Moses went B oute to mete hys father in lawe and dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym and eache asked other of hys health, and they came into the tent. And Moses tolde hys father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharao and to the Egyptians for Israels sake, and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde delyuered them. And Jethro reioyced ouer all the goodnesse whyche the Lorde had done to Israell, and because he had delyuered them out of the hāde of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayde: blessed be the Lorde whiche hath delyuered you oute of the hande of the Egyptians and out of the hande of Pharao, which hath also delyuered hys people from the captyuite of the Egyptians. Nowe I knowe that the Lorde is greater then all goddes, for ☞ in the thynge wherby they dealt cruelly wyth them, are they them selues perysshed. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offred burntofferynges and sacrifyces vnto God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate breade wyth Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morow, that Moses satt to iudge the people, and the people stode aboute Moses from morninge vnto euen. And whā Moses father in lawe sawe all that he did vnto the people, he sayd: what is thys that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou thy selfe alone, and all the people stonde about the from morninge vnto euen? And Moses sayde vnto hys father in lawe: because the people come vnto me to seke councell of God. When they haue a matter, they come vnto me, and I iudge betwene euery man and hys neyghboure, and shewe them the ordynaunces of God and hys lawes.

And Moses father in lawe sayd vnto him: it is not well that thou doest. And so Moses obeyed the voyce of hys father in lawe, and did all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men oute of all Israel and made them as heedes ouer the people: namely, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundzedes, ouer fyfty and ouer ten. edge of the couplynge courtayne: and fyfteye lowpes in the edge of the other curtayne that must be ioyned vnto it. And thou shalt make fyftie buttones of brasse and put them on ỹ lowpes, and couple the couerynge to gether, that it maye be one.

And the remnaunt that resteth in the curtaynes of the couerynge: euen the halfe curtayne that resteth, shalbe lefte on the backe sydes of the habitacyon: that a cubyte on the one syde and a cubyte on the other syde maye remayne in the length of the curtaynes of the couerynge, and that it maye remayne of ether syde of the habitacyon to couer it with all.

And vpon the Tabernacle thou shalt make a couerynge of rams skynnes dyed redd: & yet a coueringe aboue all of taxus skynnes.

D And thou shalt make bordes for the habitacyon of sethim wod to stonde vpryghte: ten cubytes longe shall euery borde be, and a cubite & an halfe brode. Two fete shall there be in one borde: and they shalbe separate one from another. And thus shalt thou make for all the bordes of the Tabernacle.

*Ex.xxvi.c. * And thou shalt make. xx. bordes for the habitacyon on the south syde, and thou shalt make. xl. sockettes of syluer vnder the. xx. bordes two sockettes vnder one borde, for hys two fete, & two sockettes vnder another borde for his two fete. In lyke maner in ỹ nozth E syde of the habitacyon there shalbe. xx. bordes and. xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder one borde, and two sockettes vnder a nother borde.

And in the west ende of the habitacyon, shalt thou make syxe bordes, and two bordes shalt thou make in the cozners of the habitacyon in the metynge together of the two sydes. And they shall be coupled together beneth and lykewyse aboue to a rynge. And thus shall it be for the two bordes that are in the cozners. And they shalbe eyght bordes, hauynge sockettes of syluer, euen syxtene sokettes: that there maye be two sokettes vnder one borde, and two sokettes vnder another borde.

And thou shalt make barres of sethim F wodd, fyue for the bordes of the Tabernacle in one syde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the Tabernacle in the other syde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the Tabernacle in the west ende. And the mydle barre shall goo alonge thorowe the myddes of the bordes from the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalt couer the bordes with golde, and make theyr rynges of golde, to put the barres thorowe, and thou shalt couer the barres with golde also. And thou shalt rere vp the habitacyon accordynge to the facion therof, as it was shewed the in the mount.

And thou shalt make a vayle of yelowe fylke, of purpull, scarlet, and whyte twyned fylke. Of broderd worke with pictures shalt thou make it. And hange it vpō foure pilers of sethim wodd couerd with golde. Whose heades shalbe of golde, stondynge vpō foure sockettes of syluer. And thou shalt hange vp the vayle wyth rynges, that thou mayest G bringe in (with in the vayle) ỹ arcke of witnesse. And the vayle shall vnto you deuyde the holye from the most holy. And thou shalt put the mercy seate vpon the arcke of wytnesse in the holyest place. And thou shalt put the table without the vayle: and the candelsticke ouer agaynst the table on the south syde of the habitacyon. And put the table on the nozth syde.

And thou shalt make an hangynge for the doze of the Tabernacle: of yelowe fylke purple, scarlet, and white twined sylk wzoughte with nedle wozke. And thou shalt make for the hangyng, fyue pillers of sethim wodd and couer them with golde, and theyr knoppes shalbe of golde, and thou shalt cast fyue sockettes of brasse for them.

¶ The. xxvii. Chapter.

AND thou shalt make an * aultare of sethim wodd: fyue cubytes longe and fyue cubytes brode. For it shall be foure square, and thze cubytes hye. And thou shalt make it hoznes in the foure cozners of it the hoznes shalbe of it selfe, and thou shalt couer it with brasse. And make hys alchepānes, shouels, basens, fleshhokes, fyzepannes & all the apparell therof for the same, of brasse. And thou shalt make vnto it a gredyern also (lyke a net) of brasse. And vpon that net shalt thou make foure brasen rynges in the foure cozners therof: and thou shalt put it vnder the compase of the altare beneth, that the net maye be in the myddes of the altare. And thou shalt make (two) barres for the altare of sethim wodd, and couer them with brasse, and let them be put in rynges a longe by the sydes of the altare to beare it wall. And make the aulter holowe with bordes: euen as it was shewed the in the mount, so shall they make it.

And thou shalt make the courte of the habitacyon, that there maye be in the south syde hangynges of white twyned sylke, of an hundred cubytes longe, for one syde, and. xx. pyllers therof, with theyr. xx. sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pyllers & theyr whopes shalbe syluer. In lykewyse on the nozth syde there shalbe hangynges of an hūdred cubytes longe and. xx. pylers with their twentye sockettes of brasse, and the knoppes and the whopes of syluer. And the breadth of the

And in the gate of the court shalbe a vayle of twentye cubites of yelowe silk, purple, and skarlet & whyte twined silke, wzought with nedle wozke: & foure pillers with their foure sockettes. All the pillers round about the court shalbe whoped with syluer, & their knoppes shalbe of syluer, and their sockettes of brasse. The length of the court shalbe an hundred cubites, and the breadth fyftye D & the heigth fyue. And the hanginges shalbe of whyte twined sylk, and their sockettes of brasse. All the vesselles of the habitation in all maner seruice and the pynnes therof: yee, and all the pynnes also of the courte shalbe of brasse.

Leui.xx.a * And thou shalt commaunde the childzē of Israel, that they geue the pure oyle olyue beaten for the lyght, to powre allwaye into the lampes. In the tabernacle of witnesse without the vayle which is before the witnes, shall Aarō and his sonnes dresse it both E cuening and mornyng before the Lorde: and it shalbe a statute for euer vnto the generations of the childzen of Israel.

¶ The. xxviij. Chapter.

¶ Aarons apparell and hys sonnes.

AND take thou vnto the Aaaron thy brother and hys sonnes wt him, from amonge the childzen of Israel, that they maye minister vnto me. Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, that they maye be vnto glozy and bewtye. And thou shalt speake vnto all that are wise harted, and whom soeuer I haue filled with the spzete of wysdome: that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate him with, ỹ he maye minyster vnto me.

These are the garmētes which they shall make, a brestlap, Ephod, a tunycle, a strayte cote, a miter and a gyrdell. These holy garmentes shall they make for Aaron thy brother and his sonnes, that they maie minister vnto me. And lett them take golde, yelowe silk, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned silk. B They shall make the Ephod of gold, yelow sylke, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned silke with broderd wozke. The two sydes shal come together, and be closed vp in the two edges therof. And the gyrdell of the Ephod shalbe of the same wozkmanthip, and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, yelow sylke, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned sylke.

And thou shalt take two onix stones, and graue in them the names of the childzen of Israel: syxe names of them in the one stone, and the other syxe in the other stone: accordynge to >* (the order of) their byrth. After the *a wozk of a stonegrauer, and of him that graueth signettes shalt thou graue the two stones with the names of the childzē of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in golde. And thou shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, that they maye be stones of remembzaunce vnto the childzē of Israel. And Aaron shall beare their names before the Lorde vpon hys two shoulders C for a remembzaunce. And thou shalt make hokes of golde & two cheynes of fyne golde: linkwozke and wzethed, and fasten the wzethed cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the brestlap of iudgement with broderd wozke, euen after the wozke of the Ephod shalt thou make it: namely of golde, yelow sylke, purple, skarlet, and whyte twyned silke, shalt thou make it. Foure square it shalbe and double, an hande brede longe, and an handbrede broade. And thou shalt fill it with foure rowes of stones. In the first rowe shalbe a Sardions, a Topas, and Smaragdus: in the second rowe, a Ruby, Saphir and Diamond: in the thyrde Lygurios, an Achat, & Amatist: in ỹ fourth a Turcas, Onix and Jaspis. And they shall be set in golde in their inclosers. And the stones shalbe grauen as sygnettes be grauen wt the names of the childzen of Israel, euē with twelue names, euery one with his name accordyng to the twelue tribes.

And thou shalt make vpon the brestlapp D two kastenyng cheynes of pure golde & wzethen wozke. And thou shalt make lykewyse vpon the brestlap two rynges of golde: and put them on the edges of the brestlap, and put the two wzethen cheynes of golde in the two rynges which are in the edges of ỹ brestlappe. And the other two endes of the two cheynes, thou shalt faste in two close hokes, and put thē vpon the shulders of the Ephod on the forepart of it. And thou shalt yet make two rynges of golde, which thou mayest put in the two edges of the brestlappe, euen in the borders therof, towarde the inlyde of the Ephod ouer against it. And yet two other ringes of golde thou shalt make: and put thē on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth ouer against the brestlap, alowe where the sydes are ioyned together vpon the broddered gyrdell of the Ephod. And they shall bynde the brestlappe by hys rynges vnto the ringes of the Ephod with a lace of yelow silke, that it maye lye closse aboue the broderd gyrdell of the Ephod, and that the brestlap be not losed from the Ephod.

And Aaron shall beare the names of the E childzen of Israel in the brestlapp of iudge-

ment vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holy place for a remembraunce before the Lorde all waye. And thou shalte put in the brestlappe of iudgement Urim and Thumin: and they shalbe euen vpon Aarons hert, whē he goeth in before the Lord:
and Aaron shall beare the iudgement of the childzen of Israel vpon his herte before the Lorde all waye.

And thou shalt make the tunycle vnto the Ephod altogether of yelow sylke. And ther shalbe an hole for the heed in the myddes of it, hauyng a bonde of wouen worke rounde about the coler of it (as it were the coller of a partlet) that it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates of yelow sylke and of purple and skarlet, roūd
about the hem, and belles of golde betwene them rounde about: and lett there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate, rounde about vpon the hem of the tunycle. *And Aaron shall haue *Eccle.xlv.b it vpon him, when he ministreth, and the sounde shalbe hearde, when he goeth into the holy place before the Lorde, & when he commeth out, and he shall not dye.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold,
and graue theron, as sygnettes are grauen.
The holynesse of the Lorde, and put it on a yelow sylke lace to be vpon the mytre, euen
vpon the forefront of it. And it shalbe vpon Aarons foreheede: that Aaron maye beare
the synne of the holy thynges which the childzen of Israel halowe in all theyr holye gyftes. And it shalbe allwayes vpon his foreheed, for the reconcylynge of them before
the Lorde.

And thou shalt make a lynnen cote, and thou shalt make a mytre of lynnē and a gir-
dell of nedle worke.

And thou shalt make for Aarons sonnes
also cotes, gyrdelles and bonettes, glorious and beutyfull: and thou shalt put them vpō Aaron thy brother, and on hys sonnes with him: and shalt anoynte them, and fyll their handes, and sanctifye them, that they maye minister vnto me. And thou shalt make them lynnen breches to couer their preui-tyes, from the loynes vnto ẏ thies shall they reach. And they shalbe vpon Aaron and his sonnes, whē they come into the *tabernacle *Ex.xxviii.d
of witnes, or when they come vnto the aultare to minister in holynesse, that they beare no sinne, and so dye. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and his seed after him.

¶ The.xxix.Chapter.

*Leui.viii.b

THis thyng also shalt thou do vn-
to them, when thou *haloweste thē to be my prestes. Thou shalt take a calfe, euen a yonge oxe, and two rāmes that are without blemish,
and vnleuened breade, and cakes of swete
bread tempered with oyle, & wafers of swet bread anoynted with oyle (of wheten floure shalt thou make thē) & put them in a maūde,
and bryngе thē in the maunde with the calfe
and the two rammes.

And bryngе Aaron and his sonnes vnto
the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water, and take the garmentes, and put vpō Aaron: the strayte cote
the tunycle of the Ephod, & the Ephod, and the brestlappe: and gyrd them to hym with the broodered gyrdell which is in the Ephod.
And put the mytre vpon his heed: and put ẏ holy crowne vpon the mytre. Then shalt thou take the anoynting oyle, and powre it vpon his heed, and anoynte hym. And bring hys sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrd them with gyrdels, aswell Aaron, as his sonnes. And put the myters on thē, and the preastes office shalbe theirs for a perpetuall lawe. And thou shalt fyll the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes: and bryng the calfe before the tabernacle of witnes. *And Aaron and *Leui.i.b his sonnes shall put their handes vpon the heed of the calfe, and thou shalt kyll hym before the Lorde, by the dore of the tabernacle of witnes. And take of the blond of the calfe and put it vpō the hornes of the aulter with thy fynger: and powre all the blonde besyde
the botome of the aulter, and take all the fat that couereth ẏ inwardes, and the kall that is on the lyuer, and the two kidneys and the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpō
the aulter. But the flesh of the calfe and hys skynne, & his donge shalt thou burne wt fyer
without the hoost. It is a synofferyng.

Thou shalt also take one ram, and Aarō
and hys sonnes shalt put their handes vpon
the head of the ram, & when thou hast slayne
the ramme, thou shalt take hys blonde, and sprynkle it rounde about vpō the aulter, &
cut the ram in peces, and washe the inwar-des of him and his legges, and put thē vnto
the peces and vnto his heed: and then burne
the hole ram vpon the aulter for a burntoffering vnto the Lorde, & for a swete sauour
and a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde.

* And take the other ram, and Aaron & *Leui.viii.d
hys sonnes shall put their handes vpon hys heed. Then shalt thou kyll hym, and take of hys blonde, and put it vpon the typpe of the ryght eare of Aaron and of hys sonnes, and vpon the thombe of their ryght handes, and vpō the great to of their ryght fote, & sprynkle the blonde vpō the aulter rounde about.

And thou shalt take of the blonde that is
vpon the aulter, and of the anoyntyng oyle,
and sprynkell it vpon Aaron and hys vesti-mentes, and vpon his sonnes and vpon their garmētes wt hym. And he shalbe halowed & his clothes

his clothes and his sonnes and theyr clothes
with hym.

*Leui.viii.c *And thou shalt take the fatt of the ram and his rompe, and the fat that coūereth the thwardes, and the kall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys and the fat that is vpon them and the ryghte shoulder: for that ram is a fullofferynge: and a symnell of bread, and a cake of oyle bread, and a wafer out of the baskette of swete breade that is before the Lorde, and putt all vpon the handes of Aaron, and on the handes of hys sonnes: and waue them for a waueofferynge before the Lorde. And agayne, thou shalt take it from of their handes, and burne it vpon the aulter for a burntofferinge, to be a sauoure of swetnes before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

*Leui.viii.f *And thou shalt take the brest of the ram of Aarons consecracyon, and waue it for a waueoffering before the Lorde: and it shalbe thy parte. And thou shalt sanctifye the brest of the waue offering: and the shoulder of the heueofferyng which is waued and heued vp of the ram of the cōsecracyon for Aaron and for his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes by a statute for euer, of the childzē of Israel: for it is an heueoffering. Euen an heueofferyng of the childzen of Israel, and of their peaceofferinges. Their heueofferinges is the Lordes. And the holy garmentes of Aaron shalbe his sonnes after him, to be an-oynted therin, and to fyll their handes ther-
in. And that sonne that is preast in his stead after him, shall put thē on seuen dayes: when he commeth into the tabernacle of witnes to minyster in the holy place.

*Leui.viii.g * And thou shalt take the ram of the consecracyon, and seth his flesh in an holy place.
And Aaron and his sonnes shall eate ẏ flesh
of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket: euē by the dore of the tabernacle of witnes: and they shall eate them, because the atonement was made therwith, to fyll theyr handes, & to consecrate thē: but a straunger shal not eate therof, because they are holy. And yf ought of the flesh of the consecracyon or of the bread remayne vnto the mor-nynge, thou shalt burne it with fyer, and it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. Therefore shalt thou do vnto Aaron and his son-nes, euen so, according to all thinges which I haue commaunded the: seuen dayes shalte
thou fyll their handes, and offer euery daye
a calfe for a synneofferynge, for to reconcyle
withall: that thou mayest clense the aultare
when thou reconcylest vpō it, and thou shalt anoynte it, to sanctify it. Seuen dayes thou shalt reconcyle vpon the aulter, and sanctifye it, and it shalbe as an aulter moost ho-
lye. Euery one that toucheth the aulter, lett hym be holy.

*This is that which thou shalt offer vpō
the aulter: euen two labes of one yeare olde, *nu.xxviii.a.
daye by daye continually: the one thou shalt offer in the morynyng, and the other at euen:
And with the one labe a tenth deale of flour
myngled with the fourth parte of an hyn of beaten oyle, and the fourth part of an hin of wyne, for a dryncke offerynge. And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, and shalt do therto accordynge to the meatofferyng and dryncke offerynge in the morynnge, to be an odoure of a swete sauoure and a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde. And let this be a continuall burntofferynge amonge youre childzen after you, before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse before the Lorde, where *I wyll *Leui.i.a mete you, to speake there vnto the. There I Numer.xv.a wyll mete with the childzen of Israel, and wyll be sanctifyed in myne honoure. And I wyll sanctifye the tabernacle of witnes and the aulter. And I wyll sanctifye also both Aaron and hys sonnes to be my preastes.
And I wyll *dwell amonge the childzen of *Leui.xxvi.b
Israel: and will be their God. And they shall ii.Cor.vi.b. knowe that I am the Lorde their God, that brought them oute of the lande of Egypte:
for to dwell amonge them: euen I the Lord
theyr God.

¶ The.xxx.Chapter.

¶ The aulter of incense. The brasen lauer.
The anoyntynge oyle.

And thou shalt make an alter to burne incense: of sethim wodde shalt thou make it, a cubite lōg
and a cubite broade: euen foure square shall it be and two cubi-tes hye: the hornes therof shall procede out of it, and thou shalt ouerlaye it with fyne golde, both the roffe and the wal-les round about, and hys hornes also, & shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde roūd about and two golden rynges on eyther syde: euen vnder the crowne, that they may be as places for the barres to beare it withall. And ẏ shalt make the barres of sethim wodd, and couer them with golde. And thou shalt putt it before the vayle, ẏ is by the arcke of wit-nesse, before the mercy seate that is vpon the witnes, where I wyll mete the.

And Aaron shall burne theron swete incense euery morynnge, when he dresseth the lampes, euen then shall he burne it: and lyke
wyse at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes
he shall burne incense: and thys incensynge
shalbe perpetually before the Lorde thorow out youre generacyons. Ye shall putt no *Leui.x.a straunge incense theron, burnt sacrifyce or meate offerynge, neyther powre any drinckofferinge theron.

And Aaron shall reconcile vpon the hor-nes of it once in a yeare: wt the blonde of the synneofferynge of reconcylynge: euen once in the yeare shall he receyve it thorow your generacions. It is most holy vnto the Lord.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * Yf thou takest the summe of the chyldren of Israel after their nombre, they shall geue euery man a reconcylynge of hys soule vnto the Lorde when thou tellest them: that there be no plage amonge them, when thou tellest them. And thus moch shall euery man geue, and that goeth into the nombre: halfe a sycle, after the sycle * of the sanctuarye: a sycle is twentye halfpence. An halfe sycle shalbe the heue offerynge of the Lorde. All that are nombred from twentye yeare olde and aboue, shall geue an heue offerynge vnto the Lorde. The ryche shall not passe, and the poore shal not go vnder halfe a sicle. But ye shall geue an heue offeringe vnto the Lorde, that he maye haue mercy vpon your soules. And thou shalt take the reconcylyng money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of witnesse, that it maye be a memoriall vnto the chyldren of Israel before the Lorde, that he maye haue mercy vpon youre soules.

* Numer.i.a and.xxvi.a.

* Leui.xxvii.d Numer.iii.g Exe.xlv.d

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * thou shalt make a lauer of brasse, and his fote also of brasse to washe withall, and shalt putt it betwene the tabernacle of witnes, and the aulter: and put water therin. For Aaron and his sonnes shall wash theyr handes and theyr fete therin: euen when they go into the tabernacle of witnesse, or when they go vnto the aulter to minystre and to burne the Lordes offeringe, they shall wash them selues with water, lest they dye. And it shalbe an ordinaunce vnto them for euer, both vnto him and his seed thorow out their generacyons.

* Exo.xl.d.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Take vnto the principall spices: of the most pure myrre fyue hundred sicles, of swete cynamon halfe so moche, euen two hundred and fyftie sycles: of swete calamus, two hundred and fyftye. Of cassia, two hundred and fyftye, after the holy sycle, and of oyle olyue an hin. * And thou shalt make of the oyle an holy oyntmēt, euen an oyntment compoūde after the crafte of the apoticarye. And thou shalt noynte the tabernacle of witnes therwith, and the arck of witnes, and the table, and all his apparell: and the candelstick, and all his apparell: and the aulter of incense, and the aulter of burntsacrifice with all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And thou shalt sanctifye them, that they maye be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And thou shalt anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them, that they maye mynistre vnto me.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: thys shalbe an holy oyntyng oyle vnto me, thorowout youre generacyons. Upon mannes flesche shall it not be powred: neyther shall ye make any other after the makynge of it, for yt is holye: and shalbe holye vnto you: whosoeuer maketh lyke that, or whosoeuer putteth anye of it vpon a straunger, shall perysh from amonge hys people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: take vnto the swete spices: balme, Onycha, swete galbanum, these spices with pure franckincense, of eache lyke moch: and make of them swete smellyng incense, after the craft of the apoticarye, myngled together, pure and holy. And beate it to powder and put of it before the witnes in the tabernacle of witnes, where I will mete the. It shalbe vnto you most holy. And se that ye make none after the makyng of that, It shalbe vnto you holy for the Lorde. Whosoeuer shall make like vnto that, to smell therto, shall perysh from amonge hys people.

¶ The.xxxj. Chapter.

¶ The callyng of Bezaleel and Aholiab the workemen. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of stones are geuen Moses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: beholde, * I haue called by name, Bezaleel the sonne of Ury, the sonne of Hur of the tribe of Juda. And I haue fylled hym wt spirete of God, in * wysdome, & vnderstandynge, in knowledge & in all maner worke, to fynd out sotle feates, & to worke in golde, syluer & brasse: and in the crafte to sett stones, and to carue in timbre, and to worke in all maner workmanshyp. And beholde, I haue geuen hym to be his cōpanion Aholiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, and in the hertes of all that are wyse harted, I haue putt wysdome, to make all that I haue cōmaunded the, the tabernacle of witnes, the arck of witnes, and the mercy seate that is therupō: and all the ornamētes of the tabernacle, and the table and his ornamentes: and the pure cādelstick with all his apparell, and the aulter of incens: and the aulter of burntofferinges and all hys vesselles, and the lauer with his fote. The vestimētes to ministre in, and the holye garmentes for Aaron the preaste, and the garmentes of his sonnes to ministre in, and the anoyntyng oyle: and swete cense for the sanctuary, according to all that I haue commaunded the shall they do.

And he made an hangyng of yelow sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke, euen with pyctures made he it of bꝛoderd woꝛcke. And made ther vnto foure pillers of Sethim wodd, and ouerlayde thē with golde. Theyꝛ knoppes were also of golde, and he cast foꝛ them foure sockettes of syluer. And he made an hangynge foꝛ the tabernacle doꝛe: of yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke of nedle woꝛcke. And the fyue pyllers of it with theyꝛ knoppes, & ouerlayde the knoppes of them & the whopes wyth golde. Their

¶The. xxxvii. Chapter.

¶ The arcke of witnesse. The mercyseate. The table. The candelstycke. The lyghtes. The altare and the incense.

A ND Bezaleel made the * arke
* Exo.xxv.a. of Sethim wodd, two cubites and an halfe long, and a cubite and a halfe brode, and a cubite and a halfe hye: and ouerlayde it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde for the foure corners of it: two rynges for the one syde, and two for the other, and made barres of Sethim wodd, and couered them with golde, and put the barres in the rynges a longe by the syde of the arke, to bere it with all.

And he made the mercy seate. (That is to saye, Gods answeringe place.) of pure gold: two cubytes and a halfe was the length therof, and one cubyte and a halfe the breadth: & he made two Cherubyns of thycke golde vpon the two endes of the mercyseate. One Cherub on the one ende, and another Cherub on ỹ other ende. Euen of the mercyseate made he the Cherubins: namely, in the endes therof. And the Cherubynes spred oute theyr wynges aboue an hie, and couered the mercyseate therwith. And theyr faces were one to another: euen to the mercyseate warde, were the faces of the Cherubyns.

*Exod.xxv.c And he made the table of Sethim wodd two cubytes was the length therof and a cubyte the breadth, and a cubyte and a halfe the heygth of it. And he ouerlayde it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made therto an whope of an hande breade, rounde aboute and made vpon the whope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde, and put the rynges in the foure corners that were in the foure fete therof. Euen harde by the whope were the rynges, into the whiche the barres were put, to bere ỹ table withall.
¶ And he made the barres of Sethim wodd, & couered thē with gold to bere the table withall, and made the vessels (for the table) of pure golde: the dishes, spones, flat peces and pottes to powre withall.

*Exo.xxv.d. And he made the candelstycke of pure golde: euen of one pece made he the candelstycke. For hys fote, hys shafte, hys cuppes, his knoppes and hys floures were of one pece. Syxe braunches proceding out of the sydes therof, thre out of the one side, and thre out of the other. And in one braunche thre cuppes made lyke vnto almondes wyth knoppes & floures: and in another braunche thre cuppes made lyke almondes with knoppes ād floures. And so thorowe out the syxe braunches that proceded out of the candelstycke. And vpon the candelstick self were .iiij. cuppes after the facyon of almondes wyth knoppes & floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the braunches proceded out of it, and it was all one pece of pure thycke golde. And he made hys seuen lampes with the tonges and snoffers therof, of pure golde. Euen of an hundred weyght of pure golde, made he it with all the vessels therof.

And he made the cens alter of Sethim wood. The length of it was a cubyte, & the breadth a cubite, for it was, foure square & two cubytes hye, with hornes proceding out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the toppe and the sydes therof rounde about, and the hornes of it, & made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about. And he made two rynges of golde for it, euen vnder the croune therof in the two corners of it and in the two sydes therof to put barres in, for to bere it withall: & made the barres of Sethim wodd and ouerlayde them with gold. And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, and the swete pure incens after the apotecaryes crafte.

¶The. xxxviii. Chapter.

¶ The altare of burntofferynges. The brasen lauer. The somme of that the people offred.

AND he made the burntoffering * altar
* Ex. xxvii. of Sethim, wodd fyue cubytes was the length therof, and fyue cubytes ỹ the breadth: euen .iiii. square, & .iii. cubytes hye. And he made vnto it hornes in the foure corners of it procedyng out of it, & he ouerlayde it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the alter: the cauldrōs, shouels, basyns, flesh hokes and colepannes. All the vessels therof made he of brasse.

And he made a brasen gredyron of net worcke vnto the alter, rounde aboute alowe beneth vnto the myddes of the altare, & cast .iiii. rynges of brasse for the .iiii. endes of the gredyron to put barres in. And he made the barres of Sethim wood and couered them with brasse, and put the barres into the rynges in the foure corners of the altare, to bere it withall, and made the alter holowe wyth in the bordes. And he made ỹ lauer of brasse, and the fote of it also of brasse in the syghte of them that dyd watch at the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse.

And he made the courte on the southsyde, & the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, haunge an hundred cubites. Theyr pylers were twentye, & theyr brasen sockettes twēty. But the knoppes of the pylers, & theyr whopes were of syluer. And on the nozth syde the hāgynges were an hūdred cubytes. Theyr pylers were .xx. & theyr sockettes of brasse .xx. But the knoppes & the whopes of the pylers were of syluer. On the west syde, were hangynges of .l. cubytes. .x. pylers pylers & theyr .x. sockettes. (Of brasse.) But the knoppes & the whopes of the pylers were of syluer. And toward the east syde, were hāgynges of .l. cubytes: the hangynges of ỹ one syde of the gate were fyftene cubytes longe, with thre pylers, and thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hāgynges also of .xv. cubytes longe, with thre pylers and thre sockettes. All the hangynges of the courte rounde aboute, were of whyte twyned sylke: but the sockettes of the pylers were of brasse: and the knoppes and the whopes of the pylers were of syluer, and the couerynge of the heedes was of syluer, and all the pylers of the courte were whoped about with syluer. And the hangynge of the gate of the courte was nedle worke, of yelowe, sylke purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. .xx. cubytes longe, and fyue in the bredth, ouer agaynst the hangynges of the courte. And theyr pylers were foure and theyr foure sockettes of brasse, and the knoppes of syluer, and the heedes ouerlayed wyth syluer, and whoped aboute with syluer, and all the pynnes of the tabernacle & of the courte rounde aboute were of brasse.

Thys is the summe of the habitacyon of witnesse, as it was coūted accordynge to the cōmaundement of Moses for the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preast. And Bezaleel the sonne of Uri ỹ sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a conninge grauer and a worker of nedle worke in yelowe sylk, purple scarlet and whyte twyned sylke.

All the golde that was occupyed for all the worcke of the holy place, was the golde of the wauoffrynge, euen: .xxix. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and .xxx. sycles, accordinge to the sycle of the Sānctuary. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was .v. score hūdred weyght, & a thousande seuen hundred & .lxxv. sycles after the sycle of the Sanctuary. For euery man an halfe weight, euen halfe a sycle after the sycle of the Sanctuary, for all them that went to be nombred from .xx. yeare olde and aboue, euen for .vi. hūdred thousande and thre thousande and .v. hundred and .l. men.

And of the .v. score hūdred weyght of syluer, were cast the sockettes of the Sanctuary, and the sockettes of the vayle: an hundred sockettes of the fyne score hundred weyght, an hūdred weyght to euery sockette. And of the thousande seuen hundred & .lxx. sycles, he made knoppes to the pylers, and ouerlayde the heedes and whoped them. (with syluer.)

And the brasse of the waueofferinge was .lxx. hundred weyght, and two thousande, & .iiii. hundred sycles. And therwith he made the sockettes to the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the brasen altare and the brasen gredyron for it, withall the vessels of the alter, and the sockettes of the courte rounde aboute, & the sockettes for the courte gate, & all the pynnes of the habitacyon, and all the pynnes of the courte rounde aboute.

¶The. xxxix. Chapter.

¶ The apparell of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lorde commaunded was offred.

AND of the yelowe sylke, purple & scar- A let, they made the vestimentes of ministracyō to do seruice in the holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aarō, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the Ephod of golde, yelow sylke, purple, scarlet & whyte twyned sylke. And they dyd beate the gold into thynne plates, ād cutte it into wyers: to worke it in the yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and in the fyne whyte, with brodered worke. And they made two sydes for it, to cloose them vp by the two edges. And the brodrynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same worcke: of golde, yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lorde comaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones cloosed 25
in ouches of golde, and graued as sygnettes are graue, with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod, that they shuld be stones for a remēbraūce of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he made the breastlappe of cunnyng ¶
worcke, and lyke the worcke of the Ephod: euen of golde, yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, & twyned whyte sylke. It was .iiii. square, and they made the breastlappe double, an hande breadeth longe and an hande breadeth brode. And they fylled it with .iiii. rowes of stones. The fyrst rowe: a Sardius, a Topas and * Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubye * or an Emeraude. for a carbun. cle.
a Saphir and a Diamonde: in the .iii. rowe, Ligurios, an Achat, and an Amatist: in the fourth rowe: a Turcas, and Onix, and a Jaspis. And they were closed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers. And the .xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel: euery stone wyth hys name, accordynge to the .xii. trybes.

And they made vpō the breastlappe, two D fastenynge cheynes of wrethen worcke and pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde, & two golde rynges, and put the two rynges in the two corners of the breastlappe And they put the two chaines of golde in the two ringes, in the corners of the brestlappe: And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shulders of the Ephod vpon the fore front of it.

And

And they made two rynges of golde, and put them on the two corners of the brestlappe vpon the edge of it whych was on the inside by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the forepart of it and ouer agaynst hys felowe, aboue vpon the bordrynge of the Ephod, and they strayned the brestlappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of yelowe sylke: that it myght be vpon the bordrynge of the Ephod, and that the brestlappe shulde not be lowsed frō of the Ephod: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the tunycle vnto the Ephod of wouen worcke, all together of yelowe sylke, and there was an hole in the myddest of the tunycle, as the coler of a partlet, with a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shulde not rent. And in the tunycle they made hēmes with pōgranates, of yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amonge the pōgranates rounde aboute vpō the edge of the tunycle: a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde about the hemmes of the tunycle to mynistre in, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worcke for Aaron and hys sonnes, & a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowe sylke, purple and scarlet: euē of nedleworcke, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And they made the plate for the holy croune of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it wyth grauen worcke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelowe silke to fasten it an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worcke of the habitacyon and of the Tabernacle of witnesse fynyshed. And the chyldrē of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde had commaūded Moses: Euen so dyd they. And they brought the habitacyon vnto Moses: the tent and all his apparell, buttonces, boordes, barres, pillers & sockettes, the couerynge of rams skynnes redd, and the couerynge of taxus skynnes, and the hangynge vayle, the arcke of witnesse and the barres therof and the mercyseate: the table and all the vessels therof, & the shewbred: the pure candelstycke, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared and all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghte: the golden altare, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete cens, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle dooze, and the brasen alter wyth hys gredyron of brasse: his barres and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynges of the courte wyth hys pyllers and sockettes: the hangynge to the courte gate, and hys pynnes and coardes, and all the vessell of the seruyce of the habitacyon for the Tabernacle of witnesse: the mynistrynge vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes for Aaron the preast, & his sonnes raymentes to mynistre in, accordinge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so the chyldren of Israel made all the worcke. And Moses behelde all the worcke, and se, they had done it euen as the Lorde commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moses blessed them.

The. xl. Chapter.

The Tabernacle is reared vp. The glorye of the Lord appereth in a clowde couerynge ꝑ Tabernacle.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saynge. In the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth, shalt thou sett vp the habitacyō, and the Tabernacle of witnesse, and put therin the arcke of witnesse, and coner the arcke wyth the vayle, and bryng in the table and apparell it accordynge to the order therof. And thou shalt bryng in the candelstycke, and lyght hys lampes, and sett the cens alter of golde before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge at the doze of the habitacyon. And set the burntofferyng alter before the doze of the habitacyon and Tabernacle of witnesse, and sett the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of witnesse and the alter and put water therin, and make the courte round aboute, and hange vp the hangynge at the courte gate.

* Exo. xxx

* And thou shalt take the anoynt ynge oyle, and anoynt the habitacyon, and all that is therin, and halowe it with all the vessels therof, that it maye be holye. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burntofferynge and all hys vessels, and sanctifye the altare, that it maye be an altare mooste holy. And thou shalt anoynte also the lauer and hys fote, and sanctifye it.

And thou shalt bryng Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and washe them with water. And thou shalt put vpon Aaron the holy vestymentes, and anoynte him, and sanctifye hym that he maye mynistre vnto me. And thou shalt bringe his sonnes, and clothe them with garmentes, and anoynte them as thou dydest anoynt theyr father, that they maye mynistre vnto me. For theyr anoyntynge shall be an euerlastynge preasthode vnto them thorowe out theyr generacyons. * And Moses dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

* Num.iv

Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrst daye in the fyrst moneth in the secōde yere. And Moses reared vp the Tabernacle and fastened hys sockettes, and set vp the bordes therof, and put in the barres of it and reared vp hys pyllers, and spredde abrode the tent ouer the habitacion, & put the couerynge of the tent an hye aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke the testimonye, and put it in the arcke, & set the barres to the arcke, & put the mercyseate an hye vpon the arcke, & brought the arcke into the habitacyon, & hāged vp the vayle, & couered the arcke of witnesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of witnesse in the north syde of the habitacyon, (but without the vayle) and set the bread in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lord had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candelsticke in the tabernacle of witnesse oueragaynst ꝑ table towarde the south syde of the habitacyon, and set vp the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he put the golden alter in the tabernacle of witnesse before the vayle, and brent swete cens theron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he hāged vp the hangynge at the doze of the habitacyon, and set the burntofferynge alter by the entrynge in of the habitacyō of the tabernacle of witnesse, and offred burntofferynges and meatofferynges theron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

* And he set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of witnesse and the alter, and poured water therin, to wash withall. And Moses Aaron & his sonnes washed their handes and their fete therat: when they went into the tabernacle of witnesse, & when they went to the alter they washed them selues as the Lorde commaūded Moses. And he reared vp the courte rounde aboute the habitacyon and the alter, & set vp an hangynge at the courte gate: and so Moses fynyshed the worcke.

Nume.ix.c

* And the clowde couered the tabernacle of witnesse, and the glorye of the Lorde fylled the habitacyon. And Moses coulde not entre into the tabernacle of witnesse, because the clowde abode theron, and the glorye of ꝑ Lorde fylled the habitacyon.  (For the cloude had couered all.)

And when the clowde was taken vp from of the habitacyon, the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iorneys thorowe out theyr armyes. And whan the clowde was not taken vp, they iorneyed not tyll it was taken vp: for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habitacyon by daye, and fyre by nyght: in the syghte of all the house of Israel thorow out all theyr armyes.

The fyrst Chapter.

The order of the burntofferynges.

And the Lorde called Moses, & spake vnto hym out of the * tabernacle of witnesse saynge. Speake vnto the chyldrē of Israel, and thou shalt saye vnto them. Yf a man of you bryng a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde, ye shall bryng youre sacrifyce frō amōge the catell, euen from amōge the orē and the shepe. Yf hys sacrifyce be a burntofferynge, let hym offre a male of the orē without blemyshe, and bryng hym (of hys own volūtary wyll) vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse before the Lorde. And he shal put hys hande vpō the heade of the brent sacrifyce, and it shalbe accepted for him, to be hys attonement. And he shall kyll the calfe of the droue before the Lord. And the preastes Aarons sonnes, shall bryng the bloude, and sprynckle it rounde aboute vpon the altare, ꝑ is by the dore of ꝑ Tabernacle of witnesse. And then shall he flaye the burntofferynge, and hewe hym in peces. And the sonnes of Aaron the preaste shall put fyre vpon the altare, and put wodd vpon the fyre. And the preastes Aarons sonnes shall laye the partes (euen the heade and the fatt) vpon the wodd that is on the fyre in the altare. But the inwardes and the legges therof shall he washe in water, and the preast shall burne all in the altare, that they maye be a burnt sacrifyce for a swete odoure vnto the Lorde.

* Exo. xxix.g

And yf his sacrifyce be of the flockes (namely of the shepe or goates) let hym bryng a male without blemysh for a burnt offering. And let hym kyll it on the northsyde of the alter, before the Lorde. And the Preastes Aarons sonnes shall sprynckle the bloude of it rounde aboute vpon the alter. And it shall be cut in peces: euen with hys heed and hys fatt, and the Preaste shall put them vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon the fyre in the alter. But he shall washe the inwardes and the legges legges with water, and the preste shall bringe all together, and burne it vpō the alter for a burntofferynge of a swete sauoure vnto ỹ Lorde. If the burntofferynge for the sacrifyce of the Lorde be of the foules, he shal brig hys sacrifice of the turtill doues or of the pōg pygeons. And the preaste shall bryngе it vnto the alter, and wryngе the necke a sundre of it, and burne it on the alter. But the bloud therof shall runne oute vpon, by the syde of the alter. And he shal plucke away his croppe with hys fethers, and cast them beside the alter on the easte parte in the place of asshes. And he shall breke the wynges of it, but plucke them not a sundre. And the Preaste shall burne it vpon the alter, euen vpon the wodd that is vpon the fyre, that it maye be a burnt sacrifyce for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord.

¶The.ii.Chapter.

¶The order of meateofferynges.

THe soule that wyll offer a meateofferynge vnto the Lorde, the same offerynge shalbe of fyne floure, and he shall poure oyle, vpon it, and put franckencens theron, and shall bryngе it vnto Aarons sonnes the preastes. And he shall take therout his handfull of the floure, and of the oyle wyth all the franckencens, and the preaste shall burne it for a memoriall of hym vpon the alter: to be an offerynge for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunt of the meateofferynge shalbe Aarons and his sonnes, a thynge most holy of the sacrifyces of the Lorde: If thou bringe also a meatoffe- B rynge ỹ is baken in the ouen, let it be a swete cake of fyne floure myngled with oyle, or an vnleuened wafer anoynted wt oyle. If thy meateofferynge be baken in the frypenge pan, it shalbe of swete floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalt mynce it small, & powre oyle theron, that it maye be a meateofferynge.

And yf thy meateofferynge be a thynge bzoyled vpon the gredyron, let it be of floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalt bryngе the meateofferynge (ỹ is made of these thynges) vnto the Lorde, and shalt delyuer it vnto the preaste, that he maye offre it vpon the alter, and the preaste shall take of the meateofferynge a memoriall, and shal burne it vpō the alter: that it maye be a burntofferyng for C a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that whyche is lefte of the meatoffery nge shall be Aarons and hys sonnes, It is a thynge most holy of the offerynges of the Lorde.

All the meateofferynges which ye shall bryngе vnto the Lord, shalbe made without leuen. For ye shal nether burne leuen nor honye in any offerynge of the Lorde: Notwithstandynge ye shall bryngе the fyrstlynges of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the alter for a swete sauoure.

* All the meatofferynges also shalt thou season with salt: neyther shalt thou suffre the salt of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackynge from thy meateofferyng: but vpon all thyne offerynges thou shalt bryngе salt. * Math.b.b Marke.ix.g Colo.iiii.a.

And if thou offre a meateofferynge of thy fyrst rype frutes vnto the Lorde, thou shalt offre for the meateofferynge of thy fyrst frutes, eares of corne dryed by the fyre, and corne beaten as meale. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye franckencens theron, that it maye be a meateofferynge. And the preaste shall burne parte of the beaten corne & parte of that oyle wyth all the franckencens, for a remembraunce. And it shalbe a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde. D

¶The.iii.Chapter.

¶The order of peaceofferynges.

AND yf his sacrifyce be a peaceofferynge, and he take it from amonge the droues, (whether it be male or female) he shall bryngе sochas is without blemyche, before the Lorde: & put his hande vpon the heed of his offeringe, and kyll it at the dore of ỹ tabernacle of witnesse. And Aarōs sonnes the Preastes shall sprincle the blonde vpō the alter roundе aboute. A

And he shall offre som what of the peaceofferynge to be a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: euen the * fatt that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is aboute the inwardes: and the two kydneys, & the fatt that is on them and vpon the loynes: and the abundaunce that is on the lyuer shall he take awaye wyth the kydneyes. And Aarōs sonnes shal burne thē on the alter vpon the burntsacrifyce whyche is vpō the wodd ỹ is on the fyre to be a burnt sacrifyce for a swete sauoure vnto ỹ Lorde. * Exo.xxix. B

If he bryngе a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde from of the flocke, let hym offre male or female: but without blemysh. As yf he offre a shepe for hys sacrifyce, he shall bryngе it before the Lorde, and put hys hande vpon hys offerynges heed, and kyll it before the dooze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and Aarons sonnes shall sprynkle the blonde therof roundе aboute the alter.

And of the peaceofferynge, let hym bryng C a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatt therof, & the rompe all together, whiche they shall take off, harde by the backe bone: and the fatt that coueryth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is vpō the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fatt that is vpō them & vpon the loynes, and the abundaunce that is vpō the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneyes. And the preaste shall burne them vpō the alter, to be the foode of a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde.

If hys offerynge be a goate, he shall bringe it ge it before the Lorde, & put his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the Tabernacle of the couenaūt, and the sonnes of Aaron shall sprinkle the blonde therof vpon the alter roundе about. And he shall bryng therof, his offering, cuē a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatt that coueryth the in wardes, and all the fatt that is vpō the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, & the fatt that is vpon them and vpon the loynes, & the abundaunce vpō the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneyes. And the preaste shall burne them vpō the alter for the food of the sacrifyce: that all ỹ fat maye be a swete sauoure vnto ỹ Lorde. ## ¶The.iiii.Chapter.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: Yf a soule synne throwe ignorauncе, and hath done any of those thynges whyche the Lorde hath forbydden in hys commaundementes to be done. As yf the Preast that is anoynted do synne, + (accordynge to the synne of the people) let hym bryngе for hys synne whyche he hath synned a yonge ore without blemyshe vnto ỹ Lorde for a synneofferynge. And he shall bryngе the yonge ore vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse before the Lorde, and shall put hys hande vpon the yonge ores heade, and kill the yonge ore before the Lorde. And the Preaste B that is anoynted * shall take of the yonge ore blonde, and bryngе it into the tabernacle of witnesse, and the preaste shall dyppe hys fynger in the blonde and sprynkle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the blonde before the Lorde, vpō the hornes of the alter of swete cens, which is in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall powre all the blonde of the yonge ore vnto the botome of the alter of burntofferynge, whyche is at the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And he shall take awaye all the fat of the ore that is for synne, the fatt that coueryth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is aboute the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fatt that is vpon them, and vpon the loynes, and the abundaunce of the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneyes: as it was taken awaye in the ore of the peaceofferynges, and let the preaste burne them vpon the altare of C burntofferyng. * But the skyne of the yong Exo.xxix.c. ore, and all hys flesche, with hys heed, and hys legges, wyth hys inwardes, and hys donge, shall he beare oute and carye the yong ore altogether oute of the hoste vnto a clene place: euen where the asshes are powred out, and burne hym there on wodd in the fyre: eue by the place where the asshes are cast oute, shall he be brent. If the hole congregacyon of Israel synne throwe ignorauncе, and the thynge be hyd from theyr eyes, so that they haue committed any of those thynges which the Lorde hath forbydden to be done in hys cōmaundementes, and haue offended. Whan the synne which they haue synned in, is knowne, the congregacyon shall bryngе a yonge ore for the synne, and bryngе hym before the tabernacle of witnesse, and the elders of the multytude shall put theyr handes vpon the heed of the yonge ore before the Lorde. And the yonge ore shalbe slayne before the Lorde. And the Preast that is anoynted, shall bringe of hys blonde into the tabernacle of witnesse, and the Preaste shall dyppe hys fynger in the blonde, and sprinkle it seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the vayle. And shall put of the blonde vpon the hornes of the alter, whiche is before the Lord in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall poure all ỹ blonde vnto the botome of the alter of burntofferynge whyche is before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall take all hys fatt from hym, and burne it vpon the alter, and shall do with thys yonge ore, as he dyd with the yonge ore for synne: euen so shall he do wt thys. And the Preaste shall make an attonement for them, and it shalbe forgeuen them. And he shall bringe thys yonge ore without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the fyrst. For it is an oblacyon for the synne of the congregacyon. D E

When a Lorde synneth, and commytteth throwe ignorauncе any of these thiges (which the Lorde hys God hath forbydden to be done in hys commaundementes) and hath offended. And yf his synne be shewed vnto him which he hath done, he shall bryngе hys offerynge: euen an he goate without blemyshe, and laye hys hande vpon the heed of the he goat, and kill it in the place where the burntofferinge is vsed to be kylled before the Lord For it is a synneoffering. And let the preaste take of the blonde of the offerynge with hys fynger, and put it vpō ỹ hornes of the burntofferinge alter, and powre hys blonde vnto the botome of the burntofferyng alter, & burne all his fatt vpon the alter, as the fat of the peaceofferynges. And the Preast shall make an attonement for hym, as concernynge his synne, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

If one of the comen people of the lande synne throwe ignorauncе, and commytte any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in hys commaundementes to be done, and so hath trespaced: Yf hys synne whyche he hath synned, come to his knowlege, he shall bring for his offering, a fre goate from amonge the flockes, without blemyshe for hys synne which he hath synned, and laye F

hys hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and * Leui. iii.d. slee it in the place of burntofferynges. * And the preaste shall take of the blonde therof wt
hys fynger, and put it vpon the hoznes of ꝑ burntofferinge alter, and poure all the blond vnto the botome of the alter, and shall take awaye all hys fatt, as the fatt of the peace offerynges is taken awaye. And the preaste shall burne it vpon the alter, that it maye be a swete sauoure vnto the Lozd, and the preas-ste shall make an attonement foz hym, and it shalbe fozgeuen hym.

¶ And yf he bzynge a shepe foz a synne of-ferynge, he shall bzinge a female without ble-myshe, and laye hys hande vpon the heed of the offerynge, and slee it foz a synofferynge in the place where they kyll the burntofferyng.
And the preaste shall take of the blonde of the offerynge with hys fynger, and put it vpon
the hoznes of the burntofferinge alter, & shall poure the blonde therof vnto the botome of *Leuiti.iiij.d the alter. * And he shall take away all the fatt therof, as the fat of the shepe of the peace offerynge is wont to be taken awaye. And the preaste shall burne it vpon the alter, that it maye be the Lozdes burntsacrifyce, and the Preaste shall make an attonemente foz hys synne, that he hath cõmitted, and it shal-be fozgeuen him.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Of oothes. The cleansynge of hym that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgacyon of an othe, and of synne done by ignozaunce.

A VIf a soule synne ād heare the voyce of swerynge, and is a witnesse:

euell oz to do good (whatsoeuer it be that a man vseth to pzonounce with an othe) and the thynge be hyd from hym, and commeth to the knowledge of it, and hath offended in one of these. And it shall come to passe that when he hath synned in one of these thynges.
he shall confesse that he hath synned in that thynge. Therfoze shall he bzynge hys tres-pace offerynge vnto the Lozde, foz hys synne whiche he hath synned. A female from the flocke, a lambe oz a she goate, foz a synne of-ferynge. And the Preaste shall make an attonement foz hym concernynge hys synne.
* Leui.vii.d. Luk. ii.d * And yf he be not able to bzynge soche a shepe, he shall bzynge foz hys trespace which he hath synned, two turtyll doues oz two yonge pygeons vnto the Lozd, one foz a syn-ne offerynge, and the other foz a burntofferynge. And he shall bzynge them vnto the Preaste, whiche shall offer the synneoffering fyrst, and wzinge the necke a sundze of it, but C pluckе it not clene of. And he shall spzynkle of the blonde of the synneofferynge vpon the syde of the alter, and the reste of the blonde shall he powze by the botome of the alter: foz
it is a synneofferynge. And he shall offer the seconde foz a burntofferynge as the maner
is: and so shall the Preaste make an attonement foz hym (foz the synne whiche he hath synned) and it shalbe forgeuē hym. And yf he be not able to bzynge two turtyll doues oz
two younge pygeons, then he that hath synned shall bzynge foz hys offerynge: the tenth parte of an Epha of fyne floure foz a synoffe-rynge, but put none oyle there to, neither put any franckencence theron, foz it is a synneofferynge. And let the preaste offre it, and the preaste shall take hys handfull of it, foz a remembzaūce therof, and burne it vpon the alter, to be a sacrifyce foz the Lozde, it is a syn-ne offerynge. And the Preaste shall make an attonement foz hym as touchynge his synne
that he hath synned in one of these, & it shalbe fozgeuen. And the remnaūte shalbe the Prestes, as a meatofferynge.

And the Lozd spake vnto Moses, saying: D
yf a soule trespace and synne thozowe igno-raunce in thynges that are consecrated vnto
the Lozde, let hym bzynge foz hys trespace
vnto the Lozde a ram without blemyshe out of the flockes, valued in money at two sy-cles after the * sycle of the sanctuary, that it * Exod.xxx.
maye be foz a trespaceofferinge. And he shall make amēdes foz the harme that he hath done in the holy thing, and let him put the fyfte
parte moze therto, and geue it vnto ꝑ Preast.
And the Preaste shall make an attonement
foz him with the ram that is foz the trespace.
and it shalbe fozgeuen hym.

Yf a soule synne, and commyt any of these thynges whyche are fozbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lozde: and wyst it not, and hath offended, he shall beare hys synne, and shall bzynge a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is estemed to be wozthe a trespace offering, vnto the prea-
ste. And the Preaste shall make an attonement foz hym cōcernynge hys ignozaunce, wherin he erred and was not ware, and it shalbe fozgeuen hym. Thys is a trespaceofferinge, ☞ whyche he offred vnto the Lozde ☞
foz the trespace:

offeynge, and shall burne it vnto a remem-
bzaunce vpon the alter foz a swete sauoure, euen a memozyall of it vnto the Lozd. And of C the rest therof, shall Aaron and hys sonnes eate: vnleuened shall it be eaten in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of witnesse they shall eate it. It shall not be ba ken wyth leuen. I haue geuen it vnto them foz theyz pozciō of my sacrifyces. It is moste holye, as is the synne offrynge and trespace-

thou take awaye wyth the kydneyes: & the Preast shall burne them vpon the altare, to be a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: for it is a trespace offeryng.

All the males amonge the preastes shall eate therof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synne offryng is, so is the trespace offryng, one lawe serueth for both, and it shall be the Preastes that reconcyleth ther w. And the Preaste ꝑ offereth any mans burnt-offrige, ☞ shall haue the skynne of ꝑ burnt-offrige which he hath offred. And all ꝑ meat-offryng that is baken in the ouen, and that is dressed vpon the gredyron, & in the frygge pan, shalbe the Preastes that offreth it. And euery meateofferinge that is myngled with oyle and that is dry, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as B moche as another. Thys is the lawe of the peaceoffringe, whā it is offred vnto the Lorde. If he offer it to geue thākes, he shall brīge vnto hys thanckoffryng, swete kakes myngled wyth oyle, & swete wafers anoynted w oyle, and kakes myngled with oyle of fyne floure fryed. He shall bryng hys offeryng vpon kakes of leuended bread for hys peaceoffringes to geue thākes: and of all the sacrifice he shall offer one for an heueoffringe vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the Preastes that sprynckled the blonde of the peaceoffringes. And the flesshe of the thankoffryng in hys peaceoffrynges shalbe eaten the same daye that it is offred. And let hym laye vp nothynge of it vntyll the morowe. But yf he offre hys sacrifyce by reason of a vowe, or of hys awne frewyll, it shall be eaten the same daye that he offreth hys sacrifyce. And yf ought remayne vntyll the morowe, it maye be eaten: but as moche of the offered flesshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, shalbe burnt wyth fyre. And yf any of the flesshe of hys peaceoffrynges be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offreth it, obtayne no fauoure ☞ nether shall it be reckened vnto hym: but shalbe an abhomynacyon. Therfore the soule that eateth of it, ☞ shall bearre hys synne. And the flesh that toucheth any vncleane thynge shall not be eate, but burnt wyth fyre: and all that be cleane, shall eate the flesh. But yf any soule eate of the flesh of the peaceoffrynge that pertayneth vnto the Lorde haupnge hys vnclennesse vpon hym: the same soule shall perysshe frō amonge hys people. Moreouer, the soule that doth touche any vnclene thynge, that is of the vnclēnesse of man or of any vnclene beast or any abhomynacyon that is vnclene: and then eate of ꝑ flesh of the peaceoffrynge whych pertayneth vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perysh from hys people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye:

*Ye shall eate no maner fatt of oxen of * Leui.iij.c. shepe and of goates: neuerthelater the fatt of the beaste that dyeth alone, and the fatt of that whych is torne wyth wylde beastes, shall be occupied in any maner of vse, but ye shall in no wise eate of it. For whosoeuer eateth the fatt of the beaste of whych men vse to bryngc an offryng vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall perysh from his people. Moreouer, ye * shall eate no maner of * Gene.ix.a. Leui.xvij.c. and.xix.f. Deut.xij.d. i.Reg.xiiij.f. blonde, whether it be of foule or of beast. Whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth any maner of blonde, the same soule shall perisshe frō hys people.

And the Lorde talked w Moses, sayinge: D speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: he that bryngeth hys peaceoffringe vnto the Lorde, let hym bryngc hys gyfte vnto the Lorde of hys peaceoffrynge: let his awne hādes bryngc the offrynges of the Lorde: euen the fatt wyth the brest shall he bryngc: that the brest maye be waued for a waue offringe before the Lorde. And the Preast shall burne the fatt vpon the alter, and the brest shalbe Aarons & hys sonnes. And the ryght shoulder shall ye geue vnto the Preaste, for an heueoffrynge, of youre peaceoffrynges. The same that offreth the blonde of the peaceoffringes and the fatt, amonge the sonnes of Aarō, shall haue the ryght shoulder for his parte, for the * wauebrest and the heueshoulder * Nu.xviij.c haue I taken of the chyldrē of Israel, euen of their peaceoffringes, and haue geuen it vnto Aaron & vnto hys sonnes: by a statute for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

Thys is the anoyntynge of Aaron and the anoyntynge of his sonnes in the sacrifices of the Lorde, in the daye when he offered thē to be Preastes vnto the Lorde. And these be the sacrifyces which the Lord commaunded to be geuen them (in the daye of theyr anoyntynge) of the chyldren of Israel, by a statute for euer in theyr generacyons. Thys is the lawe of the burntoffrynge and of the meatoffrynge, and of the sacrifyce for synne and trespace, for consecracyon & for the peaceoffrynge: which the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mount of Synai, when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer their sacrifyces vnto the Lorde in the wyldernesse of Synai.

¶ The. viij. Chapter.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: take * Aaron & hys sonnes with him, and the vestures & the anoyntynge oyle, and a ponge oxe for synne, & two rāmes, and a basket wyth swete breed: and gether thou all the congregacyon together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, & * Exo. xxix.a

hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayde vnto the congregacyon: this is the thynge which the Lorde commaūded to be done.

And Moses brought Aaron & hys sonnes, and washed them with water, and put vpon hym the albe, & gyrded him w a girdle, & put vpō hym the tunycle, ✻ (of palowe sylke) and put the Ephod theron, which he gyrded wyth the broderd gyrdell that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwyth. And he put the brestlappe theron, and put in the brestlappe Urim & thumim. And he put the myter vpon hys heed, and put vpon the myter (euen vpon the forefront of hys face) the goldē plate or the holy crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

B * Exo.xxx.d. *And Moses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the Tabernacle, and all that was therin, and sanctified them, and sprynkled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the alter, and all hys vessels, the laver & his fote, to sanctifye thē ✻ (wyth the oyle.) And he powred of the anoyntynge oyle vpō Aarons heed, and anoynted hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moses brought Aarons sonnes, & put albes vpō them, and gyrded them with gyrdels, & put bonettes vpō their heedes: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

C * Exo.xxix.a *And he brought the yonge oxe for synne, And Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr hādes vpon the heed of the yonge oxe that was for synne. And Moses slewe hym, & toke of the blonde, which he put vpon the hornes of the alter rounde about wt hys fynger, & ☞ purifyed it, and powred the blonde vnto the bottome of the alter, & sanctifyed it, and ☞ reconcyled it. And he toke all the fatt that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundaunce of the lyuer and the two kydneyes, and theyr fatt, & Moses burned it vpon the alter. But the yonge oxe and hys hyde, his flesh and his dōge, he burnt wyth fyre without the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

D And he brought the ram for the burntoffrynge, and Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram, which Moses kylled, and sprynkled the blonde vpō the alter rounde about, and Moses cut the ram in peces and burnt the heed, the peces and ꝑ fatte, and washed the inwardes & the legges in water, and Moses burnt the ram euery whyt vpō the alter, for a burntsacrifyce, that it myght be a swete sauoure, and an offrynge vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Exo.xxix.c. ✻ *And he brought the other ram, namely the ram of consecracyon ✻ (of the prestes) & Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpō the heed of the rā: which Moses slewe, and toke of the blonde of it, and put it vpon the typpe of Aarons ryghte eare, & vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, & vpō the great too of his ryght fote. And Moses brought Aarōs sonnes, & put of the blonde ✻ (of the rā) on ꝑ typpe of the ryghte eare of thē, & vpō the thombes of theyr ryghte handes, and vpon the greate tooes of theyr righte fete, and Moses sprinkled the blonde vpon the alter roūde aboute: E ✻

* And he toke the fatte and the roumpe, * Exo.xxix.b and all the fat that was vpō the inwardes, and the aboundaunce of the lyuer, and the.ij kydneyes w theyr fatt, & the ryghte shoulder. And out of the basket of swete bread ꝑ was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled bred, & one waker, & put them on the fatt & vpon the ryghte shoulder: & put altogether vpō Aarōs handes, & vpō hys sonnes handes, & waued it a waue offrynge before the Lorde. And Moses toke them from of their handes, & burnt them vpō the alter, F euen vpō the burntoffrynge alter: for it was the sacrifyce of consecracyon, for a swete sauoure & a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde. * And * Exo.xxix.c. Moses toke the breaste and waued it for a waueoffrynge before the Lord, for it was of the ram of the consecratiō, and it was Moses parte, as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, and of the blonde whych was vpō the alter, and sprynkled it vpon Aaron and vpon hys vestimentes, vpon hys sonnes & on hys sonnes vestimentes wyth him, and sanctyfyed Aarō, his vestures & hys sonnes, & hys sonnes vestures wyth hym: And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and hys sonnes: boyle the flesshe in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and there * eate it wyth the bread that is in the G basket of consecracyon, as I commaunded, * Exo.xxix.f. sayinge: Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate it: & that whych remayneth of the bread, shall ye burne wyth fyre.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: when there appeareth a rysynge in any mans flesshe, ether a scabbe, or a glystrynge whyte: and the plage of leprosye be in the skynne of hys flesshe, he shall be brought vnto Aarō the Preaste, or vnto one of hys sonnes the Preastes: and the Preaste shall loke on the sore in the skynne of hys flesshe. And whan the heere in the sore is turned vnto whyte, and the sore also seme to be lower then the skynne of his flesh, it wyll be a plage of leprosye, and the Preaste shall loke on hym, and iudge hym vnclene.

If there be but a whyte plecke in the skynne of hys flesh, and seme not to be lower thē the skynne, nor the heere therof is turned vnto whyte, the Preaste shall shut him vp seuē dayes. And the Preaste shall loke vpon hym agayne the seuēth daye: And yf ỹ plage seme to him to abyde still, & ỹ plage growe not in the skynne the Preast shall shutt him vp yet vij. dayes moo. And the Preast shall loke on hym agayne the. vij. daye. Then yf the plage be darcker, & not growen in the skynne, the Preast shall iudge hym clene, for it is but a skyrf. And he shall washe his clothes, & be clene, But & yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the Preast, & iudged clene, he shalbe sene of the preest agayne. If the preast se ỹ the scabbe be growen abrode ☞ in the skynne, ☞ the preest shall make hym vnclene: for it is a leprosye.

When the plage of leprosye is in a man he shall be brought vnto the Preast, and the Preast shall se hym. And yf the rysynge be whyte in the skynne, and haue made the heare whyte, and there be rawe flesshe in the sore it wylbe an olde leprosye in the skynne of his flesh. And the Preast shall make hym vnclene, and shall not shutte hym vp seynge he is vnclene.

If a leprosye breake out abrode in the skynne, & couer all the skynne, from hys heed to hys foote, whersoeuer the Preast loketh, and the Preast loke vpō him. And yf the leprosye haue couered all hys flesh, he shall iudge the plage to be clene because it is all turned into whytnesse, & he shalbe cleane. But āde yf ther be rawe flesshe on hī whē he is sene, he shalbe vncleane. And ỹ Preast shall se ỹ rawe flesh, and declare him to be vnclene. For the rawe flesh is vnclene seynge it is a leprosye. Or yf the rawe flesh departe agayne & chaūge vnto whyte, he shall come to the preste, and the preast shall se him & beholde: If the sooze be chaūged vnto whyte *(and couer the whole man) the Preast shall iudge the plage cleane & he shalbe cleane: The flesh also in whose skinne there is a byle & is healed, & in the place of ỹ byle there appeare a whyte rysynge, ether a chynynge whyte & somwhat reddish, it shall be sene of the Preast. But & yf the Preast loke on it and there be no whyte heares therin, & yf it be not lower then the skynne, but be darcker, the Preast shall shutt hym vp. vij. dayes. And yf it spre de abrode in the flesh, ☞ the preest shall make hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage. But and yf the spot stōde styll, & growe not, it is the prynte of an hote byle, and therfore the preest shall declare hym to be cleane. Yf there be any flesh, in whose skynne there is a hote burnynge, and the flesh that burneth haue a whyte spott, somwhat reddysh or whyte, ỹ preest shall loke vpon it. And yf the heare in that brynghe spot be chaunged to whyte, and it appeare lower then the skynne, it is a leprosye broken out of the burnynge. And therfore the preaste shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprosye. But yf the preast loke on it & there be no whyte heare in the brynghte spott, and be no lower then the other skynne, but be darcker, the preast shall shut him vp seuē dayes. And the Pzeaste shall commaunde that one of the byzdes be kylled in an erthen vessell & vpon rennynge water. And he shall take the lyuynge byzde with the cedar wodd, the purple and the yssope, and shall dyppe them and the lyuynge byzde in the bloude of the slayne byzde, vpon the rennynge water, and spzynkle vpon hym (that must be clensed of hys lepzosye) seuen tymes, and clense hym, and shall let the lyuynge byzde goo fre into the felde.

* Leuj.xiij.a. Mat.viij.a. Mar.i.d. Luke.v.c. and.xvij.c.

And he that is clensed, shall washe hys clothes, and shaue of all hys heere, and wash hym selfe in water, that he maye be cleane. And after that shall he come into the hoste, & shall tarye wythout hys tent seuē dayes: but in the seuenth daye he shall shaue of all hys heere, namely, hys head, hys berde and hys browes: euen all hys heere shalbe shauen of. And he shall washe hys clothes & hys flesshe in water and he shalbe cleane.

In the eyght daye he shall take two lambes wythout blemysshe, and an ye welā be of a yeare olde without blemysh, and thze tenthdeales of fyne floure foz a * meatoffrynge mynglede wyth oyle and ☞ a logge of oyle. And the Pzeaste that maketh hym cleane, shall bzynge the man that is to be made cleane and those thynges, befoze the Lozde, euen befoze the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall bzynge them the viij daye foz hys clensynge vnto the Pzeaste befoze the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse befoze the Lozde.

And the Pzeaste shall take the lambe that is foz the trespace, and the logge of oyle, and waue them befoze the Lozde. And he shall kyll the lambe foz the trespace, and the Pzeaste shall take of the bloude of the trespaceoffrynge, and put it vpon the typpe of hys ryghte eare that is to be clensed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryghte hande, and vpon the greate too of hys ryght fote. And yͤ pzeaste shall powze of the oyle into hys ryghte hande, and the pzeste shall wyth hys fynger spzynkle of the oyle that is in hys lefte hāde, seuen tymes befoze the Lozde.

And the Pzeaste shall put of the oyle that is in hys hande vpon the typpe of the ryghte eare of hym that is to be clensed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryghte hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryghte fote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespaceoffringe was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in the pzestes hande, he shall put vpon the heed of hym that is to be clēsed: that he maye make on attonement foz him befoze the Lozde. And he shall offer one of the turtyll doues oz of the yonge pigeons, soche as he can gett: the one foz a synneofferynge and the other foz a burntoffrynge wyth yͤ meatofferynge. And the Pzeaste shall make an attonement foz hym that is to be clensed befoze the Lozde. Thys is the lawe of hym in whom is the plage of lepzosye, and whose hande is not able to gett that whych pertayneth to hys clensynge.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan whych I geue you in possessyon. And yf I put the plage of lepzosye in a house of the lande of youre possessyon, he that oweth the house shall come, and tell the pzeaste, sayinge: me thynke that there is as it were a lepzosy in the house. And the pzeaste shall cōmaunde them to emptie the house, befoze the Pzeaste goo into it to se the plage: that all that is in the house be not made vncleane, and then must the Pzeaste go in to se the house.

If the Pzeaste also se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that there be holowe strakes pale oz rede whych seme to be lower then the wall it selfe, the Pzeaste shall go out at the house dozes, and shut vp the house seuen dayes. And the Pzeaste shall come agayne the seuenth daye, and yf he se that the plage be increased in the walles of the house, the Pzeaste shall commaunde them to take a waye the stones in which the plage is, & let them cast them into a foule place without the cytie, and he shall commaunde the house to be scraped wythyn rounde aboute, and powze out the dust (that they scrape of) wythout the cytie into a foule place. And they shall take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other mozter, to plaster yͤ house wythall. And yf the plage come agayne and breake out in the house, after that he hath taken awaye the stones & scraped yͤ walles of the house, and after that he hath plastered the house anewe: yͤ pzeaste shall come and se it. And yf he perceaue that the plage hath growne further in the house, it is a fretynge lepzosye in the house. It is therfoze vncleane. And he shall breake downe the house. And the stones of it, & the tymbze therof, & all the mozter of the house, shall he carye out of the cytye vnto a foule place. Wozeouer he that goeth into the house all the whyle that it is shut vp, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen: He that slepeth in the house, shall washe hys clothes: he lyke wyse that eateth in the house, shall washe hys clothes.

And yf the Pzeaste come and se, that the plage hath spzede no further in the house (after that it is newe plastered) yͤ pzeste shall iudge that house cleane, because the plage is healed. And let hym take to clense the house wythall: two byzdes, cedar wodd, purple clothe and yssope. And he shall kyll one of the byzdes in an erthē vessell and vpō runnynge water: & take the cedar wodd, & the yssope, & the purple wͭ the lyuynge byzde, & dyppe thē in the bloude of the slayne byzde, and in the runnynge water, and spzynkle the house seuen tymes, & clense the house with the bloud of the hyde and wyth the runnynge water, with the lyuynge hyde, with ye cedar wodd, and the yſope, and the purple clothe. But he ſhall lett the lyuynge hyde flee oute of the towne into the hode feldes, and ſo make an attonement for the houſe, and it ſhalbe cleane. Thys is the lawe for all maner plage of leproſye and breakynge out, and of the leproſye of clothe and houſe: for a ſwellynge for a ſcabbe, and for a whyte blyſter. To teache whan it muſt be made vncleane and cleane. Thys is the lawe of leproſye.

¶ The.xvij.Chapter.

¶ All sacrifyce must be brought to the dore of the tabernacle. To deuyls maye they not offer.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aarõ & vnto hys sonnes and vnto all the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: Thys is the thynge which the Lord hath charged, sayinge: what man soeuer of the house of Israel kylleth an oxe, or lambe or goate in ỹ hoste, or that kylleth it out of the hoste, and bryngeth it not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offer an offerynge vnto the Lorde before the dwellynge place of the Lorde, blonde shalbe imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed blonde, and that man shall be roted out from amonge his people.

Wherfore whan the chyldren of Israel brynge their offeringes, that they offer in the wyde felde, they shulde brynge them vnto ỹ Lorde: euen vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse to the preaste, to offer them for peace offerynges vnto the Lord. And ỹ preaste must sprynkle the blonde vpõ the alter of the Lorde whych is before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fatt for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And lett thẽ no moare offer their offeringes vnto deuyls, after whom they haue gone a whorynge. Thys shalbe an ordynaunce for euer vnto them in their generacyons.

And thou shalt saye vnto them: whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the straungers whych soiourne amõge you that offereth a burntofferynge or sacrifyce, & bryngeth it not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offer it vnto the Lorde, that mã shall perysshe from amonge hys people. And therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: let no soule of you eate blonde. Neyther let any straunger that soiourneth amonge you, eate blonde.

And whatsoeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the straungers ỹ soiourne amonge you, whych hunteth and catcheth any beest or foule that maye be eaten, let him powre out the blonde therof, & couer it wyth erthe, for the lyfe of all flesshe is in the blonde of it, therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel * ye shall eate the blonde of no maner of flesshe, for the lyfe of all flesshe is the blonde therof: whosoeuer eateth it, shall perysshe. And euery soule that eateth it whych dyed alone, or that which was torne wyth wylde beastes: whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger, he shall washe hys clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen, and then shall he be cleane. Yf he washe them not, nor bathe hys flesshe, he shall beare hys synne.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any mā will geue a synguler vowe vnto ỹ Lord accordynge to the value of the soules, the value of the male from twentye yeare olde vnto sixtye shalbe fyfte * sycles of syluer, after the weyght of the sanctuary. And yf it be a female, the value shalbe thyrtye sicles. And from fyue yeares to twentye, the male shalbe set at twentye sicles, and the female at ten sycles. And from a moneth vnto fyue yeare, the male shalbe set at fyue sycles of syluer, and the female at three. And he that is syxtie yeare olde, and aboue, shalbe valued at fiftene sicles, and the woman at ten. But If he be to poore so to be set, he shall present himselfe before the preast: & the preast shall value him, accordinge as the hande of him ỹ vowed is able to gett, euen so shall the preest value him. * Num.iij.c.

If it be a beaste of which men bryngе an offrynge vnto the Lorde: all that any mā geueth of soche vnto the Lorde, ☞ shalbe counted holy. He shall not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And yf he chaunge beast for beast, then both the same beast and it also wherwith it was chaunged shalbe holy. If it be any maner of vncleane beast, of which men do not offer a sacrifyce vnto the Lord, he shall set the beast before the preast, and the preast shall value it, whether it be good or bad. And as ỹ preast setteth it, so shall it be. But yf he will bye it agayne, he shall geue the fyft parte moare aboue that it was set at.

If any man dedicate his house, to be holy vnto the Lord, the preast shall set it, whether it be good or bad: and as the preast hath set it, so shall the value be. And whan he that ☞ sanctifyed it will redeme hys house, lett hym geue the fyft parte of the money that it was iudged at therto, and it shalbe hys:

But and yf he halowe hys felde after the Jubelye, the preast shall recken the money accozdinge to the nõbze of the yeares that remayne vnto the yeare of Jubely folowynge, & there after it shall be lower sett.

If he that consecrated the felde, wyll redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyft parte of the pryce that it was set at there vnto, and it shalbe hys, And yf he wyll not redeme the felde, but selleth the felde to another man, he (that vowed) *wyll maye redeme it nomoze. But when the felde goeth out in the yeare of iubelye, it shalbe made holy vnto the Lozd: euen as a felde that is vtterly put awaye, and it shall be the preastes possessyon.

If a man sanctefye vnto the Lozd a felde, whych he hath boughte, and is not of his enheritaunce, the preast shall reken vnto hym what it is wozth vnto the yeare of iubelye, & he shall geue the pryce that it is set at, the same daye, as a thynge consecrated vnto the Lozde. And in the yeare of iubelye, the felde shall returne vnto hi of whome he boughte it, euẽ to him, whose enheritaũce of lãd it is.

And all settynge shalbe accozdynge to the *Exo.xxx.b. sycle * of the sanctuary. One sycle cõteyneth twenye halfpens.

* But the fyrst bozne of the beastes that is appoynted vnto the Lozde, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be oxe oz shepe, foz it is the Lozdes allredy. If it be an vncleane beast, he shall redeme it, as it is sett at, and geue the fyfth parte moare therto: Oz, yf it be not redemed, it shalbe solde, accozdynge to the value. *Deu.xv.a

Notwithstandynge, no dãned thynge that a man putteth from hym and dedycateth vnto the Lozde, of all his good (whether it be mã oz beast oz lande of hys enheritaunce) maye be sold oz redemed: foz euery thynge so put awaye, is most holy vnto the Lozde. the trybe of theyz fathers were not nombzed amonge them.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, saying:
Thou shalt not nombze the trybe of Leui,
nether take the summe of them from amōge
the chyldzen of Jsrael. But thou shalt appoynte the leuites ouer the habytacyon of wit-nesse, and ouer all the vessels therof, and ouer
all thynges that are in it. Yea they shall beare the tabernacle and all the vessels therof, &
they shall minystre in it, & shall dwell rounde aboute the tabernacle. And when the tabernacle goeth fozth, ꝑ leuites shall take it dow
ne: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, they shall sett it vp: and ꝑ any straunger come nye, he shall dye. And the chyldzē of Jsrael shall pytch theyz tentes, euery man in hys owne companye, and euery man vnder
his awne stāderd thozowe out theyz hostes.
But the leuites shall pytche rounde aboute
the tabernacle of wytnesse, that there be no
wzath vpon the congregacyon of the chyldzē
of Jsrael, and the leuites shall kepe ꝑ watch of the tabernacle of witnesse. And the childzē of Jsrael dyd accozdynge to all that the Lozd commaunded Moses, euen so dyd they.

hath and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldzen of Gerson in their kynredes: Libni and Semei. The sonnes of Cahath in their kynredes: Amram, Jezehar, Hebzon & Oziel. And the sonnes of Merari in their kynredes Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of the Leuites, accozdynge to the houses of their fathers.

Of Gerson came the kynred of the Libni- D tes and the kynred of the Semeites. These are the kynredes of the Gersonites. And the summe of thē (after the nōbze of all the ma-thousande and fyue hundzed. And the kyn-redes of the Gersonytes shall pitche behynde

the habitacyon westwarde. The captayne &
most aunciēt of the house of the Gersonites, was Eliasaph the sonne of Lael. And vnder the keppynge of the chyldzen of Gerson in the tabernacle of witnesse was & the habita- E cyon and the tente, the couerynge therof, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the hangynges of the courte, and the curtayne of the dore of the courte: which is rounde about the Tabernacle, and the alter, and the cordes of it for all the seruyce therof. And of Cahath came the kynred of the Amramites, and ꝑ kynred of the Jezebarites: the kynred of the Hebronites, and the kynred of the Oziclites: These are the kynredes of the Cahathites. And the nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was. viij. thousande and syxe hundred: and these shall kepe the thynges that are to be kepte in the holy place. And the kynred of the chyldren of Cahath shall pytche on the southsyde of the Tabernacle. The captayne and most auncient of the house of the kynred of the Cahathites, was Elisaphan the sonne of Oziel, and vnder their keppynge was the arcke, the table, the candelstyck, and the alters, and all the vessels of the sanctuary ꝑ they mynistre in, and the vayle, and whatsoeuer belonged to the mynistracyon therof. And Eleazar the sonne of Aarō the Preaste, was captayne ouer all the captaynes of the Leuites, and had the ouersyghte of thē that wayted vpon the sanctuary.

E And of Merari came the kynred of the Mahelites, and the kynred of the Mushites: These are the kynredes of Merari. And the summe of them accordynge to the nombre of all the males, from a moneth olde and aboue was. vj thousande and. ij. hundred. The captayne and the most auncient of their house that were of the kynred of Merari, was zuriel the sonne of Abihael: and these shall pitche on the north syde of the tabernacle. And vnder the custody of the sonnes of Merari shalbe the bordes of the dwellynge, and the barres, pyllers and sockettes therof, all the vessell therof, and all that serueth therto: & the pyllers of the courte rounde aboute with their sockettes, their pynnes & their cordes. But on the forefront of the habitacyon before the Tabernacle of wytnesse eastwarde, shall Moses & Aaron and his sonnes pytche, and wayte to kepe the sanctuary, and to kepe the chyldren of Israel. ¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Mo- A ses and Aaron sayinge: Take the summe of the chyldrē of Cahath from amonge the sonnes of Leui, after theyr kynredes and houses of their fathers, (from. xxx. yere and aboue vntyll fyftie) all that are able to go furth to the warre, for to do the worke in the tabernacle of wytnesse. The offyce of the chyldren of kahath in the tabernacle of wytnesse, ☞ is moost holy. And when the hoste ☜ remoueth, Aaron & hys sonnes shall come & take doune the vayle, that hāgeth betwene, & wrappe ꝑ Arke of wytnesse in it: and shall put theron a couerynge of taxus skynnes, & shall sprede vpō it a cloth that is altogether of yelow silke, and put in the barres therof. And vpon the shewe table, they shall spreade abrode a cloth of yelowe sylke, & put theron the dysches, spones, flatpeces, and pottes to powre wyth, and there shalbe breed theron continually: & they shall spreade vpon them a couerynge of purple, and couer the same with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put in the barres therof.

And they shall take a cloth of yelow silke, and couer the cādelstycke of lyght, with his lampes, tōges, and snoffers, and all the oyle vessels which they occuppye aboute it, & they shall put both it, and all the vessell therof within a couerynge of taxus skynnes, & put it vpon a barre. And vpon the golden alter they shall spreade a cloth of yelowe sylke, and couer couer it with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, & put in ꝑ barres therof. And they shall take all the thynges (whych they occuppye to mynistre with in ꝑ holy place) and put a cloth of yelowe sylke vpon them, and couer them wt

B a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put them on a barre. And they shall take awaye the asshes from ꝑ alter, and sprede a purple cloth theron: and put vpō it all the vessels therof, that they mynistre wythall: euen ꝑ cole pannes, the flesshe hokes, the shouels, the basens and ꝑ other vessels of ꝑ alter, and they shall spreade vpō it a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put in the barres of it. And when Aaron and hys sonnes haue made an ende of couerynge the holy thinges, and all the vessels of the sanctuarye (agaynst that the hoste remoue) then the sonnes of Cahath shall come in for to beare, but they shall not touche any holy thynge, least they dye. And thys is the charge of the sonnes of Cahath in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And to the offyce of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the Preaste pertayneth the oyle for the lyghte, the swete cens, the dayly meatoffrynge, & the anoyntynge oyle, and the ouersyghte of all the tabernacle, and of all that therin is, both in the sanctuary and in all the vessels therof.

C And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and ☞ Aaron, sayinge: ☜ Ye shall not destroye the trybe of the kynred of the Cahathites, from amonge ꝑ Leuites. But thus do vnto them, that they maye lyue and not dye, when they go vnto the most holy thynges: Let Aaron and his sonnes goin, and take them downe, to euery one after hys seruyce, and after hys charge. But let them not go in, to se when ꝑ the holy thynges are folden vp, lest they dye.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge. Take also the summe of the chyldren of Gerson, thorowe out the houses of their fathers, and thorowe out their kynredes: from xxx. yere and aboue, vntyll. l. shalt thou nōbre them, all that are able to goo forth to the warre for to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And this is the seruyce of the kynred of the Gersonites, to serue and to beare. They shall beare the curtaynes of the dwellynge, and the rouffe of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, hys couerynge, & the couerynge of taxus skynnes, that is an hye aboue vpō it, and the hangynge of the doore which is in the tabernacle of wytnesse: & the hangynges of the courte, & the hangynge that is in the entrynge in of the gate of ꝑ courte roūde about the dwellynge & the altare, with the cordes, & all the instrumentes that serue vnto them, and all that is made for to serue them. At the mouth of Aaron and hys sonnes, shall all the seruyce of the chyldren of the Gersonytes be done, in all their charges and in all their ser-

☞ uyce, and ye ☜ shall nombre vnto them all their burthens to kepe. And thys is the seruyce of the kynred of the chyldren of Gerson in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & their watche shalbe vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the Preaste.

And thou shalt nombre the sonnes of Merari after their kynredes, & after the houses of their fathers: from. xxx. yeres & aboue vnto. l shalt thou nombre them, euery one that is able to go forth to the warre, to do the seruyce of ꝑ Tabernacle of wytnesse. And thys is the charge that they muste wayte vpō, accordynge to all their seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. The bordes of ꝑ dwellynge, with the barres, pyllers, & sockettes therof, and the pyllers that are rounde aboute the courte, wt their sockettes, pynnes & cordes, & withall the instrumentes of it, for all their seruyce. And by name ye shall reken ꝑ thynges ꝑ they muste wayte vpon to beare. This D is the seruice of the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari accordynge to all their offyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the Preaste.

And Moses & Aaron & the prynces of the multitude nōbred ꝑ sonnes of ꝑ Cahathites, after their kynredes and houses of their fathers from. xxx. yere & aboue vnto fyftie, all that were able to go forth to the warre, to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And ꝑ nōbres of them thorowe out their kynredes were two thousande, seuen hūdred & .l. This is the nōbre of the kynredes of Cahath: namely, all that myght do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whych Moses and Aaron dyd nombre, accordynge to the commaūdement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

These are ꝑ nōbres of the sonnes of Gerson thorowe out their kynredes & houses of their fathers, from. xxx. yere vp vnto fyftie all ꝑ were able to go forth to the warre, for to do seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnesse. And ꝑ nōbres of thē thorowe out their kynredes, and houses of their fathers, were two thousande. vj. hūdred & .xxx. Thys is the nōbre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Gerson, of all ꝑ dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, which Moses & Aarō dyd nōbre accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde.

And these are ꝑ nōbres of the kynredes of ꝑ sonnes of Merari thorowe out their kynredes & houses of their fathers, frō. xxx. yere vp vnto fyftie: all ꝑ wente forth to ꝑ warre, & seruyd in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And ꝑ nōbres of them after their kynredes were, thre thousāde & two hūdred. This is ꝑ summe of the kynredes of the sonnes of merari, whiche Moses & Aarō nōbred accordynge to the worde of ꝑ Lorde, by ꝑ hande of Moses.

And so all the nombres of the Leuites which Moses, Aaron, and the Lordes of Israell nōbred, after their kynredes and houholdes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldzen of Israel: whether it be ✠ man or woman. Yf they haue cōmytted any synne that a man doeth, and haue trespaced agaynst the Lorde, that soule hath done amisse: Therfore they shall knowledge their synne, whyche they haue done, and let hym restore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and put the fyft parte of it moare thereto, & geue it vnto hym whō he hath trespaced agenste. But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, ner a kynsman of hys, let ỹ trespace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shalbe the Preastes, besyde the ramme of the attonement wherby an attonement shalbe made for hym. And euery heue offeringe that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldzē of Israel whych they brynge vnto the Preaste, shall be hys: and euery mans halowed thinges shalbe his: and whatsoeuer any man geueth the Preaste, it shalbe hys.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldzen of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any mans wyfe gooa syde, and trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye wyth her flechely, and it be hyd from the eyes of her husbande, and is not come to lyghte that she is defyled and ther is no wytnesse agaynst her, neyther she taken with the maner, and the spyrete of gelousye cōmeth vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer hys wyfe whych is defyled: or yf the spyrete of gelousye come vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer his wyfe whych is yet vndefyled: then let the man brynge his wyfe vnto the Preaste, and bryng wyth her an offerynge for her: ỹ tenthe parte of an Epha of barlye meale, but let him powre none oyle vpon it, nor put frankencens theron: for it is an offerynge of gelousye, an offerynge for a remēbraūce, causynge ỹ synne to be thought vpō.

And the Preaste shall bryng her and set her before the Lorde, and let him ✠ take holy water in an erthen vessell, & of the dust that is in the floore of the habitacyon, and put it into the water. And let the Preaste set the woman before the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memoryall of the offerynge in her handes whyche is the gelousye offerynge, and ỹ Preaste shall haue bytter and cursyd water in hys hande, & the preest shall charge her, and saye vnto the woman. If no man haue lyen wyth the, nether haste gone asyde to vncleannesse without thy husbande, then haue thou no arme of thys bytter, and cursyd waters.

But and yf thou hast gone asyde behynde thyne husbāde, and art defyled, and some other man hath lyen with the besyde thyne husoande. (& the preaste shall charge the woman with an horrible curse, & the preste shall saye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhominacyon and a curse amonge thy people: when the Lorde doth make thy thye rotte, and thy bely swell: These cursyd waters goo into the bowels of the that they maye make thy bely swell, & thy thye rotte, and let the woman saye, Amen Amen.

And let the Preaste wryte these curses: And whan they be clensed, let him cast them in to bytter waters, & geue the woman those bytter & cursed waters to drincke, that those cursed & bytter waters maye entre into her, And then the Preaste shall take the gelousy offrynge out of the womans hande, & waue it before the Lord, & bryng it vnto the alter & the preste shall take an handefull of the offerynge for a memoryall, & burne it vpō the alter, & then make the woman drynke ỹ water: & when he hath made the woman drinke the waters (yf she be defyled & haue trespaced agaynst her husoāde:) then shall the cursyd & bytter waters goo into her, & her bely shall swell, & her thye shall rotte, & ỹ woman shalbe a curse amonge her people. And yf the woman be not defiled but is cleane, she shall haue no harme, but shall conceaue and beare.

Thys is the lawe of gelousye, whē a wyfe goeth a syde behynde hyr husbande, and is defyled, or when the spyryte of gelousye commeth vpon a man, & he beynge gelouse ouer hys wyfe, doth bryng her before the Lorde, And the preaste shall do accordynge vnto all this lawe: and the man shalbe gyltlesse, & the woman shall beare her synne.

¶ The .vj. Chapter.

¶ The lawe of abstynēce. The blessynge of the people.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ether mā or woman doth separate them selues to vowe a vowe of ✠ an absteiner, and appoynte them selues vnto the Lorde, he shall separate hym selfe from ✠ wyne and stronge dryncke, and shall dryncke no vynagre of wyne nor of strōge drynke, nor shall drynke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eate no fresshe grapes nether yet dryed. As lōge as hys abstinēce endureth, shall he eate nothynge that is made of the vyne tre, or of the cornels, or of the huske of the grape.

B And as longe as he voweth, and is separated, there shall no rasure come apon hys heed: But vntyll hys dayes be out, in the which he separateth him selfe vnto the Lorde, he shalbe holy, and shall let the lockes of hys heere growe. As longe as he consecrateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed bodye: he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the death of hys father, mother, brother or syster: because that the vowe of the abstinence of hys God is vpon hys heade. All the dayes of hys abstinence he is holy vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune that any man by chaunce dye sodenly before hym, the heed of hys abstinence shalbe defyled, and he shall ✠ shaue hys heed the daye of hys clensynge: euen the seuenth daye he shall shaue it. And the eyght daye he shall bryng two turtels or two ponge pigeons to the Preaste, before the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preaste shall offer the one for synne and the other for a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for hym, as concernynge that he synned vpon a soule, and shall halowe hys heed the same daye, and he shall consecrate hym selfe vnto the Lorde (ỹ tyme of hys abstineneye) and shall bryng a lambe of a yere olde for trespace: but the dayes that were before are lost, because hys abstinēcie was defyled. Thys is the lawe of the absteyner, when the tyme of hys abstinence is out, he shalbe brought vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bryng hys offerynge vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a burntofferynge, and a shelambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for synne, a ram wythout blemyshe also for a peaceofferynge, and a basket of swete breed, euē cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and wafers of swete bread anoynted wyth oyle wyth their meatofferynges and drynkofferynges.

And the Preaste shall bryng hym before the Lord, and offer hys synnofferynge and his burntofferynge, and shall offer the ram for a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde, wyth the basket of swete breed, and the Preaste shall offer also his meat offerynge and his drinckofferynge. And he shall shaue the heed of the abstcyner in the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: euen the heed of his abstinence, and shall take the heere of his sober heed, and put it in the fyre, which is vnder the peaceofferynge. And the preaste shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram, and one swete cake out of the basket, and one swete waker also, and put them vpon the handes of the abstcyner (after he hath shauē his abstinēce of) and the Preaste shall ✠ (take them of hym, and) waue the before the Lorde. And these holy thynges shalbe the prestes, wyth the wauebrest and heue shoulder: and then the abstcyner maye drynke wyne. Thys is the lawe of the abstcyner whych hath vowed his offrynge vnto the Lorde for his consecracyon: Besydes those thynges that hys hande can gett, accordynge to the vowe whych he vowed, euen so he must do after the lawe of hys abstinence.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes sayinge: of thys wyse ye shall blesse the chyldzen of Israel, and saye vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the, and kepe the.

The Lorde make hys face shyne vpō the, and be mercyfull vnto the.

The Lorde ✠ lyfte vp countenaunce vpō the, and geue the peace. And they shall put my name vpon the chyldzen of Israel, and I wyll blesse them.

¶ The order of the lampes. The forme of the candelstycke. The clesynge & offrynge of the Leuites.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayynge: speake vnto Aaron, and saye vnto hym: * when thou puttest on the lampes, the seuẽ lampes shall geue lyght towarde the forefrõt of the candelstycke. And Aaron dyd euen so, and lyghted ỹ lãpes towarde the forefront of the candelstycke, as ỹ Lorde commaunded Moses, and the worke of the candelsticke was of fyne golde, both the shaft and the floures therof: accordinge vnto ỹ visiõ whiche the Lord had shewed Moses euen so he made the cãdelsticke. A *Exo.xxv.d.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayynge: take the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, and cleanse them. But thus shalt thou do vnto them, when thou cleansest thẽ: sprynckle water of purifynge vpon them, and let them make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the flesshe of them, and let them washe their clothes, and so make them selues cleane. Then let them take a bullocke with his meatofferynge: euẽ fyne floure myngled wyth oyle: and another bullocke shalt thou take for synne.

And whan thou doest brynge the Leuites before the tabernacle of wytnesse, thou shalt gether the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel together, and brynge the Leuites before the Lorde, and ỹ chyldren of Israel shall put their handes vpon the Leuites. And Aaron shall waue ỹ Leuites before the Lorde, for a waue offerynge of the chyldre of Israel, that they maye execute the mynystracyõ of the seruyce of the Lorde.

And the Leuytes shall put their handes vpon the heedes of the bullockes, and thou shalt offer the one for synne, and the other for a burntofferynge vnto the Lorde, that thou mayest make an attonemẽt for ỹ Leuytes. And

tes. And thou shalt sett ꝑ Leuites before Aaron and his sonnes, & waue them for a waue offerynge before the Lorde. And thus thou shalt separate the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, and the Leuites shall be myne: after that, shall the Leuites goin, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And thou shalt cleanse them and waue thē, ℭ for they are geuen and delyuered vnto me from amonge the chyldren of Israel, for such as open euery wombe: euē for the fyrst borne of all the chyldren of Israel haue I taken thē vnto me.

* Exo.xiij.a. Leui.xxvij.b. * For all the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel are myne both man and beest: seing the daye that I smote euery fyrst borne in ꝑ lande of Egypte, I sanctifyed them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuites for all the fyrst borne of the chyldrē of Israel, and haue geuen the Leuites as a gyfte vnto Aaron & hys sonnes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, to do the seruyce of the chyldren of Israel in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage amonge the chyldren of Israel, yf the chyldren of Israel come nye vnto the holy thynges.

D And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacyon of the chyldrē of Israel dyd with the Leuytes, accordynge vnto all that the Lorde commaunded Moses cōcernynge the Leuytes: euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel vnto them. And the Leuites were purifyed, and washed their clothes. And Aaron waued them before the Lorde, and made an attonement for them, and cleansed them. After that went the Leuytes in to do theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and hys sonnes: as the Lorde had commaunded Moses concernynge the Leuytes, euē so they dyd vnto them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: thys is it that belongeth vnto the Leuytes: * from .xxv. yere vpwarde they shall go in to wayte vpon the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and from the age of fyfty yeare, they shall ceasse waytynge vpon the seruice therof, & shall serue no moare: but shall mynistre vnto theyr brethren in the tabernacle of wytnesse, to wayte, but shall do no moare seruyce. *Exo.xij.a. Leui.xxiij.a. Nu.xxviij.c. Deu.xvi.a.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in ꝑ wylderneſſe of Synay, in the fyrste moneth of the secōde yere, after they * were come out of the lande of Egypte, sayinge: let the chyldren of Israel offre Passeouer in hys season: euē the .xuij. daye of thys moneth at euen let them kepe it in hys season, accordynge to all the ceremonyes of it, and accordynge to all the maners therof. And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde offer Passeouer, and they offered Passeouer the .xuij. daye of the fyrst moneth at euen in ꝑ wyldernesse of Synai: accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And certayne men were defyled ☞ vpō the soule of a man, that they myght not offer Passeouer the same daye. And they came before Moses and Aaron the same daye. And ꝑ men sayde vnto hym: We are defyled vpon ꝑ soule of a man: wherfore are we kepte backe, that we maye not offer an offerynge vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge ꝑ chyldrē of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto thē: Stond styll, & I wyll heare what the Lorde will cōmaunde cōcernynge you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto ꝑ chyldren of Israell and saye: If any man amonge you or youre chyldren after you be vncleane by the reason of a coarse, or is in the waye farre from you, and will offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde: the .xuij. daye of the secōde moneth at euē let them offre it, and eate it with swete breed and sowre herbes: let them leaue none of it vnto the morowe * nor breake any bone of it: But accordynge to all the ordinaunce of the Passeouer let them offer it.

* Exo.xij.g. Iohn.xix.f.

But the man that is cleane and is not in a iourney, & yet was negligēt to offer Passeouer: the same soule shall perysshe from hys people, because he brought not the offerynge of the Lord in hys due season: that man shall ℭ bere hys synne. And yf a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyll offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passeouer and maner therof, he shall offre it thus: Ye shall haue one lawe both for ꝑ straunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the Tabernacle was reared vp, a * cloude couered the habitacyon, whych was as a tabernacle of the wytnesse: and at euen there was vpō the habitacyō, as it were the similitude of fyre vntyll the morowe. ℭ The trompettes of syluer. The Israelites departe from Sinai. The captaynes of the host are nombred. Hobab refuseth to go with Moses.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Make the two trompettes of syluer: of an whole pece shalt thou make thē, ꝑ thou mayst vse them to call the congregacyon together, and when the hoost shall iorneye. Therfore shall they blowe with thē, that all the multitude maye resorte to the before the doze of the tabernacle of witnes. And yf they blowe but one trompet, then the princes which are heedes ouer ꝑ thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. But yf ye trompe, the hostes ꝑ lye on the east partes shall go forward. And ye trompe the second tyme, the hoost ꝑ lyeth on the south syde shall take their iorneye: for they shall trompe when they take their iorneyes. But when the congregacion is to be gathred together, they shall blowe only, and not trōpe. And the sonnes of Aaron ꝑ preast shal blowe wt their trōpettes, & ye shall haue thē as a lawe for euer in your generacions.

B And yf ye go to warre in your lāde against your enemyes that vexe you, ye shall blowe with the trompettes: and ye shalbe remembred before the Lorde your God, to be saued from your enemies. Also in the daye of your gladnes, and in your feaste dayes, and in the begynning of your monethes, ye shall blow the trompettes ouer your burntsacrifyces & peaceoffringes, that they maye be a remembraunce for you before youre God. I am the Lorde youre God.

And it came to passe the twētyth daye of the second moneth in the second yeare, that ꝑ cloude was taken vp from of the habitacion of wytnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke their iorney out of the desert of Sinai, & the cloude rested in the wylderneſſe of Pharan.

And the fyrst toke their iorney at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses. In the first place went the standart of the hoost of Juda, accordyng to their armies, whose captayne was Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of the tribe of ꝑ childrē of Isachar, was Nathanel the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the childrē of Zabulon, was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was takē downe: and the sonnes of Gerson & Merari went forth bearyng the habitacyon.

And the hoost of Ruben went forth with ℭ their standart and armyes, whose captayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeō was Salamiel the sōne of Suri Saddai. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of ꝑ chyldren of Gad was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. The Cahathites also went forewarde and bare the sanctuarye, ☞ and the other dyd set vp the habitaciō agaynst they came. And the standart of the hoost of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth accordynge to theyr armyes, whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Amiud. And ouer the hoost of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sōne of Pedazur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the sonnes Ben Jamin was Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni.

And the standart of the hoost of the chyldrē of Dan came forth (hauing all the hostes together) throwout their armyes: whose captayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldrē of Aser, was Pagiel the sonne of Ochram. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephtali, was Ahira ꝑ sōne of Enā. These are the iorneyes of the chyldrē of Israel throwout theyr armyes: and thus the hostes remoued.

And Moses sayde vnto ☞ Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Madianite: which was D Moses father in lawe: we go vnto the place of which the Lorde sayd: I wyll geue it you. Come thou therfore with vs, & we wyll do the good: for the Lorde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he answered hym: I wyll not go: but will departe to myne awne land and to my kynred. He sayde: Oh naye, leaue vs not: for thou knowest oure mansyons in the wylderneſſe: and thou hast bene to vs in steade of ☞ eyes. And yf thou go with vs loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vnto vs, the same wyll we shewe vnto the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lorde, thre dayes iorneye: and the arcke of the testament of the Lord went before them in the thre dayes iorneye, to serche oute a restyng place for them. And the Lorde made a shadowe for thē throwe the cloude by day, when they went out of the tentes.

And it foztuned, that whā the arck went *Pſ.lxviij.a forth, Moſes sayde: *Ryse vp Lozde, and let thyne enemyes be scattered: and let them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arck rested, he sayde: Returne O Lozde vnto the many thousandes of Israel.

¶ The.xi.Chapter.

¶ The people murmureth. They despze sielde. They lothe manna. The wauerynge faith of Moses. The Lozd beareth the burden of Moses to seuentye of the auncientes, and they prophesye. He rayneth quayles. The sieth rauenners are punyshed.

AND it foztuned, ỹ whan* the people dyd wykedlye, it was a dysplearsure in the eares of the Lozd. And whē the Lozd heard it, his cōtenaūce was pzouoked to wzath, & the fier of the Lozd burnt among thē, & cōsumed thē ỹ were the vttemost of ỹ hoste. And ỹ people cried vnto Moses. And whā Moses made inter-cessiō vnto ỹ Lozd, ỹ fier quēched. And ỹ name of ỹ place was called Thaberah, because ỹ fier of the Lozd burnt among them.

And the rascall people that was amonge
them, fell a lustyng, and turned them selues and wepte (euen as dyd also the chyldzen of Israel) and sayde: who shall geue vs flesh to eate? we remembze the fysshe which we dyd
eate in Egipt for naught, & the Cucumbers, and melons, lekes, onyons & garleke. But nowe oure soule is dzyed awaye, for we can se nothyng els, saue Manna.

Exo.xvi.g. The manna was as coziander seed, and (to se to) lyke Bedellū. And the people wēt about and gathered it, and groūde it in mil-les, or bet it in mozters, and baked it in pan-nes, and made kakes of it. And the taist of it was like vnto the taist of an oyle kake. And whan the dewe fell downe vpon the hooste
in the nyght, the Manna fell vpon it.

¶ And whan Moses herde the people wepe
thzowout theyr housholdes, euery mā in ỹ dooze of his tent, & ỹ face of the Lozd was pzouoked vnto wzath exceadingly: & it gre-ued Moses also. And Moses sayde vnto the Lozd: wherfore hast thou dealt cruelly with thy seruaūt? And wherfore haue I not foūd fauour in thy syght, seyng that thou puttest
the weyght of all this people vpon me? haue
I conceaued all thys people? Or haue I begottē thē? that ỹ shuldest saye vnto me? carie them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the sucklyng chylde) vnto the lande, which thou swarest vnto their fathers? where shulde I
haue flesshe, to geue vnto all thys people, which wepe before me, saying: geue vs flesh
that we maye eate? I am not able to beare all thys people alone, seyng it is to heuy for me. If thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I pzaye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght, that I se not my wzechednes.

*Eze.xlvii.d. And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses, *gather vnto me.lxx.mē of the elders of Israel,
which thou knowest, that they are ỹ elders
of the people and officers ouer thē: and thou shalt bzyng thē vnto the tabernacle of wit-nesse, that they maye stande there with the:
And I will come downe, and talke with the there, and take of the spzete which is vpon the, and put vpō them, and they shall beare the burthen of the people with the, lest thou be constrayned to beare it alone.

And saye thou vnto the* people: be ha-
lowed agaynst tomozowe, and ye shall eate flesh: for your whyning is in the eares of the Lozde, seing ye sayd: who shall geue vs flesh
to eate? we were happye in Egipt: therfore
the Lozde wyll geue you flesh, and ye shall eate. Ye shall not eate one daye noz two, noz fyue dayes, neyther ten, noz twentye dayes:
but euen a moneth longe, vntyll it come out at the nastrels of you: and make you to par-bzake, because that ye haue cast the Lozde asyde which is amonge you: and haue wepte
before hym, saying: why came we thus oute of Egipte?

And Moses sayde: *sixe hundzed thousande fotmen are there of the people, among which I am. And thou hast sayd: I wyll ge-ue them flesh, that they maye eate a moneth lōge. Shall the shepe & the oxē be slayne for them, to fynde them? ether, shall all the fysh
of the see be gathered together for thē to ser-ue them? And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses:
Shall* the Lozdes hande be waxed shozte?
Thou shalt se nowe whither my wozd shall come to passe vnto the, oz not.

And Moses went out, and tolde the people the saying of the Lozde, and gathzed the
lxx. elders of the people, and set them rounde about the tabernacle. And the Lozde came downe in a cloud, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the spzete that was vpon hym, and gaue it vnto the.lxx. elders. And it foztuned that when the spzete rested vpon them, they pphecied, & did not ceasse. But there remayned two of the men in the hoost: the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of ỹ other Medad. And the spzete rested vpon them, and they were of them that were wzytten,
and went not out vnto the tabernacle, but pzophecied in the hoost. And there ran a yōg man, and tolde Moses and sayd: Eldad and Medad do pzopheeye in the hooste. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moses
one of hys yonge men, answered & sayde:
master Moses, *fozbyd them. And Moses sayde vnto hym: enuyest thou for my sake?
*wolde God ỹ all the Lozdes people coulde
pzopheeye, and that the Lozde wold put hys spzete vpon them. And Moses gat him into the hoost, he and the elders of Israel.

And there went fozth a wynde from the Lozde: and *bzought quayles from the see:

vp, and all that day and all ỹ nyght, and on the mozowe they gathered quayles. And he that gathzed a lytle, gathzed ten homers ful.
And they spzed them abzode rounde aboute
the hoost. *And whyle the flesh was yet be-twene their teth, and ere it was chewed vp:
beholde, the countenaunce of the Lozde was moued agaynst ỹ people, & the Lozd* slewe
the people with an exceadynge great plage.

¶ The.xiij.Chapter.

¶ Certayne men are sent to searche the lande of Canaan.

AND the Lozde spake vnto Moses saying: *Sende mē out to searche
the lande of Canaan, which I ge-ue vnto the chyldzen of Israel: of euery trybe of their fathers shall ye sende a man, and let them all be suche as are rulars
among them. And Moses at the commaun-dement of the Lozde sent fozth out of the wyldernes of Pharan suche men as were all heades of the chyldzen of Israel: Their names are these.

Of the trybe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of zacur. Of the trybe of Symeon, Saphat the sonne of Hozi. Of the trybe of Juda, Caleb the sonne of Jephune. Of the trybe of Isachar, Igeal the sonne of Joseph.
Of the tribe of Ephzaim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Of ỹ trybe of Ben Jamin, Pal-thi the sonne of Raphu. Of the trybe of za-bulon, Gadiel the sonne of Sodi. Of the tribe of Joseph, namelye of the trybe of Ma-nasse, Gaddi the sonne of Suli. Of the tribe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. Of the trybe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Nephtali, Nahebi the sonne of Vaphsi. Of the trybe of Gad, Guel the sonne of Machi. These are the names of the men, which Moses sent to spye oute the lande. And Moses called the name of Osea
the sonne of Nun, Josua.

And Moses sent them fozth to spye oute
the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them:
get you vp thys waye southwarde, that ye maye go vp into the hye contrey, and se the lande what maner thyng it is, & the people

¶ The rebellyon of Corah, Dathan and Abyram.

AND * Corah the sonne of Jezehar the sonne of Caath the sōne of Leui, and Dathan & Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: rose vp before Moses, with other mē of the childzen of Israel, two hūdred and fiftye, which were captaynes of the multitude great and famous men in the congregacion: & they gathzed them selues together agaynst Moses and Aaron, & sayde vnto

vnto them: ye make moche to do, seynge all the multitude are holy euery one of thē, and the Lorde is amonge them: Why heaue ye your selues vp aboue the congregacyon of the Lorde?

And when Moses heard it, he fell vpon his face, and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his company, saying: to morowe the Lorde will shewe who are his, who is holy, & who ought to approch nye vnto him, and whom he hath chosen to come to him. This do therfore, take you fyerpannes, both Corah and all his company and do fyer therin, and put cens in them before the Lorde to morowe. And the man whom the Lorde doth chose, the same shalbe holy. Ye make moche to do, ye chyldzen of Leui.

B And Moses sayde vnto Corah: * heare ye chyldzen of Leui: Is it but a small thinge vnto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel: and brought you to him selfe, to do the scrupce of the dwelling place of the Lord, and to stāde before the multitude, and to minystre vnto him? he hath takē the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and seke ye the offyce of the preastē also. For which cause both thou and all thy cōpany ye are gathered together against ỹ Lorde? And what is Aaron, that ye murmur agaynst him?

* Nume.iij.b

And Moses sent, and called Dathā and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, which sayde: we wyll not come vp. Is it a small thynge, that thou hast brought vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wildernes, and to raygne ouer vs also? Hast thou brought vs vnto a lande ỹ floweth with mylke and hony, and geuen vs inheritaunce of feldes and vyneyardes? wilt thou pull out the eyes of these men? we wyll not come vp.

C And Moses waxed very angry, & sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto their offeryng. I haue not taken so muche as an asse from them, neyther haue I hurte any of them. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy company before the Lorde both thou, they, and Aaron tomorowe. And take euery man his censer, and put cens in them, that ye maye offre before the Lorde: euery man of the two hundred and fyftye take his censoure, thou also Aarō, that euery one maye haue his censer. And they toke euery man hys censer, and put fyer in them, and layed cens theron, and stode in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse with Moses and Aaron. And Corah gathered all the cōgregacyon agaynst them vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnes.

And the glory of the Lord appeared vnto all the cōgregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: separate your selues from amonge this congregaciō, that I maye cōsume them atonce. And they fell vpon their faces and sayde. * O moost myghtye God of the spirites of all flesche, yf one man hath synned, wylt thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the congregacyon and saye: Get you awaye from about the dwellyng of Corah, Dathan and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abirā, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto ỹ congregacion, saying: departe from the tentes of these wicked men, and touche nothing of theirs: lest ye perysh in all their synnes. And so they gate them from the dwellyng of Corah, Dathan and Abirā on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the dore of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their lytle chyldzen.

And Moses sayd: Herby ye shall knowe ỹ the Lorde hath sent me to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of mine awne minde. If these men dye ỹ comen deth of all men: or yf they be vysyted after the visitacyon of all men, then the Lorde hath not sent me. But and yf the Lorde make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth and swalowe them vp wt all that they haue: and they go downe quycke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue prouoked the Lorde.

And it fortuned ỹ assone as he had made an ende of speakyng all these wordes, * the grounde cloue asonder that was vnder thē: & the erth opened her mouth, and swalowed them vp, and their houses, and all the men that were with Corah and all their goodes. And they and all that they had, wēt downe alyue vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them: and they perysched from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel ỹ were aboute them fledd at the crye of thē. And they sayd: lest the earthe swalowe vs vp also. And there came oute a fyer from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fyftye men that offred cens.

* Deute.xi.a Num.xxvi.b Psal.cvi.c

And ỹ Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste, that he take vp the censers oute of the burnynge, and skatter the fyer here and there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in theyr deathes: and let them make of them thinne beaten plates for a couering of the aultare. For they offerred them before the Lord, and therfore they are halowed, and they shalbe a sygne vnto the chyldzen of Israel.

And Eleazar the preast toke the brasen censers which they that were burnt had offered, and beate them thinne for a couering of the aultare, to be a remembraunce vnto

the chyldren of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lord, that it happen not vnto hym lyke as vnto Cozah and hys companye, as the Lorde sayde of him by the hande of Moses.

But on the morowe all the multitude of the children of Israel murmured agaynste Moses and Aaron, sayinge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lord. And it fortuned that when the multitude was gathred agaynst Moses and Aaron, they loked towarde the tabernacle of witnes. And behold, * (when they were entred into it) the cloude couered it, and the glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aarō came before the tabernacle of witnes. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, G saying: Get you from amonge thys congregacion, that I maye consume them quickly. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aarō: take a censer, and put fier therin out of the aulter, and powre on cens, and go quyckly vnto the cōgregacion, ỹ thou mayest obteyne forgeuenes for them. For there is wrath gone oute from the Lorde, and there is a plage begōne. And Aaron toke as Moses cōmaūded him, and ran into the middes of the cōgregacion: and behold, the plage was begonne among the people, and he put on cens, and made an atonement for the people. And when he stod betwene the deed and them that were alyue, the plage ceased. They that dyed in ỹ plage, were. xiiij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the busynes of Cozah. And Aaron went againe vnto Moses before the dore of the tabernacle of witnes, and the plage ceased.

A ND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel: and take of euery prynce of them a rodd, after the houses of their fathers, euen twelue roddes: and write euery mans name vpō his rodd. And wryte Aarōs name vpō the rodd of Leui: for euery rodd is for a house of their fathers. And put them in the tabernacle of witnes, cuē in the B place where I mete you. And the mans rod whom I chose, shall blossome. And I wyll make cease from me the grudgynges of the chyldren of Israel, whereby they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and all the prynces gaue hym euery prince ouer their fathers houses, a rod, euen ¶ twelue roddes: and the rodd of Aaron was among the roddes. And Moses put the roddes before the Lorde in the tabernacle of witnes. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle of witnes: and behold, * the rodd of Aaron for the house of Leui was budded, and bare blossomes and almōdes. And Moses brought out all the roddes from before the Lorde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and they loked vpon them, and toke euery man his rodd. * Heb. 15.a

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: bring D Aarons rod agayne before the witnes to be kepte for a token of the childrens rebellyon, and that their murmuring maye cease from me, and that they dye not. And Moses dyd as the Lorde cōmaūded him, euen so dyd he. And the children of Israel spake vnto Moses, saying: behold, we are wasted awaye & consumed: we all come to naught: whosoeuer commeth nye the dwellyng of the Lord, dyeth. ¶Of bowes when they shalbe kept, and when not.

AND Moses spake vnto the heades of the tribes of the childzen A of Israel, saying: this is ỹ thig which the Lozde hath cõmaunded. *If a man bowe a bowe *Deu.xxiij.b
vnto the Lozd, oz swere an oth to bynde his soule: he shall not go back with his wozde: but shall fulfyll all that is pzoceded out of his mouth.

If a woman also bowe a bowe vnto the Lozde, and bynde her selfe beynge in her fathers house in the tyme of her youth, and her father heare her bowe and bonde which she hath made vpõ her soule, and holde his peace therto: then all her bowes & bõdes which B
she hath made vpon her soule shall stande in effect. But and yf her father fozbyd her the same daie ỹ he heareth it, none of her bowes noz bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shalbe of value: and ỹ Lozde shall fozgeue her, because her father fozbade her.

If she had an husbande when she bowed oz pronoũced ought out of her lippes, wherwith she bonde her soule, and her husbande heard it and helde his peace there at the same daye he heard it, then her bowes and her bondes wherwith she bounde her soule, shall stande in effecte. And yf her husbande fozbade her the same daye that he heard it: and made her bowe which she hath vpon her of none effecte, and released the openyng of her lyppes, wherwith she bounde her soule, the Lozde shall fozgeue her.

But euery bowe of a wedowe and of her C that is deuozed (ꝑ they haue bouȝde & their & soule withall) shall stande in effect vꝑ them:

If she vowed in her husbandes house,
oꝛ bounde her soule with an oth, and her hus
bande heard it, and held his peace, and koꝛ-bad her not, then all her vowes and bondes
wherwith she bounde her soule, shall stande.
But ꝑ her husbande disannulled them the same daye that he heard them, then nothing ꝑ proceadeth out of her lippes in vowes and bondes (wherwith she bouȝde her soule) shall stande in effecte: koꝛ her husbande hath lowesed them. And the Lozde shall koꝛgeue her.
All vowes and othes that binde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablysh oꝛ breake. But ꝑ her husbande holde his peace from one daye vnto another, then he stablysheth all her vowes and bȳdes which she had vpon her, because he held his peace the same daye that he heard them: But ꝑ he & breake thē, & after that he hath heard thē, he shall beare her synne him selfe.
These are the oꝛdynaunces whiche the Lozde commaunded Moses, betwene a mā and hys wyfe: and betwene the father and his daughter, beynge yet a damsell in her fathers house.

& out to battayll: & one soule of fyue hundzed, both of the wemen and of the oxen, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of theyꝛ halfe, and geue it vnto Eleazar the preast, as an heueoffering of ꝑ Lozd.
E And of the halfe of the chyldzen of Israel, ꝑ shalt take one poꝛcion of fyfty, of the wemē, of the oxen, of the asses and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, which wayte vpon the habitacyon of the Lozde.
And Moses and Eleazar the preaste dyd as the Lozde commaunded Moses. And the botye and the praye which the men of warre had caught, was syxe hundzed thousande, and.lxxv. thousande shepe: and.lxxij. thousande oxen. lxj. thousande asses: and. xxxij. thousande soules of wemen, that had lyen by no man.
And the halfe which was the parte of thē that went out to warre, was thꝛe hundzed thousande and seuen and thirtye thousande and.v. hūdzed shepe. And the Lozdes part of the shepe was syxe hundzed and.lxxv. And the oxen were.xxxvi. thousande, of which ꝑ Lozdes parte was.lxxij. And the asses were xxx. thousande and fyue hundzed, of which the Lozdes parte was. lxi. And the soules of wemen were.xvi. thousande, of whyche ꝑ Lozdes parte was.xxxij. soules. And Moses gaue that summe which was the Lozdes heue offeryng, vnto Eleazar the preaste: as the Lozde commaunded Moses. And the M other halfe of the chyldzen of Israel whiche Moses separated from the men of warre, (ꝑ is to wete the halfe ꝑ perteyned & vnto the congregacion) was. iij. hundzed thousande, and.xxxvij. thousande & fyue hundzed shepe: and.xxxvi. thousande oxen: and.xxx. thousand asses, and fyue hundzed: and.xvi. thousande soules of wemen. And Moses toke of his halfe that perteyned vnto the childzen of Israel, one poꝛcyon of fyftye, both of ꝑ wemen and of the catell, and gaue them vnto ꝑ Leuites, which wayted vpon the habitacyō of the Lozde, as the Lozde cōmaunded Moses. And the offycers of thousandes of the hoofte, the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundzedes came
G koꝛth, and sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruaūtes haue takē the summe of ꝑ men of warre, which are vnder oure auctoꝛyte, and there lacketh not one man of vs. We haue therfoꝛe bꝛought a pꝛesent vnto the Lozde what euery man foūde of iewels of golde, cheyns, bꝛacellettes, rynges, earynges and spāgels, to make an atonement koꝛ our soules befoꝛe the Lozde.
And Moses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewels of all maner fashions: And all the golde of the heueoffering that they heued vp to the Lozde, (of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundzedes) was. xvi. thousande. vij. hundzed and fyftye sycles, koꝛ the men of warre had spoyled, euery man koꝛ him selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the preſt toke the golde of the captaynes ouer ꝑ thousandes and of the captaynes ouer the hūdzedes, & bꝛought it into the tabernacle of witnes, koꝛ a memoꝛiall of the childzen of Israel befoꝛe the Lozde.

¶ The.xxxij. Chapter.

¶ To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the tꝛybe of Manasses, is pꝛompted the possessyon beyonde Jozdan eastwarde.

THe chyldzen Ruben and the chyldzen of Gad had an exceadynge greate multitude of catell. And A
when they sawe the lande of Jazer and the lande of Gilead that it was apte place koꝛ catell, the chyldzen of Ruben and the chyldzen of Gad came & spake vnto Moses and Eleazar the preast and vnto the lozdes of the congregacyō, saying: The lande of Ataroth and Dibō, Jazer and Nemrah, Hesbon and Elealeh, Sabam and Nebo and Beon: which contreye the Lozde smote befoꝛe the congregacyon of Israel: is a lande mete koꝛ a catell, and we thy seruaūtes haue catell: wherfoꝛe (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, let this land be geuen vnto thy seruaūtes to possesse, and bꝛyng vs not ouer Jozdan.
And Moses sayde vnto the childrē of Gad and of Ruben: shall youre bꝛethren goo to warre, and ye shall syt here? Wherfoꝛe discoꝛage ye the hert of the chyldzen of Israel, that they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, which the Lozde hath geuen them? * Thus dyd youre fathers, when I sent them frō Cades Barne to se ꝑ lāde. Koꝛ when they wēt vp euen vnto the riuer of Escol, and sawe ꝑ lande: they discoꝛaged the hert of the childrē of Israel, that they shulde not go into the lande, which the Lozde hath geuen them.
* Nu.xiij.d
And the Lozde was wꝛoth the same tyme and sware, saying: * None of the men ꝑ C came out of Egipte from twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande which I sware vnto Abzaham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholy folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite, and Josua the sonne of Nun: koꝛ they haue folowed the Lozde. And the Lozde was angry with Israel, and made them wandze in the wildernes fourty yere, vntyll all the generacyon that had done euell in the syght of the Lozde were consumed.
And beholde, ye are rysen vp in youre fathers stede, as an encrease of synfull men, to augmente the fearce wrath of the Lorde, to Israel warde. For yf ye turne awaye frō after hym, he will yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all thys folke. And they went nere him, and sayde: we will buylde shepefoldes here for oure shepe and for oure catell, and (walled) cityes for our children. But we our selues will goo ready armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyll we haue brought them vnto their place. And our children (and whatsoeuer we maye haue) shall dwell in the fenced cityes, because of the inhabiters of the lande. We wyll not returne vnto oure houses, vntyll the children of Israel haue enhereted, euery man his enheritaunce. Neyther will we enheret with them on yonder syde Jordan forwarde, because oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayde vnto them: yf ye will do this thinge, and goo harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and wyll go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lorde, vntyll he haue cast out his enemies before him: and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without synne before the Lord and before Israel, and this lande shalbe youre possessyon before the Lorde. But and yf ye wyll not do so, beholde, ye haue synned agaynst the Lord: and be sure, youre synne wyll synde you out.

Nowe therfore, buylde cityes for youre chyldren, and foldes for your shepe, and do that ye haue spoken. The children of Gad and the children of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruauntes wyll do as my lorde commaundeth. Our chyldren, our wyues, oure shepe and our catell shall remayne here in the cityes of Gilead. But *thy seruautes wyll goo all harnessed for the warre, and vnto battayll before the Lorde, as my lorde sayth.

And for theyr sakes, Moses commaunded Eleazar the preast, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel: and Moses sayde vnto them: If the children of Gad and the childrē of Ruben wyll go with you ouer Jordā, all prepared to fyght before the Lord, then when the lande is subdued before you, ye shall geue them the lāde of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse, they shall haue their possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaam. And the children of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered, sayinge: As the Lorde hath sayde vnto thy seruauntes, so wyll we do. *We will go harnessed before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan, that the possession of oure enheritaunce maye be on thys syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and to the children of Ruben, and vnto halfe the tribe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kingdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and the kingdome of Og king of Basan, the lāde with the cityes therof in the coastes and cityes of the countrey rounde about. And the childrē of Gad buylt Dibon & Ataroth, & Aroer, and Atroth, Sophan Jaeser, & Jegabea, Bethnimra, & Betharan, fenced cities, & they buylt foldes for the shepe. And the childrē of Ruben buylt Helbon, Elcale, Kiriathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, & turned their names, & Sibama also: and gaue other names vnto the citys which they builded. And the children of Machir the sonne of Manasse went to Gilead, and toke it, & put out the Amorites that dwelt therin. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelt therin. And *Jahir the sonne of Manasse went and toke the small townes therof, and called them Hauoth Jair. And Nobah went and toke Kenath, and the townes longyng therto, & called it Nobah after his awne name.

¶ The.xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ The iourneys of Israel are nōbred. They are cōmaunded to kyll the Canaanites.

These are the iourneies of the childrē of Israel, which went out of the lande of Egipt with their armyes vnder the hande of Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote their goinge out by their iourneyes, accordyng to the cōmaundemēt of the Lord: euē these are the iourneyes of their goynge out. They *departed from Rahemses the xv. daye of the fyrst moneth, on the morowe after *Passeouer: and the children of Israel went out with an hye hande in the syght of all the Egipcyans. For the Egipcyans buryed all their fyrst borne which the Lorde had smyten amonge them. And vpon theyr goddes also the Lorde dyd execucion. And the childrē of Israel remoued from Rahemses, and pitched in Socoth.

And they departed frō *Socoth, and pitched theyr tentes in Ethan, which is in the edge of the wildernesse. And they remoued frō Ethan, and turned againe vnto *Pihiroth which is before Baal zephō: and pitched before Migdol. And they departed frō the playne of Hiroth: and *went thorowe the myddes of the see in the wildernes, and went. iij. dayes iorney in the wildernes of Ethā, and pitched in Marah. And they remoued from Marah, and came vnto *Elim, where were twelue fountaynes of water, and. lxx. paulmetrees, and they pitched there.

And they remoued from Elim, and laye fast by the red see. And they remoued from the red see, and laye in the *wildernes of Sin. And they toke their iorneye out of the wyldernesse of Sin, and set vp theyr tentes in Daphka. And they departed from Daphka, and laye in Alus. And they remoued from Alus, and laye at *Raphedim, where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Raphedim, and pitched in the *wildernes of Sinai.

And they remoued from the desert of Sinai, and pitched at the *graues of lust. And they departed frō the sepulchres of lust, and laye at *Hazeroth. And they departed frō Hazeroth, and pitched in Rithma. And departed from Rithma, and pitched at Rimon Parez. And they departed from Rimō parez, and pitched in Libna. And they remoued from Libna, and pitched at Rissa. And they iourneied from Rissa, and pitched in Rehelatha. And they went from Rehelatha, and pitched in mount Sapher. And they remoued from moūt Sapher, and laye in Harada. And they remoued from Harada, and pitched in Makeheloth.

And they remoued from Makeheloth, and laye at Tahath. And they departed frō Tahath, and pitched at Tharath. And they remoued from Tharath, & pitched in Mithca. And they went from Mithca, and pitched in Hasmona. And they departed from Hasmona, and laye at Moseroth. And they departed frō Moseroth, and pitched in Bane Jakan. And they remoued from Bane Jakan, and laye at Horgadgad. And they went frō Horgadgad, and pitched in Jathbatha. And they remoued from Jathbatha, and laye at Abrona. And they departed frō Abrona, and laye at Ezeon gaber. And they remoued from Ezeon gaber, and pitched in the *wyldernesse of Sin, whych is Cades.

And they remoued from Cades, and pitched in mounte Hor, whiche is in the edge of the lande of Edom. *And Aaron the preast went vp into mount Hor at the commaundement of the Lorde, and dyed there, euen in the fourtyth yere, after the chyldren of Israel were come out of the lande of Egypte, and in the fyrst daye of yͤ fyfth moneth. And Aaron was an hundred and. xxuj. yere olde when he died in mount Hor. And king Erad the Canaanite, which dwelte in the south of the lande of Canaan, heard of the comming of the chyldren of Israel.

And they departed from *mounte Hor, and pitched in zalmona. And they departed from zalmona, and pitched in Phunun. And they departed from Phunun, and pitched in Oboth. And they departed frō Oboth, and pitched in Jehabarim, and towarde the border of Moab. And they departed frō *Jehabarim, and pitched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and laye in Almō Diblathaim. And they remoued from Almon Diblathaim, and pitched in yͤ mountaynes of Abarim before Nabo. And they departed from the mountaynes of Abarim, and pitched in the feldes of Moab, fast by Jordan ouer against Jericho. And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth Haiesmoth * vnto the playne of Sittim in the feldes of Moab.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the feldes of Moab by Jordan ouer against Jericho, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto them: *when ye are come ouer Jordan to entre into the lande of Canaan, ye shall dryue out all the inhabiters of the lande before you, and destroye all *their pictures, and breake asunder all their ymages of metall, and plucke downe all theyr aulters. And possesse the lande & dwell therin, for I haue geuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall deuyde the enheritaunce of the land by lot amōge your kynredes, *and geue to the mo the more enheritaūce, and to the fewer the lesse enheritaunce. And youre enheritaunce shalbe in the trybes of your fathers, euery mans enheritaunce in the place where his lot falleth.

*But and yf ye wyll not dryue oute the inhabiters of the lande before you, thā those which ye let remayne of thē, shalbe pricks in youre eyes, and darts in your sydes, and shall vexe you in the lande wherin ye dwell. Moreouer, it will come to passe, that I shall do vnto you, as I thought to do vnto them.

¶ The.xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ The coastes and borders of the lande of promesse. Certayne men are assygned to deuyde the lande.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: cōmaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye come into yͤ lāde of Canaan, thys is the lande yͤ shall fall vnto your enheritaūce, the lande of Canaā with her coastes. And *your southquarter shalbe frō yͤ wildernes Sin alonge by the coaste of Edom, so that youre southquarter reache vpon the syde of the salt see eastwarde: & fet a compasse from the south vp to Acrabim: and reache to zinna. And go out from the south to Cades Barne, & go out also to Hazar Adar, and go alonge to Azmon: and fet a compasse agayn from Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egipte, and shall go out at the see.

And let youre westquarter be the greate see: let the same see be your westcoaste. And thys shalbe youre northquarter: ye shall cōpasse youre border from the greate see vnto mount Hor. And from mount Hor, ye shall describe youre border, tyll it come vnto Hemath, and the ende of the coaste shalbe at zedada, and the coaste shall reache out to ziphron, and go oute at Hazar Enan. Thys

THese be ỹ wordes which Moses spake vnto all Israel, on the other syde Jordan in the wildernesse, in ỹ plaine ouer agaynst ỹ redd see, betwene Pharan and Tophel, Labã, Haseroth and Disahab, eleuẽ dayes iourney frõ Horeb vnto Cades barne, by mount Seir. And it fortuned the fyrst daye of ỹ eleuenth moneth in ỹ fortieth yere, that Moses spake vnto the chyldrẽ of Israel accordinge vnto all that the Lorde had geuẽ him in cõmaundemẽt vnto thẽ, after that he had smyttẽ * Sehon the kynge of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon, and Og kyng of Basã which dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai. * Num.xxi.c

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, began Moses to declare thys lawe sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in Horeb saying: Ye haue dwelt lõge ynough in this mount. departe therfore & take youre iourney, and go vnto the hyll of the Amorites and vnto all places nye there vnto: both vnto the playne, and hylles and dales: to the south, to the sees syde, to the lande of Canaã, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the land before you: goo in and * possesse the lande whych the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers Abrahã, Isaac and Jacob, to geue vnto thẽ and theyr seede after them. * Gene.xv.d. and. xvii.b.

And I spake vnto you the same season sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde youre God had multiplyed you: and beholde, ye are thys daye as the starres of heauen in nombre (the Lorde God of youre fathers make you a thousande tymes so many moo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath promysed you) howe can * I my selfe alone, beare the combraunce, charge and stryfe that is amonge you? bynge (from amonge you) men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge, and experte, accordynge to youre * Exo.xviii.c trybes, and I wyll make them ruelars ouer you. And ye answered me and sayde: that whyche thou hast spoken is good for vs to do. And out of youre trybes I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome and that were experte) and made them ruelars ouer you: captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hũdredes ouer fyftye and ouer ten, and officers amõge youre trybes.

And I charged youre Judges that same tyme saying: heare the cause of your brethrẽ and * iudge ryghteously betwene euery mã and hys brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se that ye knowe no faces in Judgemẽt: * but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayed of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to * harde for you, brynge vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same season, all the thynges whyche ye shulde do. And when we departed frõ Horeb, we went thorowe all that greate and terrible wildernesse, as ye haue sene alonge by the waye of the hyll of the Amorites, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hyll of the Amorites, which ỹ Lord oure God wyll geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the: goo vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the * feare not, nether be discouraged. But ye came vnto me euery one and sayde * we wyll sende mẽ before vs, to searche vs oute the lande, and to brynge vs worde agayne, what waye we must go vp by, & vnto what cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue mẽ of you, of euery tribe one. Whych departed, and went vp into the hye cõtrey, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it out, & toke of the frute of the lande (to declare the plenteousnesse therof) in theyr hãdes & brought it vnto vs, and brought vs worde agayne, & sayde: it is a good lande, whych the Lorde oure God doth geue vs. * Deute.ix.a * Num.xiii.a

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consente to goo vp, but were disobedient vnto the mouth of the Lorde youre God, and murmured in youre tentes, & sayde: because the Lorde hateth vs, therfore hath he brought vs out of the lande of Egypte, to delyuer vs in to the hãde of the Amorites, and to destroye vs. Howe shal we goo vp? Oure brethrẽ haue discouraged oure herte, sayinge: * the people is greater & taller then we, and haue cyties greate and walled euen vp to heauen, & moreouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there. * Nu.xiii.d

And I sayde vnto you: dreade not, nor be afrayed of thẽ. The Lorde youre God which goeth before you, he shall fyghte for you, accordynge to all ỹ he dyd vnto you in Egypte before before youre eyes. In the wyldernesse also thou hast sene howe that the Lorde thy God bare the, euen as a man doth beare hys sonne, in all the waye whyche ye haue gone by, vntyll ye came vnto thys place. And yet in this thyng ye dyd not beleue the Lorde youre God. Ye went in the waye before you, to serche you out a place to pytche youre tentes in, * in fyre by nyght, ỹ ye myghte se what waye to go, and in a cloude by daye. Exo.xiii.d.

And the Lorde hearde the voyce of youre wordes, and was wroth, & sware, sayinge: * there shall not one of these men and of this froward generacyon se ỹ good lande which I sware to geue vnto youre fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shall se it * and to hym wyll I geue ỹ lãde that he hath trodden vpon, and to his chyldrẽ, because he hath folowed the Lord (wonderfull was that indignacyon agayn the people, sayinge that) * the Lorde was angrye wyth me lykewyse for youre sakes, saying: ỹ also shalt not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun which standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Bolden hym therfore, for he shal cause Israel to inheret ỹ lande. * Moreouer youre chyldrẽ, which ye sayde shulde be a praye, and youre sonnes which in that daye had no knowlege betwene good and euell, they shall goo in thither, and vnto them will I geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne youre face, and take youre iourneye into the wildernesse: euen by the waye of the reade see. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: * We haue synned agaynst the Lorde: we wyll go vp and fyghte, accordynge to all that the Lord oure God cõmaũded vs. And when ye had gyrde on euery mã his wepõs of warre, beholde, ye were ready to goo vp into the hyll. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto thẽ, that they go not vp, and that they fyghte not, for I am not amõg you: lest ye fall before youre enemyes I tolde you therfore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, & went presumptuously vp into the hyll. Num.xiv.a Deut.i.c Num.xiv.a Deut.i.d Num.xiv.a Deut.i.e Num.xiv.a Deut.i.f Num.xiv.a Deut.i.g

And the Amorites whych dwelt in that hyll, came out agaynst you, and chased you (as bees vse to do) & smote you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayne, & wepte before the Lorde: but the Lorde wolde not heare youre voyce, nor geue you audience. Num.xiv.a Deut.i.h

* And so ye abode in Cades a longe season, accordyng vnto the tyme that ye remayned in other places.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ That whych was done from the tyme they departed from Cades barne, vnto the batell agaynst the kynges Sehon and Og.

AThen we * tourned oure face, & toke oure iourney into ỹ wyldernesse euen by the waye of the read see as the Lorde spake vnto me. And we Num.xxi.a

compassed mount Seir a longe tyme. And the Lord spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue cõpassed thys mountayne longe ynough, tourne you northward. And warne thou the people sayinge: Ye shall go thorowe the coast of youre brethren the chyldren of Esau whyche dwell in Seir, & they shalbe afrayed of you: Take ye good hede vnto your selues therfore. Ye shall not prouoke them, for I wyll not geue you of their lande, no not so moche as a fote bredth * because I haue geuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse ye shall bye meat of thẽ for money to eate, and ye shall procure water of them for money to drynke. For the Lord thy God hath blessed the in all the workes of thy hande. He knewe thy entrynge in to this greate wildernesse this .xl. yeres, and the Lorde thy God hath bene with ỹ, so that thou hast lacked nothynge. * Ge.xxvi.b Mach.i.3

And when we were departed from oure brethren the chyldren of Esau whych dwelt in Seir, the playne waye from Elath & from Ezion Gaber, we turned & went by ỹ waye of the wyldernesse of Moab. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: * Thou shalt not fyght agaynst the Moabites, nether prouoke thẽ to battell, for I wyll not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geuẽ Ar vnto the children of Loth to possesse. The terrible people the * Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people great, many & tall, as the Enakims: whych also were taken for giauntes as the Enakims: whõ the Moabites call Emims. The Horims dwelt in Seir before tyme, whose possessyon the chyldren of Esau occupyed, and destroyed thẽ before them, & dwelt in their stead: as Israel dyd vnto the lãde of his possessiõ, which ỹ Lorde gaue thẽ. Nowe ryse vp (sayd I) & get you ouer the ryuer zared: & we wẽt ouer the ryuer zared. The space in whych we came from Cades barne vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer zared, was .xxxviii. yeres: vntyll all the generacyon of ỹ men of warre were wasted out frõ amonge the host, as the Lorde sware vnto thẽ. * For in dede the hande of the Lorde was agaynst them, to destroye them from amõge the host, tyll they were consumed. * Judf.ix.d. * Ge.xiiii.a. * Nu.xiii.c. and.xxvi.g.

And so it came to passe, that all the mẽ of warre were consumed and deed from amonge the people. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thorow Ar the coast of Moab thys daye: and whan thou cõmest nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, thou shalt not laye sege vnto them, ner moue warre agaynst thẽ. For I wyll not geue the of ỹ lãde of the chyldren of Ammon a possessyon, but I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also is take for a land of giaũtes, and giauntes dwelt therin in olde tyme, whom the Ammonites call zãzummims. * A people that was great, many, & talle, as the Enakims. * Num.xxi.f

Enakims. But the Lord destroyed them before them, & they succeaded the in the inheritaunce & dwelt in theyr steade: as he dyd for the childzen of * Esau, which dwell in Seir: whan he destroyed the Hozyms before them they conquered theyr possessyon, and dwelt in theyr steade vnto this daye. And ỹ Auims which dwelt in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthozyms which came out of Caphthor destroyed them, and dwelt in theyr steade.

* Ge.xxxvi.b

E Ryse ye vp therfore, and take youre iourney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen into thy hande Sehon the Amozite kyng of Hesbon, and his lande. Go to therfore and conquere, and prouoke hym to battell. This daye wyll I begynne to sende the feare and dzeade of the, vpon all naciõs that are vnder all the heauen: so that they whych heare speake of the, shall tremble and quake before the.

* Num.xxi.f. Deute.xx.c

And so I sent messengers out of the wyldernesse of Kedemoth vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon, with wozdes of peace, sayinge: * I wyll go thozowe thy lande. I wyll go alõge by the hye waye: I wyll nether turne vnto ỹ ryghte hande noz to the lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money for to eate, and geue me dzinke for money for to dzinke. Onely graũt me, that I maye go thozowe on my fote (as the childzen of Esau which dwell in Seir, & the Moabites whych dwell in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntyll I be come ouer Jordan, into ỹ lande which the Lozde oure God geueth vs.

F

But Sehon the kynge of Hesbon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lozd thy God hardened his spzete, & made his herte tough, because he wolde delyuer him into thy hãde, as it is come to passe thys daye.

And the Lozde sayde vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Sehõ and his lande before the: go to and conquere, and possesse his lande. * Then both Sehon & all hys people came out agaynst vs to fyght at Jaza. And the Lozde set him before vs, & we smote him and hys sonnes and all hys people.

* Nu.xxi.e. Deute.xxix.b

And we toke all his cyties ỹ same ceason, and slue the men, wemen and childzen of all the cyties, and let nothynge remayne, saue ỹ catell onely we caught vnto oure selues, and the spoyle of the cyties which we toke, from Aroer which is by the bzinke of the ryuer of Arnõ, & frõ the cytie that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one cytie to stroge for vs. The Lozde oure God delyuered all vnto vs: onely vnto ỹ lande of the childzen of Ammon thou camest not, noz vnto euery place of the ryuer Jabock, noz vnto the cyties in the moũtaynes, noz vnto whatsoeuer the Lozde oure God forbade vs.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

¶ Thynges that chaunced from the victozye of the two kynges Sehon and Og vnto the Institucyon of Josue in Moses steade.

When we turned & wẽt vp the waye to Basan. * And Og the kynge of Basan came out agaynst vs: he and all hys people to battel at Edzai. And the Lozd sayde vnto me: feare him not, for I wyll delyuer hym, & all his people and hys lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto him, as thou dyddest vnto Sehon kynge of the Amozites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And so the Lozde oure God delyuered into oure handes, Og also the kynge of Basan and all hys folke. And we smote him, vntyll none was lefte hym alyue.

A * Num.xxi.f. Deute.xxix.

And we toke all his cyties the same ceason (nether was there a cytie which we toke not from them) euẽ thze scoze cyties thozow out all the regiõ of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All these cyties also were made stronge with hye walles, gates and barres, besyde vnwalled townes a greate meanye. And we vtterly destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon, bzingyng to nought all the cyties, with men, wemen and childzen. But all the catell and the spoyle of the cyties, we caughte for oure selues.

And thus we toke the same ceason, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amozites, the lande that was on the other syde Jozdan, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (whych Hermon the Sidons call Syrion, and the Amozites call it Senyr) all the cyties that laye in the playne, and all Gilead and all Basan vnto Salecha and Edzai, cytyes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For onely Og kynge of Basan remayned of the remnaunt of the gyaunttes, whose bed was a bed of yzon. And is it not yet at Rabah amonge the childzen of Ammon? ix. cubytes doth the length therof conteyne, and foure cubytes the bzeadth of it, after the cubite of a man. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Aroer whych is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, * & the cities therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites. And the rest of Gilead and all Basan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse: euen all the rygyon of Argob with all Basan: which is called the lande of gyaunttes. Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called thẽ after hys owne name: Basan Hauoth Jair vnto thys daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir. And vnto the Rubemtes and Gaddites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey & beyonde, euen vnto the ryuer Jabock, which is the bozder of the childzen of Ammon: the playne also (of the wyldernesse) and Jozdã and the coast therof, frõ Ceneroth euen vnto the see whych is in the playne, euen the salt see vnder the spzinges of the hyll, eastwarde.

* Num.xxi.f. Deute.iii.

Youre wyues onely, youre childzen, and youre catell (for I wote that ye haue moche catell) shall abyde in youre cyties which I haue geuen you, vntill the Lozde haue geuẽ rest vnto youre bzethzen as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande, whyche the Lozd youre God hath geuẽ them beyonde Jozdan: and then shall ye returne agayne, euery man vnto hys possessyon which I haue geuen you.

* And I warned Josua the same tyme sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all ỹ the Lozde youre God hath done vnto these two kinges euẽ so shall he do vnto all kyngdomes whyther thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lozd youre God, he shall fyghte for you.

And I besoughte the Lozde the same tyme sayinge: O Lozde God, thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruaunte thy greatnesse and thy myghtye hande, for els where is there a God in heauẽ oz in erth, that can do after thy wozkes and after thy power? let me go ouer and se the good lande that is beyonde Jozdã, that goodly ☞ mountayne, and Libanon.

But charge Josua: and courage him, & boldẽ him. * For he shal go before this people, and he shall deuyde vnto them the lande whyche thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valye ouer agaynst the house of Peoz.

Understande therfore thys daye, that the Lorde thy God is euen he whych goeth ouer before the as a ✠ (deuourynge and) a consumynge fyre, he shall destroye them and he shall brynge thē downe before thy face. He shall cast them out, & brynge them to nought quickly, as the Lord hath sayed vnto the.

Speake not thou in thyne hert (after that the Lord thy God hath cast them out before the) sayinge: for my ryghteousnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to possesse thys lande. Nay, but for the wyckednesse of these nacyons the Lorde hath cast them out before the. It is not for thy righteousnes sake or for thy ryght hert, that thou goest to possesse theyr lāde. * But for the wyckednesse of these nacions, the Lorde thy God doth cast them out before the, euē to performe the worde, which the Lorde thy God sware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isahac and Jacob.

B Understande therfore that it is not for thy ryghteousnes sake, that the Lorde thy God doth geue the thys good lande to possesse it seynge thou art a stiffenecked people. Remēbre & forget not, howe thou prouokedest the Lorde thy God in the wyldernesse, sence the daye ỹ thou dyddest departe out of the lāde of Egypte vntyll ye came vnto thys place, ye haue rebelled agaynst the Lord. * Also in Horeb ye angred the Lorde, so that the Lord was wroth wyth you, euē to haue destroyed you, whan I was gone vp into the mount, to receaue the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntment, whych the Lorde made with you. And I abode in the hyll .xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes, whan I neither dyd eate bread nor dranke water. * And the Lord delyuered me two tables of stone, wryten with the fynger of God, & in them was accordynge to all the wordes which the Lorde sayed vnto you in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre in the daye, of the gatherynge together.

And whē the .xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the couenaunt, and the Lorde sayde vnto me. * Up, & get the downe quickely frō hence, for thy people which thou hast brought out of Egypte, haue marred all. They are turned attōce out of the waye, whiche I commaūded them, and haue made thē a molten ymage. Furthermore, the Lord spake vnto me sayinge: I haue sene thys people, and beholde, it is a styffenecked people, let me alone, that I maye destroye thē, and put out the name of them frō vnder heauen, and I wyll make of the a myghtie nacyon, & greater than they be.

And I turned me, and came downe from the hyll (euen from the hyll that burnt wyth fyre) and the two tables of the appoyntmēt were in my handes. And I loked, & beholde, ye had synned agaynst the Lorde your God, & had made you a molten calfe, and had turned attōce out of the waye whyche the Lord had commaūded you. * And I toke the two tables and cast them out of my two handes, and brake them before youre eyes. * And I fell downe flat before the Lorde: euen as at the fyrst tyme, and .xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes I dyd nether eate bread nor drincke water, because of all youre synnes, whych ye synned, in doynge wickedly in the syght of the Lord in that ye prouoked hym vnto wrath. The Lorde was very angrye wyth Aarō also, euen to haue destroyed hym: & I made intercessyon for Aaron also the same tyme. And I toke youre synne * the calfe whych ye had made and burnt hym with fyre, & stamped hym & grounde hym a good, euen vnto final dust. And I cast the dust therof into the brooke, that descēded out of the mounte. And I fell downe flat before the Lord .xl. dayes, and .xl. nyghtes whiche I laye there, for the Lorde sayde, that he wolde destroye you. I made intercessyon therfore vnto the Lorde, and sayed: * O Lorde God, destroye not thy people & thyne enheritaunce, whych thou hast delyuered thorow thy greatnesse, and which thou hast brought out of Egypte thorowe a myghtie hand. Remēbre thy seruauntes Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, and loke not vnto the stoburnesse of this people, ner to theyr wickednesse & synne: lest the lāde whence

¶ The maners of the gentyles maye not be followed. What beastes are cleane to be eaten, and what not.

Ye are the childrē of the Lorde your God. * Ye shall not cut youre selues, nor make you any baldnes betwene youre eyes for any deed man. * For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God, and the Lorde hath chosen the, to be a seuerall people vnto hym selfe, aboue all the nacyōs that are vpō the erth.

Thou shalt * eate no maner of abhominaciō. These are the beastes which ye shall eate of oxen, shepe and goates, hert, roo and bugle: wilde goate, vnicorne, wylde oxen & Camelio. And all beastes that cleaue the hoffe, and slytte it into two clawes, and chewe ꝑ cud, them ye shall eate.

Neuertheles, these ye shall not eate of them that chewe cud and of them that deuyde and cleane the hoffe: the camell, the hare and the conye: whych chewe cud, but deuyde not the hoffe: therfore are they vncleane vnto you: and also the swine, though he deuide the hoffe, yet he cheweth not cud, therfore is he vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesh of soche, nor touche the dead carkesse of them.

* These ye shall eate of all that are in the waters: All that haue fynnes & scales shall ye eate: And whatsoeuer hath not fynnes & scales, of that ye maye not eate, but it is vncleane vnto you.

Of all cleane byrdes ye shall eate: but these are they of whych ye shall not eate: the Egle, the gothaulte, and the cormerant, the Ixion, the vultur, the kyte after her kynde, and all kynde of raucns, the Estritch, the nyghtcrowe, the kuckowe, and the sparowe hawk after her kynde, the lytle oule, ꝑ great oule, the backe, the bitture, the pye, the stozke, the heron, the Jay in his kynde, the lapwinge, the swalowe. And let all crepinge foules be vncleane vnto you, and not be eaten of: but of all cleane foules ye maye eate. Ye shall eat of nothynge that dyeth alone: But thou shalt geue it vnto the straunger that is in thy cytie, that he eate it, or thou mayst sell it vnto an Aliant. For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt not * sethe a kyd in hys mothers mylcke.

desyreth, and eate there before the Lorde thy God and be mery: bothe thou and thyne housholde, and the Leuite that is wythin thy gates, shalt thou not forsake, * for he hath nether parte nor enheritaunce wyth the.

* At the ende of thre yeare, thou shalt bynge forth all the tythes of thyne encrease the same yeare, and laye it vp wythin thyne awne gates. And the Leuite whych hath no parte nor enheritaūce with the, shall come, & the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe, which are within thy gates, shall eate & be fylled: that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the, in all the workes of thyne hāde which thou doest.

For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the as he hath promysed the, and * thou shalt lende vnto many nacyons, but thou thy selfe shalt not borowe: And thou shalt raygne ouer many nacions, and they shall not raygne ouer the.

Yf one of thy * brethren amonge you be poore wythin any of thy gates in thy lande which the Lorde thy God geueth the, ꝑ shalt not harden thine hert, nor shut to thyne hāde frō thy poore brother: But open thyne hāde vnto him, & lende hym sufficiēt for his nede, which he hath. Beware, that there be not a wycked poynte in thine hert, that thou woldest saye: The seuēth yeare, the yeare of fredome is at hande, and therfore it greueth the to loke on thy poore brother, and geuest him naught & he then crye vnto the Lord against the, and it be synne vnto the: But geue him, and let it not greue thyne hert to geue vnto him. Because that for thys thynge, the Lord thy God shall blesse the in all thy workes, & in all that ꝑ puttest thyne hāde to. * The lande shall neuer be wout poore: And therfore I commaunde the sayinge: Thou shalt open thyne hande vnto thy brother that is neady and poore in thy lande.

* If thy brother an Hebrue sell hym selfe to the, or an Hebruesse, & serue the sixe yeare, in the seuenth yeare thou shalt let hym go free from the. And when thou sendest him out free from the, thou shalt not let hym go awaye empty: but shalt geue hym of thy shepe, of thy corne, and of thy wyne, and geue hym of that, wher wt the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And remembre, that thou wast a seruante in the lande of Egypte, and the Lorde thy God delyuered the thence: and therfore I commaunde the thys thynge to daye.

And yf he saye vnto the * I wyll not go awaye from the, because he loueth the & thyne house, and is well at ease with the: Then shalt thou take an aule, and nayle his eare to the dooze therwith, & let hym be thy seruaūte for euer: And vnto thy mayde seruaūte thou shalt do lyke wise. And let it not greue thyne eye, whā thou letteste him go out free frō the, for he hath bene worth a double hyred seruaūte to the in hys seruice syre yeres, And the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all that thou doest.

* All the fyrst gēdred that come of thyne oxen, and of thy shepe that are males, thou shalt halowe vnto the Lord thy God. Thou shalt do no worke with the fyrst gendred of thyne oxen, ner shere the fyrst gendred of thy shepe: Thou shalt eate it before the Lord thy God yeare by yeare, in the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, both thou and thyne houshold. If there be any defaute therin, as yf it be lame, or blynde, or haue any other euell fauoredneste, thou shalt not offer it vnto the Lord thy God: But shalt eate it within thyne awne * gates, the vncleane and the cleane indifferently, as the roo & the hert. C The.xviij.Chapter.

C The Leuites had no possessyōs. Idolatrye must be fled. The prophet Christ is promysed. The false prophet must be slayne, & how he may be knowen.

A The Preastes the, Leuites, and all the trybe of Leuy * must haue no parte nor enheritaunce wyth Israel: but shall eate the offringes of the Lorde, and hys enheritaunce: Therfore shall they haue no enheritaunce amonge their brethren: But the Lorde, he is their enheritaūce, as he hath sayde vnto thē. And this is the Preastes dutie of the people, and of them that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the Preaste, the shoulder, and the two chekes, and the mawe the fyrst frutes also of thy corne, wyne and oyle, and the fyrst of ỹ woll of thy shepe shalt thou geue hym: * For the Lorde thy God hath chosen hym out of all thy trybes, to stāde and to minister in the name of the Lorde: he and hys sonnes for euer. If a Leuite come out of any of thy cyties of all Israel, wher he is a soiourner, and come wyth all the lust of hys herte vnto the place whych the Lorde hath chosen: he shall mynistre in the name of the Lorde hys God, as hys other brethrē the Leuites do, which remayne there before the Lorde. And they shall haue lyke porcyons to eate, beside that whych commeth to hym of the patrimonye of hys elders.

* When thou arte come into ỹ lāde whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, se that thou lerne not to do after ỹ abhominacōs of those nacions. Let ther not be founde amonge you any one, that maketh hys sonne or daughter to go thorowe the fyre, or that vseth wytchcraft, or a chaser out of dayes * or that regardeth the flyenge of foules, or a sorcerar, or a charmar, or that counceleth wyth spretes, or a sothsayer, or that aske th *(the trueth) at thē that be deed. Thou shalt be perfecte therfore *(& wythout blemysh) in the syght of the Lorde thy God. For these nacyons whych thou shalt conquere, herken vnto chosers oute of dayes, and vnto sorcerers: But the Lord thy God hath not suffred the so to do.

The Lorde thy God wyll * stye vp vnto the a Prophete amonge you: euen of thy brethren, lyke vnto me * vnto hym ye shall herkē, accordynge to all that thou desyredest of the Lorde thy God in Horeb, in the daye of the gatherynge together, whan thou saydest: * Let me heare the voyce of my Lorde God no moare, nor se thys greate fyre any moare, that I dye not. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: they haue well spoken: I will rayse them vp a prophete from amonge their brethren lyke vnto the, and wyll put my wordes in hys mouthe, and he shall speake vnto them all that I shall commaunde hym. And whosoeuer will not herken vnto the words which he shall speake in my name, I wyll requyre it of hym.

*But the prophete which shall presume to speake a worde in my name, whych I haue not commaunded hym to speake, or that speaketh in the name of straunge goddes, the same prophete shall dye. And yf thou saye in thyne hert: howe shall we knowe the worde whych the Lorde hath not spoken? *(Thys token shalt thou haue.) Euē whē a prophete speaketh in the name of the Lord, & yf ỹ thynge folowe not nor come to passe, that is the thynge whiche ỹ Lord hath not spoken. But the prophete hath spoken it presumptuously: Thou shalt not therfore be afrayed of him.

The.xxiiij. Chapter.

Deuorcement is permytted. He that is newly maryed shall not be compelled to go to warre.

When a man hath take a wyfe and maried her, yf she finde no fauour in his eyes, because he hath spied some vncleānesse in her. * Then let him wryte her a bylle of deuorcement, and put it in her hande, and sende her out of hys house. And when she is departed out of hys house, let her go, and be another mans wyfe. And yf the secōde husbande hate her, let him wryte her also a letter of deuorcemēt, and put it in her hande and sende her out of hys house: or yf the secōde man dye whych toke her to wyfe, her fyrst man whych sent her awaye, maye not take her agayne to be hys wyfe, after ỹ she is defyled. For that is abhominacyon in the syght of the Lorde. And thou shalt not cause the lāde to synne, whych the Lorde thy God shall geue the to enherete. *Jere.iii.a. Malac.ii.b. Mat.xix.a.

* When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shall not go a warrefare, nether shalbe charged wyth any busynesse: but shalbe free at home one yere, & reioyse with hys wyfe whych he hath taken. * No man shall take ỹ nether or the vpper mylstone to pledge, for then he shall hurt a mans lyfe. * If any man be founde stealynge any of his brethren ỹ chyldrē of Israel, and abuseth him, or selleth him, the theefe shall dye. And ỹ shalt put euell away from the. Take heade to thy selfe as concernynge ỹ plage of leprosye, that thou obserue diligently. And ye shall do accordynge to all that the Preastes the Leuytes shall teache you: Euen as I cōmaunded them, so ye shall obserue to do. Remembre what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto * Mir Jam by ỹ waye, after that ye were come out of Egypte: *Deu.xxv.b. *Exo.xxi.b. *Deu.xvi.b. *Leu.xix.c. Tob.iiii.c. Eccl.vii.c. *Deu.vii.c.

When thou doest lende thy brother any thinge, ỹ shalt not go into his house to fetche a pledge frō thence: but shalt stāde without, and the man ỹ borowed it of ỹ, shall bryngе the pledge out vnto the. For thermore, yf it be a pore body, thou shalt not slepe with hys pledge, but delyuer hym the pledge agayne whan ỹ sonne goth doune that he maye slepe in his awne rayment, and blesse the.

And it shalbe ryghteousnes vnto the, before the Lorde thy God * Thou shalt not defraude an hyred seruaunte that is nedye and poore, whether he be of thy brethren, or of the straungers that are in thy lande with in thy gates. *Leu.xix.c. Tob.iiii.c. Eccl.vii.c.

*Leu.xix.c. gates. *But thall geue him his hyer ỹ same daye, and lett not the sonne go downe theron: For he is nedye, and therwith susteyneth his lyfe, lest he crye agaynst the vnto the Lorde, *Ierem.xxvi.c and it be synne vnto the. *The fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, nor the chyldren for the fathers: but euery man shall dye for hys awne synne. Deu.xxiiii.b. Exe.xviii.c.

Thou shalt not hynder the ryght of the straunger nor of the fatherlesse, nor take a wedowes rayment to pledge. But remembre that thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte, and howe the Lorde thy God delyuered the thence: And therfore I commaunde the to do thys thynge.

D *Whē thou cuttest downe thyne heruestе Deu.xix.b. in thy felde, and hast forgotte a shefe in the felde, ỹ shalt not go agayne to fett it. But it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse & the wedowe, that the Lord thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thyne hande. When thou beatest downe thyne olyue tree, ỹ shalt not turne agayne to gather vp ỹ thou lefte- st behynde the: but it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe. When thou gatherest thy vineyarde, thou shalt not ge- ther the grapes cleane after the: but leaue thē for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wi- dowe. And remembre that thou also wast a seruaunte in the lande of Egipte: and ther- fore I commaunde the to do thys thynge.

¶ The promyses of the blessynges vnto them that regarde the commaundementes: and the curses to the contrarye.

A *Leu.xxvi.a IF * thou shalt herken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, and obserue and do all hys commaundementes, whych I cōmaunde the thys daye, The Lorde wyll set the on hye aboue all nacyons of the erth. *Deu.xi.d. * And all these blessinges shall come on the, and ouertake the, yf thou shalt herken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God. Blessed shalt then be in ꝑ towne, and blessed in the feldes: blessed shalbe the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy grouṅde, and the frute of thy cattell, the frute of thyne oxen, & the flockes of thy shepe: blessed shall be thy basket and thy store. Blessed shalt thou be, when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in. *Deut.xxviij.a. * The Lorde shall geue ouer thyne enemyes that ryse agaynst the, that they maye fall before thy face. They shall come out agaynst the one waye, and flee before the seuen wayes. The Lorde shall put the blessynge vpon the in thy store houses, & in all that thou settest thyne hande to, & will blesse the in the lande which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

The Lorde shall make the an holye people vnto hym selfe, as he hath sworen vnto the: yf thou shalt kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, and walke in hys wayes.

And all nacyons of the erth shall se, that the name of the Lorde, is called vpon ouer the, and they shalbe aferde of the. And ꝑ Lorde shall make the plenteous in goodes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy grounde, in the lande whych the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers, to geue the.

The Lorde shall open vnto the his good treasure, euen the heauē * to geue rayne vnto thy lande in due season, and to blesse all ꝑ laboures of thyne hande. * And thou shalt lende vnto many nacyons, but shalt not borowe thy selfe. And the Lord shall set the before and not behynde, & thou shalt be aboue only, and not beneth: yf ꝑ thou herken vnto the cōmaundementes of the Lorde thy God, which I commaunde the thys daye, to kepe and to do them. B *Deu.xiij.a. and xvij.d.

* But and yf thou wylt not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe & to do all hys commaundementes and his ordinañces, which I cōmaunde the this daye: * all these curses shall come vpon the, and ouertake the: Cursed shalt ꝑ be in the towne, and cursed in ꝑ felde: cursed shall thy basket be, & thy store. Cursed shall be the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy lande, and ꝑ frute of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe. Cursed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and cursed when thou goest out. The Lorde shall sende vpon the, cursynge, destruccyon, and rebuke in all that thou settest thyne hāde to, and that thou dost: vntyll he destrope the, and brynge the to nought quyckely, because of the wyckednesse of thyne inuencyons, and because thou hast forsaken me. The Lorde shall make the pestilēce cleaue vnto the, vntyll he haue cōsumed the from of the lande, whether thou goest to enioye it. * The Lorde shall smyte the with swellynge, wyth feuers, heet, burnynge, and wyth the swerde, with wetherynge, and with blastynge. And they shall folowe the vntyll thou perysshe. *Leu.xxvi.a Danie.ix.c. *Leu.xxvi.b

* And the heauen that is ouer thy head shalbe brasse, and the erthe that is vnder the, yron. The Lorde shall turne the rayne of the lande vnto powder and dust: euen frō heauē shall they come doune vpon the, vntyll thou be brought to nought. And the Lorde shall plage the before thyne enemyes: Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst thē, and flee seuen wayes before them, and shall be scatered amōge all the kyngdomes of the erthe. vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lorde dyd before youre eyes in the lande of Egipt,
vnto Pharao and vnto all hys seruauntes,
and vnto all hys lande, the greate temptacions which thyne eyes haue sene, those greate
myracles and wonders: and yet the Lorde hath not geuē you an herte to perceaue, and eyes to se, and eares to heare vnto thys daye.

And I haue led you. xl. yeare in the wyl-

For to make the a people vnto him selfe, and that he maye be vnto the a God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he hath swornе vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isahac and Jacob.

I make not thys bonde & this othe wyth C
you only: but both wyth hym that standeth
here wyth vs this daye before the Lord oure
God, and also wyth hym that is not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe, howe we haue dwelt in the lāde of Egypte, and how we came thorowe the myddes of the naciōs whych ye passed by. And ye haue sene theyr abhominacyons and theyr ydolles: (wodd & stone, syluer and golde) whych were amōge them.

Lest there be amonge you man or woman, kynred or trybe, whose herte turneth awaye this daye from the Lorde oure God, to go and serue the goddes of these nacyons: & lest there be amōge you some roote that beareth gall & wormwod, so that when he hea-wrath of the Lorde and hys gelousye shall smoke agaynst that mā, & all the curses that are wrytē in this boke shall lyght vpō hym,

and the Lorde shall do out hys name frō vn-

The.xxx.Chapter.

The worde of God is at hande.

WHen all these wordes are come vpon the, the blessynge and the curse which I haue set before the,
thou shalt turne vnto thine hert, amonge all the nacyōs whether the Lorde thy God hath thruste the, and come agayne vnto the Lorde thy God, and her ken vnto his voyce in all these thynges that I commaunde the thys daye: thou & thy chyl
dren wythall thyne herte and all thy soule:
And the Lorde thy God wyll turne thy capti
uite, and haue compassyon vpon the, & wyll
turne, and fet the agayne frō all the nacions, amonge whych the Lorde thy God shall haue scatered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heauen: euen from thence wyll the Lorde thy God gether the, & frō thence wyll he fett the, & the Lorde thy God wyll brynge the into the lande whych
thy fathers possessed, & thou shalt enioye it.
And he wyll shewe the kyndnesse, and multiplie the aboue thy fathers. * And the Lorde Deut.x.d. thy God wyll circumcyse thyne hert, and the B hert of thy seed, that ỹ mayest loue the Lord thy God wythall thyne hert, and all thy sou le, ỹ thou mayst lyue. And the Lord thy God wyll put all these curses vpon thyne enemy-es, and on them ỹ hate the, & ỹ persecute the.

But thou shalt turne, and herkē vnto the voyce of the Lorde, and do all hys commaū-demētes, which I commaūde the thys daye.
And the Lord thy God wyll make the plenteous in all the workes of thyne hande, in the frute of thy bodye, and in the frute of thy Jere.xxxij.c catell, and in the frute of thy lande for thy welth. * For the Lorde wyll turne agayne and reioyce ouer the to do the good, as he reioyced ouer thy fathers: If thou herkē onely
vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe
his commaundements and his ordinaūces
whych are wrytten in the boke of this lawe,
and yf thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God
wythall thyne hert and all thy soule.

* For the commaundement which I cō- C maunde the this daye, is not separated from * Roma.x.b.
the, nether farre of. It is not in heauen, that thou neadest to * (complayne or) saye: who shall go vp for vs to heauē, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? Nether is it beyōde
the see: that thou shuldest saye: who shall go ouer the see for vs, and fet it vs, ỹ we maye heare it, and do it? But the worde is very nye vnto the: euē in thy mouth and in thyne
hert, that thou do it.

* Beholde I haue set before the this daye * Deu.xi.d.
lyfe and good, death and euell: For where as I commaunde the thys daye, to loue the Lorde thy God, to walke in hys wayes, and to kepe hys commaundementes, his ordinaunces, and hys lawes (yf thou so do) ỹ shalt lyue and multiplye, and the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in ỹ lande, whether thou goest
to possesse it.

But and yf thyne herte turne awaye, so D
that ỹ wylt not heare: but shalt goo astraye,
and worshyppe straunge goddes, and serue
them, I pronounce vnto you also this daye, that ye shall surely perysh, and that ye shall not prolonge youre dayes vpon the lande whether thou passest ouer Jordan, to go and possesse it.

* I call heauen & erth to recorde this daye * Deu.iiij.d.
agaynst you, that I haue set before you lyfe
and death, blessynge & curssynge: Therfore chose lyfe, that both thou and thy seed maye
lyue, that ỹ mayest loue the Lorde thy God,
and be obedient to hys voyce, & cleaue vnto him. For he is thy lyfe, and the length of thy dayes, that thou mayst dwell vpon the erth
which the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers:
Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, to geue them.

The.xxxj. Chapter.

Moses deputye readye to dye ordereth Josue to rule the people in hys steade. Thys boke Deutero-nomye is wrytten and layde, in the tabernacle besyde the arcke. The Leuites are charged to reade
it to the people.

AND Moses went and spake these A wordes vnto all Israel, and sayd vnto them: I am an hundred and
xx. yeare olde thys daye, and can nomore go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayde vnto me * thou shalt not * Num.xx.b.
goo ouer thys Jordā. The Lorde youre God
he wyll go ouer before the, and he wyll de-stroye these nacyons before the, & thou shalt conquere them. * And Josua he shall go be- * Num.xxvij.a fore the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And the Lorde shall do vnto thē, as he dyd to * Seon * Num.xxi.c

and Og kynges of the Amorites, and vnto the lande of them, whom he destroyed. And the Lorde shall geue them ouer before youre face, that ye maye do vnto them, accordinge
B vnto all the commaundementes which I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp youre hartes therfore, and be stronge, dreade not, nor be afeerde of them: for the Lord thy God himselfe doth go with the. He shall not fayle ỹ, nor forsake the.

And Moses called vnto Josua, and sayde
*Josue.i.b iij.Reg.ij.a. vnto hym in the syghte of all Israel: * Be stronge & bolde, for thou must go with thys people vnto the lande, which the Lorde hath sworne vnto their fathers, to geue them, & thou shalt geue it them to enherete. And the Lorde he doth go before ỹ: he shall not fayle the, neyther forsake the: feare not therfore, nor be discomforted. And Moses wrote this lawe, and delyuered it vnto the preastes the *Num.iii.d. sonnes of Leui (which *bare the arcke of the C testament of the Lorde) and vnto all the elders of Israel, & Moses commaunded them,
*Deu.xvi.a. sayinge: *At the poynt of .vij. yeares in the solempnyte of the fre yeare, euen in the feast of Tabernacles, when all Israel is come to apeare before the Lord thy God, in the place which he hath chosen: thou shalt reade thys lawe before all Israel in their eares. Gether the people together: men, wemen and chyldren, and the straunger that is within thy gates, that they maye heare, and lerne and feare the Lorde your God, and kepe, and obserue all the wordes of thys lawe, and that their chyldrē which knowe nothynge, maye heare, and lerne to feare the Lord your God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande, whether ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Be-D holde thy dayes are come, ỹ thou must dye. Call Josua therfore, and stande ye in the tabernacle of wytnesse, that I maye geue hym a charge. And Moses and Josua went, and stode in the tabernacle of wytnesse: And the Lorde apeared in the tabernacle: euen in the pyller of the cloude. And the * pyller of the
*Deu.xxxiiii.d cloude stode ouer the doze of the tabernacle. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: beholde, thou shalt slepe with thy fathers, and thys people wyll ryse vp, and go a whorynge after straunge goddes of the lande (whether they go) and will forsake me, and breake the appoyntment, which I haue made with them. And thē my wrath wyll waxe whote agaynst them, and I wyll forsake them, and wyll hyde my face from them, & they shalbe
E consumed. And moch aduersyte and tribulacyons shall come vpō them, so that then they wyll saye: Are not these troubles come vpon me, because God is not with me? And I also wyll surely hyde awaye my face in that daye, for all the euels sake which they shall haue wrought, in that they are turned vnto straunge Goddes.

Now therfore write ye thys sōge for you, and teache it the chyldren of Israel, and put it in theyr mouthes, that thys songe maye be my wytnesse agaynst the chyldren of Israel. For I wyll bryng thē into the lande, (which I sware vnto theyr fathers) that floweth w̄ mylke and honye, & they shall eate, and fyll them selues, and waxe fatt, and turne vnto straunge goddes, and serue them, and ↠ blas- ↠ pheme me, and breake my couenaunt. And F
then when moch myschefe and tribulacyon is come vpon thē, thys songe shall answere them, as a wytnesse. For it shall not be forgotten out of the mouthes of theyr seed: for I knowe theyr imaginacyon, whych they goo about euē nowe, before I haue broughte thē into the lāde which I sware. ✠ Moses therfore wrote thys songe the same ceason, and taught it the children of Israel. And he gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayd:
*Iosue.i.b, iiii. Reg.ii.a *be bolde, & stroge, for thou shalt bryng the chyldren of Israel into the lande, ☞ whych I sware vnto them, and I wyll be with the.

And when Moses had made an ende of wrytynge out of the wordes of this lawe in a boke vnto the ende of them, Moses cōmaunded the Leuites, which bare the arke of ỹ testament of the Lorde, sayinge: take ye the boke of thys lawe, * and put it in the syde of *Deu.x.a. the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, ỹ it maye be there for a witnesse agaīst the: For I knowe thy stubburnesse * and thy iiii.reg.xbiii Esayas.iii.b. styffe necke: whyle I am yet a lyue with you this daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto the G Lord: and howe moch more after my death?

Gather vnto me all the elders of youre trybes, & youre offycers, that I maye speake these wordes in theyr eares, and call heauen, and erth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure that after my death, ye wyll vtterly be corrupte, and turne from the waye which I haue cōmaunded you, and tribulacyon wyll come vpon you in the later dayes, because ye shall haue wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde, to prouoke hym thorow the workes of your hādes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes of thys songe, vntyll he had ended them.

*Esa.i.b. speake, and let the erth heare the wordes of my mouth. * My doctrine ☞ shall droppe as doeth the rayne, & my speach shall flowe as dothe the dewe, as the shower vpon the herbes, & as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wyll call on the name of the Lorde: Ascrybe ye honoure vnto oure God.

*Perfecte

*Gene.i.d. Ecclesiast.xlij.d. *Perfecte is the worke of ỹ most myghtye God: for all hys wayes are iudgement. He is a God of trueth, without wickednesse: ryghteous, and iust is he.

↠ ↠ Frowardly haue they done agaynst him thorowe their deformities: not his owne chil dren, but a wycked & frowarde generacyon. Do ye so reward the Lorde, O foolyshe nacyon & vnwyse? * Is not he thy father & thyne owner? *hath he not made the, and ordeyned the? Remembre the dayes of the worlde
*Iob.viij.b. that is past: cōsydre the yeres from tyme to tyme. * Aske thy father, and he wyll shewe the: thy elders, & they wyll tell the. When the most highest, deuyded the nacyōs, and whan he separated the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nacyons, fast by the multitude of the chyldren of Israel.

B For the Lordes parte is hys folke, and Jacob is the porcyon of hys enheritaunce.

☞ He founde him in a deserte lande, in a voyde grounde, & in a rorynge wylderneesse. He led hym aboute, he gaue hym vnderstandynge, and kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an egle ỹ stereth vp her nest and flotereth ouer her yōnge, & stretcheth out hir winges, so doth he take them vp, & beareth thē on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was hys guyde, & there was no straunge God w̄ him.

He caried him vp to an hye lande, that he
*Ps.lxxvi.c. myght eate the encrease of the feldes, * And he fedd him wyth honye out of the rocke, and with oyle out of the most harde stone. Wyth butter of kyne, & mylcke of the shepe, wyth fat of the lambes and of fat rammes and he

But he that shulde haue bene vpryght, whan he waxed fatt, spurned with his hele. Thou art well fedd, ỹ art growen thick: thou art euen laden with fatnesse.

And he forsoke God his maker, & regarded not the God of his saluacyō. They prouoked hym to angre with straunge goddes: euē w̄

And he sayde: I wyll hyde my face from them, & will se what their ende shall be. For they are a very frowarde generaciō, chyldrē in whom is no fayth. They haue angred me wyth that whych is no God, and prouoked

I haue sayde: I will skater them abrode, and make the remembraūce of them to ceasse from amonge men. Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemye, lest their aduersaries shulde vtterly wythdrawe thē selues, and lest they shulde saye: oure hye hande hath done all thys, and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacyō without forecast, nether is there any vnderstādynge in them: O that they were wyse, and vnderstode thys, that they wolde consyder their later ende.

*Deut.vi.b. and.xi.c. *Sett youre herte vnto all ỹ wordes which I ☞ testifye vnto you thys daye: and ye shall commaūde them vnto youre chyldren, that they maye obserue and do all the wordes of thys lawe. And let it not be a vayne worde vnto you: for it is youre lyfe, and thorowe thys worde ye shall prolonge youre dayes in the lande whether ye go ouer Jordan, to conquere it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses ỹ selfe same daye, sayinge: get the vp in to this mo- *untayne Abarim. ✻ (That is to saye a passage) vnto mount Nebo, whych is in the lande of Moab ouer agaynst Jericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan, which I geue vnto the chyldren of Israell to possesse: And dye in the mount whych thou goest vp vnto, and thou *Num.xx.d. shalt be gathered vnto thy people. * As *Num.xx.d. & xxvij.c. Thou shalt therfore se the lāde before the, and shall not goo thyther vnto ỹ lande whych I geue the chyldren of Israel.

¶ The.xxxiij.Chapter.

¶ Moses dyinge blesseth all the trybes of Israel.

A THys is the blessynge wherwyth Moses the man of God blessed the chyldren of Israell before hys death, and sayde: * The Lorde came *Exo.xix.a. from Sinai and shewed hys beames ǂ from Seir vnto them, and apeared from mount ǂExo.xix.a. Pharan, and he came wyth thousandes of ☞ sayntes, and in his ryghte hande a lawe *Sapi.xij.a. of fyre for thē. And he loued the people. * All hys sayntes also are in thy handes. They ☞ were smyttē to go after thy fote, and to re- ceaue of thy wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe to be an enheritaunce of the cōgregacyon of Jacob. And he was in Israel kynge whē the heades of the people, and ỹ trybes of Israel were gathered together.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye: and be fewe in nombre. Thys same also happen to Juda. And he sayde: heare Lorde the voyce of Juda, and bringe hym vnto hys people: hys handes shalbe good ynough for him, yf thou helpe hym agaynst hys enemyes.

B And vnto Leui he sayde: ☞ Thumim & ☞ Vrim shalbe with the, & wyth euery one that is godly in the. Thou dyddest proue him also in the tentacyon & striuedst wyth hym at the waters of stryfe. He that hath sayde vnto his father and to his mother: I haue not sene him, ☞ And he that knewe not his brethrē, ☞ ner knewe his awne chyldren, those are they that haue obserued thy worde, and shall kepe thy couenaunt. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgementes, and Israel thy lawe. They shall put cens before thy nose, and the burnt sacrifyce vpon thyne altare. Blesse Lord his fyrst frutes and accept the worke of his handes: smyte the loynes of thē that ryse agaynst him, and of thē that hate him, that they ryse not agayne.

And of Ben Jamin he sayde. The Lordes derlynge shall dwell in safftye vpon hym & the Lorde shall couer him all the daye longe, and he shall dwell betwene his shoulders.

C And of Joseph he sayde: blessed of ỹ Lord is his lande for the frutes of heauē, thorowe thē dewe and sprynges that lye beneth, and for the swete frutes of the encrease of ỹ sonne, and rype frutes of the mone: for the fyrst frutes of the principall moūtaynes, and for the frutes ỹ the hylles bringe furth for euer, and for the frutes of the erth, and fulnesse therof: and for the good wyll of hym ỹ dwelt in the *bushe, shall the blessynge come vpon *Exo.iij.a. the heade of Joseph, & vpon the toppe of the heade of him ỹ was separated frō amōge his brethren ☞ his first borne oxe hath bewtie, ☞ and his hornes are as the hornes of an vny- corne. And wyth them he shall trouble ỹ na- cyons together, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. These are also ỹ many thousandes of Ephraim, & the thousandes of Manasses.

D And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyse za- bulon in thy goynge out, and thou Isachar in thy tentes. They shall call the people vn- to the hyll, and there they shall offer offeryn- ges of ryghteousnes. For they shall sucke of the abundance of the see, and of treasure hyd in the sande.

And vnto Gad he sayde: blessed be ỹ rowme maker Gad: he dwelleth as a Lyon, that catcheth the arme wyth the heade. He sawe therfore his begynninge, and that there was a porcyon there to hyde the lawgeuer, and he came with the heades of the people, and exe- cuted the ryghteousnes of the Lorde and his iudgementes with Israel.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a lyons whelpe, he shall flowe from Basan.

And vnto Nephthali he sayde, Nephthali hath hath abundaūce of Gods good pleasure, & is fylled with the blessynge of the Lorde, & shall haue his possessiōs towarde the south west.

And to Aser he sayde: Aser shalbe blessed with chyldren: he shalbe acceptable vnto his brethren, & shall dyppe his fote in oyle: Thy dwellynge be pron and brasse, and thyne age be as thy youth.

There is none lyke vnto ỹ God of Israel: which though he sit vpon the heauē as vpon a horse, yet is he thy helper, whose glory is in the celestiall places. The eternall God is thy refuge, & vnder the armes of the Euerla- stynge God shalt thou lyue. He shall cast out the enemye before the, and saye, destroye. Is- rael then shall dwell in saferye, & alone. And the eye of Jacob shalbe vpon a lande of corne and wyne, and hys heauens shall droppe the dewe. Happye art thou o Israel, who is lyke vnto the? O people, ỹ art saued in the Lorde, which is the shylde of thy helpe, and swerde of thy glorye. Thyne enemies haue lost their ☞ strength to the warde, and ỹ shalt ☞ treade vpon the heygth of them.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The Lorde courageth Josua to inuade the lande of promesse, and commaundeth him continually to reade Deuteronomie.

AFter ỹ death of Moses the seruaũt of ỹ Lorde, it happened also that the Lorde spake vnto Josua ỹ sonne of Nun Moses minister saying: Moses my seruaũt is deed. Now therfore vp & goo ouer Jordan: thou & all this people, vnto the lande the which I geue vnto the childzen of Israel. * All the places that ỹ sooles of youre fete shall treade vpon, haue I geuen you, as I sayde vnto Moses: from ỹ wildernes & this Libanon vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates: all the lande of the Hethites, euen vnto the great see towarde ỹ going downe of the sonne, shalbe youre coaste. There shall not a man be able to withstande ỹ all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moses, so will I be with the: and will not fayll the, nor forsake the. * Be strõg therfore and bolde: for vnto this people shalt ỹ deuyde the lãde which I sware vnto their fathers to geue them. Onely be thou strõg & as bolde as thou canst, that thou mayest obserue & do according to all ỹ lawe, which Moses my seruaũt cõmaunded ỹ. * Tourne therfrom nether to the right hãd, nor to the lefte: that thou mayste do wysely i all thou takest in hande: * let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouthe: But ¶ recorde therin daye & nyght ỹ thou mayst obserue, & do according to all that is written therin. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperouse, and then thou shalt do wysely. Haue not I cõmaũded ỹ, that thou shuldest be strõge & hardye, & not feare ner be faynt harted? For I the Lord thy God am with the, whether soeuer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of ỹ people, saynge: Goo thorowe ỹ myddes of the hoste, & cõmaũde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to goo in & enioye ỹ lande which the Lord youre God geueth you, to possesse it.

And vnto ỹ Rubenites, Gadites, & half ỹ tribe of Manasses spake Josua saying: * Remember &c. the worde, which Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde cõmaunded you, saynge: the Lorde youre God hathe geuen you reast, & hathe geuen you this lãd. Youre wyues, youre childzen, and youre catell shall remayne in ỹ lãde which Moses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But ye shall go before youre brethren armyd, all ỹ be men of warre, and helpe them vntill the Lorde haue geuẽ youre brethren reast, as he hathe you, ād vntill they also haue obtayned the lande, which the Lorde youre God geueth them. And then shall ye retourne vnto the lande of youre possession & enioye it, which lãde Moses ỹ Lordes seruaũt gaue you on this syde Jordã towarde ỹ sonne rysynge. And they answered Josua saynge: * All that ỹ hast cõmaunded vs, we will do, and whether soeuer thou sẽdest vs, we wyll go. ¶ Josua sendeth spyes to Jericho, which were hyd of Rahab.

AND Josua the sonne of Nun sent out of Settim two men to spye secretlye, saynge: go & vewe the lãde and also Jericho. And they went, and came into a harlotes house, named Rahab, & lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, and sayd: Beholde, there came men in hyther to nyght, of the childzen of Israel, to spye out the countrey. And the kyng of Jericho sent vnto Rahab saying: bryngе forth the men that are come to the, & which are entred into thyne house: for they be come to searche out all the lande.

And the woman toke ỹ two men * & hid them. And sayde thus: in dede there came men vnto me, but I wist not whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke, the men wẽt out, whether the men went I wot not: folowe ye after them quycklye, & ye shall ouer take them. And or euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon ꝑ rooffe, & sayde vnto the men: I knowe, ꝑ the Lorde hathe geuen you the lãde * for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, & the enhabiters of the land faynt at the presence of you. For we haue heard, how ꝑ Lorde * dried vp ꝑ water of the redd see before you when you came out of Egypte, & what you dyd vnto ꝑ two kynges of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan * Sehon, & Og, whom ye vtterlye destroyed. And as sone as we had heard these thynges (we were sore afraied, &) oure hertes dyd faile. And there remayned no more courage in any man at the presence of you. For the Lorde youre God, he is ꝑ God in heauen aboue, & on the erth benethe.

Now therfore (I pray you) sweare vnto me * by the Lorde, ꝑ as I haue shewed you mercie, ye shall also shewe mercie vnto my fathers house, & geue me a true token. And that ye shall saue alyue, bothe my father, & my mother, my brethren, & my systers, and all that they haue. And that ye shall deliuer our soules from death.

And the men answered her: oure liues for you to dye, yf ye vtter not this oure busines. And when ꝑ Lorde hathe geuen vs the lãd, * we will deale mercifully & truly with the. And then she lett them downe by a corde * thorow a windowe: For her house was by the towne wall. And she dwelt by the towne wall. And she sayd vnto them: gett you into the mountayne, lest the pursuers mete you, & hyde youre selues there thre dayes, vntill the pursuars be returned and then shall ye goo youre awne waye.

And the men sayde vnto her: we will be blameles of this thy othe, which thou hast made vs sweare. Beholde, when we come into ꝑ lãde, ꝑ shalt bynde this purple coarde in the window, which ꝑ latteste vs downe bye. And thou shalt bring thy father, & thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers houshold, euen into thy house. And then whosoeuer doth go out at the dores of thy house, into the streat, his blonde shalbe vpon his awne head, & we wilbe guiltles. And whosoeuer shalbe with the i the house, hys blonde shall be on oure heade, yf any mannes hãde touche him: And yf thou vtter these oure wordes, we wilbe quyte of thy othe, which thou hast made vs sweare. And she sayde: accordige vnto youre wordes, so be it: and she sent them awaye to departe. And she bounde the purple coarde in the window.

And they departed, and came into ꝑ mountayne, and there aboade thre dayes, vntill the pursuars were returned. And the pursuars sought them thorowe out all ꝑ waye but founde them not. And the two men returned, & descẽded from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaunced them. And they sayd vnto Josua: the Lorde truly hathe delyuered into oure handes all ꝑ lãde, and all the inhabiters of the contrey fayntе at the presence of vs.

The.iii.Chapter.

Josue with the people passe ouer Jordan.

And Josua rose erlye: and they remoued from Settim, & came to Jordã, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there, before they went ouer. And after thre dayes it fortuned, that the officers wẽt thorow out the hoste, and cõmaũded the people sayinge: when ye se ꝑ arcke of the testament of the Lorde youre God, & the preastes that are Leuites bearing it: ye shall departe from youre place, & go after it. So yet that there shall be a space betwene you & it, aboute a two thousande cubites by measure. And ye shal not come nye vnto it, that ye maye knowe the waye, by which ye must go: for ye haue not gone this waye in tymes past (& beware, that ye approche not nye vnto the arke) And Josua sayd vnto the people: * Sanctifie youre selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall do wonders amonge you.

And Josua spake vnto the preastes, saying: Take vp the arcke of ꝑ couenaũt: & go before the people. And they toke vp the arcke of the testamẽt, and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this daye will I begynne to magnifie the, in the syght of all Israel, ꝑ they maye knowe how that * as I was with Moses so will I be with the. And thou shalt commaunde the preastes that beare the arcke of the couenaunt saying: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jordan, ye shall stãde still in it.

And Josua sayde vnto ꝑ children of Israel: come hither, & heare the wordes of the Lorde youre God. And Josua sayde, Herbye ye shall knowe that the liuyng God is among you, & that he will wythout fayle cast out before you, ꝑ Cananites, & the Hethites, ꝑ Heuites, ꝑ Pherezites, ꝑ Gergesites, ꝑ Amorites, & ꝑ Jebusites. Beholde, the arcke of ꝑ apointmẽt of ꝑ Lorde of all ꝑ worlde goeth before you into Jordã. Now therfore take from amõge you twelue mẽ out of ꝑ tribes of Israel, out of euery tribe a man. And as sone as ꝑ soles of ꝑ fete of ꝑ preasts (ꝑ beare the arcke of the Lorde the Gouernour of all the world) tread in the waters of Jordan, the waters of Jordan (that are beneth, shall ronne downe, &) shall be deuided: & the waters that come from aboue, shall stande shall stande still vpõ an heape. And it fortuned, that when the people were departed frõ their tẽtes to goo ouer Jordã, the preastes bearyng * ꝑ arcke of the appointment, wẽt before the people. And as sone as they that bare ꝑ arcke came vnto Jordan, & the fete of the preastes that bare ꝑ arcke were dipped in the brym of ꝑ water * (For Jordan vseth to fill all hys bãckes all the tyme of haruest) the waters also that came downe frõ aboue, did ryse vp vpõ an heape (and appeared as great as a mountayne,) and departed farre frõ Adam, ꝑ was beside Zarthan, And the waters that were beneth toward the see of ꝑ wildernes, fell awaye & departed into the salt see, and the people * went ryght ouer agaynst Jericho. And the preastes ꝑ bare the arcke of the appointemẽt of the Lorde, stoode drye within Jordane redy prepared, & all the Israelites went ouer thorow the drye, vntill all the people were gone cleane ouer thorow Jordan,

The.iiii.Chapter.

Josua setteth vp twelue stones in Jordan.

And it fortuned, that whan the people were all gone * ouer Jordan, the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: Take you twelue men out of the people, out of euery trybe a man. And commaunde you them, sayinge: take you hence out of the myddes of Jordan (euen out of the place where the preastes stoode in a redynes) twelue (of the most hardest) stones, which ye shall take awaye with you, and leaue them in ꝑ place, where you shal lodge this night. And Josua called the twelue men, which he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of euery trybe a man, and Josua sayde vnto them: gett you before the arcke of the Lord youre God, euen thorow the myddes of Jordã * and take vp euery man of you a stone vpon his shulder, accordyng vnto the nombre of the trybes of the children of Israel, that this maye be a signe among you. That whẽ youre children aske thier fathers in tyme to come, sayige: what meane these stones with you? Ye maye answere them how that ꝑ waters of Jordan deuyded at the presence of the arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde. For whan it went ouer Jordan, ꝑ waters of Jordan deuided: And these stones are become a memoriall vnto the children of Israel for euer.

And the children of Israel dyd euen so as Josua commaunded, and toke vp * twelue stones out of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, accordynge to ꝑ nõbre of ꝑ tribes of the children of Israel, & caryed them awaye with them vnto the place where they lodged, & layed thẽ doune there. And Josua set vp twelue stones also in the myddes of Jordan, in the place where the fete of the preastes which bare the arcke of the testament, stode.

And there haue they cõtined vnto this daye. For the preastes which bare ꝑ arcke stode in the myddes of Jordan, vntill all was finished that the Lorde cõmaunded Josua to saye vnto the people, accordig to all that Moses charged Josua. And ꝑ people hasted, and wẽt ouer. It fortuned also, that whã all the people were cleane ouer, ꝑ arke of ꝑ Lord went ouer also, & ꝑ preastes before the people. * And the children of Ruben, & the children of Gad, & halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the children of Israel armed, as Moses charged thẽ. Euẽ fourty thousande prepared for warre, wẽt before the Lorde vnto battell, thorow the playne of Jericho. * That daye the Lorde magnified Josua in the sight of all Israel, and they feared him, as they feared Moses all dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lord spake vnto Josua, saying: cõmaũde the preastes that beare the arcke of witnesse, to come vp out of Jordan. Josua therfore cõmaunded ꝑ preastes, saying: Come ye vp out of Jordan, And when the preastes ꝑ bare the arcke of the apoyntmẽt of the Lorde were come vp out of the myddes of Jordan, and as sone as the soales of the preastes fete were set on the drye lãd, ꝑ waters of Jordan retourned agayne vnto their place, & went ouer all their banckes, as they dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordan the tenth daye of the fyrst moneth, and pitched in Gilgal, euen in the east border of the cyte Jericho.

And the twelue stones which they toke out of Jordan, did Josua pitche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the children of Israel, saying: * Yf youre children aske their fathers in tyme to come, & saye: what meane these stones? ye shal shewe youre children, & saye: Israel came ouer this Jordan on drie lãd. For the Lord youre God dryed vp the water of Jordan before you, vntill ye were gone ouer, as ꝑ Lorde youre God dyd ꝑ redsee * which he dryed vp before vs, tyll we were gone ouer: that all the people of the worlde maye knowe ꝑ hãde of ꝑ Lord, how myghtie it is, and that ye might feare the Lord youre God for euer.

The.v.Chapter.

The Cananites are afearde.

And it fortuned ꝑ whẽ all ꝑ kinges of ꝑ Amorites which are beyond Jordan west warde, & all ꝑ kinges of the Cananites which were by the see, heard, how the Lorde had dryed vp the waters of Jordan before the children of Israel, vntill they wer gone ouer * theyr hertes fainted for feare. And ther was no spyrete in them any moare, for the presence of the children of Israel.

That same tyme ꝑ Lorde sayde vnto Josua: * Make the sharpe knyues (of stone) & goo to agayne and circumcise the childzen of Jsrael ꝑ seconde tyme. And Josua made him sharpe knyues (of stone) & circumcised the childzen of Jsrael in the place called ꝑ hille of ꝑ foreskynnes. And this is ꝑ cause why Josua circūcised all the people ꝑ came out of Egypte: Namely such as were males because ꝑ all the men of warre, died in the wilderness by ꝑ waye, after they came out of Egypte. For all the people ꝑ came out were circūcised. But all ꝑ people that were borne in the wildernesse by the waye after they came out of Egypte, were not circūcised. For the childzen of Jsrael walked fourty yeres in the wildernesse, tyll all ꝑ people of the men of warre ꝑ came out of Egipte were consumed, because they harkened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.

Wherfore the Lorde sware, that he wolde not shewe them the land * which the Lord sware vnto theyr fathers, that he wolde geue vs, euen a lande ‡ that floweth wyth milke & honye. And their childzen whō he sett vp in their stead: thē Josua circūcised: for they were vncircumcised, because they circumcised them not by the waye. And when they had circumcised all the people, they abode styll together in the hoste till they were whole. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this daye J haue taken away ꝑ shame of Egipte frō you: wherfore the name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto this daye. And ꝑ childzen of Jsrael abode in Gilgall * and helde the feast of passeouer the fourtene daye of ꝑ moneth at euē in the playne of Jerico. And they did eat of ꝑ corne of ꝑ land on the morowe after passeouer swete cakes & parched corne in ꝑ selfe same daye. For the * Manna ceased on the morowe, after they had begōne to eat of ꝑ corne of the lande, neither had the childzen of Jsrael Manna any moare, but dyd eat of the corne of the lande of Canaan that yere.

And it fortuned that when Josua was nye to Jericho, he lyfte vp his eyes & loked: and behold, there stode a man against him, hauyng a sworde drawen in his hāde. And Josua wēt vnto him, and sayde vnto him: arte thou on oure syde or on oure aduersaries. And he sayde, Naye, but as a captayne of the hoste of the lord am J now come. And Josua fell on his face to the erth, and dyd reuerence, & sayde vnto hym, what sayth my Lorde vnto hys seruaunt? And ꝑ captayne of the Lordes hoste sayde vnto Josua: * do thy shoo of thy fote, for the place wheron thou stādest, is holy. And Josua did so.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

¶ The walles of Jericho fall, and it is destroyed.

AND Jericho was shut vp, & locked A becaus of ꝑ childzē of Jsrael, nether myght anye man go out or in. And the Lord sayd vnto Josua: beholde, J haue geuen into thyne hand Jericho and her kynge and the strong men of warre.

And ye shall cōpasse the cytie, all ye that be men of warre, & go roūde aboute it once and so shall you do syxe dayes. And seuen preastes shall beare before the Arke, seuen trōpettes of rāmes hornes * that be vsed in the Jubile). And the seuenth daye, ye shal compasse the cytie seuen tymes, and the preastes shall blowe with the trompettes. And when they make a longe blaste wyth the rammes horne, & ye heare the sounde of the horne, all the people shal showte wō a great showte. And thē shall the wall ‡ of ꝑ citie fall downe, and the people shall ascende vp, euery man streight before him. And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the preastes, and sayde vnto them: take vp the arcke of the appointement, & lett seuen preastes beare seuen trompettes of rāmes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the people, go and compasse the cytie: and lett him ꝑ is harnessed, go before the arcke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seuen preastes bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, and went forth before the arcke of the Lorde, & B blewe with the trompettes, and the arcke of the couenaūt of the Lorde folowed thē. And all the men of armes went before the Preastes, that blewe with the trōpettes, and the commen people came after the arke: and the preastes that went blewe with trōpettes. And Josua cōmaunded the people sayinge: Ye shall not showte, ner make any noyse wō youre voyce, neither shal any worde procede out of youre mouthe, vntill ꝑ daye J bid you showte, then shall ye showte. And so ꝑ arcke of the Lord compased the cytie, and went aboute it once: and they retourned into the hoste, and lodged there. And Josua rose erly in the morning, and the Preastes toke vp ꝑ arcke of the Lorde, and seuen Preastes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & went before the arcke of the Lorde, and blew with the trompettes. And all the men of armes went before them, but the comen people came after the arcke of the Lorde, which wēt before with the blowing of the trompettes. And the seconde daye they compased the cytie once, & retourned agayne into the hoste, & so they dyd syxe dayes.

And when the seuenth daye came, they rose erlye: euen with the dawninge of ꝑ daye, and compased the cytie after the same maner seuen tymes: only that daye they compased the cytie seuen tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme, whan ꝑ preastes blewe wō the trōpettes, Josua sayd vnto ꝑ people: showt, for ꝑ Lorde hath geuen you ꝑ cytie. And the cytie shalbe dāned ‡ bothe it and all that are therin, vnto the Lorde: onlye Rahab the harlot shall lyue, and all that are with her in the house, because she * hidd the messengers that we sent. And in anywise be ye ware of the excommunicate thinges, lest ye make youre selues excōmunicate, & take of the excōmunicate thinges, and make ꝑ hoste of Jsrael excōmunicate and trouble it. But all ꝑ siluer, golde, vesselles of brasse, & yrō shalbe consecrate vnto the Lorde, & shal come ito his treasurie.

And the people showted, and blewe wyth trompettes. And when the people heard ꝑ soūde of the trōpe, they showted wō a great showt: & the * wall fell downe, so ꝑ the people wēt vp into ꝑ cytie, euery man streyght before him, & toke ꝑ citie. And they vtterly destroyed all ꝑ was in the cytie, bothe man and woman, younge and olde, oxe, shepe & Asse, with the edge of the sworde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two mē that had spyed out ꝑ contreye: * goo into ꝑ harlottes house, and bringe out thense the woman, and all that she hath, * as ye sware to her. And the younge men that were spyes, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother and her brethrē, and all ꝑ she had. And they brought out all her kīred, & put them without the hoste of Jsrael

And they burnt the cytie with fier, and all that was therin. Only the siluer and ꝑ golde, the vessels of brasse and yron, they put vnto ꝑ treasure of the house of ꝑ Lord * And Josua saued Rahab the harlott, & her fathers houtholde, and all that she had, & she dwelt in Jsrael, euen vnto this daye because she hidd the messengers, which Josua sent to spye out Jericho.

And Josua sware at that tyme, sayinge: cursed be the man before the Lorde, that riseth vp, & buildeth this citie Jericho: he shall laye the foundacion * in his ‡ eldest sonne, and in his youngest sonne shal he sett vp the gates of it. And so the Lord was wō Josua, and his fame was noysed throwe out all landes.

And retourned to Josua, and sayde vnto him, lett not all the people go vp, but let as it were a two or three thousande men goo vp, and smyte Hai and make not all the people to labour thether, for they are but fewe.

And so there went vp thether of ꝑ people, aboute a three thousande men, & they fledd before the men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpō a thyrtye and sixe men: for they chased them frō before ꝑ gate euen vnto Sebarim, & smote them in the goyng doune. Wherfore ꝑ hertes of ꝑ people * for B feare melted awaye like water. And Josua rent his clothes, and fell to the erth vpon his face before ꝑ arcke of the Lorde vntill the euen tyde, he and the elders of Jsrael, & put erth vpon their heddes.

And Josua sayde * Alas, O Lorde God, wherfore hast ꝑ brought thys people ouer Jordan, to diliuer vs into the hande of the Amorites, and to destroie vs: wold to God we had ‡ bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall J saye, when Jsrael turneth their backes before their enemyes: Surely the Cananites, and all ꝑ enhabiters of ꝑ lande shall heare of it, & shall conspire agaynst vs, & destroye the name of vs out of the worlde. And what wilt thou do vnto thy myghtie name?

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, gett ꝑ vp, wherfore lyest thou thus vpō thy face? Jsrael hath synned, & they haue transgressed myne appointement, which J cōmaunded them: for they haue taken of the excōmunicate thinges, and hauē stolen, and dissembled, & put them vnto their awne stuffe And therfore is it that ꝑ childzen of Jsrael cannot stande before their ennemyes, but shall turne their backes before their ennemyes because they be excommunicate. Nether will J be wō you any moare, excepte ye rote out ꝑ excōmunicate frō amonge you.

* Up therfore, & sanctifie ‡ the people, and saye: sanctifie youre selues against to C morowe: for so sayd ꝑ Lord God of Jsrael There is a damned thinge amōge you (O Jsrael) & therfore ye cannot stande against youre ennemyes, vntill ye haue put ꝑ damned thinge from amonge you. To morowe morning therfore ye shall be brought accordīg to youre tribes. And ꝑ tribe which the Lord taketh, shal come accordīg to ꝑ kynreds therof. And ꝑ kynred which the Lord shall fide gyltie, shall come by houtholders And ꝑ houtholde which ꝑ Lord shall finde fautye, shall come man by man. And he ꝑ is foūde in ꝑ excōmunicacion, shalbe burnt with fire, he and all that he hath, because he hath transgressed the couenaunt of the Lord and wrought folye in Israell.

And so Josua rose vp erly in the morning and brought Israell by their tribes: and ꝑ tribe of Juda was caught. And he brought the kynredes of Juda, and toke the kynred of ꝑ zarehites. And he brought the kynred of the zarehites, man, by man, & zabdi was caught. And he brought his housholde mā by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of zareth in the tribe of Juda was caught.

D And Josua sayde vnto Acan: my sone, I beseche the, geue glorie to ꝑ Lord God of Ea. Israell, & gene hi praise, & shewe me what thou hast done, hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua, & sayde: of a truthe I haue synned agaynst the Lorde God of Israell, & thus & thus haue I done. I sawe among the spoyle a goodlye Babylonishe garment, & two hundred sicles of siluer, & a tonge of golde of fyftie sicles weyghte, and I coueted them, & toke them. And beholde, they lye hydde in the erthe in my tente and the siluer is ther vnder.

And so Josua sent messegers: which whā they ranne vnto his tēt, beholde, they were hid in his tent, and the syluer there vnder. Therfore they toke thē out of the myddest of his tent, and brought them vnto Josua, and vnto all the childrē of Israell, & layed them out before the Lorde.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of zareh, and the siluer, & the garment, and the tōge of golde, and his sonnes & his daughters, his oxen, & his asses, his shepe, & his tent, & all that he had: and all Israell wyth hym brought them vnto the valeye of Acor.

And Josua sayde: In as moche as thou hast troubled vs, the Lord shall trouble ꝑ this daye. And all Israell stoned him with stones, and burned thē with fire, and ouerwhelmed them with stones. And they cast vpō him a great heape of stones vnto this daye. And so the Lorde turned from the wrathe of his indignacion. And the name of the place is called ꝑ valeye of Acor vnto this daye.

¶ The.viii.Chapter.

¶ The seege and wynnyng of Hai. The kyng therof is hāged. Josua setteth vp an altare. He blesseth the people,

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: *feare not, nether be thou faynt harted. Take all ꝑ men of warre wyth the and vp, and gett the to Hai. Beholde, I haue geuen into thy hande, the kyng of Hai, and his people, hys cytie and hys lande. * Deute. bii. c.

And thou shalt do to Hai & her kyng, as thou dydest vnto * Jericho and her kyng, Neuertheles ꝑ spoyle and * catell therof, * Josu. bi. d. * Deute. rr. c shall ye take vnto youre selues: And laye a watch vnto the towne, on the backsyde therof.

And so Josua arose, and all the men of warre, to go vp agaynst Hai. And Josua chose oute thyrtie thousande stroge men of warre, & sent thē awaye by nyght. And he cōmaunded them, sayinge: beholde, ye shall lye awayte vnto ꝑ towne on the backesyde therof. Go not very farre from ꝑ cytie, but be all readye. And I and all ꝑ people ꝑ are with me, will approche vnto the cytie. And 23 when they come out agaynst vs, as they did at the first tyme thē will we flee before thē. For they will come oute after vs & we will bring them out of the cytie. For they will saye: they flee before vs, as at ꝑ first tyme: & we will flee before thē. In the meane tyme shall ye rise vp frō lying awayte, & destroye ꝑ cytie: For ꝑ Lorde youre God will deliuer it into youre hāde. And whan ye haue taken ꝑ cytie, ye shall set it on fire. Accordinge to the commaundement of the Lord shal ye do: beholde, I haue charged you. Josua therfore sent thē forth, & they went to lye awayte, & abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite of Hai. But Josua lodged that nyght amōge the people. And Josua rose vp erlye in the morninge, and nombred the people, & wēt vp, he & the elders of Israel before the people agaynst Hai. And all the men of warre that were with him, wēt vp and drue nye, and came agaynst the cytie, and pitched on the north syde of Hai, & there was a valeye betwene them and Hai. And he toke vpō a fyue thousande men, and put them to lye awayte, betwene Bethel & Hai, on ꝑ west syde of ꝑ cytie. And they put ꝑ people (euē all the poste that were on the northsyde) agaynst the cytie, and the lyers awayte on the west. And Josua walked ꝑ same nyght in the myddes of the valeye.

And it fortuned, ꝑ when the kyng of Hai sawe it they hasted and rose vp earlye, and the men of the cytie went oute agaynst Israell to battell, he & all his people, at a tyme apoynted, euen before the playne, and wist not that there were lyers awayte on the backsyde of the cytie.

And Josua & all Israel fayned them selues to be put to the worsse before thē, & fled towarde the wildernesse. And all ꝑ people of ꝑ towne were called together, to folowe 24 after them. And they folowed after Josua & were drawē a waye from the cytie: And there was not a man left in Hai & in Bethel, ꝑ wēt not out after Israell. And they left the cytie open, & folowed after Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: stretch out ꝑ spere ꝑ is in thine hād, towarde Hai, for I will geue it into thy hād. And Josua stretched stretched out the spere ꝑ he had in his hāde, towarde the citie. And ꝑ lyers awayte rose quickly oute of their place, & ranne allone as Josua had stretched oute his hande, and they entred into the citie and toke it, & hasted, & sett the cite on fire. And when ꝑ men of Hai loked backe after them, they sawe ꝑ smoke of the citie assende vp to heauē. And they had no leysure to flee ether thys waye or ꝑ, & the people ꝑ fledd to ꝑ wyldernesse, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

E And when Josua & all Israel sawe that the lyers awayte had takē the citie, & that the smoke of it alcēded, they turned agayne and layed on the men of Hai. And the other yssued oute of the citie agaynst them. And so were they in ꝑ middes of Israel: for these were on the one syde of them, & the reste on the other syde. *Josua.bi.c * And they layed vpō them, so ꝑ they lett none of thē skape, nor remayne. And the kyng of Hai they toke alyue, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israell had made an ende of slaying all the enhabiters of Hai in the felde of the wyldernesse, where they chased them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto Hai, & smote it in the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, both of men & women, were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Hai.

For Josua plucked not hys hand backe agayne, which he stretched oute vpō ꝑ spere, vntyll he had vtterlye destroyed all ꝑ enhabitatoures of Hai. * Only the catell and ꝑ spoyle of ꝑ citie, Israel toke vnto them selues, according vnto the worde of ꝑ Lorde, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua sett Hai on fyre, and made it an heape for euer, and a wyldernesse, euen vnto thys daye. And ꝑ kyng of Hai he hāged on tree, vntyll euen. And assone as the sonne was downe, Josua commaunded * ꝑ they shulde take the carkas doune of the tree, and caste it at the enterig of the gate of the citie, and * laye theron a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Josua * bylt an altare vnto the Lorde God of Israell, in mount Eball, as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde cōmaunded the childrē of Israell, and as it is written in the * boke of the lawe of Moses: an ‡altare of whole stones, ‡ ouer which no man hath lyft any tole of yron. And they sacrifyced theron burnt sacrifyces vnto the Lorde, and offered peace offrynges. And he wrote there vpō the stones, a rehearsall of the lawe of Moses, and wrote it in the presence of the chyldren of Israell.

G And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officiers & Judges stode, parte on this syde the arcke, & parte on that syde, before the Preastes, ꝑ were Leuites, which bare the arcke of the apoyntemēt of the Lorde: as well the straunger, as they ꝑ were borne amonge thē: halfe on them on ꝑ forefronte of the mounte Garizim, and halfe of them on the forefrōte of mount Eball: as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde had cōmaunded before, that they shulde blesse ꝑ people Israell. Afterward he red all the wordes of the lawe, the blessinges and cursynges, according to all that is wrytte in the boke of the lawe: And there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded, which Josua read not before all the cōgregacyon of Israell: The wemen and chyldre, (and the straūgers that were come) stōdyng amonge them.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The Gibeonites obtayne peace of Josua.

AND it fortuned that whē all the kynges that dwell on thys syde Jordan in the hilles and valeys, and alonge by all the coastes of the great see, ouer agaynst Libanon (Namely the Hethites, ꝑ Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes) herd therof, they gathered them selues together, to fyght agaynst Josua and agaynst Israell with one accorde.

*And the enhabitoures of Gibeon heard * Ii. reg. vii. c what Josua had done vnto Jericho, and to Hai: And they did worke wylylye, & went, and made them selues ambasadoures, and toke * (them vitaples, and) olde sackes vpō their Asses, and wyne bottelles olde, and rēt and worne, and olde clouted shoes vpō their fete, and their raymēt was olde, and all their prouysion of bread was dryed vp, and hored. And they came vnto Josua into the hoste, to Gilgall, and sayde vnto him and vnto all the men of Israell: we be come from a farre contreye, and now make ye agrement with vs. And the men of Israell sayde vnto the Heuite: paraduenture thou dwellest amōge vs, and then howe can I make peace wyth the?

And they sayde vnto Josua: we are thy seruauntes. And Josua sayde vnto them agayne: what are ye? and whence come ye? They answered him: Frō a verye farre contreye thy seruauntes are come, for the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue heard ꝑ fame * (of the power) of him, and all that he did in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two * kynges of the Amorites ꝑ were beyonde Jordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kyng of Basan, which was at Astharoth. Wherfore oure elders and all the enhabytoures of oure cōtrey spake to vs, sayinge: take vitaples wt you to serue by ꝑ waye, & go mete them, and saye vnto them: we are youre seruaūtes. And now make ye a couenant of * Num. xxi. c naunt of peace with vs. Thys oure foode of bread, we toke with vs oute of oure houses

whotte, the daye we departed to come vnto
you. And now behold, it is dyzed vp, and ho
red. And these bottelles of wyne which we filled, were newe: and se, they be rent. And these oure garmentes and shoes are wozne
for oldnesse, by the reason of the exceadyng long Journeye.

C And the men toke of their vitayles, and counceled not with the mouthe of the Lozd.
*Ill.re.fyr.a And Josua made peace wyth them, and * made a conenaũt with thẽ, that they shulde be sufered to lyue: & the Lozdes of the congregacyon sware vnto them. And it fortuned, þ thze dayes after they had made peace wyth thẽ, they hearde that they were their neyboures, & þ they dwelte amonge them.
And the chyldzẽ of Israel toke their Journey, and came vnto their cyties the thyzde daye: and their cyties were Gibeon, & Ca-phira, Beeroth and kariat Jarim. And the chyldzẽ of Israell slewe them not, because þ Lozdes of þ congregacyon had swozne vnto them by the Lozde God of Israell. And all the multitude murmured against þ Loz
des. But all the Lozdes sayde vnto all the congregacyon: we haue swozne vnto thẽ by D þ Lozd God of Israel, & therfoze we maye not hurte thẽ. But this we wyll do to thẽ:
We will lett them lyue, lest wzath be vpon vs, because of the othe which we sware vnto them. And the Lozdes sayd vnto them a *Deut.xxix.b gayne: Let them lyue, * and hewe wodd, ãd dzawe water vnto all the cõgregacion, and they did as the Lozdes sayde vnto them.

And Josua sent foz them, & talked wyth
them, and sayde: wherfoze haue ye begyled vs, sayeng: We dwell farre from you, whã
ye dwell amõge vs: and now are you curs-sed, & there shall not cease to be of you, bond men and hewers of wodd & dzawers of water foz the house of my God.

And they aunswered Josua and sayde: it was tolde thy seruaũtes, how that þ Lozd
thy God had cõmaunded his seruaunt Mo ses to geue you all the lãde, and to destroye
all the enhabytoures therof oute of youre syght, & therfoze we were exceadyng soze a-E* frayed *(& dyd prouyde) foz oure lyues at þ pze sence of you, & haue done this thinge, & be-holde we are i thine hãde, as it semeth good & ryght in thyne eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And euen so dyd he vnto them, and ridde them oute of the hande of the chyldzen of Is rael, and they slewe them not. And Josua made them þ same daye hewers of wodd, & dzawers of water foz the cõgregacyon and foz the aulter of God vnto thys daye, in the place which God shulde chose.

C The.x. Chapter.

C The Amozites are ouer come of Josua. It rayn-eth stones. The sonne standeth still. The .v. kyng-ges are hanged.

AND it fortuned, that whẽ Adonizedec kyng of Jerusalẽ had heard how Josua had taken Hai, & had destroyed it, and how that * as he had done to Jericho and her kyng, euẽ so he had done to Hai and her kyng, and how the Inhabitoures of Gibeon had made peace wyth Israell, and were amonge them, they feared exceedingly, foz Gibeõ was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, & was greater then Hai, and all the mẽ therof were very myghtye.

Wherfoze Adonizedec kyng of Jerusalẽ sent vnto Hoham kyng of Hebzon, and vn
to Pirea kyng of Jarmuth, & vnto Japhia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Debir kyng of Eglon, saying: Come vp vnto me, & healpe
me, þ we may smyte Gibeon: foz they haue
B made peace with Josua and wyth þ chyldzẽ of Israell. Therfoze þ .v. kynges of þ Amorites, the kyng of Jerusalem, þ kyng of He bzon, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of La chis, þ kyng of Eglon geathered thẽ selues
to geather, they withall their hostes, & besie ged Gibeon, and made warre agaynst it.

And the men of Gibeon sent vnto Josua
& to þ hoste to Gilgal, sayinge: withdzawe not thy hande frõ thy seruauntes, come vp to vs, to saue vs, & to helpe vs: foz al the kiges of þ Amozites which dwell i þ mõ-taynes are geathered togeather agaist vs.

And so Josua ascended from Gilgall, he and all the people of warre with him, & all the men of myghte, and the Lozd sayde vnto Josua, feare them not, foz I haue delyue red them into thyne hande. Nether shal any of thẽ stande agaynst þ. Josua therfoze came vnto them sodenlye, and went vp from Gilgall all nyght. And the Lozd troubled them befoze Israell, and slewe them with a great slaughter at Gibeõ, and chased them
a longe the waye that gothe vp to Bethoz-ron, and smote them to Esaka & Makeda.
And it fortuned, þ as they fled frõ Israell, & were in the goyng doune to Bethozõ, the Lozde cast downe great stones from heauẽ vpon them, vntyll Esaka. And there were mo deed with hayle stones, then they were,
whom the chyldzen of Israell slewe wyth
the swerde.

Then spake Josua befoze the Lozde, in the daye when þ Lozde delyuered the Amo rites befoze the chyldzen of Israell, and he sayde in the syght of Israell. * Sõne stãde thou still vpon Gibeon, and thou Mone, in Aialon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode styll, vntyll the people aduẽged them selues vpõ their enemyes. Is not this writ ten in þ boke of þ ryghtwes? & The sonne
(I saye) abode in the myddes of heauẽ and hasted

hasted not to goo doune by þ space of a who le daye. And there was no daye lyke that, befoze it, oz after it, that the Lozde heard þ
voyce of a man. Foz the Lozde fought foz Israell.

D And Josua returned and all Israell with hym, vnto the hoste to Gilgall: but the fyv ue kynges fledde, and were hyd in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Josua of one saying, the fyue kynges are founde hid in a caue which is at Makeda. And Josua sayd rowle great stones vpon the mouthe of the caue, and set men by it, foz to kepe them.
And stande ye not stylle, but folowe after
youre enemyes, ãd smyte all the hindmost,
And soffre them not to entre into theyz cy-ties, foz the Lozde youre God hath delyue-red them into youre hãde. And it fortuned, when Josua and the chyldzẽ of Israell had made an ende of slaying them wyth an excedinge great slaughter tyll they were wasted, the rest that remayned of them, entred
into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the hoste,
to Josua at Makeda in peace, neither dyd
any man moue hys tong agaynst the chyl-dzen of Israel. Then sayde Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and bzyng oute tyese .v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and bzought those fyue kynges vnto hym, oute of the caue, euen the kynge of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebzon, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon.

E And it fortuned, that when they bzought
oute those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called foz all the men of Israell, and sayde vn-
to the chefe of the mẽ of warre, which wẽte
with hym: come nere, & put youre fete vpõ
the neckes of these kynges. And they cam neare: and put their fete vpõ the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto thẽ: Ye shall not feare, ner be kaynt harted. But be strõg and plucke vp youre hertes, foz thus shall the Lozde do to all youre enemyes agaynst whom ye fyght.

And then Josua smote them, and slewe them, & hanged thẽ on fyue trees. And they hãged still vpõ þ trees vntill the euening.
And at þ goyng doune of þ sonne it fortuned *Josu.viii.f that Josua gaue cõmaundement, and they toke thẽ doune of þ * trees, ãd cast thẽ into þ caue, (where in they had bene hyd), & layed great stones on þ caues mouthe, which remayne vnto this daye.

And that same daye Josua toke Make-
*Deu.xx.d. da, and smote it wyth þ edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof also * destroyed he vtterly, wyth all the soules that were the-rin, and let nought remayne. And he dyd *Josu.vi.d. to the kynge of Makeda * as he dyd to the kynge of Jericho.

Then Josua went from Makeda, and all Israell with hym vnto Libna, & fought against Libna. And the Lozde delyuered it and the kynge therof into the hand of Israell, and he smote it wyth the edge of the swerde, ãd all the soules that were therin.
He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto
the kyng therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho.

F And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israell wyth hym, vnto Lachis, ãd beseged it, and assaulted it. And the Lozd delyuered Lachis into the hande of Israell.
which toke it the secõde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, & all the soules that were theri, doing accozdyng to all, as he had done to the cite of Libna.

Then Hozam kynge of Geser came vp to helpe Lachis: And Josua smote hym & his people, vntill naught remayned of hym.

And from Lachis Josua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israell with hym, and they beseged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, ãd smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therin
he vtterlye destroyed the same daye, accozding to all that he had done to Lachis.

And Josua departed vp from Eglon and G all Israel with him, vnto Hebzõ. And they fought agaynst it, and whan they had takẽ
it, they smote it with the edge of þ swerde, and þ kyng therof, and all the townes that pertayned to it, ãd all the soules that were therin, and he lefte nought remayning: but did accozdig to all, as he had done to Eglõ,
and destroyed it vtterlye, ãd all the soules
that were therin.

And Josua returned, and all Israell with him to Dabir, and fought agaynst it. And whan he had taken it, and the kyng therof,
and all the townes that pertayned therto.
they smote them with the edge of þ swerde,
ãd vtterlye destroyed all the soules þ were therin, nether let he ought remayne. Euen as he dyd to Hebzõ, so he dyd to Dabir and þ kyng therof, as he had done also to Libna and her kynge.

Josua therfoze smote all the hill con-
treys, and the southe contreys, and the va-leyes, and the hill sydes, & all their kynges, & lett nought remayne of thẽ, but vtterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lozde God of Israell commaunded. And Josua *Deu.xx.d.
smote them from Cades barne vnto Asah,
and all the contrey of Golan, euẽ vnto Gi-beon. All those kynges and their lande dyd Josua take at one tyme: because the Lozde
God of Israell fought foz Israell. And Jo sua and all Israel returned, vnto the hoste that was in Gilgall.

C The.xi. Chapter.

C The battell of Josua with dyuers kynges.

And

AND it fortuned, that when Jabin kyng of Hazor had herde those thinges: he sent to Jobab kynge of Madō, & to the kyng of Simrō, and to the kynge of Achsaph, and vnto the kynges that are by northe in ỳ moūtaynes, & playnes toward the southeside of Cineroth, ād in the lowe countreys, & in ỳ borders of Dor westward and vnto the Cananytes bothe by Easte & weste, & vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, and Jebusites in the moūtaynes: & vnto the Heuites that were vnder Hermō in the lande of Mizpa: And they came out ād all their hostes with them, a multytude of folke, euen as the sande that is on the see shore in a greate nōbre with horsses & charettes exceding manye. And all these kynges mett together, and came, and pytched together at the waters of Merom, for to fight agaynst Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: be not afrayde at the presence of them: for tomorowe aboute this tyme will I delyuer them all slayne before Israell: thou shalt hough their horsses, & burne their charettes with fire. And so Josua came and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them by the waters of Merom, & sodenlye fell vpon them. And the Lorde delyuered them into ỳ hāde of Israell: and they smote them, and chased them vnto great Sidon, & vnto the whott waters, ād vnto ỳ valeye of Mizpa which is Eastwarde: and smote them vntyll they had none remaynyng of them. And Josua dyd vnto them, as the Lorde bad hym: he houghed their horsses, and burnt their charettes with fyer.

And Josua at that tyme turned backe, & toke Hazor, & smote the kyng therof with the swerde. And Hazor before tyme was ỳ head of all those kigdomes. And they smote all the soules ỳ were therī with the edge of the swerde, vtterlye destroying all: & no thing that breathed, was let remayne. And he burnt Hazor wt fyer. And all ỳ cyties of those kynges, and all the kynges of them, dyd Josua take, and smote them wyth the edge of the swerde, and vtterlye destroyed them *as Moyses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israell burnt none of ỳ cyties ỳ stode stylll in their strēgth, saue Hazor ỏlye that Josua burnt. And all the spoyle of the sayde cyties ād the catell, the childrē of Israel caught vnto them selues. But the men onlye they smote with the edge of ỳ swerde vntill they had destroyed them nether left they ought that had breath. As the Lorde commaunded Moyses hys seruaunt, so dyd Moyses commaūde Josua, and euen so dyd Josua * so that he mynysshed no worde, of all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And so Josua toke all the lande, the hylles and all the southe contreye, and all the lande of Gosan, and the lowe contrey, and ỳ playne, and the mountayne of Israell, & the lowe countrey of the same, euen from the mounte of partyng, ỳ gothe vp to Seir vnto the playne of Gad in the valeye of Libanon, vnder mounte Hermon. And all the kynges of the same he toke, & smote them, and slewe them.

Josua made warre longe tyme wt those kynges: nether was there anye citie ỳ made peace with ỳ childrē of Israell, saue those Hethites that enhabited Gibeon, and therfore all other they toke wyth battell, for it came of the Lorde, wich dyd harden theyr hartes, that they shulde come agaynst Israell in battell: & that they shulde destroye them vtterlye, and shewe them no mercy, but to bryng them to naught, As the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And that same ceason came Josua, and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes: Namely, out of Hebron, Dabir, Anab, and out of all the moūtaynes of Juda, and out of all the mountaynes of Israell. And Josua destroyed them vtterlye with their cities. There was not one Enakite leafte in the lande of the childrē of Israell, only in Asah *Geth, and Asdod, there remayned of them. *1.reg.xvii.

And Josua toke ỳ whole lande, accordyng to all that the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses, and Josua gaue it for a possessyō vnto Israel * accordyng to their partes and trybes: & the lande rested from warre. *xi.c.xxiii.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Josua is commaunded to deuyde the lande to the childrē of Israell.

AND Josua was olde, and strycken in yeares, and the Lorde sayde vnto hym: thou art olde and strychē in yeres, and there remayneth yet exceedynge moche lāde to be possessed: This is the lande that yet remayneth: all ỳ regyōs of the Philistines: & all Gesuri: from Nilus which is on ỳ outwarde parte of Egipt, vnto ỳ borders of Aeckron northward, which lande is counted vnto Cananye, euen fyue Lordshippes of the Philistines, the Asathites, Asdodith, Ascalonites, Gethites, Akaronites, & the Euites. And from the south, all the lande of the Cananites, and ỳ caue, that is besyde the Sidonians, euen vnto Aphek, and to the border of the Amorites. And the land of the Giblites, and all Libanon toward ỳ sonne rysynge, from ỳ playne of Gad vnder mount Hermon, vntyl a mā come to Hemath: all the enhabitoures of ỳ hyll country, frō Libanon vnto the whotte waters, and all the Sidonians, wyll I cast out from before the childrē of Israel: onely se that thou in any wyse deuyde it by lotte vnto the Israelites, to enheret, as I haue cōmaunded the. Now therfore deuide thys land to enheret, vnto the nyne trybes & the halfe trybe of Manasses. For with ỳ other halfe the Rubenites ād the Gaddites haue receaued theyr enheritaunce, * whych Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan eastwarde: euen as Moyses the seruaūt of the Lord gaue them: from Aroer that lyeth on ỳ brym of the ryuer Arnon, ād from the citie ỳ is in the myddes of the ryuer. And all the playn of Medeba vnto Dibon, & all the cyties of Sehō kynge of the Amorites, which raygned in Hesbon, euen vnto the border of the childrē of Ammon: and Gilead, & the border of Gesuri and Machati, and all mount Hermō, with all Basan vnto Salecah: euē all the kyngdom of Og in Basan, whyche raygned in Astharoth ād Edrai, which same remayned yett of the rest of the Giaūntes. These dyd Moyses smyte, & cast thē out *num.xxxii.f Deute.iii.b

Neuertheless the childrē of Israel expelled not the Gesurites & the Machathites: But the Gesurites and the Machathites dwell amonge the Israelites euē vnto this daye, Only vnto the trybe of Leui, he gaue none enheritaunce: * But ỳ offrynge of the Lorde God of Israel is theyr enheritaunce, as he sayde vnto them. *num.xviii.c

Moyses gaue vnto the trybe of the childrē of Ruben enheritaunce accordyng to theyr kynredes. And theyr coast was from Aroer that lyeth on ỳ bancke of the ryuer Arnon, & from the citie that is in ỳ myddes of the ryuer, and all the playne which is by Medeba, Hesbon, wyth all their townes ỳ that lye in the playne: Dibon and the hyll places of Baal, and the house Baalmeon: and Jahazah, and Kedemoth ād Mephaah Kiriathaim, Sabamah and Zarath Zahar in the mounte of the valley, the house of Peor, and the spyrynges of the hylles: and Bethiesimoth: and all the cyties of the playne. And all the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, whych raygned in Hesbon, which Moyses smote * with ỳ lordes of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, and Hur and Reba, the which were dukes of Sehon dwellyng in the cōtrey. And Balaam also the sōne of Beor the sothesayer, dyd ỳ childrē of Israel slaye with the swerde, among other of thē that were slayne. And the border of the childrē of Ruben was Jordan with the contrey ỳ lyeth theron. This was the enheritaunce of the childrē of Ruben *num.xxxi.a after their kynredes, cyties & villages pertaynynge therto.

D And Moses gaue enheritaūce vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto ꝑ chyldzen of Gad ye gaue by theyr kynredes. And theyr costes were Jazer, & all the cyties of Gilead, and halfe the lāde of ꝑ chyldzē of Ammon, vnto Aroer ꝑ lyeth before Rabba. And frō Hesbon vnto Ramoth, Mazphah, & Betonim: and frō Mahanaim vnto ꝑ bozders of Lidbir. And in ꝑ valeye they had Betharā Bethnimra, Socoth, and zaphon, ꝑ rest of the kyngdome of Sehon kyng of Hesbon, vnto Jozdan and the costes that lye therō, euen vnto the edge of the see of Cenereth, on the other syde Jozdā eastward. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldzē of Gad after their kynredes, theyr cyties and villages.

And Moses gaue enheritaūce vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. And this was ꝑ possession of ꝑ halfe trybe of Manasses by theyr kynredes. Theyr coste was frō Mahanaim, euē all Basan, & all ꝑ kyngdom of Og kynge of Basan, and all ꝑ townes of Jair which lye in Basan, euē thze skoze cyties, & halfe Gilead, Astaroth, & Edzai, cyties of ꝑ kyngdome of Og in Basan* whiche pertayne vnto the chyldzē of Machir ꝑ sonne of Manasses, euē ꝑ halfe porcion of the chyldzen of Machir by theyr kynredes.

¶ The lotte of the chyldzen of Juda & the names of the cyties and vyllages of the same.

A THis was the lotte of the trybe of the chyldzē of Juda by theyr kynredes: Namely, towarde the bozder of Edom in the wyldernesse of zin, southwarde, euen from the vtmoost parte of the southe coste. *And theyr south coste was from the bzynke of the salt see, from a rock that leaneth southward. And it wēt out to ꝑ south syde toward the goynge vp to Acrabim, & went a longe to zinna, and ascended vp on the south syde vnto Cades Barne, & went a longe to Hezron, and went vp to Adar, and fette a compase to Karca. From thēce went it a longe to Azmon, and reached vnto the ryuer of Egypt: and the ende of that coste was on the west syde. And this is theyr south coste. *nu.xxxiiii.

B Their east coste is the salt see, euen vnto the edge of Jozdan. And their bozder in the nozthe nozth quarter was frō the rocke of the see and frō the edge of Jozdan. And the same bozder went vp to Bethhagla, and went a long by the nozthsyde of Betharabah, and vp from thēce to the stone of Bohen ꝑ sonne of Ruben. And agayne, the same bozder went vp to Dabir frō the valeye of Acoz, and so nozthwarde, turnyng towarde Gilgall, that lieth before ꝑ goyng vp to Adonim, whych is of the southe syde of the ryuer. And the same bozder wēt vp to ꝑ waters of the fountayne of the Sōne, and ended at the *well of Rogell. And then went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Hennō, euē vnto the southe syde of Jebusi: the same is Jerusalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hille that lyeth before the valeye of Hennon, westwarde, and by the edge of the valeye of the Giauntes nozthwarde: And then it compaseth frō the toppe of the hill vnto the fountayne of the water of Nephthoah, and gothe out at the cities of moūt Ephzon: and dzaweth to Baala, whiche is kiriathiarim, ✻ (That is, a cytie of woddes.) and then it compaseth from Balah westwarde vnto moūt Seir, & then goeth a longe vnto the syde of moūt Jarim, (which is Chesalon) on ꝑ nozth syde. And cometh downe to Bethsames, and gothe to Thamnah, ād gothe out agayne vnto the syde of Akarō nozthwarde: And then dzaweth to Secron and gothe a longe to mounte Balah, and goeth out at Jabnel: & the endes of the coastes leaue at the west see. And the west bozder was the gaeat see, and the same coaste was the coast of the chyldzē of Juda roūde about in theyr kynredes. *ii.Reg.i.b

And vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune dyd Josua geue a parte among the childzē of Juda, accozdynge to the mouthe of the Lozde, euen *kuriatharbe of the father of Enoek, whiche cytye is Hebzō. And Caleb dzoue thence the thze sonnes of Enack, Sesai, and Ahyman, ād Thalmai, which were, the sonnes of Enack. And he wēt vp thēce, to the enhabitoures of Dabir. And the name of Dabir in the olde tyme was kariath sephar. ✻ (That is, a cytye of lettres.) And Caleb sayde: * he that smyteth kariath sepher, & taketh it: to hym wyll I geue Achah my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of kenes, the bzother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue hym Achah hys daughter to wyfe. And as she went in vnto hym, she moued hym, to aske of her father a felde. And she alyghted of her asse. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? Who answered: gyue me a blessyng: foz thou hast geuen me a south ✻ (and dzye) lande: geue me also spzynges of water. And he gaue her spzynges of water, bothe aboue and benethe. ¶ Seuen are ſent to deuyde the lande to the other ſeuen trybes. The Lotte of the childzen of Benjamin.

A AND the whole congregacion of the childzen of Iſrael came together at Silo, and ſet vp the tabernacle of witneſſe there, and the lande was in ſubieccion befoze them. And there remayned amonge the childzen of Iſrael ſeuen tribes, whych had not yet receaued their enheritaunce. And Josua sayd vnto the childzen of Iſrael: how long are ye ſo ſlacke to come, and poſſeſſe the lande which the Lozd God of youre fathers hath geuen you? Gene out from amonge you foz euery trybe thze men, that I maye ſende thē. And that they maye ryſe, and walke thozowe the lande and diſtribute it accozding to the enheritaunce therof, and come agayne to me.

B And let them deuyde it vnto them in to ſeuen partes. And Juda ſhal abyde in their coaſte on ꝑ ſouth, and the houſe of Joſeph ſhall ſtande in their coaſtes on the nozthe. Deſcrybe ye the lande therfoze into ſeuen partes, and bzyng the deſcripcion hether to me, and I ſhall caſt lottes foz you here befoze the Lozd oure God. But * the Le-
* Josu.xviii.b & xxiii.a. * Josu.xiii.b uites haue no parte among you, foz the preaſthode of the lozde is their enheritaunce. * And God, and Ruben, and halfe the tribd of Manaſſes haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Jozdan eaſtwarde, which Moſes the ſeruaunt of the Lozde gaue them.

And the men aroſe, & went their waye. And Josua charged thē that wēt to deſcribe the lande, ſaying: departe, & go thozowe the lande, and deſcribe it, & come agayne to me, ꝑ I maye here caſt lottes foz you befoze ꝑ Lozde in Silo. And the men departed, C & walked thozowe the lande, & deſcribed it by cyties into ſeuen partes, in a booke, and retourned to Josua into the holte at Silo. And Josua caſt lottes foz thē in Silo befoze the Lozde, and there Josua deuyded ꝑ land vnto the childzen of Iſrael, to eche their pozcion. And the lotte of the tribe of the childzen of Benjamin came vp accozdig to their kynredes. And ꝑ coaſte of their lotte came out betwene ꝑ childzen of Juda and the childzē of Joſeph. And their nozth coaſte was from Jozdan, and went vp to the ſyde of Jericho on ꝑ nozthſyde, & went vp thozowe the mountaynes weſtward, & they ended at the wilderneſſe of Bethauē: and went from thence to the ſouthſyde of Lus (ꝑ ſame is Bethel) & deſcēded agayne to Atrothadar, vnto ꝑ hylle that lyeth on the ſouthe ſyde of ꝑ nether Bethhozō. And the coaſte turneth thence, & compaſeth the cozner of ꝑ ſee ſouthwarde, euen from the hill ꝑ lyeth befoze Bethhozon ſouthwarde, & goeth out at kiriathbaal which is kiriath Jarim, a cytie of the childzē of Juda: this is the weſt quarter: & the ſouth coaſte goeth from the edge of kiriathiarim, and D gothe out weſtwarde, and thēce it turneth to the waterwell of Nephthoah, & cōmeth downe agayne to ꝑ edge of the hill, ꝑ lyeth befoze ꝑ valeye of ꝑ ſonne of Hennon, euen in the valeye of the Giauntes nozthwarde and deſcendeth into ꝑ valeye of Hennon beſyde Jebuſy ſouthwarde, and gothe downe to the well of Rogell, and compaſeth frō the nozth, and goeth fozth to the well of ꝑ ſonne, and departeth from thence to ꝑ places of Geliloth, which are toward ꝑ goyng vp vnto Adomim: & goeth downe to ꝑ ſtone of Bohan ꝑ ſonne of Ruben: & then goeth alonge towarde the ſyde of the playne, nozthwarde: and goeth downe into the felde: and goeth alōg to the ſyde of Bethhaglah nozthwarde, & endeth at the pointe of the ſalt ſee nozth therfrō, euen at the ſouth ende of Jozdan. This is the ſouthe coaſte.

And Jozdan kepeth in this coaſt on the eaſt ſyde, and this is the enheritaūce of the childzē of Bēiamin by their coaſtes roūde aboute thozow out their kynredes. Theſe were the cyties of the trybes of the childzē of Beniamin thozow out theire kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, & ꝑ playne of kaziz: Betharabah, zamarim, & Bēthel: Auim, Pharah, and Ophzah: Chepar Ammona, Ophni, & Gabai, twelue cyties with their villages. Sibeō, Ramah, & Beroth: Mazphah, Caphairah, and Mozah: Rekē, Jarephel, and Tharelah, zela, Eleph, and Jebuſi, which is Jeruſalem, Gibeath, and kiriath, fourtene cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the childzen of Beniamin thozowe out their kynredes,

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

The lottes oz partes of zabulon, Iſachar, Aſer, Nephthali, Dan, and Joſua.

A AND the ſeconde lotte came out foz ꝑ trybe of the childzen of Simeon by their kynredes. And their enheritaūce was in the myddes of the enheritaūce of the childzē of Juda. And they had in theyr enheritaūce, Berſabe, Sabe, & Moladah, Hazorſual, Balah, & Azem, Eltholad, Bethul & Hozmah, zikelag, Bethmarcaboth & Hazerſuſah, Bethlebaoth, and Saruhen thirtene cyties with their villages. Ain, Remon, Ether, & Aſan, foure cyties wyth their villages: & therto all ꝑ villages that were rounde about theſe cyties, euen vnto Balaath, Beoz, & Ramath, ſouthwarde. This is ꝑ enheritaunce of ꝑ tribe of ꝑ childzen of Simeon thozow out their kiredes. Out of ꝑ lotte of the childzē of Juda, came A
B the enheritaunce

the enheritaunce of the childzen of Simeō. For the parte of the childzen of Juda was to moche for them: and therfore the childzē of Simeon had their enheritaunce in the enheritaunce of them.

And the thyrde lotte arose for the childzē of zabulō thorow out their kynredes. And the coastes of their enheritaunce came to
B Sarid, & went vp westwarde, and to Marialah, and reached to Dabaseth, and came thence to ỏ ryuer that lyeth before Jokneuen: & turned frō Sarid eastwarde towarde ỏ sōne rysyng vnto ỏ border of Chisloth Thabor: and then goeth out to Dabereth, & goeth vp to Japhia: and from thence goeth a longe eastwarde, to Gethah, Jepher, Ithah, & Jazin, & goeth to Remon, Methoar, & Neah. And compaseth it on ỏ northe syde to Nathan, & endeth in the valeye of Jephthahel. And Jatath, Nahalol, Sēron, Jedalah, and Bethlehē: twelue cyties wyth their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldzen of zabulon thorowe out their kynredes, and these are the cyties with their villages.

And ỏ fourth lott came out for ỏ childzen of Jsacar by theyr kiredes. And their coast was Jesraelah, Casuloth, & Sunem. Haphara im, Sion, and Anaharath: Harabith kision, and Abez: Rameth. Enganim, Enhadah, & Bethphazez. And his coaste reacheth to Thabor, & Sahazimah & Bethsames, and endeth at Jordan, Syrtene cyties with there villages. This is ỏ enheritaunce of the trybe of ỏ childzen of Jsacar by their kynredes, And these are the cyties with their villages.

C And the fifte lotte cam out for the trybe of the childzen of Aser by their kynredes. And their coaste was: Helkath, Hali, Betē & Achsap: Alamelech, Amaad and Misheal: & came to Carmel westwarde, & to Sihor Labanath, and turneth towarde the sonne rysyng to Bethdagon, and commeth to zabulon & to the valeye of Jephthahell, towarde ỏ northsyde of Bethemek & Negel, & goeth out on ỏ lifte syde of Cabul: & to Hebzon, Rohob, Ramon, & kanah, euen vnto great Sidō. And then the coast turneth to Ramah and to the strong cytie of zor, and turneth to Hozah, & endeth at the see, by ỏ possessiō of Achzibah: Amah also & Aphek and Rohob: Twentye and two cities with their villages. This is ỏ enheritaunce of ỏ childzen of Aser by their kynredes: These are the cyties with their villages.

And the Sixte lotte cam out for the childzen of Nephthali by their kynredes. And their coaste was from Heleph & frō Elom to zaananim, Adami, Nekeb and Jabneel euen to Lakum, and doth go out at Jordā. And then the coast turneth westwarde to Asanoth Thabor, and thē goeth out from thence to Hukokah, and reacheth to zabulō on ỏ southe syde, & goeth to Aser on ỏ west syde, and to Juda vpon Jordan towarde ỏ sonnerysynge. And their stronge cyties are zidim, zer, Hamah, Racath and Cenereth, Adamah, Hermah & Hazor: Kedes, Edzai, and Enhazor: Jeron, Magdelel: Horē, Bethanah & Bethsames: nyne tene cyties wt their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the childzen of Nephthali by their kynredes: these also are the cyties & their villagts.

D And the seuenth lotte came out for ỏ trybe of the childzē of Dan by their kynredes. And the coaste of their enheritaunce was: zaraah, Esthaol. * Jrsames, Saelabin, Aialō Jethlah: Eglon & Thēnathah & Akarō: Elthekeh, Gibethon & Baalath: Jehud Banebarak & Gathermon, Meiericon and Aarcō, wt the border that lyeth before Japho. And ỏ coastes of ỏ childzē of Dan wēt out frō them. And the childzen of Dan wēt vp to fyght agaynst Lesen, and toke it, and smote it with ỏ edge of the swerde, and cōquered it, & dwelt therin, & called it * Dan after the name of Dan their father.

* Other wise called, Ekeciie of ỏ sonne.

* Jud. xviii. g.

This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of ỏ childzen of Dan i their kynredes: these also are the cyties with their villages, Whē they had made an ende of deuydyng ỏ lāde by her coastes, the childzen of Jsraell gaue an enheritaūce vnto Josua ỏ sonne of Nun amōge them, according to the worde of ỏ Lorde they gaue hym the cytie which he asked, cuē * Thānath serah in moūte Ephzai And he bylte ỏ cytie & dwelt therin. ‡ These are the enheritaūces which Eleazar the preast and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the childzē of Jsrael deuided by lotte in Siloh before the Lorde, in the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and so they made an ende of deuiding the contreye.

¶ The cyties of refuge or Sanctuarye.

The Lorde also spake vnto Josua sayige: Speake to ỏ childzen of Jsrael, and saye: * Appointe out frō amonge you cyties of refuge, wherof I spake vnto you by the hād of Moses, that the slear that killeth any person vnwares and vnwittinglye, maye flee thether. And those cyties shalbe youre refuge from the auenger of bloud. And he that dothflee vnto one of those cyties, shall stāde at the entryng of the gate of the cytie, and shall shewe hys cause in the eares of the elders of the cytie.

* Nu. xxxv. a Deute. xix. d.

And they shall take him into the cytie vnto them, & geue hym a place, that he maye dwell amonge them.

B And ỏ the auenger of bloude folowe after him, they shall not deliuer the slear into his hande: because he smote his frēde ignorantlye, and hated hym not before tyme.

And he shall dwell in the sayde cytie vntill he stāde before ỏ cōgregatiō in Judgement, * and vntill the death of the hye preaste that shalbe in those dayes: for then shall the slear retourne, and come vnto his
C awne cytie, and vnto his awne house, and vnto the cytie frō whence he fled. And they sanctified kedes i Galile, in moūt Nephthali, and Sichem in moūt Ephzaim, and Ga kiriatharbe (which is Hebzon) in the moūtaine of Juda. And on the other syde Jordā ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde, they appointed Bozor in ỏ wildernesse vpon the playne, out of ỏ tribe of Ruben: & Ramoth
D in Gilead out of the trybe of Gad: and Golan in Basan out of ỏ trybe of Manasses. These were the cyties appoynted for all ỏ childzen of Jsraell, and for the straunger ỏ soiourned amonge them, that whosoeuer killed any persō ignorātlye, ỏ same might flee thether, & shulde not die by the hand of the auenger of bloude, vntill he stode before the congregacion * (to declare his cause.)

¶The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ The cyties geuen to the Leuytes, in nombre. xlviii.

A And then came the principall fathers of the Leuites vnto Eleazar ỏ preaste, and vnto Josua the sōne of Nun, and vnto ỏ aunciēt fathers that were ouer the trybes of the childzen of Jsrael, & spake vnto them at Silo in the lande of Canaan, saying: * the Lorde commaunded by Moses, to geue vs cyties to dwell in, with the suburbes ther of, for oure catell. And ỏ childzē of Jsraell gaue vnto ỏ Leuites out of their enheritaūce at ỏ bidding of ỏ Lorde these cyties folowing wt their Suburbes.

* Nu. xxxv. a. Josu. xx. a.

And the lotte cam out for the kynred of the Cahathites: and the childzē of Aaron the preaste, which were of the Leuites, had geuen them by lott, out of the trybe of Juda, out of the trybe of Simeon, and out of ỏ trybe of Beniamin: thirtene cyties. And the reast of the childzen of Cahath had by lotte, out of the kynredes of ỏ trybe of Ephzaim, out of ỏ trybe of Dan, and out of ỏ halfe trybe of Manasses: ten cyties. And the childzē of Gerson had by lotte out of ỏ kynredes of the trybe of Jsacar, and out of the trybe of Aser, out of the trybe of Nephthali & out of the other halfe trybe of Manasses i Basan: thirtene cyties. And ỏ childzen of Merari by their kynredes, had out
B of the trybe of Ruben, and out of the trybe of Gad, and out of the trybe of zabulon, twelue cyties: And the childzen of Jsraell gaue by lotte vnto the Leuites these cyties with their Suburbes, as the Lord cōmaunded by Moses.

And they gaue out of the trybe of ỏ childzen of Juda, & out of the trybe of the childzē of Simeō, these cyties by name: which the childzen of Aaron beig of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the childzē of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the fyrst lotte.

And they gaue them kariath Arbe of the father of Enack (which is Hebzon) in the hyll contreye of Juda, with the Suburbes of the same rounds about it. But the londe that pertayned to the cytie, and the villages therof, gaue they to * Caleb the sonne of Jephune, to be his possession.

And thus they gaue to ỏ childzen of Aaron the preast, a cyte, to the which ỏ slayer might flye: euen Hebzon with her Suburbes: Libna with her Suburbes: & Jathir with her Suburbes, & Estimoa with her Suburbes: Holon wt her Suburbes, Dabir with her Suburbes: Ain with her Suburbes: Jutah with her Suburbes: Bethsames with her Suburbes: nyne cities out of those two trybes. And out of the trybe of Beniamin, they gaue Gibeon with her Suburbes: Gaba wt her Suburbes: Anatoth with her Suburbes: Almon with her
C Suburbes: foure cyties. All these cyties of ỏ childzē of Aaron preastes, were thirtene cyties with theyr Suburbes. And ỏ kynredes of the childzen of Cahath that were Leuites: that is to saye the other childzē of Cahath, had cities geuē thē for their lotte, out of the trybe of Ephzaim. For they gaue them the cytie ỏ the slear might flye vnto: Sichem with her Suburbes, in mount Ephzaim: and Gazer with her Suburbes, and kabzaim with her Suburbes: & Bethhozon with her Suburbes: foure cyties.

And out of the halfe trybe of Manasses, Thanach with her suburbes: and Gathremon with her Suburbes: two cyties. All the cyties for the other kynredes of ỏ childzen of Cahath, were ten with their Suburbes.

And vnto the childzen of Gerson which were of the kynredes of the Leuites, they gaue out of ỏ other halfe trybe of Manasses, the cytie of refuge for the slear: Golan in Basan with her Suburbes: & Beesthera with her Suburbes: two cyties. And out of the trybe of Jsacar, kision with her Suburbes: and Daberah with her Suburbes: & Jarimoth with her Suburbes: Enganim with her Suburbes: foure cyties.

D And vnto the other kynredes of the childre of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, they gaue out of the tribe of zabulon: Jecnam with her Suburbes: & Carthah wyth her Suburbes: Damna with her Suburbes, & Nahalal with her Suburbes: foure cyties, And out of the tribe of Rubē, Bozor with her Suburbes: and Jahelah with her suburbes: Kedmoth with her Suburbes, and Maphaath with her Suburbes: foure cyties. And out of the tribe of Gad, they gaue ꝑ cytie for ꝑ slear to flye vnto: Ramoth in Gilead with her Suburbes, and Mahanaim with her suburbes, Helbon with her suburbes: & Jaser with her suburbes: foure cyties in all, so that all the cyties of ꝑ childzen of Merari thorow out their kynredes (which were the rest of the kynredes of the Leuites) were by their lot, twelue cyties.

And all the cyties ꝑ the Leuites had amōg the possession of ꝑ childzen of Israel were xlviii. with their suburbes. And these cyties laye euery one seuerally, hauyng their suburbes rounde aboute them thorow out all the sayde cyties. And ꝑ Lord gaue vnto Israel all the lande which * he sware to *Gen.xxii.a geue vnto their fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelt therin. And the Lord gaue them rest rounde aboute, accordyng to all ꝑ he sware vnto their fathers: and there stode not a man of all their enemyes before them. The Lord also delyuered all *Josu.xxi.b. theyr enemyes into their handes. * There ℞ shaped nothing of all the good thynges, which the Lord had sayde vnto the house of Israell, But all came to passe.

¶The.xxii.Chapter.

¶Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sent agayne to their possessions. They buylde an altare for a memoriall.

A Then Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, and sayde vnto *Nu.xxxii.f them: * ye haue kept all that Moses ꝑ seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I cōmaunded you: ye haue not lefte youre brethrē of a long season vnto this daye, but haue kept the commaundement of the Lorde youre God.

And now that the Lorde hath geuen rest vnto youre brethren as he promysed them, therfore retourne ye, and go vnto youre tentes, & vnto the lande of youre possessiō, which Moses the seruaūt of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

And the childzen of Ruben, the childzen of Gad, and halfe ꝑ tribe of Manasses, returned, and departed from the childzen of Israel out of Silo (which is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the cōtreye of Giliad, to the lande of their possession, which they had opteyned, accordig to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto ꝑ place of Geliloth beside Jordan (that is in the lande of Canaan) there the childzen of Ruben, the childzen of Gad and ꝑ halfe tribe of Manasses, buylt an altare faste by Jordan, and that a great altare to se to. Which when the childzen of Israel heard of, they sayd: beholde, ꝑ childzen of Ruben, the childzen of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylt an altare in the forefronte of ꝑ lande of Canaan euen in Geliloth beside Jordā on the syde of ꝑ childzen of Israell. And when the childzen of Israel heard of it, ꝑ whole congregacion of ꝑ childrē of Israell gathered thē together to Silo, to make batell agaynst them. And the childrē of Israell sent vnto the childzen of Ruben, and to the childzen of Gad, and to ꝑ halfe tribe of Manasses, into the lande of Gilead, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste, & wyth him ten Lordes, of euery chefe house a Lord, thorow out all ꝑ tribes of Israell, which were heades of their fathers houlholdes among ꝑ thousandes of Israel. And they wēt vnto ꝑ childzen of Ruben, and to the childzen of Gad, & to the childzen of the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Gilead, and C they

they spake with them, saying.

D Thus saye the hole congregaciō of the *Judi.xx.b. Lorde * what transgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israell, to turne awaye this daye frō ꝑ Lord in that ye haue bylded you an altare, for to rebelle this daye against the Lorde? Is the *Nu.xxv.a. * wicked deade of Peor to lyttell for vs, wherof we are not yet cleansed vnto thys daye, and for the which there was in ꝑ congregacion of the people a plage of ꝑ Lord? Ye also are turned awaye thys daye from the Lorde. And seynge ye rebelle to daye agaynst the Lorde, it wil come to passe, that to morow he shall be wroth wt all the congregacion of Israel. Notwithstandyng yf E ye thinke, ℞ that the lande of youre possession is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of ꝑ Lorde, where in ꝑ Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, & take possession amonge vs. But transgresse not agaynst ꝑ Lorde, nor prouoke vs, to buylde you anye other aulter, saue ꝑ aulter of the *Josu.bii.a Lorde oure God. * Dyd not Achan the sonne of Zareth trespase i ꝑ excōmunicate thig, & wrath fell on all ꝑ cōgregacion of Israel, which notwithstandinge that he was but one man, yet he alone perished not for his wickednesse?

E Then ꝑ childzen of Ruben & the childzen of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel: The God of goddes, the Lorde, God of goddes, euen ꝑ Lord he knoweth, & Israel also shall knowe. If it be to rebelle, or to transgresse agaynst ꝑ Lorde, then thou Lorde saue vs not thys daye. Or elles if we haue bylt vs an aulter to turne frō folowing the Lorde, or to offer theron burnt offryng or meatoffrige, or to offer peace offringes theron: let ꝑ Lorde require it. ℞ (and iudge) And yf we haue not rather done it of a carefulnes & of a sure occasiō, sayenge: In tyme to come your childzen might saye vnto ours: what haue ye to do with ꝑ Lorde God of Israel? ꝑ Lorde hath made Jordā a border betwene vs and you (ye childzen of Ruben and of Gad) ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde: and so shall youre childzen make oure childzen cease from fearinge the Lorde.

Therfore we ℞ * (take better aduisement ℞) sayd: ℞ F We wil make vs an aulter, not for burnt- *Gen.xxxi.g Josu.xxiiii.f offeringe, nor for sacrifice, but for a * witnesse betwene vs and you, and oure generacyons after vs, that we shulde serue the Lorde, with oure offeringes, sacrifices and peace offeringes before him: and that youre childzen shulde not saye to ours in time to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde.

Therfore sayde we, that if they shulde so saye to vs or to oure generaciōs in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the fassiō of the aulter of the Lorde, which oure fathers made, nether for burnt-offerynges nor sacrifices, but for a witnesse betwene vs and you. God forbyd, that we shuld rebell agaynst the Lorde, and turne thys daye frō after him, & buyld any other aulter for burntofferinges, oblaciōs, or sacrifices, saue the altare of the Lord oure God, that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the Preaste, and the G Lordes of ꝑ congregacion and heades ouer the thousandes of Israell which were with him, hearde these wordes that the childzen of Ruben, and the childzen of Gad and the childzē of Manasses spake, they were well content. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste sayde vnto the childzen of Ruben, and to the childzen of Gad, & to the childzē of Manasses: this daye we perceaue, that the Lord is among vs, because ye haue not done this trespase agaynst ꝑ Lorde: Now ye haue rydde the childzen of Israell out of the hande of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preaste wt the Lordes, retourned from the childzen of Ruben, and frō the childzen of Gad out of the lande of Gilead vnto ꝑ lande of Canaan, to the childzen of Israel, and brought them this worde agayne. And the sayeng pleased the childzen of Israel, and they blessed ℞ God, and dyd not entende ℞ to go agaynst them in batell, & to destroye the lande which the childzen of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And the childzen of Ruben, and the childzen of Gad called the aulter: Oure witnesse, that the Lorde is God.

℄ The.xxiiii. Chapter.

℄ Josua exhorteth the people to the kepyng of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Joseph are buryed. Eleazar dyed.

A ℄ AND Josua geathered all the trybes of Israell to Sichem, and called for ꝑ elders of Israell, and for theyr heades, Iudges and officers, and they presented them selues before God. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Gene.xi.d. Lord God of Israell: * youre fathers dwelt on the other syde of the floud in olde tyme: euen Thareh the father of Abraham & of Nachor, and serued straunge gosdes.

And I toke youre father Abraham from the other syde of the floude, & brought him
thorow out all the lande of Canaan, & mul tiplied his seed, and * gaue him Isahac.
*Gene.xxi.a Math.i.a. ‡Ge.xxvii.a. And I gaue vnto Isahac, Jacob & Esau.
*And I gaue vnto Esau mount Seir, to possesse it. But Jacob and his childrē wēt downe into Egypte.

I sent Moses also & Aaron. And I * plaged Egypte: & whan I had so done among *Ex.iii.d viii.d x.d. xii.d. them, I brought you out, and I brought youre fathers out of Egypte. And as they came vnto the see, the Egyptcians folowed
after youre fathers with charettes & horse℄ men, vnto the redd see. * And whan they
* Exo.xiiii.d cried vnto the Lord, the Lord put darcknesse betwene you and the Egyptcians, and brought the see vpon them, and couered
thē. And youre eyes haue sene what I haue done to the Egyptcians. And ye dwelt in the wildernesse a longe season.

And * I brought you into the lande of the *Num.xxi.d Amorites, which dwelt on the other syde Jordan. And they fought with you: and I gaue them into your hād, that ye myght conquere their contre. And I destroyed thē from out of youre syght.

*Then Balak the sonne of zippor, king
*Num.xxii.a. Deu.xxiii.c. of Moab arose, & warred agaynst Israell, & sent & called Balaam the sonne of Beor
for to curse you. But I wolde not herken vnto Balaam, & therfore he rather blessed you: And so I deliuered you out of his hande. And ye wēt ouer Jordā, and came vnto Jericho, and the men of Jericho fought a-gaynst you: the Amorites, Pherezites, Canaanites, hethites, Girgosites, Heuites, & Iebusites, and I deliuered them in to you-re hande.

And I sent * hornettes before you, whych ℄ * Deut.vii.d cast them out of youre sight: euen the two kinges of the Amorites: but not with youre
owne swerde, or with youre owne bowe.
And I haue geuen you a lande, in which ye dyd no laboure, and cyties which you bilt
not, and which ye dwell in: vineyardes also, and Olyue trees which ye planted not,
and wherof ye do eate.

*Now therfore feare the Lorde, & serue
*i. Reg.vii. a. Tob.xiiii.c. him in perfectnesse and truthe: And put awaye the goddes, whych youre fathers ser-ued on the other syde of the floude, and in Egypte, and serue ye the Lorde. And yf it seme euell vnto you to serue the Lorde, thē chose you this daye whom you will serue:
whether the goddes which youre fathers serued (that were on the other syde of the ℄ D floude) ether the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose lande ye dwell. As for me and my howse, we will serue the Lorde.

The people answered and sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde forsake the Lorde, and serue

serue straūge goddes. For the Lorde oure
God, he it is that brought vs and oure fathers out of the lande of Egypte, and from the howse of bondage, and which dyd those great miracles in oure syght, & preserued
vs in all the waye that we went, & amōge all the naciōs which we came thorow. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the na-cions, specially the Amorites, which dwelt in the lande. And therfore will we also ser-℄ ue the Lorde, for he is oure God.

And Josua sayd vnto the people, Ye can not serue the Lorde: for he is an holye God,
and a gelous God, and cannot beare youre
iniquite and synne. Yf ye forsake the Lorde
*Iosu.xxiii.d and serue straunge goddes, * he will turne and do you euell, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. And the people sayde vnto Josua: naye, but we will ser
ue the Lorde.

And Josua sayde vnto the people: ye are witnesses youre selues, that ye haue chosen
you the Lorde, to serue him: and they sayd:
we are wytnesses. Then put awaye (sayde ℄ he) the straunge ‡ goddes which are amō-ge you, and bowe youre hertes vnto ꝑ Lorde God of Israell. The people sayde vnto Josua: the Lord oure God will we serue, and his voyce will we obeye. And so Josua ℄ F *made a couenant with the people the sa*iiii.Reg. xiii.a me daye, and set an ‡ ordinaunce and lawe before them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the bo-

stone, and pitched it on ende in ꝑ sayde pla-

to all ꝑ people: beholde, * this stone shalbe

*? And so Josua let the people departe, euery man vnto his enheritaunce.

And after these thinges it came to passe, ℄ G that Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde died, beyng an hundreth and ¶ After Josua was dead, Juda was constitute Lorde ouer the armye.

A After the death of Josua it came to passe, that the childrē of Israel asked ꝑ Lorde saying: Who shall go vp for vs against the Cananites, and who shall first fight agaynst them. And the Lorde sayde: Juda ☜ shall go vp * beholde I haue delyuered the lande in to hys handes.

*Jos.xviii.a ☜ And Juda sayde vnto Simeon ☜ hys brother: come vp with me in my lotte, that we maye fight agaynst the Cananites: And I lykewyse wyll go with the into thy lotte. And so Symeon went with him.

And Juda went vp, and the Lorde delyuered ꝑ Cananites & Pherezites into theyr handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousand men. And they founde Adonibezek ☜ in Bezek. And they fought against him, and slewe ꝑ Cananites and Pherezites. But Adonibezek fled, & they folowed after hym, and caught hym, and cut of his B thōbes and his great toes. And Adonibezek sayde: thre skore & ten kynges hauing their thombes and great toes cut of, gathered their meate vnder my table: * as I

*Deute.xx.c The childrē of Juda fought agaynst Jerusalem, and toke it * and smote it wyth ꝑ edge of the swerde, and set the cytie on fire. After warde the childrē of Juda went to fight against the Cananites, that dwelt in the moūtayne, and towarde the south, & in the lowe contreye. And Juda went against the Cananites that dwelt in Hebrō, which before time was called kariath Arbe. And slew Sesai, Ahiman & Thalmai. And frō thence they went to the inhabiters of Dabir, whose name i olde tyme was called kariathsepher. ✻ (that is a cytie of lettres.)

And Caleb sayde * he that smyteth kariathsepher, & taketh it, to him will I geue Achsah my daughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the sonne of kenez Calebs yōger brother toke it: to whom he gaue Achsah hys daughter to wyfe, and as they went, she counceled hym to aske of her father a felde. And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She answered vnto hym: geue me a blessynge: for thou hast geuē me a Southward (or drie) lāde, geue me also sprynges of water. And Caleb gaue her spryinges both aboue & benethe. And the childrē of the ☜ kenite Moses father in lawe went vp * out of ꝑ cytie of ‡ palme trees with the childrē of Juda into the wyldernesse of Juda, that lieth in the Southe of Arad, and they wēt and dwelt amonge the people.

And the lorde was wyth Juda, and he conquered the mountaynes, but coulde not dryue out ꝑ enhabiters of the valeyes because they had charettes of yron. But whethersoeuer they went out, the hand of the lord was agaynst them with euell lucke, euen as the lord promysed them, & as he sware vnto them. And he punyshed them sore.

¶Othoniell delyuereth Israel. Ahud kylleth kyng Eglon. Samgar kylleth the Philistines.

THese are þ nacyõs which þ lord left, that he myght proue Israel by thẽ: euen as manye of Israell as had not knowen all the warres of Canaam: Onlye for þ lernyng of þ generacyon of the childrẽ of Israel: þ he allo myght teach them warre, in asmuch as they þ were before them, ¶knew nothing therof, Of those whõ he left, there were fyue lordes of the Philistines, & all the Cananites, & the Sodonites, and the Heuites that dwelt in moũt Libanon: euen from mount Baal hermon vnto Hemath. Those remayned to proue Israel by, and to wete, whether they wold herken vnto the commaundementes of the lorde, which he commaũded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

And the childrẽ of Israel dwelt amonge the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites, and Iebusytes, * & toke the daughters of them to be their wyues, & gaue their owne daughters to their sonnes, & serued their Goddes. And the childrẽ of Israell did wickedlye in the syght of the lord, and forgate the lord their God, and serued Baalim & Aseroth. And when the childrẽ of Israel cryed vnto the lorde, the lorde stered vp a sauer, to þ childrẽ of Israel. & saued thẽ: one Othoniel the sonne of kenes. Calebs yõger brother. And the spyrete of the lorde came vpon him. And he iudged Israel, and wẽt out to warre. And þ lorde delyuered Chusan Risathai kyng of Mesopotamia into his hande, & his hande preuayled agaynst Chusan Risathaim. And þ lande had * rest fourtye yeres, and Othoniel þ sonne of kenes died. And the children of Israel wẽt to agayne, & cõmitted wickednesse in the sight of þ lord. And the Lord strengthed Eglon the kyng of the Moabites, agaynst the childrẽ of Israel, because they had cõmitted wickednesse before þ lord. And this (Eglõ) gathered vnto hym the childrẽ of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and went and smote Israel, & cõquered the citye of Paulme trees. And so the childrẽ of Israel serued Eglon the king of Moab. xviii. yeres. But whẽ they cryed vnto the lorde, the lorde stered thẽ vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera the sõne of Jemini. a man that coulde do nothing handsomlye with his ryght hande.

And by him the chyldren of Israel sent a C presẽt vnto Eglon the king of Moab: but Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte length, & he dyd gyrde yt vnto his rayment vpon his right thygh, and caryed the presẽt vnto Eglon the kynge of Moab: And Eglon was a very fatte man. And it fortuned that whẽ he had presented the presẽt, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe turned agayne (frõ þ place of grauẽ ymages, that was by Gilgal) and sayde: I haue a secret errãd vnto the, O kyng. Which sayde: kepe silence. And all that stode before hym, went out from hym.

And Ahud came vnto hym, and in a somer parler, which he had, sat he hi selfe alone. and Ahud sayde * I haue a message vnto þ frõ God. And he arose out of hys seate. And Ahud put forth hys lefte hande, & toke þ dagger frõ his ryght thyghe, & thrust it into hys belye, and the haft went in after the blade. And the fatte, closed the haft, so þ he myght not drawe the dagger out of hys belye, but the dyrt came out. Ahud gat him out at a posterne dore, and shut the dores of the parler about him, and locked them.

When he was gone out, hys seruauntes came, and whan they sawe that the dores of the parler were locked, they sayde: peraduẽture he couereth hys fete in hys somer chãber. And they taried tyll they were ashamed, and beholde: seyng he opened not the dores of the parler: they toke a keye, ãd opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead on the erthe. And Ahud eskaped (whyle they taryed) and was gone beyonde, to the place of the grauẽ ymages, and eskaped into Seirath.

And whẽ he was come * he blewe a trompette in moũt Ephraim. And the chyldrẽ of Israel wẽt downe wyth hym from the hyll and he went before them. And he sayde vnto them, folowe me: for the Lord hath delyuered youre enemyes, the Moabytes into youre hande. And they descended after him, and toke the passages of Iordan, towarde Moab, and suffered not a mã to passe ouer. ¶Debora and Barak delyuer Israel: Sisara is kylled of Iael.

And the

AND the childrẽ of Israel beganne agayne to do wickedly in the syght of the Lord, whẽ Ahud was dead. And the Lord solde them into the hãde of Iabin kyng of Canaan, þ raygned in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisara, which dwelt in Haroseth of þ gẽtiles. And the childrẽ of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde: for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, & twẽtie yeres he troubled the childrẽ of Israel very sore.

And Debora a Prophetysse, the wyfe of Lapidoth Judged Israel the same tyme, & þ same Debora dwelt vnder a paulme tree betwene Ramath and Bethell, in mounte Ephraim.

And the childrẽ of Israel came vp to her for iudgement. And she sent & called * Barak þ sonne of Abinoã, out of Kedes Nephthalim, and sayde vnto him. Hath not the Lord God of Israel cõmaunded the, to leade wt faire wordes men to moũte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande mẽ, of the childrẽ of Nephthalim & of þ childrẽ of zabulon? And I will bryng vnto the to the * ryuer kyson, Sisara, þ Captayne of warre vnto Iabin, wt his charettes, & his people, and will delyuer him ito thyne hãdes. And Barak sayde vnto her: yf thou wylt go wt me, I will go: But & yf thou wilt not come with me, I will not goo: She sayde: I will suerlye go with þ, but this iourney þ thou takest, shall not be for thyne honoure, for the Lord shall sell Sisara into the hãde of a woman. Debora wẽt with Barak to kedes. And Barak called zabulõ & Nephthalim to kedes, & led after hym ten thousande men: and Debora went vp with him.

But Haber the kenite (which was of the childrẽ of * Hobab the father in lawe of Moses) remoued from the other kenytes, & pytched hys tẽte vntyll the playne of zaanaim, whych is by kedes.

And they shewed Sisara, þ Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Thabor. And Sisara gathered together all his charettes, cuẽ. ix. hũdred charettes of yron, & all the people þ were wt him from of Haroseth of the gentyles, vnto the ryuer of kyson. And Debora sayde vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in which the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara into thyne hãde: Is not the Lorde gone out before the? And so Barak wẽt downe from mount Thabor, & ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde destroyed Sisara and all his charettes, & all his hoste with the edge of the swerde, before Barak: so þ Sisara lyghted downe of his charett, & fled awaye on hys fete. But Barak folowed after the charettes and after the hoste, euẽ vnto Haroseth of the gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpõ the edge of the swerde, and there was not a mã leafte. Howbeit Sisara fled awaye on his fete to the tent of Iael the wyfe of Haber the kenite: for there was peace betwene Iabin the kyng of Hazor, & the houshold of Haber the kenite.

And Iael went out to mete Sisara, and sayde vnto him: turne in my lord, turne into me, feare not. And whã he had turned in vnto her into her tẽt, she couered hym with a mãtell. And he sayd vnto her, geue me a lyttel water to drynk, for I am thirstye. And she opened * a bottell of mylke, & gaue hym drynck, & couered him. And agayne he sayde vnto her: stãde in the dore of the tẽte, and whan any man doth come and enquere of the, whether there be any man here, thou shalt saye: naye.

Then Iael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tente, & an hammer in her hand, & went softlye vnto hym, and smote the nayle into the temples of his head, and fastened it into the ground, for he slombered sore, and was weery: And so he dyed.

And Beholde, as Barak folowed after Sisara, Iael came out to mete hi, & sayde vnto him: come, & I wyll shew the the mã, whom þ seekest. And when he came into her tẽte: Beholde, Sisara laye deed, & þ nayle was in his tẽples. And so God brought Iaben the kyng of Canaã into subiectyõ that daye before the chyldrẽ of Israel. And the hande of the childrẽ of Israel prospered, & preuayled agaynst Iaben the kyng of Canaã, vntill they had brought hi to naught.

¶The.v.Chapter.

¶The songe and thanckes geuyng of Debora and Barak after the victorye.

THen Debora & Barak þ sonne of Abinoam sange the same daye, sayẽg: Prayse ye þ Lord, for the auẽgyng of Israel, and for the people that became so wylling. Heare O ye kynges, herken o ye princes: I, euẽ I, will syng vnto the Lord, I wyl prayse the Lorde God of Israel.

Lord, * whan thou wentest out of Seir, whan þ departedst out of the felde of Edõ, the erth trembled, & the heauẽs rayned: the cloudes also dropped water. * The mountaynes melted before the lord, euen as dyd Sinai, before the lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of * Samgar the sonne of Anath, in þ dayes of Iael þ hye wayes were vnoccupied: And þ ronners of the pathes walked thorow by wayes.

The inhabiters of þ townes were gone, they were gone in Israel, vntyll I Debora came vp, which came vp a mother i Israel. They chose new goddes, and then had they (the enemye) in the gates, though there were shilde and speare. There was not a shild or spere seene amonge fourtye thou-lande of Israel.

Myne hart loueth the gouerners of Israel, and them that are willing amonge the people. O prayse ye the Lorde.

Speake ye ye ryde on kayze asses, & ye sitt vppermost i iudgemẽt, & walke by ye wayes

At the crycng of the archers amonge the drawers of water, there shall they speake of ye righteousnes of the Lorde, his righteousnesse in the vnkenced places of Israel: then shall the people of the Lord go downe to the gates.

Up Deboza vp, get the vp, and syng a songe: *Aryse Barac, and leade the captiuyte captyue, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then shall they that remaync, haue dominiõ of the proudest of the people (of Jabin:) The Lorde shall for my sake haue dominion ouer the myghtie. Out of *Ephraim was there a rote of them agaynst Amalecke, and after the, Beniamin amõge thy people. Out of Machir came rulers, & out of zabulon they that gouerne the penne of the wryter.

And of Issachar, there were prynces with Deboza, Issachar also and Barac were sent on their fete into the valley, whã in the departing awaye of Rubẽ there were greate men, and wyse of hert.

Why abodest thou among the shepe folds, to heare the bleatinges of the flockes, & to separate thy selfe awaye wt greate men and wyse of hert?

Gilead also abode beyonde Jordane: and why doth Dan remayne in shippes?

Aser contynued on the see shore, and taried in hys decayed places.

But the people of zabulon haue ieoperde their lyues euen vnto the dethe, lyke as did Nephthalim in the hye places of the felde.

The kynges came & fought, then fought the kynges of Canaan in Thanah, by the waters of Megiddo, and wanne no money.

They fought frõ heauen, euen the starres in their courses fought agaynst Sisera.

The ryuer of Cyson remoued them, that auncient ryuer, the ryuer Cyson: My soule shall treade (hym) downe mightely.

Then were the horse hoffes smyttẽ a sunder by ye meanes of the prauãsinges ye their mightye men made.

Curse ye the cite of Meros (sayd the angell of ye Lord) curse the inhabitours therof, because they came not to helpe ye Lorde, to helpe the Lorde with the myghtie.

Jael the wife of Haber the kenyte shalbe blessed aboue other wemen, blessed shall she be aboue other wemen in the tent.

*Judg.iiii.c *He asked water, & she gaue him mylck, she brought furth butter in a lordly dysshe.

*Judi.iiii.d *She put hir hande to the nayle, and hir right hande to the smythes hammer: wt the hammer smote she Sisera, and smote hys heade, wounded him, & pearsed his temples.

He bowed hym downe at hir fete, he fell downe & laye still: At hir fete he bowed him downe, & fell. And whẽ he had soncke downe, he laye still desolate.

The mother of Sisera loked out at a wyndowe, & cried thorow ye latteise: Why is his charret so long a cõmyng? Why tarye the wheles of his cartes?

All the wyse ladyes answered her, ye and her awne wordes answered hir selfe.

Surely they haue founde, they deuyde the spoyles: euery mã hath a dãsell or two: Sisera hath a praye of diuerse coulored garmẽtes, euẽ a praye of raymẽt dyed wt sõdrye coloures, & ye are made of nedle worke: raymẽt of diuerses coloures & of nedle worke which is mete for him ye is cheke in distributige of ye spoyles. So perishe all thine enemyes: O Lord: but they ye loue hi, let thẽ be as the sonne whan he ryseth in his might.

And the lande had rest fourtye yeres.

The. vi. Chapter.

Israell is oppressed of the Madianites: Gedeon is sent of God to be their delyuerer.

AND the chyldrẽ of Israell * cõmitted wyckednes in the sight of the Lord. And ye Lord delyuered them into the hãdes of Madiã seuen yeres. And the hande of Madian preuayled agaynst Israel, & because of ye Madianites, the chyldrẽ of Israel made them dennes in the mountaynes & caues and stronge holdes. And whẽ Israel had sowẽ, the Madianites, ye Amalechites & they of ye east contreye came vp togethez against them: & pytched their tẽtes against them, & destroyed the encrease of the erthe, euen till ye come vnto Azah: & lefte no sustinaũce for Israell, nether shepe, oxe or asse: for they went vp, they and their cattell, & came wt their tẽtes as a multitude of greshopers: so ye bothe they & also their camels were wt out nõbze. And they ẽtred into ye lãde to destrope it. And so was Israel excedigly impouerished in ye sight of ye Madianites, & cryed vnto ye Lord. And when ye childrẽ of Israel cryed vnto ye Lord because of the Madianites, ye Lord sent vnto them a prophet, which sayd vnto thẽ: Thus sayth ye lord god of Israel: I sette you frõ Egypt & brought you oute of ye house of bondage, & I rydd you out of the hande of the Egyptiãs, & out of ye hand of all ye oppressed you & cast thẽ out before you, & gaue you their land. And I sayd vnto you: I am the Lorde youre God, *feare not the goddes of the Amozytes in whose lande you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And the Angell of the Lorde came, & sate vnder an Oke which was i Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas ye father of ye Eserites. And his his sonne Gedeõ prested out whete out of ye eares in a prest, to hyde it from the Madianites: & the angell of the Lord apeared vnto hym, & sayde: the Lord is wyth the, thou mightie mã of warre. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lord, yf the Lord be wyth vs, why is all this come vpon vs? ye & where be all hys myracles which oure fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: Did not ye lord bring vs out of Egypte? But now ye Lorde hath forsaken vs, & delyuered vs into the hãdes of the Madianites. And ye Lord loked vpõ him, & sayd: Go hẽce in this thy might, and thou shalt delyuer Israel out of ye hãdes of the Madianites: Haue not I sent the? And he answered him: Oh lord, wherwith shall I saue Israel? Beholde, my kinred is poore in Manasses, and I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lord sayde vnto him: I will be with the: and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one mã. And he answered him: Oh: yf I haue foũde grace i thy syght, thẽ shewe me a sygne, that it is thou that talkest wt me. Departe not hence, vntill I come agayne vnto the, and till I bryng myne offryng, & haue sett it before the.

And he sayde: I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon went in, & made redye a kydd, and swete kakes of an Epha of flowre, & put it wt the flesshe in a basket, & put ye brothe i a potte, & brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke, & presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto him: take the flesh & ye swete kakes, & laye thẽ vpõ this rocke, & powre out the brothe. And he dyd so. Thẽ the angell of the Lord put forth the ende of the staffe ye he helde in his hande, & touched the flesshe and the swete kakes. And * there arose vp fyre out of ye rocke, & cõsumed the flesh & the swete kakes. But ye angell of the Lord vanished out of his sight. And when Gedeon perceaued that it was an angell of the Lord, he sayd: Alas, O Lord God, *haue I therfore sene an angell of the lord face to face, ye I shulde dye? And the Lord sayde vnto him: peace be vnto the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. Thẽ Gedeõ made an aultare there vnto the Lord, & called it: The Lorde of peace. And vnto thys daye it is yet in Ephrath, ye pertayneth vnto the father of the Eserites. And it forturned that ye same nyght the Lord sayde vnto hym: take a yõg bullock out of thy fathers drowe, & another of. vii. peres olde, & destrope the aultare of Baal ye thy father hath, & cutte downe the groue ye is by it, & make an aultare vnto ye Lord thy God vpõ ye toppe of this rocke in a cõuenient place. And take the secõde bullock, & offer burnt sacrifice vpon ye wodd of ye groue, which ye shalt cut downe. Thẽ Gedeõ toke ten mẽ of his seruaũtes, & dyd as ye Lord bad him. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of his fathers household & of the mẽ of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

*xiii.xx.xbiiii

*etto.xxviii.d Judi.viii.d.

And when the mẽ of the cytie were vp erlye in the morning: Beholde, the aultare of Baal was broken, & the groue cut downe ye was by it, & the secõde bullock offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done this thyng: & whã they enquered & asked, they sayde: Gedeon ye sonne of Joas hath done this thyng. Then the mẽ of the cytie sayde vnto Joas: bringe out thy sonne, that he maye dye: because he hath destroyed ye aulter of Baal, & cut downe ye groue ye was by it. And Joas sayde vnto all ye stode by him: will ye leade Baals cause? or will ye be his defẽders: he ye hath medled agaynst hi, let him dye or the morynge. If he be a God, let him be auenged of him, that cast downe hys aulter. And from ye daye was Gedeon called: Jerobaal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hath broken downe his aulter.

All the Madianites therfore, & the Amalekites & they of the east, were geathered together, & wẽt, & pitched in ye valeye of Jesrael: but ye sprete of the Lord came vpõ Gedeõ. *And he blewe a trõpette, & called ‡Abiezer to folow hi, & sent messengers thorow out all Manasses, & called them, which also dyd folowe him. And he sent messẽgers vnto Aser, zabulõ and Nephthalim, and they came to mete hym.

*Num.x.a ‡Judi.vi.a

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: wilt ye saue Israel in my hãde, as ye hast sayde: Beholde, I wyll put a flece of wolle in the threasshyng place. And yf ye dewe come on ye flece onlye, & it be drye vpon all the erth besyde, then shall I be sure, ye ye wilt saue Israel by my hãde, as ye saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose vp erlye on the morowe, and thrust the flece togeather, and wronge the dewe therout, & fylled a bowle of water: & Gedeõ sayd agayne vnto God: be not angrye wt me, ye* I speake once moare. For I wyll proue once agayne by the flece. Let it be drye onlye vpon the flece, and dewe vpõ all the grounde. And God did so that same nyght: For it was drye vpon the flece onely, & there was dewe on all the grounde.

Gedeon with. iii. hundred men ouercometh the Madianites. Oreb and zeb are slayne.

THen *Jerobaall (otherwyse called Gedeon) and all the people that were wyth hym, rose vp early, and pytched besyde the well of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were on the northsyde of the rock that boweth towarde the valley. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: the people that are with ye, are to many for me to geue the Madianites

Madianites into their handes, lest Israel make their vaunte agaynst me and saye: myne awne hande hathe saued me. Now therfore make a proclamacyō in ꝑ eares of the people, & saye: * yf any mā dreade or be aferde, let him returne. And ꝑ people arose erlye. And there departed & returned of the people which weare at mount Gilead. xxii. thousand, and there abode ten thousande.

*Deut. xx. b. 1. Esdr. iii. g

B And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: ꝑ people are yet to many, bryng them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto ꝑ there. And of whom I saye vnto the, thys shall go with the, the same shall go with ꝑ. And of whō soeuer I saye vnto ꝑ, this shall not go wyth the, the same shall not go. So he brought downe the people vnto the water, and ꝑ Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water wyth theyr tonges, as a dogge doth, them put by them selues, & so do them ꝑ knele downe vpon their knees to drincke. And the nōbre of them that put there handes to their mouthes and lapped, were. iii. hundred men. But all ꝑ remnaunt of ꝑ people kneled downe vpon their knees to dryncke water. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: By these thre hūdred men that lapped water, wyll I saue you: and delyuer the Madianites into thyne hande. And let all the other people go euery man vnto his place.

They therfore of the people toke vitailes with them, & their trompettes. And he sent all ꝑ rest of Israel, euery mā vnto his tent, and conforted those thre hūdred with him. And the host of Madian was benethe hym in a valeye. And it fortuned that the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto him: Aryse, get the downe vnto ꝑ hoste, for I haue delyuered it into thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe, then go ꝑ & Pharah thy ladde downe to the hoost, & thou shalt herkē what they saye, & so shall thyne handes be strōg, to go downe vnto the hoste.

Then went he downe and Pharah hys ladde, euen harde vnto ꝑ men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the East, lay a longe in ꝑ valeye, lyke a multitude of greshopers, and their camelles were without nombre, euen as the sande by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come:

D Beholde, there was a mā that tolde a dreame vnto his neyghboure, & sayde: Behold, I dreamed a dreame, and me thought that a lofe of barley bread, tombled into ꝑ hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it felle, & ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answerd and sayde: this is nothing elles saue the sworde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israell: for into his hāde hath God delyuered Madian, and all the hoste.

When Gedeon hearde the tellynge of the dreame, and the interpretacion of the same, he worshypped, and returned vnto the hoste of Israel: and sayde: vp, for the Lorde hathe delyuered into youre hande the hoste of Madiā. And he deuyded the thre hundred men into thre companies, & gaue euery man a trompet in his hande, wyth an emptye pytcher, and lampes therī, and sayde vnto them: loke on me, and do lykewyse: that when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you: When I blowe wyth a trompet and all that are wyth me, blowe ye with trōpettes also on euery syde of the hoste, & saye: here is the sworde of the Lorde and of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon & the thre hundred men ꝑ were with him, came vnto the syde of the host in ꝑ begynnig of the myddell watche, & reysed vp ꝑ watche men. And they blewe with their trōpettes, & brake the pytchers ꝑ were in theyr hādes. And all ꝑ thre cōpanyes blewe w̄ trompettes & brake the pytchers, & helde the lampes in their lefte handes, and the trompettes in their ryght, to blowe wythall. Anb they cried: the sworde of the Lord and of Gedeon. And they stode still, euery man in his place rounde about the hoste. And they wythin the hoste, rāne, & cryed & fled. And the thre hundreth blewe wyth trompettes, & the Lorde sett * euery mānes sworde vpon hys neyghboure, thorow out all the hoste. And the hoste fled to Bethlitah, to zererath, & to the edge of the playne of Meholah vnto Tabath. And the men of Israel beynge geathered together out of ꝑ trybe of Nephthalim, of Aser, & of all Manasses folowed after the Madianites. And Gedeon sent messengers vnto all moūt Ephraim, sayig: come downe against ꝑ Madianites, & take before thē ꝑ waters vnto Bethbarath & to Jordā. Then all ꝑ men of Ephraim geathered together, & toke the waters vnto Bethbarath, & to Jordan. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and zeb, and slew Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and zeb at the presse zeb, & folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and zeb, to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

And thē their spirites abated frō of him, whē he had sayde ꝑ. And Gedeon came to Jordan to passe ouer, he & the thre hundred men that were with hym, verye faynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I praye you kakes of breed vnto the people that folowe me: for they be faynte, that I maye folowe after zebath, and zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of zebath & zalmona nowe in thyne hādes, that we shulde geue breed vnto thyne armye? Gedeon sayde, therfore whē the Lord hath delyuered zebath and zalmona into myne hande, I wyll teare the flesshe of you with the thornes of the wildernes and w̄ breers. And he went vp thence to Phanuel, & spake vnto them lykewyse. And the men of Phanuel answered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth. And thē sayd he vnto zebath & zalmona, what maner of mē were they whom ye slew at Thabor? and they answered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, euē after the fassyon of the chyldren of a kynge. And he sayde: they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, yf ye had saued their lyues, I wolde not slaye you. And he sayde vnto Jether his eldest sonne: vp and slaye them: But the ladde not hys sworde, for he feared, because he was yet yong. Then zebath & zalmona sayde: Ryse thou, & falle vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gedeon arose and slewe zebath and zalmona, & toke awaye the ornamentes, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeō: Raygne thou ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast delyuered vs out of the hand of Madiā. And Gedeō sayd vnto them: I wyll not raygne ouer you, nether shall my childe raygne ouer you, but the Lord shall raygne ouer you.

¶The. xi. Chapter.

¶ Jephthah delyuereth Israel from the Ammonites.

A AND there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a strong man, ꝑ sonne of an harlott: and Gilead begat Jephthah.

And Gileads wyfe bare him sonnes, which when they were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, and sayd vnto him: ꝑ shalt not enheret in oure fathers house, for ꝑ art the sonne of a straung woman. Then Jephthah fledd frō his brethren, & dwelt in the lād of Tob. And there geathered ydle men (& theuisshe) to Jephthah, and wēt out wt him. And it chaunced in procesle of tyme, ꝑ the childrē of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel.

And whan the childzen of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead wēt to fett Jephthah out of the lād of Tob (to helpe them) and sayd vnto him: come & be oure captayne, ꝑ we maye fyght wt the childzen of Ammō. Jephthah answered ꝑ elders of Gilead: did not ye hate me & expell me out of my fathers house? how happeneth it thē, ꝑ you come vnto me now i tyme of youre tribulacion? And the elders of Gilead sayde vnto Jephthah: Therfore we turnie agayne to the now, ꝑ ꝑ mayest go wt vs, & fight agaynst the childzen of Ammon and be oure heed ouer all the enhabiters of Gilead. And Jephthah sayde vnto ꝑ elders of Gilead: If ye bringe me home agayn, to fight with the childzen of Ammon, then yf the Lord deliuer them before me, shall I be your heed? And ꝑ elders of Gilead sayde to Jephthah: ꝑ Lorde be witnesse betwene vs yf we do not accordig to thy wordes. Thē Jephthah went wyth the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym heed and ruler ouer thē. And Jephthah rehearsed all hys wordes before the Lorde in Mizpa.

And Jephthah lēt messenges vnto ꝑ king of the childrē of Ammō, saying: what hast thou to do wt me, ꝑ ꝑ art come agaynst me, to fight in my lād? The king of ꝑ childrē of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah: Because Israel toke awaye my lād, whē they came out of Egypt: euē from Arnon vnto Jabok, and vnto Jordā. Now therfore restore thole lādes agayne wt faire meanes. And Jephthah lēt messēgers again vnto the childrē of Ammon. and sayd vnto hī: thus sayth Jephthah: * Israel toke not awaye the lād of Moab, nor ꝑ lād of ꝑ childrē of Ammō. But whē Israel came out of Egypt, & walked thorow ꝑ wildernesse, euē vnto ꝑ redd see, they came to Cades * & sent messēgers vnto the king of Edō, saying: let me (I prayе ꝑ) go thorow thy lād. But the kig of Edō wolde not agre therto. And in lyke maner they lēt vnto ꝑ king of Moab, but he wold not cōsēt. And so Israel abode stil i Cades. And thē they wēt alōg thorow the wildernesse, & cōpased ꝑ lāde of Edō, & the lād of Moab, & came a long by the east syde of ꝑ lād of Moab, & pitched on ꝑ other syde of Arnō, & wolde not come with in the coaste of Moab: * for Arnō was ꝑ vtmost border of Moab. And thē Israel * sēt messēgers vnto Sehon, king of the Amozites, & king of Hesbon, & sayd vnto him: Lett vs passe thorow thy lād vnto oure awne contreye. But Sehon cōsēted not to Israel, ꝑ he shulde go thorow hys coast: but gathered all his people togeather, & pitched i Jazah, & fought wt Israel. And ꝑ Lord God of Israel delyuered Sehō & all his folke into ꝑ hādes of Israel. And so Israel smote thē & cōquered all ꝑ lād of the Amozites, the enhabiters of the sayde cōtrey. And they conquered all the coastes of the Amozites, frō Arnō vnto Jabok, & frō the wildernesse vnto Jordā. So now, seyng the Lorde God of Israel hath cast out the Amozites before hys people Israel, shuldest thou possesse the land? Naye, but what people, Camos thy God dryueth out, that land possesse ꝑ. Euē so whatsoeuer nacion the Lorde oure God expelleth, that lande ought we to enioye.

*And art thou better then Balack the sōne of zephor king of Moab? dyd he striue wt Israel or fyght agaynst thē, all the whyle Israel dwelt in Helbon and her townes, in Aroer & her townes, & in all the cyties ꝑ be a lōge by the coastes of Arnon, thze hūdzed yeres? why dydst thou not recouer them in all that space? Wherfore I haue not synned agaynst the. But thou doest me wronge, to warre agaynst me. Then the spyrete of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer to Gylead & to Manasses, & came to Mazphah that lieth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the childrē of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lord, and sayd: * If thou shalt delyuer the childzen of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that cometh oute of the dozes of my house against me, when I come home in peace, from the childrē of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and ☞ I wyll offer it vp for a burnt offering: And so Jephthah went vnto the childzen of Ammon to fyght wt thē. me swetnes. And they coulde not in iij. dayes expounde the ryddle. And when the seuenth daye was come, they sayde vnto Samsons
* wyfe: flater thyne husband, * (and persuade hym) D that he maye declare vs the ryddle, lest we burne the & thy fathers house with fyer. Haue ye called vs hyther, to make vs beggers?
And Sāsons wyfe wepte before hym * (com-playned) and sayde: Surely thou hatest me and louest me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle vnto the chyldren of my folcke, and hast not tolde it me. And he sayde vnto her: Be-holde, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and shall I tell it the?

And Samsons wyfe wepte before hym
vij. dayes, whyle the feast lasted. And ỳ. vii.

of garmentes vnto them whych expounded
the ryddle. And he was wroth, and wēt vp to hys fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companyons, that he had taken vnto hym.

¶ The xv. Chapter.

¶ Samson tyeth fyrebrandes to fore tayles. With the Jawe bone of an asse he killeth a thousand men. Out of a great tothe in the Jawe God geueth hym water.

A BUt it chaunced within a whyle after, euen in the tyme of whete haruest, that Sāson visited hys wyfe
with a kydde, sayenge: I wyll go vnto my wyfe into the chaumber: but her father wolde not suffre hym to go in. And her father sayd: I thought that thou haddest hated her, and therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy cōpanions. Is not her yonger syster fay-rer then she? Take her in steade of the other Samson sayd vnto them: Now am I more blameles then the Philistines, and therfore
wyll I do them displeasure.

And Samson went out, and caught thre hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrādes, and fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyer brand in the myddes betwene two tayles. And whā he had set the brandes of fyer, he sent thē out ☞ * (that they myght ronne abrode, which went immediatly) * ☞ into the stāding corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp both the reped corne and also the standing, with the vyneyardes and olyues. B
Then the Philistines sayde: who hath done
thys? And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnite, because he had taken hys wyfe, and geuen her to hys cōpanyon. And the Philistines came vp and burnt her and her father with fyer.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Though ye haue done this, yet will I be auenged of you, and then I wyll cease. ☞ And he smote * ☞ them legge and thygh with a myghtye pla-
ge. And then he went and dwelt in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp, & pitched in Juda, and laye in * (a place, that was afterwarde * ☞ called) Lehi * (that is a Jawe bone, wher theyr hoost was ☞ scatered abrode.) And the mē of Juda sayde, why are ye come vp vnto vs? They answered: to binde Samson are we come vp, and to do to hym as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went downe to the caue C
of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson:
wottest thou not that the Philistines are ru lers ouer vs? Wherfore then hast thou done thus vnto vs? He answered them * as they * Leu.xxiiij.c
dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto them. Judi.i.b

And they sayd vnto hym agayne: we are come downe to bynde the, and to delyuer the into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson sayd vnto them: swere vnto me * (and pro- * mes me) that ye shall not fal vpon me your sel-ues. They answered hym, sayenge: No, but we wyll bynde the, and delyuer ỳ vnto their handes: But we wyll not kyll the. And they bounde him with two new cordes, & brought hym from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines showted agaynst him.
And the spyrete of the Lord came vpon hym,
and the cordes that were vpon hys armes,
became as flaxe that was burnt w fyer, for the bandes lowsed from of hys handes. And he founde a rotten Jawe bone of an asse, and put forth hys hande, and caught it, and slue
a thousande men therwith.

And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of D an asse, haue I made heapes of them: with the Jawe of an asse haue I slaine a thousand men. And when he had left speakyng, he cast awaye the Jawe bone out of hys hand, and called the place: ☞ Ramath Lehi. * (That is ☞ * by interpretacyon the lyftynge vp of the Jawe bone.) And he was sore a thyrst, and called on ỳ Lorde, &
sayde: Thou hast geuen this great victory, in the hande of thy seruaũt. And now I must dye for thyrst, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and ther came water therout. And when he had dronke, his spyrete came agayne, and was refreshed, wherfore the name therof was called, vnto this daye, the well of the caller on, which came of the Jawe. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines, twenty yeares.

¶The.xvj.Chapter.

¶Samson lyfteth vp the gates of Gaza. He was decrawed by Dalila: He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines, and dyeth with them.

A *Other wise called Gaza.

Then wente Samson to Azath, *and sawe ther an harlot, and went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites, sayeng: Sãson is come hither. And they went aboute, & layde a wayte for hym there, all nyght in the gate of ỹ cytie, and were still all the nyght, saying: in the mornyng whan it is daye, we shall kyll hym. And Samson toke his rest tyll mydnyght, & arose at mydnyght, and toke the dores of the gate of the cyte, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, with the barre and all, and put them vpõ his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the top of an hyll, that is before Hebron.

And after thys, it fortuned, that by the ryuer of Sorek, he loued a woman, called Dalila: vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her: perswade hym, and se wherin his great strength lieth, and by what meane we maye ouercome him that we maye bynde him, to bryng him vnder, and euery one of vs shal geue the a leuen hundred syluerlynges.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strength lieth, and how thou myghtest be bounde, and brought vnder. Samson answered vnto her: If they bynde me with seuen grene withes ỹ were neuer dryed, I shalbe weake as other men. And then ỹ lordes of ỹ Philistines brought her seuen wythes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bounde hym therwith. Notwithstandynge she had men lyinge in wayte with her in the chaũbre. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpõ the Samson. And immediatly he brake the cordes as a strynge of towe *(that is twyned) breaketh, when it fealeth fier. And so his strẽgth was not knowen.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, ỹ hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. Now therfore tel me, wherwith ỹ mightest be bounde. He answered her: yf they bynde me wyth new ropes that neuer were occupyed, I shal be weake, and as another man. Dalila therfore toke new ropes, and bounde hym therwith, and sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers of wayte in the chamber, & he brake them from of hys armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: hytherto thou hast begyled me, and tolde me lyes: yet tell me, how thou myghtest be bounde. He sayde vnto her: If thou plattedest the.vij. lokes of my head with an heare lace. And she fastened them with a nayle, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpõ the Sãson. And he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked away the nayle, that was in the plattinge with the heare lace. And she sayde vnto hym agayne: How canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me? beholde, ỹ hast mocked me thys thre tymes, & hast not tolde me, wherin thy greate strength lyeth. And as she laye vpon him with her wordes continually vexyng of hym, hys soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his hert, & sayd vnto her: *there neuer came raser vpon myne heed, for I haue bene an abstayner *(that is to saye consecrate) vnto God, euen from my mothers wõbe: therfore whan I am shauen, my strength wyll go from me, and I shall waxe weake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all his hert, she sent and called for the lordes of ỹ Philistines, sayẽg: come vpyet this once, for he hath shewed me all hys herte.

*Nume.vj. Iud.xiij.b

Then the lordes of the Philystines came vp vnto her, & brought ỹ money in their hãdes. And she made him slepe vpon her knees *(& to laye hys heed downe in her lappe,) & she sent for a man, & he dyd shaue of the seuen lockes of his heed, & begãne to vexe him, & his strẽgth was gone frõ him. And she sayde: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, & sayd: I wil go out now as at other tymes before, & shake my selfe, & he wist not ỹ the Lorde was departed frõ him.

But the Philistines toke hym, and put oute his eyes, & brought hym downe to *Azath, and bounde hym with two fetters of brasse. And he dyd grynde in the prison house, howbeit the heare of hys head beganne to growe agayne after that he was shauen.

*Dy.G.ii.

Then the lordes of ỹ Philistines gathered them together, for to offer a solempne offrynge vnto Dagon theyr God, and to reioyse: for they sayde, oure God hath delyuered Samson oure enemy into oure handes. And when the people sawe hym, they praysed theyr God: for they sayde: our God hath delyuered into oure handes oure enemy, and destroyer of oure countreye, whych slue manye of vs. And when theyr hertes were merye, it fortuned, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh. And they fette Samson oute of the prison house, and he played before them, and they set hym betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladd that leed him by the hãd: sett me that I maye touche the pyllers, that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to them. And the house was full of men & women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the roufe a thre thousande men and wemen, that beheilde whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lord, and sayde: O Lorde God, thyncke vpon me, and strengthen me, at thys tyme onlye, O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caught the two middel pillers on which the house stode, and on which it was borne vp, the one i hys ryght hande, and the other in hys lefte, and sayde: my soule shall dye with the Philistines, and bowed them with all hys myghte. And the house fell vpon the lordes and vpon all the people that were therin. And so the deed which he slewe at hys deeth, were moo then they whych he slewe in hys lyfe. And then hys brethren and al the house of hys father came downe, & toke him vp, & brought hym, and buryed hym betwene Zarah and Eskahol, in the buryinge place of Manoah hys father. And he iudged Israell twentye yeares.

¶The.xvij.Chapter.

¶Of Micah whose mother made hym an Idoll of syluer.

A There was a man in mount Ephrai named Micah, and he sayde vnto hys mother: the leuen hundreth sylueryynges that were taken frõ the, aboute which thou curssedst, & spakest it in myne eares. Behold, the syluer is with me, I toke it awaye. And hys mother sayde: blessed be ỹ my sonne, in ỹ Lorde. And when he had restored the leuen hũdred sylueryynges to his mother agayne, his mother sayde: I vowed the syluer vnto ỹ Lord of myne hande for the my sonne: that ỹ shuldest make a grauen ymage and an ymage of 3 metall. Now therfore, I wyll geue it the agayne. And when he restored the moneye againe vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundreth sylueryynges, and gaue them to a goldsmyth, which made therof a grauẽ image, and a ymage of metall, and it was in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and *Theraphim, *(That is to saye, a garment for the ¶ preste, and Idols.) and fylled the hande of one of
*Iud.xviij.a and.xxi.d hys sonnes which became hys preaste. *In those dayes there was no kyng i Israel, but euery man dyd that which was good in hys awne eyes.

And there was a yonge mã out of Bethlehem Juda, of the kynred of Juda: which yonge man was a Leuite, & solourned ther. And the man departed oute of the cytie of Bethlehẽ Juda, to go dwel where he coulde fynde a cõuentẽt place. And he came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayde vnto hym. whence commest thou? The leuite answered hym. I D am of Bethlehẽ Juda, & go to dwell where I maye fynde a place *(and where I maye syre it to be for my profyt.) And Micah sayd agayne vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preste. And I wyll geue the ten sylueryynges by yeare, two garmentes, and thy meate and dryncke. *

And the Leuite was content to dwell wt the man, and was vnto hym as one of hys awne sonnes. And Micah cõsecrated ỹ hãde of the leuite, and the yonge man became his preste, and was i the house of Micah. Then sayde Micah: now I am sure, that the Lord wyll be good vnto me, seynge: I haue a leuyte to my preste.

¶The.xviij.Chapter.

¶The children of Dan take the goddes and the preste of Micah away. They destroye Lais, & after bylde it agayne.

In those dayes *there was no kyng in Israell. And in those dayes the A tribe of Dan sought then an enheritaunce to dwell in *for vnto ỹ *Iud.xviij.b
tymes there fel none enheritaũce vnto them amonge the trybe of Israell. *Iosua.xix.b
And the children of Dan sent of their kinred fyue actyue men, in feates of warre oute of theyr coastes, euen out of Zaraah and Eskahol, to vewe the lande and searche it out, and sayde vnto thẽ: go, and searche out the lãde. Which whan they came to mount Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah, they lodged ther. And whẽ they were in the house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of ỹ yonge mã the leuite: and when they turned in thyther, they sayde vnto hym: who brought the hyther? what makest thou in thys place? and what hast thou here? And he answered them: thus and thus dealed Micah with me, and hath 25 hired me, and I am become hys preste. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: Aske cõsell now of God, ỹ we maye knowe, whether the waye whych we go, shalbe prosperous, or no. And the preste sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lorde gydeth your waye which ye go.

Then the fyue mẽ departed, and came to Lais, and sawe the people that were therin, how they dwelt careles, after the maner of ỹ Sydons, styll, and without castynge of parelles: and that no man made any trouble in the land, or vsurped any dominiõ, but were farre from the Sidons, and had no bulines with other men. And they came vnto theyr brethren, to Zaraah & Eskahol. And their brethren sayd vnto them: what haue ye done?

And they answered: Aryse, that we maye

*Num.xiij.a go vp agaynst them, * for we haue sene the lande: surely a very good one. And do ye sytt stil: be not slouthful to departe: But come to conquere the lande. (it shalde no labour.) Yf ye wyll go, ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no parelles, & it is a very large coūtre: which God hath geuen into your handes. It is also a place, which doth lacke nothynge ỹ is in the worlde.

And there departed thence of the kynred of the Dannites, euen out of Zaraah and Esthaol, syxe hundred men appoynted with instrumētes of warre. And they went vp, and pitched in Kariath Jarim which is in Juda. Wherfore they called the place, the hoost of Dan, vnto thys daye: and it is on the backsyde of Kariath Jarim. And they went thēce vnto mount Ephraim, & came to the house of Micah. Then answered the fyue men that went to spye out the countre of Lais, & sayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not ỹ there is in these houses an Ephod, & Theraphim, a grauen ymage, & an ymage of metall: Now therfore consydre what ye haue to do.

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of ỹ yong man the Leuite, euen vnto the house of Micah, and saluted hym peasably. And the syxe hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre, which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode by ỹ enterynge of the gate. And the fyue men that wēt to spye out the lande, went in thyther and toke the kerued Image, and the Ephod, Theraphim, ād the ymage of metall. And the preste stode in the enterynge of the gate with the syxe hundred men ỹ were armed vnto batayl, whyle the other wente into Michas house, and fet the kerued ymage, the Ephod, Theraphim, and the ymage of metall. Then sayd ỹ preste vnto thē: what do ye? They answered hym: holde thy peace, & laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth, and come with vs, to be oure father & preste. Is it better for the to be a preste vnto the house of one man, then to be a preste vnto a tribe or a kynred in Israell? And the preste was glad and toke the Ephod, and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, & went with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the chyldren, the catell and their other substaunce before them.

And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men that were in ỹ houses, and in Micahs house, made an outecrye, and folowed after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Micah: what ayleth the, ỹ thou makest an outcrye? And he sayd: ye haue taken awaye my goddes whych I made, and also the preste, ād go your wayes with thē. And what haue I more? how then saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the chyldren of Dan sayde vnto hym: let not thy voyce be heard amonge vs, lest angrye fellowes rūne vpon the, and thou loose thy lyfe with the lyues of all thyne housholde. And so the chyldren of Dan wente theyr wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to stronge for hym, he turned and went backe vnto hys house agayne.

And they toke the thynges which Micah had made, & the preste which he had, & came vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at reast & without mistrust, & smote them with the edge of the swerd, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no mā to helpe, because Lais was farre from Sidon, & they had no medelyng with any other man. And the cyte stode in the valey that lyeth by Bethrehob. And they bylt thē there a cytie, & dwelt therin. *And called it Dan, after ỹ name of Dan their father which was borne vnto Israell. Howbeit, in very dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynninge. *Jos.xix.d

And the chyldren of Dan set them vp the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and hys sonnes were the prestes in ỹ tribe of Dan * vntyll they were caryed awaye out of the land captyue. And they sett them vp the kerued ymage which Micah made, all the whyle ỹ the house of God was in Silo. *Jud.xviij.g

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ Of the Leuyte, whose wyfe was vyllanously kylled in Gibea.

IT chaunced in those dayes, when there was no kyng in Israel, that a certayn leuyte soiourned on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Juda: and hys concubyne played the whore by hym, and went awaye from hym, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husbāde arose, and went after her, to speake frendely vnto her, and to bring her home agayne, haupnge hys ladd with hym, and a couple of asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioysed of hys comyng. And his father in lawe the damosels father kept him. And the Leuyte aboade with hym thre dayes, and so they dyd eate and drincke, and lodged there.

The fourth daye whan they arose erly in the morynge, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damoselles father sayd vnto his sōne in lawe: confort thyne hert with a morsell *of bread, ād then go your waye. And they sate downe, and dyd eat and drincke both of them togeather. And the damoselles father sayd vnto the man: Be cōtent I praye the, & tarye all nyght, and let thyne herte be mery. And when the man stode vp to departe, hys father in lawe cōpelled him to turne againe: and to *Gen.xviij.

and to tarie all nyght there. And he rose vp erlye the fyfth daye to departe, and the damoselles father sayde, comfort thine herte: & they taried vntyll after middaye. And they dyd eate bothe of them to geather.

¶ And when the man arose to departe with his concubine and his ladd, his father in law the damoselles father sayde vnto hym: beholde, the daye gothe fast awaye & draweth towarde euen, tary all night: at ỹ least waye tarye this daye here, that thyne hert maye be merye. And to morowe get you erlye vpon your waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tent. Neuerthelater the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, (which is Jerusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his ladd with him. And when they were fast by Jebus the daye was sore spent, and the younge man sayd vnto his master: come I praye the and let vs turne in, into this cytie of the Jebusites and lodge all night there. His master answered him: we will not turne ito a strāge cytie that are not of the chyldrē of Israel: we wyll go forth to Gibea. And he sayd vnto hys ladd, go forwarde, and we shall come to one of these places to lodge all night ether in Gibea or in Rama. And they went forwarde vpon theyr waye, and the sonne wēt downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gibea which belongeth to them of Ben Jamin. And they turned thither warde to go in, and lodge all nyght in Gibea. And when he came, he sat him downe in a streat of the cytie, for there was no man that toke them to lodginge. And behold, there came an olde man from his worke, out of the felde at euē, which was also of mount Ephraim, & dwelt as a straunger in Gibea. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Jemim. And whē he had lyfte vp his eyes, he sawe a wayefaring man in the streate of the cytie. And the olde man sayde: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? He answered him: we come from Bethlehem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, and I wēt to Bethlehem Juda, and go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no mā that receaueth me to house. We haue strawe and prauender for oure Asses, and bread ād wyne for me and thy handmayde, and for the ladd that is with thy seruaunt, and we lacke nothynge.

¶ The olde man sayd: peace be with the, all that thou lackest shalt thou fynde with me: onelye abyde not in the streate all nyght, and so he brought him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his Asses. And they washed their fete, and dyd eate and drynck. And as they were makynge their herttes merye, beholde, the men of the cytie which were wicked, set the house roūde aboute, and thrust at the dore, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bynge forth the man that came into thyne house, that we maye knowe hym.

And * the man of the house, the olde man went out, and sayde vnto thē, Oh, naye my brethrē, do not so wickedlye, seyng that this man is come into myne house: do not so vnmete a thing. Beholde, here is my daughter a mayden, and this mannes concubine, them I wyll bringe out now vnto you, and hūble them, and do with them what semeth you good: but vnto this man, do not so abhomynable a thinge. But the men wolde not herken to him. And the man toke his concubine, and brought her out vnto thē, which knewe her, and abused her, all the nyght, euen vnto the mornynge. And when the daye beganne to springe, they let her go. *Gene.xix.b

And then came the woman in the dawnyng of the daye, ād fell downe at the doore of the mannes house, where her Lorde was, tyll it was daye. And her Lorde arose vp in the mornyng, and opened the dores of ỹ house, and went out to go hys waye. And beholde, the woman, euen his concubine laye a longe before the dore of the house, & her handes stretched out vpon the threshold. And he * (thinkyng her to haue bene aslepe) sayde vnto her: vp and let vs be goynge. But she answered not. Then the man * (perceauyng that she was dead) toke her vp vpon an Asse, and stode vp, and gat him vnto his awne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a knyfe, & caught hys concubine, and deuided her with the bones into twelue peces, and sent her into all quarters of Israell. And all that sawe it, sayde: there was no soche dede done or sene sence the chyldrē of Israel cā out of Egipt vnto this daye, * consyder the matter, take aduisement, and saye youre myndes.

¶ The.xx. Chapter

¶ The batell of the Israelites agaynst the tribe of Ben Jamin for the Leuites wyfe which was kylled.

THen all the chyldrē of Israel went out: and the congregacyon was gathered togeather as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Berseba and vnto the lande of Gilead, vnto the Lorde & in Mizpa, and there stode folke out of al quarters and of all the tribes of Israell, in the congregacyon of the people of God, foure hundred thousande fote men that dre we swerdes. And whan the chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israell were gone vp to Mizpa, and had sayde. O ye chyldren of Israell, tell vs how this wickednesse happened. And the Leuite, the womans husbāde that was slayne, answered and sayde, I came into Gybea that is in Ben Jamin with my concubyne to lodge all nyght. And the men of Gibea rose agaynst me, and set the house rounde about vpon me by nyght, and thought to haue slayne me: and my concubyne haue they so forced, that she is deed. And I toke my concubyne, and cutt her in peces, and sent her thorow out all the landes of the enheritaunce of Israell. For they haue committed abhominacyon and folly in Israell. Beholde, ye are all chyldren of Israell. Ponder thys matter, and geue youre aduyse in the case.

And all the people arose, as it had ben one man, saying, there shall not a man of vs go to his tent, nether turne into his house. But this shalbe it that we wyll do to Gibea: We will go vp by lotte agaynst it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thorowe out all the trybes of Israell, and an hundred of the thousande, and a thousande out of ten thousande, to fett vitayle for the people to make that they maye go agaynst Gibea Ben Jamin, because of all the abhominacyon, that they haue wrought in Israell. And so all the men of Israell gathered to geather agaynst the cytie, knyte to geather, as it had ben but one man. And the trybes of Israell sent men thorow all the tribe of Ben Jamin sayinge
*Josu.xxij.d *what wyckednesse is this that is happened amonge you? Now therfore delyuer vs the men, those chyldren of Belial which are in Gibea, that we maye slay them, and put awaye euell from Israell.

Neuerthelater the chyldren of Ben Jamin wolde not herke vnto the voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israell: but geathered them selues to geather out of the cyties vnto Gibea, to come out and fight agaynst the chyldren of Israell. And the chyldre of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme, out of ỹ cyties. xxvj. thousand men that drewe swerdes, besyde the enhabiters of Gibea, which were nombred seuen hundred chosen men. And amonge all these folke were seuen hundred left hãded men, which euery one coulde slyng stones at an heare breadeth, and not mysse. And the chyldren of Israell besyde Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundred
C thousande men that drew swerdes, ãd were all men of warre.

And the chyldren of Israell arose, & went vp to Bethel, & asked councell of God, who shulde begynne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin? And the Lord sayd, Juda shall begynne. And the chyldren of Israel stode vp erlye and beseged Gibea. And the men of Israell went out to battell agaynst Ben Jamin, and the men of Israel put them selues in araye to fyght agaynst thẽ, besyde Gibea. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out of Gibea, and destroyed of the Israelites that daye. xxij. thousande men, and D brought them to the erth.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israell plucked vp their hertes, and wẽt to agayne, ãd made batell in the same place where they dyd the fyrst daye. And the chyldren of Israel went vp, and wept before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lord, saying, shall we go agayne to battell agaynst the chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin oure brethren? And the Lord sayde: go vp agaynst thẽ. And the chyldrẽ of Israel came out agaynst the children of Bẽ Jamin the seconde daye. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin went agaynst them out of Gibea, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israell once agayne. xviij. thousande mẽ that drew swerdes euery man of them.

Then the chyldren of Israell and all the people went vp and cam vnto Bethell, and wepte and sat there before the Lord, and fasted the same daye vnto euẽ, & offred burntofferynges and peaceofferynges before the Lorde. And the chyldren of Israel asked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the apoyntmẽt of God, in those dayes. And ☞ Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytynge vpon it at that tyme, sayde: shall I get me vp to go out any moare to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shall I cease? The Lorde sayde: go, for to morowe I will delyuer thẽ into youre hãdes. And Israell sett layers awayte roũde about Gibea. And the chyldrẽ of Israel wẽt vp agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynst Gibea, as twyse before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynst ỹ people, and were drawen awaye from the cytie: And they beganne to smyte of the people deed (as twise before, by two hye wayes of which one gothe vp to Bethell ãd ỹ other to Gibea thorowe the felde) vpon a thyrtye men of Israell. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde. They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrst. But the chyldren of Israell sayde: let vs flye and plucke them awaye from the cytie, vnto the hye wayes.

And all the men of Israell rose vp out of their place, and put them selues in araye at Baal Thamar. And lyke wyse the layers in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of the medowes ỹ were aboute Gibea, & came agaynst Gibea: ten thousande chosen men out of all Israel, and there was a sore battell. But the other wist not that so great euyll was so nye them. And the Lorde plaged Ben Jamin before Israel, & the chyldren of Israel destroyed of the Beniamites the same daye. xxv. thousande and a hũdred
F men, that drue swerdes euerye one of them. And whan the chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin sawe that they were put to the worste, the men of Israel

Israel gaue rowme to the Beniamites, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte which they had layde besyde Gibea. And the layers in wayte hasted, and ranne vpon Gibea, and went and smote all the cytye with the edge of the swerde. And an apoyntment had the men of Israell from the layers in wayte that they shulde make a greate smoke ryse vp out of the cytie. And whan the men of Israel fledd in the battell Ben Jamin began to smyte deed of the chyldren of Israel, aboute a thyrtie parsonnes, and sayde: the other are put to the worsse before vs, as in the fyrst batell. But whan there began to aryse out of the cytie a pyller of smoke, the Beniamites loked backe: and beholde, the wastynge of the hole cytie began to ascende vpto heauen.

When the men of Israell also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abasshed: for they saw that euel approched them.
G And therfore they turned their backes before the men of Israel vnto the waye that leadeth to the wildernesse, but the men of warre ouertoke thẽ. And besyde that, they which came out of the cytie, destroyed them in the myddle of them. And thus they compassed the Beniamites aboute, and chased them to Menuha, and ouerranne them to Gibea on the east syde: and there were slayne of Ben Jamin. xviij. thousande, which were all mẽ of warre. And they turned and fledd to the wyldernesse warde, and vnto the rocke of Rymmon. And the other slue by the waye of the rest of them, fyue thousande men, and stycked vnto them, vntyll they cam to Gideom and slue two thousande men of them. So that all that were slayne that same daye o Ben Jamin were. xxv. thousande men that drue swerdes, which were all men of warre: onelye. vj. hundred men turned and fledd to the wyldernesse, vnto the Rocke of Rymmon, and abode there. iiij. monethes. And the men of Israell turned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, & smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cyties, bothe man and beast and all that came to hande, and sett on fyer all the cyties that they coulde come by.

¶ The enhabitoures of Gilead are vtterly destroyed.

AND euery man of Israel sware in Mizpa, sayinge: there shall none of vs geue hys daughter vnto any of Bẽ Jamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethell & abode there tyll euen before God, & lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept sore, and sayde. O Lorde God of Israel, why is thys chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be thys daye one trybe lackynge in Israell? And on the morow the people rose vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offered burntofferinges and peaceofferynges.

And the chyldren of Israell asked, who are they amonge all the tribes of Israel, that came not vp with the congregacyon vnto ỹ Lorde? For they had made a greate othe cõcernynge him that came not vp to the Lord to Mizpa, sayinge: he shall suerlye dye. And the chyldren of Israell had pytie on Ben Jamin theyr brethren, and sayde: there is one trybe cut of from Israell thys daye: what shall we do vnto the remnaunt of them, that they maye haue wyues? we haue swore by
B the Lorde, that we will not geue thẽ of oure daughters to wyues. And they sayde: Is there any of the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to Mizpa to the Lorde? And beholde, ther came none of the enhabitoures of Jabes Gilead vnto the hoost and congregacyon. For the people were wered: and beholde, there were none of the enhabiters of Jabes Gilead there. And they sent thether a multitude, euen. xij. thousande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded them, sayinge: go and smyte the enhabiters of Jabes Gilead with the edge of ỹ swerde, both wemen and chyldren. *And this is it that ye shall do: vtterlye destroye all the males and all the wemen that haue lyen by men. *Nu xxxi.c.
And they founde amõge ỹ inhabiters of Jabes Gilead foure hundred damoselles, virgines, that had knowen no man, by lyenge with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Silo, which is in the lande of Canaan.

And the hole congregatiõ sent and spake with the chyldren of Ben Jamin that were in the Rocke of Rymmon, and called peceablye vnto them: and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them wyues, which they had saued alyue of the wemen of Jabes Gilead. But they sufficed them not. And the people had compassyon on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And then the elders of the congregacyon, sayde: what shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seinge all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde: there must be an enheritaũce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not destroyed out of Israell: howbeit, we maye not geue them wyues of oure daughters. For the chyldren of Israell had swore, sayinge: cursed be he, that geueth a wyffe to Ben Jamin.

Then they sayde: beholde, there is a feast of the Lorde yearly in Sylo, which is on the northsyde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the waye

the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichem and south from Libanon. Therfore they cõmaunded the chyldrẽ of Ben Jamin, saying: go and lye in wayte in the vynyardes. And when ye se that the daughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vynyardes, and catch you euerye man a wyfe of the daughters of Ben Jamin. And whan theyr fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyll saye vnto them: haue pytie on vs for theyr sakes, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & neither haue ye geuen vnto thẽ, that ye shulde synne at this tyme.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd euen so: and toke them wyues accordynge to the nombre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto theyr enheritaunce, and repayred the cyties, and dwelt in them.

And the chyldrẽ of Israell departed thẽce at that tyme, and wẽt euery man to hys tribe, and to hys kynred, and went out from thence euery man to hys enheritaunce. * In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel: but euerye mã dyd ỹ which semed ryght in his awne eyes.

¶ Elimelec goeth with hys wyfe and chyldren into the lande of Moab.

A * IT fortuned, that * (in the dayes of a certayne iudge:) whẽ the Judges iudged, there fell a darth in the lande, and a certen mã of Bethlehem Juda went for to sojourne in the contreye of Moab: he and hys wyfe, and hys two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and the name of hys wyfe, Naomi: and the names of hys two sonnes were, Mahlon and Chilion, and they were Ephraites, out of Bethlehem Juda. And whẽ they came into the land of Moab, they contynued there. And Elimelec Naomies husband dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, which toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpha, and the others Ruth. And they dwelled there about a ten yere. And Mahlõ and Chilion dyed also euen both of them, and the woman was lefte desolate of her two sonnes and of her husbande. Then rode she vp with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had herde saye in the countrey of Moab, how that the Lorde had vysyted hys people, and geuen them bred. Wherfore she departed out of the place where she was, and her two daughters with her. And they went on theyr waye to returne vnto the lande of Juda. And Naomi sayde vnto her two daughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto your mothers house: and the Lord deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealt with the deed, and with me. And the Lorde geue you, that you maye fynde rest, ether of you in the house of her husbande. And whan she kyssed them, they lyft vp theyr voyce, ãd wepte, and sayde vnto her: we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. And Naomi sayde: turne agayne my daughters: for what cause wyll you go with me? Are ther any mo chyldren in my wombe, to be your husbandes? Turne agayne my daughters, and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbande. And yf I sayde, I haue hope, yf I toke a man also this nyght: yee and though I had all readye borne sonnes, wolde ye tarye after them, tyll they were of age? or wolde ye for thẽ so long refrayne from takynge of husbandes? Not so my daughters: for it greueth me moch for youre sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

And they lyft vp their voyces, ãd wepte agayne, & Orpha kyssed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abode styll by her. And Naomi sayde: se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her goddes: returne thou after her. And Ruth answered: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne frõ after the: for whether thou goest, I will go also, & where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwell: thy people shalbe my people, and thy God my God, where thou dyest, there wyll I dye, and there will I be buried. The Lord do so ãd so to me, yf ought but death onelye departe the and me asondre.

When she sawe ỹ she was stedfastly mynded to go with her, she lefte speakynge vnto her. And so they went both, vntyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noysed of thẽ thorow all the cytie, and the wemen sayd: is not this Naomi? And she answered thẽ: call me not Naomi * (that is to saye, bewtyfull) but call me Mara, * (that is to saye, bytter.) for ỹ Allmyghtye hath made me verye bytter. I went out full: and ỹ Lorde hath brought me home agayne emptie. Why then call ye me Naomi: seynge the Lord hath hũbled me, and the allmightie hath brought me vnto aduersyte? And so Naomi

Naomi with Ruth the Moabitesse her daughter in lawe returned out of the countreye of Moab, and came to Bethlehem, in the begynninge of barley haruest.

¶ Ruth gathereth corne in the feldes of Booz.

A AND Naomis husbãd had a kinsman of strength, and myght, (which was of the kynredd of Elimelec) named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Naomi: let me go to the felde, ãd geather eares of cornb * (such as the reapers leaue) after any man in whose syght, I fynde grace. And she sayde vnto her: go my daughter. And she went, and came to the felde, and geathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the same felde pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, and sayd vnto the reapers: the Lorde be with you. And they answered him: the Lorde blesse the. Thẽ sayd Booz vnto his younge man that stode by the reapers. Whose damosell is this? And the younge man that stode by the reapers, B answered, and sayde: it is the Moabityshe damosell, that came with Naomi out of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde vnto vs: Oh, let me lease & geather after the reapers, the eares that remayne: and so she came, and hath continued euen from the morowe vnto now, saue that she taried a litle in ỹ house.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest ỹ my daughter: go to no nother felde to geather, nether go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens. Let thine eyes be on the felde that they reape, and go thou after the maydens. Haue I not charged the young men, that they shal do ỹ no hurt? Moreouer when thou art a thyrst, go vnto the vessels, and drinck of that which the laddes haue drawẽ.

*ge.xxiiij.a Then she fell on her face and * bowed her selfe to ỹ grounde, and sayd vnto him: how is it that I haue founde grace in thine eyes, ãd that thou shuldest knowe me, seing I am an allaunt?

C And Booz answered and sayde vnto her: all is tolde ãd shewed me, that thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe, sence ỹ death of thyne husbande, how thou hast lefte thy father and thy mother, and ỹ lande where thou wast borne, ãd art come vnto a naciõ which thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lord quyte thy worcke, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lorde God of Israell, vnder whose wynges thou art come to abyde. Thẽ she sayde: let me fynde fauoure in thy syghte my Lorde, thou that hast conforted me, and spoken hartely vnto thy mayde, which yet am not like vnto one of thy maydens. Booz sayde vnto her agayne: in tyme of refeccyon come thou hither, and eate of the breed, and dypp thy soppe in the vinegre. And she sate downe by ỹ reapers, & he reached her * parched corne: of the which she dyd eate, ãd was suffised, and lefte parte. And when she was rysen vp to gather, Booz commaunded hys young mẽ, saying: let her gather euẽ amonge the heapes, and forbydde her not. And leaue her some of the sheues for the nonce, and let it lye, ỹ she maye gather it vp, * (without shame) * and rebuke her not. And so she geathered in the felde, vntyll euen, and threshed that she had geathered, and it was in measure vpon an Epha * (that is three bushels) of barleye. And she toke it vp, and went into the cytie: and whan her mother in lawe had sene what she had gathered, she plucked out also, & gaue to her that she had reserued, whẽ she had eaten ynough. And her mother in lawe sayd vnto her: where hast thou gathered to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he, that knewe ỹ. And she shewed her mother in lawe how she had wrought with him, and sayde: the mannes name with whom I wrought to daye is Booz. And Naomi sayd vnto her daughter in lawe: blessed be he of the Lorde, for he ceasseth not to do * good to the lyuing and to the deed. And Naomi sayde agayne vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, ãd of oure nert kynne. And Ruth the Moabite sayde: he sayde vnto me also. Thou shalt be w my young men, vntyll they haue ended all my haruest. And Naomi answered vnto Ruth her daughter in lawe: it is best my daughter that thou go out with hys maydens, that they fall not vpon the in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, to gather, vnto the ende of barley haruest and of whete haruest also: and dwelt with her mother in lawe.

A WHen Naomi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my daughter, shal I not seke rest for the, that thou mayst prosper? And is not Booz oure kynsman, with whose maydens thou wast? Beholde, he wenoweth barleye to nyght in the threshynge floure: washe thy selfe therfore, and anoynt the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and gett the downe to the barne. But let not a man knowe of the, vntyll he haue leaft eatynge and drynckyng. And when he goeth to slepe, marcke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then go and lyfte vp the clothes, that are on his fete, and laye the downe there, and so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered her: all that thou byddyst me, I wyll do. And so she went downe vnto the barne, and dyd accordynge B to all that her mother inlawe bade her. And when Booz had eaten & dronken, and made

made him merye, and was gone in, to lye downe beside the heape of corne, she came softlye, and lifte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe. And at mydnight the man was afrayde and groped. And beholde: a woman laye at his fete. And he sayde: what art thou? she answered: I am Ruth thine hãd mayde, spreade thy wynge ouer thine hand mayde, for thou art the next of the kynne.

¶ He sayd: blessed be ỹ in the Lorde my daughter, for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the later ende, then at the beginnynge, in as moche as thou folowedest not younge men, whether they were poore or riche. And now my daughter feare not, I will do to the all ỹ thou requirest, for all the cytie of my people doth knowe, that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy next kynne: howbe it, there is one nyer then I. Tary this night. And when morynyng is come, yf he will marye the, it is good, so let him do. But and yf he will not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth I will haue the: lye still vntill ỹ morning. And so she laye at his fete vntill the morninge. And she arose vp before one coulde knowe another. And he sayde: let no man knowe, that there came any woman D into the barne. And he sayde agayne: bringe thy mãtell that thou hast vpon the, and holde it vp. And whan she helde it vp, he mette in sixe measures of Barleye, ãd layed it on her. And she gatt her into the cytie: and whã she came in to her mother in lawe, she sayde: how is it with ỹ my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And sayde also: these sixe measures of barlye gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not come emptie vnto thy mother in lawe. Then sayd she, my daughter, syt still, vntill ỹ knowe how the matter will chaunce. For the man wyll not be in reast, vntill he haue fynyshed the thinge this same day.

¶ Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whom he begetteth Obed.

A THen went Booz vnto the gate ãd satt him downe there: ãd beholde, the kynsmã of which Booz spake, cãm by. Unto whom, he sayde: come and sytte downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in, and sate downe. And he toke ten mẽ of the elders of the citie, and sayd: sytte downe here. And they sat downe. And he sayde vnto the kynsman: Naomi that is come agayne out of the * Leui.xxv.d cõtreye of Moab * will sell a parcell of lande, which was oure brother Elimelecs. And Iere xxxii.d. I thought to do the to wete, and bid the bye it before the enhabitoures and elders of my people. Yf thou be disposed to redeme it, do: but and yf thou wilt not pourchase it, then tell me, ỹ I maye knowe. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I nexte the. And the other answered: I will pourchase it.

Then sayde Booz, what daye thou biest B the felde of the hand of Naomi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabite the * wyfe of * Deu.xxv.b the deed, to stere vp the name of the deed vpõ his enheritaũce. The kinsmã answered: I cãnot purchase it, for marringe of myne awne enheritaunce: take thou my right to the, for I cãnot purchase it. Now, this was the maner of olde tyme in Israell concerninge purches and chaunging, for to stablishe all thinge: that a man must plucke of his showe, ãd geue it his neyghboure, and this was a sure witnesse in Israell.

Therfore the kinsman sayde to Booz: Bye C it thou: and so drue of his showe. And Booz sayde vnto the elders and vnto all the people: ye are witnesses this daye, that I haue bought all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilions and Mahlons, of the hand of Naomi. And moreouer, Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchased to be my wyfe, to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his enheritaunce, and that his name be not put out from amonge his brethren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders sayde: we are wytnesses: the Lorde make the woman that is come into thyne house, lyke * Rahel ãd Lea, which * Gene.xxix. and xxx. twayne dyd builde the house of Israell: do thou also valeauntly in Ephrata, and be famouse in Bethlehem. Thy house be like ỹ house of Pharez * whõ Thamar bare vnto * Gene.xxxviii.c. Juda, euen of the sede which the Lorde shall geue the of this younge woman.

And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his D wyfe. And whã he wẽt in vnto her, the Lorde gaue, that she cõceaued, and bare a sonne. And the wemen sayde vnto Naomi: blessed be the Lorde, the which hath not left ỹ without a kinsman, to haue a name in Israell, ãd that shall bring thy life agayne, and cherishe thine olde age. For thy daughter in lawe which loueth the, hath borne vnto him: and she is better to the then seuen sonnes. And Naomi toke the childe, ãd layed it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. of hostes, yf thou wylt loke on the trouble of thine handmayde, & remẽbre me, and not forget thine handmayde, but geue vnto thine hãdmayde a mãchylde: I wyll geue him vnto ỹ Lord all ỹ dayes of his lyfe, * & there shall no raser come vpõ his heed. And as she cõtinued praying before ỹ lord, it fortuned, ỹ Eli marked her mouth. For Hanna spake i her herte, & her lyppes did but moue onely, but her voyce was not heard: & therfore Eli thought she had bene droncken, and Eli sayd vnto her: How lõg wylt ỹ be dronken? put awaye from the, the wyne ỹ thou hast. Hanna answered and sayde: not so my Lord, I am a woman of a sorowfull herte: I haue droncke nether wyne nor stronge drynck, but haue * powred out my soule before ỹ Lord. Count not thyne handmayde to be lyke a daughter of Belial, for out of the aboundance of my heuynes & greafe: haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered her agayne: & sayde go in peace: ỹ God of Israell graunt the thy peticyon, ỹ thou hast asked of hym. She sayde: let thyne hãdmayde fynde grace i thy sight And so ỹ woman went her waye, & dyd eat, & loked no more so sadde. And they rose vp earlye, & worshipped before ỹ lord, & thẽ returned, & came to theyr houle to Ramath. And whã Elkana knew Hãna his wyfe, ỹ Lord remẽbred her: for in processe of tyme it came to passe, ỹ she cõceaued, & bare a sonne, & called his name Samuel (sayeng:) because I haue asked him of ỹ Lord. And Elkana & all his houle went vp to offer vnto the Lord, the offeryng due for ỹ feast, & also his vowe: Neuertheles, Hãna wẽt not vp, but sayde vnto her husbãde: I wyll tarye vntill ỹ ladde be wened, & then I wyll bring him ỹ he maye apeare before ỹ Lord, & there abide for euer. Elkana her husband answered her: do what semith ỹ best: tarye at home, vntill ỹ hast wened hi, & I beseech ỹ Lord, to make good his sayeg. And so the womã abode, & gaue her sonne lucke, vntill she wened him. And whẽ she had wened him she toke hym with her, with thre bullockes & an Epha of floure, & a bottel of wyne, and brought him vnto ỹ house of ỹ Lord in Silo, & the child was yet but tẽder of age. And they slue a bullocke, & brought in ỹ ladd to Eli, and she sayd: Oh my Lord: as truly as thy soule lyueth my Lord, I am the womã ỹ stode before the here, prayeng vnto ỹ Lorde. For this ladde I prayed, and the Lorde hath geuẽ me my desire, whych I asked of him: and therfore I haue geuen hym vnto the Lord, as long as he is mete for the lorde. And they worshipped the Lorde there.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

AND Hanna prayed and sayde: myne herte reioyseth in ỹ Lord, and myne horne is exalted in the Lorde. My mouth is wyde open ouer myne enemyes, for I reioyse in thy saluacyō. There is none so holye as the Lord, for without the, is nothing. Nether is there any of strength as is oure God. Talke not to moche proudlye let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the lorde is a God of knowledge, and his purposes come to passe. The bowe with the mightye men are broken: and they that were weake, haue girded thē selues wt strength. They that were full, haue hired out them selues for breed, & they that were hongrye, ceasse so to be, tyll the baren hath borne seuen: & she ỹ had many chyldrē, is wared feble. * The Lord kylleth, and maketh alyue: bryngeth downe to the graue and fetcheth vp agayne. The Lorde maketh poore, & maketh ryche: bringeth lowe, and heyeth vp on hye. * He reyseth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp ỹ begger from the dong hyll: to sett them amōge princes, and to enherett thē with the seate of glorye. For the pillers of the erth are the lordes, and he hath sett the rounde worlde vpon thē. He wyll kepe the fete of hys sayntes, and the wycked shall kepe sylence in darcknesse, & * in his awne myght shall no mā be stroge. The lordes aduersaries shall be destroyed of hym: and out of heauē shall he thūder vpon euery one of thē. The lorde shall iudge the endes of the worlde, & shall gyue myght vnto his kynge, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkana wēt to Ramath to his house, & the ladd dyd mynistre vnto the lorde before Eli the preaste.

But the sonnes of Eli were chyldren of Belial, and knewe not the lord. And the Preastes made a lawe for ỹ people, ỹ whensoeuer any man offered any offerynge, the Preastes ladd came, while the flesshe was in sething, & a fleshoke wyth thre tethe in his hand, and thrust it into the pāne: ketle, caldren, or potte. And all that the flesshe hoke brought vp, that the Preaste toke awaye. And so they did vnto all ỹ Israelites, that came thyther to Silo. Yee & therto, before they burnt ỹ fatte, the Preastes ladd came and sayd to the man that offered: geue flesh that I maye dresse it for the Preaste, for he wyll not haue soddē flesshe of the, but rawe. And yf any man sayde vnto hym: let them burne the fatt according to the daye, & then take as moche as thine herte desyreth. The ladd wold answere him, yee, ỹ shalt geue it me now: and yf thou wylt not, I wyll take it with violence. And the synne of ỹ youngmen was very great before the Lorde. For men abhorred the offeryng of the Lorde.

But the child Samuel ministred before the Lorde, girded about wyth a lynen Ephod. Moreouer, hys mother made him a lytle coate, & brought it to him from yere to yere, whē she came vp with her husbande to offer the offeringe in the solempne feastes: and Eli blessed Elkana & his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seede of thys womā, for the petteyō that she asked of the lorde. And they went vnto their awne home. And the lorde visited hāna, so that she conceaued & bare thre sonnes & two daughters. And the chylde Samuel grewe before the lorde.

Eli was very olde, & herde all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the wemen ỹ wayted at the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & he sayde vnto them: why do ye soche thynges? For of all these people I heare euell reporres of you. Oh, naye my sonnes: for it is no good repoze that I heare, how that ye make the lordes people to trespasse. If one mā synne agaynst another, daysemen maye be iudges: but yf a man synne agaynst the lorde who will be his dayseman? Notwythstandyng, they herkened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the lorde wolde slaye them. The chylde Samuel proffyted * and grew, and was in fauoure both with ỹ lorde, and also with men.

And there cam a man of God vnto Eli, & sayd vnto him: thus sayeth the lorde: dyd not I apeare vnto the house of thy father, whē they were in Egipte subiect vnto Pharaos house? And I chose thy father out of all ỹ trybes of Israel to be my Preaste, for to offer vpon myne aultare, & to burne incense, * and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto ỹ house of thy father all the burnt offrynges of the chyldren of Israell. Wherfore treade ye downe my sacrifice and myne offeryng, which I commaunded to be made in the Tabernacle, & honorest thy chyldren aboue me, to make youre selues fatt of the first frutes of all the offerynges of Israel my people? Wherfore the lorde God of Israell sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father shuld walke before me for euer. But now the lorde sayeth: that be farre from me: for them that worshipe me, I will worshipe, & they ỹ despyse me, shall come to shame. Beholde, the dayes come, ỹ I will cut of thyne arme, & the arme of thy fathers house, ỹ there shal not be an elder i thine house. And thou shalt se thyne enemye in the tabernacle of ỹ lorde, & in all that welthe which God shal giue Israell, & there shall not be an elder in thyne house for euer. Neuerthelesse, I wyll not destroye all the males that come of the fro myne aultare. But to make thyne eyes dase, & to make thyne hert melte. And all they they ỹ be multiplyed in thyne house, * shall dye, yt they be men.

And this shalbe a signe vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes * Hophny & Phineches: euen in one daye they shall dye both. And I wyll stere me vp a faythfull preste, ỹ shall do accordynge to my herte and mynde: And I will buylde him a sure house. And he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they ỹ are left in thyne house, shall come, and crouch to him for a lytle pece of syluer & a cake of bread, & shall saye: put me (I praye the) in one offyce or other amonge the prestes, that I maye eate a morsell of bread.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde calleth Samuel thre tymes.

AND the chylde Samuel mynistred vnto the Lorde before Eli: & ỹ worde of the Lorde was precious in those dayes, nether was there any open vysyon. And it chaūsed at ỹ tyme, that Eli laye in his place, and hys * eyes begaune to ware dymme that he coulde not se. And yer the lāpe of God went out, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the tēple of the Lord, where the arcke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel, & he sayde, here am I, and he ran vnto Eli, & sayd: here am I, for ỹ calledst me. And he sayd: I called the not: go agayne, & slepe. And he went, and layde him downe to slepe. And the Lorde called once agayne: Samuel, & Samuel arose & went to Ely, & sayd, I am here, for thou dyddest call me. And he answered: I called ỹ not, my sonne. Go agayne, and take thy rest: Samuell knewe not yet the Lord, nether was ỹ worde of ỹ Lord yet opened vnto hym. And the Lorde went to, & called Samuel ỹ thyrd tyme. And he arose, & went to Eli, & sayde: I am here, for ỹ hast called me. And Eli perceaued ỹ the Lorde had called the chylde. Therfore, Eli sayde vnto Samuel: go, & lye downe: & yf he call the agayne, then saye, speake on Lorde, for thy seruaunt heareth. So Samuel went, & layed hym downe in hys place. And the Lord came, & stode, & called as before, Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered: speake on: for thy seruaunt heareth. And the Lord sayde to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thinge in Israel, ỹ both the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tyngle. In ỹ daye I wyll rayse vp agaynst Eli, all thynges whych I haue spoken concernynge his house: from the begynnyng to the endyng. I haue tolde him, * that I wyll iudge hys house for euer. For ỹ wickednes which he knoweth. For whē the people cursed hys sonnes for ỹ same wickednes, he hath not corrected thē. And therfore, I haue swore vnto the house of Eli, ỹ the wyckednesse of Elies house, shall not be purged wt sacrifyce nor offering for euer. Samuel laye tyll the mornynge, and opened the dores of the house of the Lorde.

And Samuel feared to shewe Eli the vysyon. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered: here I am. He sayde: what is that the Lorde hath sayde vnto the? I praye the, se thou hyde it not frō me. * God do so, & so to the, yf thou hyde any thyng from me, of all that he sayde vnto the. And Samuel tolde hym euery whytte, and hydd nothynge from hym. And he sayd: it is the Lorde, let him do what semeth hym best.

And Samuel grewe, & the Lorde was wyth him, & left none of hys wordes vnperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersabe wyst that faythfull Samuel was made the Lordes prophete. And the Lord appered agayne in Silo: for the Lorde opened hym selfe to Samuel in Silo, throrow the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

AND Samuel spake vnto all Israel. * And it fortuned that in those dayes the Philistynes came together to fyght. And Israel went out against the Philistynes to battayle, and pytched besyde the * helpe stone. And the Philistynes pytched in Aphek. And put them selues in araye against Israel. And whē they ioyned the battell, Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. And the Philistynes slue in araye alonge by the feldes, about a foure thousande men.

And when the people were come into their tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde cast vs downe this daye before the Philistines: let vs fetch the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of Silo vnto vs, ỹ whē it cōmeth amōge vs, it maye saue vs, oute of the hāde of oure enemy. And so the people sent to Silo, & fet frō thens the arcke of the appoyntmēt of the Lord of hoostes, which dwelleth betwene the cherubins. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni & Phinehes with the arcke of the appoyntment of God. And it fortuned, ỹ whē the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the hoost, all Israel showted a myghtie showte, so that the erthe rangge agayne.

And whā the Philistines herde the noyse of the showte, they sayd: what meaneth ỹ lōde of this mighty showt in ỹ host of ỹ Ebrues? And they vnderstode, howe that the arcke of the Lorde was come into the hoost: And the Philistines were afrayed, and sayde: God is come into the hoost. And they sayd agayne: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this: Wo vnto vs, who shall delyuer vs out of ỹ hande of these mighty Goddes? these are the Goddes that smote the Egyptians with so many plages in the wyldernes. Be stronge and quite youre selues lyke men, O ye Philistynes, that ye be no seruauntes vnto the

And the arcke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Eli, * Hophni, & Phinehes were deed. *j.Reg.ij.g And there ran a mā of Ben Jamin out of the araye, and came to Silo the same daye with his clothes rent & earth vpon hys heed. And when he came, Eli sate vpon a stole, and loked toward the waye: foz his hert feared foz the arcke of God. And when the mā came in to the cytie, and tolde it, all the cytie cryed.

And when Eli herde the noyse of the cryēg he sayd: What meaneth this noyse of the rumoz? And ꝑ mā came in haskely, & tolde Eli. Eli was .xcviij. yeare olde, and * hys syght fayled him ꝑ he could not se. *j.Reg.iij.a And the mā sayd vnto Eli: I am he ꝑ came out of the araye, & fled this daye out of the hoost. And he sayde: what thing is foztuned my sonne? The messenger answered & sayd. Israel is fled before the Philistines, & there is a greate slaughter chaunced amonge the people, & thy two sonnes, Hophni & Phinehes are deed, & the arcke of God is taken. And it foztuned that whan he made meneciō of the arcke of God, Eli fell from of hys stole backwarde vpon the thresholde of the gate, and hys necke brake, and he dyed: foz he was an olde man and heuye, and iudged Israel fourtye yeares.

And his daughter in lawe Phinches wife was wt childe & nye the byrthe. And whē she heard the tydinges ꝑ the arcke of God was taken, & ꝑ her father in lawe, & her husbād were deed, she bowed her self, and traueled, foz her paynes came vpon her. And about ꝑ tyme of her deeth, the wemen ꝑ stode aboute her, sayd vnto her: feare not, foz ꝑ hast bozne a sonne: but she answered not, noz regarded it. And she named the childe *Ichabod, sayinge: The glozy is departed frō Israel. Because the arcke of God was taken, & because of her father in lawe and her husbande. And she sayde agayne: The glozy is gone frō Israel, foz the arcke of God is taken. *The glozye is gone.

¶The.v.Chapter.

¶Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arcke.

A AND the Philistynes toke the arcke of God, and caryed it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, agayne the Philystynes toke the arcke of God, & bzought it into the house of Dagō, and sett it by Dagō. And when they of Asdod were vp in the nexte daye in the moznynge, beholde, Dagon laye vpon the erth before the arcke of the Lozde. And they toke Dagon, & set him in hys place agayne. And when they were vp erly in the nexte moznyng, beholde, Dagō laye vpō the groūde before the arcke of the Lozde, and his heed, & his two handes cut of vpon the thresholde, ꝑ only the shape of a fyzk was left on hym. And therfoze isit, ꝑ the ꝓestes of Dagō (nether any mā that cōmeth into Dagons house) treade not on the thresholde of Dagon in Asdod, vnto thys daye. But the hāde of the Lozde was heuy vpon thē of Asdod, & he destroyed thē, & smote thē wt emerodes, both Asdod & in all ꝑ coastes therof. B

¶(The dyllages also & the feldes in the myddes of the coūtre were ful, & ther came vp myce, & ther was a confusyon of great death in the cytie.) And when the men of Asdod sawe ꝑ it was so, they sayde: the arcke of the God of Israel shall not abyde here with vs, foz hys hāde is soze vpō vs & vpō Dagō oure God. They sent therfoze & gathered all the lozdes of ꝑ Philistines vnto thē, & sayde: what shall we do wt the arcke of the God of Israel? They answered: let ꝑ arcke of ꝑ God of Israel be caryed aboute vnto Gath. And they caryed the arcke of the God of Israel about. And it foztuned, that whē they had caryed it about, there was by the hande of the Lozde a myghtye greate noyse in the cytie, & he smote the men of the cytie both small and greate: & they had secrete diseases, ¶(And the Gethites toke councell, & made them selues pzeuye seates of skynnes.) Therfoze they sent the arcke of God to Akaron. And assone as the arcke of God, came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed out saying: they haue bzought the arcke of ꝑ God of Israel to vs, to slee vs and oure people. C D

And so they sent, and gathered togethet all the lozdes of the Philistines & sayde: send awaye the arcke of the God of Israel, to go agayne to his awne place, that it slee vs not and oure people. Foz there was greate lamē tacyon ouer the deade thozowout all the cytie, & the hāde of God was exceadynge soze there. And the mē that dyed not, were smytten wyth the Emerodes: and the crye of the cytie went vp to heauen.

¶The.vj. Chapter.

¶The kyne bzynge home the arcke wyth the rewardes.

THe arcke of the Lozd was in the coūtrey of the Philistines seuen monethes: and the Philistynes called foz the ꝓestes & ꝑ soth sayers, sayinge: what shall we do wyth the arcke of the Lozde? tell vs, where with we shall sende it home agayne? They sayde: Yf you sende the arcke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye. But rewarde it wt a tresspalle offerynge: and then ye shalbe whole, and it shalbe knowen to you, why hys hāde departeth not from you. A

Then sayde they: And what shalbe the tresspalle offeringe, whych we shall rewarde hym wt? They answered: fyne golden arsses and and .v. golden myce, accozding to the nombze of the lozdes of the Philistines. Foz it is one maner of plage on you all, & on your lozdes. Wherfoze ye shal make ymages like to your arsses, and ymages lyke to your myce ꝑ cozrupt the lande, and ye shall geue glozy vnto the God of Israel: that he maye take his hād from of you, and frō of your goddes, and frō of your lande.

B Wherfoze do ye harden your hertes as ꝑ Egiptians and Pharao hardened their hertes? which when he toke on agaynst thē, dyd they not let the people go, & they departed? Now therfoze, make a newe carte, and take two meiche kyne: on whose necke there hath come no yock. And tye the kyne to the carte, and bzing the calues home frō them. And take the arck of the Lozd, and laye it vpon the carte, and put the iewels of golde (which ye rewarde him with foz a synoffering) in a cofre by the side therof: and send it awaye, ꝑ it maye go. And yf ye se ꝑ he go vp by ꝑ waye of his awne coaste to Bethsames: then it is he ꝑ dyd vs this great euyll. Yf no, we shall knowe then, that it is not his hande ꝑ smote vs: but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the mē dyd euen so: and toke two kyne C that gaue mylke, and tyed them to the carte, and kept the calues at home, and they layde the arck of the Lozde vpon the carte and the cofer wt the myce of gold, and wt the ymages of their arsses. And the kyne toke ꝑ streyght waye to Bethsames, & went on ꝑ streyght waye: & as they wēt, lowed, & turned nether to the right hāde ner to the left. And the lozdes of the Philistines went after them, vntyll the bozders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reappynge their wheate heruest in the valey. And they lift vp their eyes, and spied the arck. And reioysed whē they sawe it. And the carte came into the felde of one Jehosua a Bethsamite, and stode still there. There was also a great stone. And they claue the wod of the carte & offred the kyne a burntoffring vnto ꝑ Lozd. And the Leuites toke downe the arck of the Lozde & the cofer that was with it, wherin the iewels of golde were: and put them on the great stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrificed burntsacrifice, and offered offeringes ꝑ same daye vnto the Lozde. And when D the fyue lozdes of the Philistines had seue it, they returned to Akarō the same daye. And these are the golden arsses which the Philistines gaue to amēdes foz a tresspace offering, to the Lozde: foz Asdod one: foz *Gaza one: foz Askalō one: foz Gath one: and foz Akaron one. And golden myce, accozdyng to the nombze of all the cityes of the Philistines, euen accozdynge to the fyue lozdes, both of walled townes and of townes vnwalled: euen vnto the greate stone of lamentacyon, *Of Aza.

wherō they set downe the arcke of the Lozd: which stone remaineth vnto this daye in the felde of Jehosua the Bethsamite. And he plaged the men of Bethsames, because they had sene the arcke of the Lozde. And he slue amonge the people fiftye thousande and thre scoze and ten men. And the other people lamēted, because the Lozde had slayne the people with so great a slaughter. Wherfoze the men of Bethsames sayde: who is able to stande before the Lozd so holy a God: and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the enhabiters of Kariath Jarim, saying: The Philistines haue bzought agayne the arke of the Lozde: come ye downe therfoze, and fet it vp to you.

¶The. vij. Chapter.

¶The arcke is bzought to Kariathiarim.

A AND so the men of Kariathiarim came, and fet vp the arck of the Lozd: and *bzought it into the house of Aminadab in Gibea, & ¶sanctifyed Eleazar his sonne, to kepe the arck of the Lozde: and whyle the arcke abode in Kariathiarim, the dayes multyplied, and ther passed ouer .xx. yeres, and the house of Israel lamented after the Lozde. And Samuel spake vnto all ꝑ house of Israel, saying: yf ye be come agayne vnto the Lozde with all your hertes, then *put awaye the straunge goddes and Astharoth from amonge you: and ꝓpare your hertes vnto the Lozde, and serue hym *only: foz he shall ryd you out of the hande of the Philistines. Then the chyldzen of Israel dyd put awaye Baalim and Astaroth, and serued the Lozde onely. And Samuel sayde: gather all Israel to Mizpa, and I wyll ꝓaye foz you vnto the Lozde. And they gathzed together to Mizpa, and dzewe water: and powzed it out before the Lozde, & fasted the same daye and sayde there: we haue synned against the Lozde. And Samuel iudged the chyldzen of Israel in Mizpa. Whē the Philistines heard ꝑ the chyldzen of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, ꝑ lozdes of ꝑ Philistines wēt vp against Israel. And when the chyldzen of Israel heard ꝑ they were afrayed of ꝑ Philistines, & the chyldzen of Israel saide to Samuel: ceasse not to crye vnto the Lozde oure God foz vs, that he maye saue vs out of the hād of the Philistines. *And Samuel toke a suckyng lambe, and offered it all together foz a burntoffrynge vnto the Lozde: & cryed vnto the Lozde foz Israel, & the Lozd heard him. And as Samuel offred ꝑ burntoffring, the Philistines came to fyght agenst Israel. But the Lozde thondered a great thonder ꝑ same daye amonge the Philistines, and scatered them, ꝑ they fell before Israel. And ꝑ men of Israel went out of Mizpa, and pursued the Philistines, & folowed vpon them, *ij.Reg.vi.a *Iosue.xxiiij.c *Deu.vi.c. Math.iiij.b *j.Reg.vij.d

D And then Samuel *toke a stone, and pitched it betwene Mizpa and the mark of the rock, and called the name therof, ꝑ *stone of helpe, sayeng: hitherto hath the Lord helped vs. And so the Philistines were brought vnder, & they came nomore into the coastes of Israel: & the hand of the Lord was agaynst ꝑ Philistines all ꝑ dayes of Samuel. Therto, the cities which the ꝑ Philistines had taken frō Israel, were restored agayne to Israel, euen frō Acaron to Gath, wt the coastes of the same, & Israel plucked them out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel & the Amorites. Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and wēt about yere by yere to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpa, & iudged Israel in all those places, & came agayne to Rama: for there was his house, & ther he iudged Israel also, & there he buylt an aulter vnto the Lorde.

The people requyre a kynge.

WHen Samuel was olde, he made his sōnes iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sōne was Joel, and ꝑ name of ꝑ secōd Abia: & they were iudges in Beersleba. And his sonnes walked not in his wayes: but turned a syde after lucre, and *toke rewarde, and peruerted the ryght. And the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto ꝑ. For they haue not cast ꝑ away, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer thē. And as they haue euer done (sence I brought them out of Egypte vnto thys daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes) euen so do they vnto the. Nowe therfore herken vnto their voyce: howbeit, yet testifye vnto thē and shewe thē * the auctority of ꝑ king that shall raygne ouer thē. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people, that asked a kyng of him, and he sayde: thys shalbe the auctority of the kyng that shal raygne ouer you: * he wyll take your sonnes and put thē to hys charettes, and make hys horsemen of thē, to runne before his charet: and will make him of them, captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer fiftyes, and wyll set them to eare his grounde, and to gather in his heruest, and to make instrumentes of warre, and apparell for his charettes. And he wyll take your daughters, & make thē apoticaries, cookes and bakers. And he shall take ꝑ best of youre feldes, * and of youre vyneyardes, and of your olyue trees, and geue them to hys seruauntes. And he shall take the tenth of your seed, and of your vyneyardes, and geue it to hys chamberlaynes, and to hys seruauntes. And he shall take the best of your mēseruaūtes and maydseruauntes and yong men, and of your asses, and put thē to his worke. And he shall take the tenth of youre shepe, and ye shalbe his seruaūtes. And ye shall crie out at that tyme vpon your kynge, which ye shall haue chosen you, & the Lorde will not heare you at that daye.

Neuertheles, the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd say: naye, not so. But there shalbe a king ouer vs, that we maye be lyke other nacyons, and that oure kyng maye iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fyght our battayles. * (for vs.) Therfore, when Samuel hearde all the wordes of ꝑ people, he rehearsed them in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lord sayde to Samuel: herken vnto their voyce, and make thē a king: And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: go euery man vnto his citye.

The.ix.Chapter.

Saul the sonne of Cis is chosen kynge.

THer was a man of Bēiamin named * Cis the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of zeror, the sōne of Bechorath, the sonne of Aphiah, ꝑ sonne of a man that was a Jemynite, a man of strēgth and might: and the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yong mā and a fayre: so that amonge the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlyer then he. For from the shoulders vpwarde, he was hyer then all ꝑ other people. And the asses of thys Cis Sauls father were lost: and Cis sayde to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes wt the and go vp & seke the asses. And he went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorowe ꝑ lāde of Salisa: but they founde them not. Then they went thorowe the lāde of Salim, and there they were not. Whē they wēt also thorowe the lāde of Jemini, they foūde thē not. At the last, when they were come to the land of zuph, Saul saide to his lad ꝑ was wt him: come, let vs returne, lest my father leaue caring for the asses, & take thought for vs. He sayd vnto him: behold, there is in this citye a mā of God, & he is a worshipfull mā: all ꝑ he sayth, cometh suerly to passe. Nowe then let vs go thyther: peraduēture he shal shewe vs what waye we maye go. Then sayd Saul to his lad: yf we will go, what shall we bring the mā? For our bread is all spēt out of oure vessels, & there is no nother present to bring the man of God: what haue we? And the lad answered Saul agayne, and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourth parte of a sycle, that that will I geue the man of God, to tell vs oure waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man wēt to seke an answere of God, thus wise he spake, come, and let vs go to the sear. For he that is now called a prophet, was in the olde tyme called a sear. Then sayde Saul to hys lad: well sayde of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the cytie where the man of God was. And as they were goinge vp into the cytie, they mett wyth damoselles ꝑ came out to drawe water, and sayd vnto them: is there here a sear? And the maydens answered thē, yee, * (here is one) beholde, he is before you. Make haste nowe, for he cam thys daye to the cyte fore there is an offeryng of the people this daye in the hill. When ye be come into the cytie, ye shall fynde hym strayght waye, yer he go vp to the hyll to eate: for the people wyll not eate vntyll he come, because he doth blesse the offering. And then eate they ꝑ be bydden to the feast. Nowe therfore get you vp, for this daye shall ye fynde hym. And they went vp into the cytie. And when they were come into the myddes of the citie: beholde, Samuel came out agaynst thē, for to go vp to the hill. * But ꝑ Lorde had tolde Samuel in his eare (a daye before Saul came) sayenge: to morowe thys tyme I wyll sende the a man out of the lande of Ben Jamin, hym shalt thou anoynte to be captayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people out of the hāde of the Philistines: for I haue loked vpō my people, and their crye is come vnto me. Whē Samuel therfore saw Saul, the Lord answered hym: se, this is the mā, whō I spake to the of. Thys same shall raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, & sayde: tell me I praye the, where the sears house is. Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hill, for ye shall eate wyth me to daye. And to morowe I wyll let the go, and wyll tell the all that is in thyne hert. And as for thyne asses ꝑ were lost thre dayes agoo, care not for them, for they are founde. And more ouer, whose shall the pewtifull thinges of Israel be? belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayde: am not I the sonne of a Jemynite of the smallest tribe of Israel? and my kynred is the least of all the kynredes of the tribe of Bē Jamin. Wherfore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his lad, and brought them into the parler, and made thē sytt in the chefest place amonge them ꝑ were bydden: which were vpō a thirtye persones: And Samuel sayde vnto the cooke: bringe forth the porcyon whych I gaue the, and of which I sayd vnto the: kepe it with the. And the cooke toke vp the shoulder, & that whych was vpon it, & set it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: beholde, ꝑ which is left: put it before the & eate, for hitherto hath it bene kept for the, of purpose, when I called the people. And so Saul dyd eat with Samuel ꝑ daye. And when they were come downe from the hyll into the cytie, Samuel comuned wyth Saul vpon the toppe of the house: and whan they arose erlye about the sprynge of the daye, Samuel called Saul vpō ꝑ toppe of the house, sayenge: vp, ꝑ I maye sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they wēt out at the dores both, he & Samuel. And when they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayd to Saul: byd the lad go before vs (and he wēt before) but stande thou stylle a whyle, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

The.x.Chapter.

Saul is anoynted kynge, and prophecyeth.

AND thē Samuel toke a vessell of oyle, & powred it vpō hys heed, & *kyssed him, & sayde: hath not the Lord anoynted the, to be captayne ouer hys enheritaunce? * (and thou shalt deliuer hys people out of the handes of their enemyes, whych are rounde about thē. at the last Saul ꝑ sonne of Cis was caught.
And whā they sought hym, he coulde not be

B The Philistines also geathered them selues togeather to fyght wyth Israel, thirtye thousand charettes and syxe thousand hozsemen, with other people lyke the * sand by the sees syde in multitude, and came vp, and pitched in Michmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the mẽ of Israel sawe it, they were in a strayte, & feare came vpõ the people, and they hydd them selues in caues, and in pzeuy holes, and in rockes, and in hye places, & in pittes. And some of the Ebzues wẽt ouer Jozdan to go vnto the lande of Gad & Gilead. And Saul was yet in Gilgal, & all the people that folowed him were astonyed. And he taryed seuẽ dayes, euen vnto ỹ tyme * 1. Reg. x. b. ỹ Samuel * had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Gilgal, & the people were therfoze skatered frõ him. ¶ Saul is commaunded to slaye Amaleck. He is disobedient to the voyce of God. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

A *i. Reg. ix.c. Samuel sayde vnto Saul: * ỹ Lord sent me to anoynt ỹ, to be kynge ouer his people Israel. Nowe therfore herken thou vnto the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes: I *i. Reg.xi.c. & * nombred them in Telaim, two hundred thousande foote men, and ten thousande mē of Juda. And Saul came vnto a cytie of Amaleck, & set watche in ỹ valeye. And Saul sayde vnto the kenites: go, & departe, & gett you downe from amonge the Amalechites, lest I destroye you with them: for ye shewed mercy to all the chyldren of Israell, whē they came out of Egypt. And so the kenites departed from amonge the Amalechites.

And Saul gathered the people together,

And Saul smote the Amalechites from Heuila, as thou commest to Sur, that lyeth before Egypt, and toke Agag ỹ kinge of the Amalechites alyue, & vtterlye destroyed all the people with ỹ edge of the swerde. * But *Nu.xxiiij.d Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe, & the fatter oxen, & the lambes, and all that was good, & wolde not destroye them. But all ỹ was foule & naught worth, that they destroyed vtterlye. Then came the worde of ỹ Lorde vnto Samuel, sayinge: it ¶ *repenteth me, ỹ I haue made Saul kynge. *Gene.vi.c. For he is turned from me, and hath not parfourmed my cōmaundemētes. And Samuel was euell apayed, and cried vnto the Lorde all nyght. And whan Samuel rose erlye, to mete Saul in ỹ morninge, it was tolde Samuel, that Saul was come to Carmel, & beholde, he ☞ hath made him there a place, & ☞ is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgall.

And Samuel came to Saul, & ☞ (Saul offered burnt sacrifyces vnto the Lorde of the fyrst of ỹ spoyles, whych he had brought frō Amalec. And whan Samuel was come vnto Saul,) Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue fulfylled the cōmaundemēt of ỹ Lord. Samuel sayde: what meaneth then the bleatyng of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oxen which I heare? Saul answered: they haue brought them from the Amalechites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen, to sacrifyce them vnto the Lorde thy God. And ỹ remnaunt haue we destroyed vtterly.

Samuel sayde to Saul: lett me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. Samuel sayde * when ỹ wast ☞ lytle in thyne awne syght, wast ỹ not made the heed of the trybes of Israel? And the Lorde anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yee, I haue harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, & haue gone the waye which ỹ Lorde sent me vnto, and haue brought Agag the kyng of Amaleck, and haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalechites. But ỹ people toke of ỹ spoyle shepe, oxen, and the chefest of the thynges whych shulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto ỹ Lorde thy God in Gilgall. And Samuel muel sayde: hath the Lorde as great pleasure in burnt sacrifyces & offeringes, as whan the voyce of ỹ Lord is obeyed? Behold, to obeye is better then sacrifyce, & to herken, is better then the fatt of rammes. For rebellyon is as

*Ero.xxij.c. Deut.xviij.b the synne of * witchcrafte, and stoburnesse is as the wickednesse of Idolatrie. Because thou hast cast awaye ỹ worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also, from beynge kynge.

¶ And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue gone farther then the sayinge of the Lorde and thy wordes, because I feared ỹ people, & obeyed their voyce. Nowe therfore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, ỹ I maye worshyp the Lord. And Samuel sayde vnto Saul: I wyll not returne with the: for thou hast cast awaye ỹ worde of the Lorde, and the Lorde hath cast awaye the, that thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned hym selfe to go awaye, he caught the lappe of hys coate, & it rent. And Samuel sayde vnto hym: the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel frō the this daye, & hath geuē it to a neyghboure ☞ of thyne, that is better then thou. ☞ The strength of Israel wyll not begyle nor repēt: for he is not a man, that can repent.

He sayde: I haue synned. But nowe honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israel, & turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe ỹ Lorde thy God. And so Samuel turned agayne, and folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped ỹ Lorde. Then sayde Samuel: Brynge ye hither to me, Agag the kynge of the Amalechites. And Agag came ☞ vnto hym ☞ delycately. And Agag sayde: truly the bytter deeth cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wemē chyldelesse, so shall thy mother be chyldelesse aboue other wemen. ¶ Dauid is annoynted kyng. An euell spyrete commeth vpon Saul.

A The Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: howe longe wylt thou mourne for Saul, seynge I haue cast hym awaye from raygnynge ouer Israel? Fyll thyne horne with oyntmēt, and come, that I maye sende the to Jsai the Bethlehemite, for I haue prouided me a kynge amonge hys sonnes. And Samuel sayd: howe can I goo? For yf Saul heare it, he will kyll me. The Lorde answered: Take an heifer wt the, and saye: I am come to offer to the Lorde. And call Jsai to the offerynge, and I wyll shewe the, what ỹ shalt do: And thou shalt anoynt hym whom I name vnto the. And so Samuel dyd as the Lorde bad him, and came to Bethlehem, and the elders of the towne were astonnied at his cōmyng, and sayde: * Commest thou peaceably? He *i.Reg.xvj.c answered: Yee, I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. ☞ * Sanctifye youre selues, & come ☞ with me to the offerynge. And he sanctifyed * Num.vi.d. Josua.iij.b. and.by.c. Jsai & his sonnes, & bad thē to the offerynge. And whē they were come, he loked on Eliab, & sayde: ☞ Surely the Lordes anoynted is ☞ before hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: loke not on his fashyon, or on ỹ heyght of hys stature, because I haue refused hym: for God seyth not as man seyth. For man loketh on the outwarde appearāce but God beholdeth the harte. Then Jsai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he sayde: nether hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then Jsai made Samma come, and he sayde: nether yet hath the Lorde chosen him. Agayne, Jsai made seuē of his sōnes to come before Samuel. And Samuel sayde vnto Jsai: the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayde vnto Jsai: are here ¶ all thy chyldren? He sayde: there is yet a lytle one behynde, that kepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Jsai: sende and fette him, for we will not sytte downe, tyll he be come hyther. And he sent, & brought hym in. And he was browne, and of an excellēt beawtye, *& *Ge.xxvij.b wellfauored in syght. And the Lorde sayde: Aryse, and anoynt him, for this is he. Therfore Samuel toke the horne wyth the oyntment, & anoynted him in the myddes of hys brethren. And the spyrete of the Lorde came vpō Dauid, from that daye forwarde. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

But the spyrete of the Lorde departed frō Saul, and an euell spyrete sent of the Lorde vexed him. And Sauls seruaūtes sayde vnto him: Beholde, an euell spyrete sent of God vexed the, lett oure Lord therfore cōmaunde his seruauntes (that are before the) to seke a man, ỹ is a connynge player wyth an harpe: that when the euell spyrete sent of God commeth vpon the, he maye playe with hys hāde and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayde vnto his seruauntes: prouide me a man then that can playe well, and bringe him to me. Then an- ¶ swered one of his seruauntes and sayde: Behold, I haue sene a sonne of Jsai the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumētes, and is an actiue felowe, and a man of warre and prudēt in doynge of feates, & well made and the Lorde is with hym. Wherfore Saul sent messengers vnto Jsai, and sayde: sende me Dauid thy sonne, which is wyth ỹ shepe. And Jsai tooke an asse laden with breed, and a flacket

a flacket of wyne, and a kyd, and sent them by Dauid his sonne vnto Saul. And Dauid came to Saul, & stode before him, & he loued him very well, and he was made his harnes-bearer. And Saul sent to Isai, sayinge: lett Dauid remayne with me, for he hath founde fauour in my syght. And so it fortuned, that when the euell spyrete sent of God came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe, & played wyth his hande, & so Saul was refreshed, & dyd amende, and the euell spyrete departed frō him.

¶ The.xvij.Chapter.

¶ Dauid ouercommeth great Goliath.

THe Philistines geathered their hoste to battel, and came together to Socoth which is in Juda, and pitched betwene Sococh & Azekah, in ỹ coast of Dammin. And Saul and the mē of Israel came together, and pitched in the Oke valley, and put them selues in araye, to fyght agaynst the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde; and there was a valeye betwene them: And there came a man betwene them both, out of the tentes of the Philistines, named Goliath * of Gath syxe cubytes and an handbredth lōge, and had an helmet of brasse vpon hys heed, and a coate of mayle about hym. And the weyght of hys coate of mayle was fyue thousande sykles of brasse. And he had bootes of brasse vpon his legges, and a shylde of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the shafte of his spere was like a weuers beame. And his speare heed weyed. vj. hūdred sikles of yron. And one bearynge a shylde went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynst the hoste of Israel, & sayde vnto thē: Why are ye come out in araye to battell? am not I a Philistine and you seruaūtes to Saul? chose you a mā from amonge you, & lett him come downe to me. And yf he be able to fyght with me, & to beate me, then will we be youre seruauntes. But yf I can ouercome him and beate him, then shall ye be oure seruauntes, & serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I defye the hoste of Israel this daye, gene me a man, ỹ we maye fight together: When Saul and all Israel hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. Dauid was the sonne of an Ephrathite (of whō mencyon is made afore) of Bethlehem Juda, named Isai, whych had eight sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age amonge men. And the three eldest sonnes of Isai went, and folowed Saul to the battell. And the names of hys three sonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldest, & the next, Abinadab, and the thyrde Sāma, and Dauid was ỹ least. And the three eldest went after Saul. Dauid also went and departed frō Saul, to fede his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the mornynge and euenynge, and continued fourtye dayes.

And Isai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne take for thy brethren an Epha of this parched corne and these ten loaues, and brynge it vnto the hoste to thy brethrē. And carye these ten fresshe cheses vnto ỹ captayne, & loke how we thy brethren fare, and fett out their pledge. And Saul and they, and all the mē of Israel were in the oke valey, fightinge with ỹ Philistines. And Dauid rose vp erlye in the mornynge, and lefte ỹ shepe with a keper, & toke and went as Isai had commaūded him, and came with in ỹ compasse of the host. And the hoste went out in araye, and showted in the battell: for Israel & the Philistines had put thē selues in araye, the one agaynst ỹ other. And Dauid toke downe the gear from him, and put them vnder the handes of the keper of the vessels, & ranne into ỹ hoste, and came, and saluted his brethren. And as he talked wt them, Beholde: there stode a mā in the mydes (Goliath ỹ Philistine by name) of Gath out of the araye of the Philistines, & spake of the maner abone rehersed, that Dauid hearde it. And all the men of Israel, when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from hym, and were sore afrayed. And euery man of Israel sayde: Sawe ye thys man come forth? euen to reuyle Israel is he come. * And to hym ỹ beateth hym, wyll the kynge geue great ryches, and will gene him his daughter therto: yee & make his fathers house free in Israel.

And Dauid spake to the men that stode by, and sayde: What shalbe done to the man that beateth this Philistine, & taketh awaye the shame frō Israel? And what is thys vncircumcised Philistine, that he shulde reuyle the hoste of the lyuinge God? And the people answered him (after this maner,) sayinge: so shall it be done to the mā, that beateth hym. And Eliab his eldest brother hearde whē he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angrye wt Dauid, and sayde: Why camest ỹ downe hither? and with whom hast thou lefte those few shepe in ỹ wildernesse? I know thy pryde, and the malyce of thyne herte, ỹ thou art come downe to se ỹ battell. And Dauid sayd:

And

And what haue I nowe done? is there not a worde? And he departed from hym into the presence of another, and spake of ỹ same maner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before.

And they that hearde the wordes whych Dauid spake, rehearsed them before Saul, which caused him to be fett. And Dauid sayd to Saul: Let no mannes hert fayle hym because of him. Thy seruaunt wyll go, & fyght with yonder Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne: ỹ art not able to go agaynst yonder Philistine, to fyght wt him. For thou art but a chylde, but he is a mā of warre euē frō his youth. Dauid answered vnto Saul: Thy seruaunt kept his fathers shepe, & there came * a Lyon and lyke wise a Beare, & toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote hym, and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose agaynst me, I caught him by the bearde, and smote hym, & slue hym. And so thy seruaunt slue the Lyon & ỹ beare (also) hath thy seruaūt slayne. And truly thys vncircūcised Philistine shalbe as one of thē (Now, wyll I go, & take awaye the rebuke of the people, for what is thys vncircumcysed Philistine?) seynge he hath rayled on the hoste of ỹ lyuing God. And Dauid spake moreouer: the Lorde that deliuered me out of the hande of ỹ Lyon & out of the hande of ỹ beare, he shall delyuer me also out of the hande of this Philistine.

And Saul sayde vnto Dauid: go, and the Lorde shall be with the. And Saul put hys rayment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon hys heed, & put a coate of mayle vpō him, and gyrded Dauid with hys awne swerde vpon his rayment. And he assayed to go. And because he neuer proued it, Dauid sayde vnto Saul: I cannot go with these, for I haue not vsed my selfe therto: and Dauid put them of hym, and toke hys staffe in hys hande, and chose him fyue smoth stones oute of a broke, and put thē in a shepherdes bagge which he had, & in a slynge poke: & his slynge was in his hāde, & he went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere agaynst Dauid, and the man ỹ bare the shilde went before hym. And when the Philistine loked aboute, and sawe Dauid, he disdayned him, for he was but yōge, and well coloured, and goodlye to loke vpon. And the Philistine said vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe? and the Philistine cursed Dauid in the name of his goddes. And the Philistine sayde to Dauid: come to me, & I wyll gene thy flesche vnto the foules of the ayre, & to the beastes of the felde. Then sayde Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me wyth a swerde, a speare and a shylde: But I come to the in the name of the Lord of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israel, whom thou hast rayled vpon. This daye shall the Lorde delyuer the into my hande, and I shall smyte the, & take thine heed from the, and wyll geue ỹ karcases of the hoste of the Philistines thys daye vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of the erth, that all they whych be in the worlde, maye knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all thys congregacyon shall knowe, that the Lord saueth not with swerd and speare. For ỹ battell is the Lordes, and he shall geue you into oure handes.

And whē the Philistine arose to come and drawe nie vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted, & rāne into the battayll euen agaynst the Philistine. And Dauid put his hande in hys bagge, and toke out a stone, and slange it, & smote the Philistine in his forheed, ỹ the stone sounche into his forheed * and he felle grouelynge to the erth. And so Dauid ouercame the Philistine with a slyng and a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slue hym, euen whan Dauid had no swerde in hys hande. But Dauid rāne, and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke hys swerde, and drue it out of hys scheth, and slue hym, & cutte of hys heed therwith. And when the Philistines sawe, that theyr champyon was deed * they fled. And the men of Israel and of Juda arose, and showted, & folowed after the Philistines, vntyll they came to the valeye, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the waye to Saaraiim, euen vnto Gath & Akaron. And the chyldren of Israel returned frō chasynge after the Philistines, and spoyled theyr tentes. And Dauid toke the heed of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalē: But he put his armoure in hys tente.

When Saul sawe Dauid go forth agaynst the Philistine, he sayde vnto * Abner ỹ captayne of his hoste: Abner, whose sonne is this yong man? Abner answered: as truly as thy soule lyueth (O kynge) I cānot tell. And the kynge sayde: Enquere thou, whose sonne the youngelynge is. And when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym before Saul, wyth the heed of the Philistine in hys hande. And Saul sayde to hym: whose sonne art thou, thou yonge man? Dauid answered: I am the sonne of thy seruaunt Jsai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The.xviij.Chapter.

¶ The bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul goeth aboute to slee Dauid.

AND when he had made an ende of speakynge vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knyt wyth the soule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued hym as hys awne soule. And Saul toke hym that daye, and wolde let him go nomore home to hys fathers house. And Jonathas made a couenaunt wyth Dauid, because he

loued

loued him as his awne soule. And Jonathas put of his awne coate that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, & therto his cloke, his swerd, his bowe and hys gyrdle. And Dauid went oute whether soeuer Saul sent hym, and behaued him selfe wysely. And Saul sett hym ouer hys men of warre, and he was accepted in the syght of all the people, and in the syght of Sauls seruauntes.

B And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, ỳ wemen came out of all cyties of Israel syngynge & daunsyng, agaynst kynge Saul, and wyth tymbrelles, wyth ioye, and with instrumentes of musick. And the wemē answered one another in theyr playe, & sayde * Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande. And Saul was exceadyng wroth, and the sayinge displeased him, and he sayde: they haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, & what can he moze haue, saue the kyngdome? Wherfoze Saul loked on syde of Dauid from that daye forwarde. And it happened on the

C mozowe, that the euell spzete sent of God came vpō Saul, and he pzophesyed in the myddes of ỳ house. And Dauid played with hys hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a iauelyng in Sauls hande. And Saul toke the iauelyng, & sayde: I wyll nayle Dauid to the wall with it. And Dauid auoyded oute of hys pzesence two tymes. And Saul was afearde of Dauid, because ỳ Lord was with hym, & was departed frō Saul. Therfoze Saul put him from hym, and made him a captayne ouer a thousand, and he went out & in befoze ỳ people. And Dauid behaued him selfe wysely in all his wayes, & the Lord

D was with him. Wherfoze when Saul saw ỳ he was so excedynge wyse, he was afrayd of him. But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in befoze them. And Saul sayde to Dauid. Beholde, my eldest daughter Merob, her I wyll geue ỳ to wyfe Only playe the man with me, and fyght the Lozdes batelles. Foz Saul thought: myne hande shall not be vpon hym, but the hand of ỳ Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul:

E what am I? and what is my lyfe oz the kynred of my father in Israel, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? Howbeit when the tyme was come ỳ Merob Sauls daughter shulde haue bene geuē to Dauid, she was geuen vnto Adziel a Meholathite, to wyfe. Howbeit, Michol Sauls daughter loued Dauid. And they shewed Saul: & the thynge displeased him not. And Saul sayde: I wyll geue hym her ỳ she maye be a snare to hym, & that the hande of the Philistines maye be agaynst him. Wherfoze Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt this daye be my sonne in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaunded hys seruauntes, to comē wyth Dauid secretlye & to saye: Beholde the kyng hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruauntes loue the, be nowe therfoze the kynges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruauntes spake those wozdes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid sayde: F semeth it to you a lyght thynge to be a kynges sonne in lawe: I am a pooze man and of smalle reputaciō. And the seruaūtes brought Saul wozde agayne, sayinge: of this maner spake Dauid. And Saul sayd: this wise shalpe saye to Dauid: the kynge careth foz no nother dowzye, but foz an hūdzed foze skynnes of the Philistines, to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. But Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the hādes of the Philistines. And when hys seruaūtes tolde Dauid these wozdes, it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And ere oz ỳ dayes were

G expyzed, Dauid arose with his men, and wēt & slue of the Philistines, two hundzed men, and Dauid brought theyr foze skynnes, and satisfyed the kynge therof, to be hys sonne in lawe. * Wherfoze Saul gaue hym Michol * ii. Regum. 18.c. hys daughter to wyfe. And Saul sawe and vnderstode, howe that the Lozde was with Dauid, and that Michol his daughter loued hym, and he was the moare afrayed of Dauid, and Saul became alwaye Dauids enemie. The lozdes of ỳ Philistines vsed to go furth. And it foztuned ỳ whan they went furth, Dauid behaued hym selfe wyselier thē all the seruauntes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

The.xix. Chapter.

Saul commaundeth to slee Dauid. Michol hys wyfe saueth hym.

Saul spake to Jonathas hys sonne, A and to all hys seruaūtes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. * But Jonathas Sauls sonne had a greate fauoure to Dauid, and Jonathas tolde Dauid sayinge: Saul my father goeth about to slaye the. Nowe therfoze take hede to thy selfe vntyll the mozynynge, and abyde in some secret place, and hyde thy selfe. And I wyll go oute, and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll comen wyth my father of the, and whatsoeuer I se, I wyll tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul hys father, and sayde vnto hym: let not the kynge synne agaynst hys seruaunt Dauid, foz he hath not synned agaynst the, and hys wozkes haue bene to the ward very good. Foz he dyd * & put hys lyfe in hys hande, and slue the Philistine, and the Lozde brought to passe a greate healthy foz all Israel. Thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherfoze then wilt thou synne againste innocēt bloude, and slaye Dauid without a cause? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of B

Jonathas,

Jonathas, and sware: as truly as the Lozde lyueth, he shall not dye. And Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed hym all those wozdes, & brought Dauid to Saul. And he was in his presens as in tymes past.

And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought wyth the Philistines, and slue them with a great slaughter, & they fledde frō him. And the euell spzete sent of the Lozde was vpō Saul, as he sat in hys house hauinge a Jauelinge in his hāde, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to the walle with the Jauelynge. But he vyd hym selfe out of Sauls

* presens, as he smote the speare * (wyth a bayne stroke) into ỳ walle. And Dauid fledde & was saued the same nyght. Saul also sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to watch him, and to slaye him in ỳ mozynynge. And Michol Dauids wyfe tolde it him, sayinge: If thou saue

C not thy selfe this night, to mozowe ỳ wilt be slayne. And so * Michol lett Dauid downe thozowe a wyndowe, and he wēt, & fled, and was saued. And then she toke an Jmage and layed it in the bed, and put a pyllowe stuffed with goates heare vnder the heed of it, and couered it with a clothe. And whē Saul sent messengers to fetche Dauid, she sayde, he is sycke. And Saul sent the messengers agayne to se Dauid, sayinge: bzinge him to me, bed & all, ỳ I maye slaye him. And when ỳ messengers were come in: Beholde, there laye an ymage in the bed, with a pyllowe of goates heare vnder the heed of it. And Saul sayde vnto Michol: why hast thou mocked me so, and sent awaye myne enemy that he is escaped? Michol answered Saul. Foz he sayde vnto me, let me go, oz elles I wyll kyll the. And so Dauid fledde, and escaped, & came to Samuel to Rama, tolde hym all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went,

and dwelt in Naioth.

D And one tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioth in Rama. And Saul sent messengers to fett Dauid. And when they sawe a companye of pzophetes pzophesyenge, & Samuel stādynge fast by thē, the spzete of God fell vpō the messengers of Saul, and they pzophesyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, & they pzophesyed lykewyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thyzde tyme, and they pzophesyed also. Then wēt he hym selfe to Rama, & came to a great well that is in Sechu, & he asked and sayde: where are Samuel and Dauid? And one sayde: Beholde, they be at Naioth in Rama, & he went thyther, cuē to Naioth in Rama, and the spzete of God came vpon him also, & he went pzophesyinge, vntyll he came to Naioth in Rama. And he stripte of his clothes, & pzophesyed befoze Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all that daye & all that nyght. *

* And therof it is, that they saye: is Saul also amonge the pzophetes? *i.Re.ix.c.

The.xx. Chapter.

Dauid complayneth vnto Jonathas.

And Dauid fled from Naioth A which is in Rama, came, & sayde befoze Jonathas. What haue I done? wherin am I faultie? what is the synne that I haue committed befoze thy father, that he seketh my lyfe? he sayde vnto him: God fozbyd, ỳ shalt not dye. Beholde, my father will do nothynge ether great oz small, but that he will shewe it me. And howe shulde my father hyde thys thynge from me? he wyll not do it. And Dauid sware agayne, and sayde, thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace

B in thyne eyes, and therfoze he sayeth: Jonathas shall not knowe it, leste he be sozye. And in very dede, euen as truly as the Lozde lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a steppe betwene me and deeth. Then sayde Jonathas vnto Dauid: whatsoeuer thy soule desyzeth that I wyll do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde to mozowe is the begynnynge of the moneth, and I shulde sytt wt the kynge at meate. But let me go, that I maye hyde my selfe

B in the feldes vnto the thyzde daye at euen. If thy father speake of me, then saye, Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehem to his awne cytie, foz there is holden a perely feast foz all ỳ kynred. And yf he saye: it is well done, then thy seruaunt shall haue peace. But and yf he be angrye, then be sure that wyckednesse is vtterlye concluded of hym. And then thou shalt shewe mercye vnto thy seruaunt * foz thou hast made wyth me thy seruaunt a bonde in the Lozde. Notwithstandynge, yf there be in me any trespace, then sleye me thy selfe, and bzynge me not to thy father. *i.re.xxiij.c. and.xxiiij.c.

And Jonathas answered, God kepe that from ỳ * (nepcher is it possyble to come to passe.) If oz * yf I knowe, that wyckednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the, thynkest thou that I shulde not tell it the? Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answere cruelly? And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid, come and lett vs go out into ỳ felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: The C Lozde God of Israel loke on it, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme oz other within this thre dayes, yt it stande well with Dauid. If I then sende not vnto the & shewe it the, the Lozd do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do ỳ euell, I wyll shewe the also, and sende the awaye that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lozde be wyth the, as he hath bene with my father.

father. And thou shalt perfourme vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue but euen whē I am deed, and plucke not thy mercy away from my house for euer:
No not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid, euery one from the face of the erth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyringe ỹ the Lord shulde
seke it out by the hādes of Dauids enemyes (yf it were byroke.) And wt other wordes dyd Jonathas sweare vnto Dauid, because he loued him. For he loued hi, as his awne soule.

D Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to-morowe is the firste daye of the mone. And thou shalt be missed, because the place where thou wast wont to sytt, shall be emptye. Therfore this daye thre dayes come downe i any wyse vnto the place where thou dyddest hyde thy selfe, when the busynes was in hande:
euen by ỹ stone Esell. And I wyll shote thre arowes by the one syde therof, as though I shott thē at a marke, & will sende a lad, and byd hym go seke the arowes. And yf I saye vnto the lad: se, the arowes are on thys syde
the, bringe them: then come ỹ: for it is peace, & no hurte, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But and yf I saye vnto the lad, beholde, the ar-owes are be yonde the, then go *(in peace) for ỹ Lord hath sent ỹ awaye. And as touchynge this which thou and I haue spoken: beholde
the Lorde be betwene the & me for euer.
And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the felde. And when the newe mone was come, the kynge
sat him downe to eate meate. And the kynge
E sat him downe after the olde maner, in hys seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose and Abner sate by Sauls syde, & Dauids place was emptye. Neuertheles, Saul sayde no-thinge at all that daye. For he thought: some thynge hath chaunced him ỹ he is not cleane.
But on the morowe which was the seconde
daye of ỹ newe mone, it happened that Da-uids place was emptye agayne. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sōne. Wherfore cōmeth not ỹ sonne of Jsai to meate, nether yesterdaye nor to daye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked lycēce of me, to go to Bethlehē, for he sayde: let me go I praye
the for oure kynred dothe holde an offerynge
in the cytie, and my brother hath sent for me.
And therfore yf I haue foūde fauoure in thy-ne eyes, lett me go, and se my brethren. This F is the cause, that he cōmeth not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jo nathas, & sayde vnto him: Thou wycked rebell, do not I knowe, ỹ thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thyne awne rebuke, & vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Jsai lyueth vpon the erth, thou shalt not be stablished, nor yet thy kingdome, wherfore now sende and fett him
vnto me, * for he is the chylde of deeth. *1.Reg.xxiii.
& 1.Reg.xxv.

And Jonathas answered vnto Saul his father, and sayde to him. Wherfore shulde he dye? what hath he done? And Saul lyfte vp a speare to hyt him, wherby Jonathas wyst
well, ỹ it was vtterlye determined of his father, to slepe Dauid. And so Jonathas arose frō the table in a greate anger, & dyd eate no meat the seconde daye of ỹ moneth, for he was sory for Dauid, because hys father had done him shame. On ỹ nexte morning, Jonathas wēt out into the felde, at the tyme apoynted with Dauid, & a lytle ladd with him. And he sayde vnto his boye: runne & seke out myne arowes whych I shote. And as the boye ran he shot an arowe be yonde him. And when ỹ lad was come to ỹ place whether Jonathas
had shot the arowe, Jonathas cryed after ỹ lad, and sayde: Is not the arowe beyonde
the? And Jonathas cried after ỹ lad agayne:
make spede, and stande not styll. And Jona-thas lad gathered vp the arowes, & came to his master. But the lad wist nothinge of the matter. Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it.
And Jonathas gaue his weapōs vnto ỹ lad
that was wyth him, & sayde vnto him: go & carye them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place ỹ was towarde the south, and fell on hys face
to the grounde, and worshypped thre tymes.
And they kissed ether other, & wept together
so lōge, tyll Dauid exceaded in weping. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And ỹ thynges which we haue sworne both of vs
in the name of the Lorde, sayinge: ỹ Lorde be betwene ỹ & me, & betwene thy sede & myne, let thē stonde for euer. And he arose, & departed. And Jonathas went into the towne.

¶ The.xxj. Chapter.

¶ Dauid fleeth into Nob to Ahimelech the preast, and getteth of hym the shewe breade to satisfye his honger. After warde he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there fayneth hym selfe to be mad.

A Then came Dauid to Nob to Ahimelech the preast: And Ahimelech was astonyed at the sodayne cōmynge of Dauid, & sayd vnto him:
Why art thou alone, & no man wt
ỹ? And Dauid sayde to Ahimelech ỹ preaste:
the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certeyn thynge, and hath sayde vnto me, let no man knowe where aboute I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to do. And I haue appoynted my seruaūtes, to soche and soche places. Nowe therfore yf ỹ hast ought breade, or what cometh to hande.

And the preast answered Dauid, and sayde: there is no comen bread vnder myne hā-de, but here is halowed bread, yf the younge men haue kepte them selues from vncle-ne thynges especiallye wemen. Dauid answered the preaste, and sayde vnto hym: Wt of a

of a truth wemen hath bene locked vp from vs about a thre dayes. when I came out, &
the vesselles of the young men were holy. How be it this waye is vnpure, and how much more shal there be holynes in the vessell. * And so the preast gaue hi ha-
lowed bred, for there was no nother bred there, saue the shewebreds, that were take from before the Lorde, to put freshe bred
there, the daye that it was taken awaye.

And ther was there the same daye a certē
man of the seruauntes of Saul abydyng
before the Lorde, named Doeg an Edomite, the chefest of Sauls hearde men.

C And Dauid sayd vnto Ahimelech: is not here vnder thyne hāde other speare or swer
de? for I haue nether brought my swerde
nor my harnesse with me, because the kynge busines required haste. And the preast sayd: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine
whome thou slewest in ỹ Oche valley, beholde, it is here wrapt in a cloth behynd the Ephod. If thou wilt take that, take it, for there is no nother saue that here. And Da-uid sayd: there is none to that, geue it me.

And Dauid arose and fled the same daye
from the presence of Saul, & wēt to Achis the kyng of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayd of him: is not this Dauid the kyng of the lande? dyd they not syng vnto
him, in daunses saying * Saul hath slay-ne his thousand, & Dauid his ten thousād?
And Dauid put those wordes into his heart, & was sore afrayed of Achis the kyng of Geth. And he chaunged his speche before them, & fayned him selfe madd in their han-des, & scrabled on the dores of the gate, and let his spittel fall downe vpon his bearde.
Then sayde Achis vnto his seruaūte: Loo,
ye se ỹ this man is besyde hym selfe, wherfore then haue ye brought hym to me? Haue I nede of madd mē that ye haue brought this felow to playe the mad mā in my presence? Shall he come into my howse.

¶ The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Ahimelech is accused of treason and slayne, & .lxxxiiii. preastes mo with him because they receaued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul, Abiathar fleeth to Dauid.

A Dauid therfore departed thence, and escaped, and came vnto the caue O-dollam. When his brethren also ād all his fathers house heard it, they went downe thither to hym. And there geathered vnto him all men that were in com-braunce, and in dett, and troubled in their mindes, & he became a captayne ouer them
And there were with hym vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Mizpa in the lande of Moab, and sayde vnto the kyng of Moab: Let my father &
my mother (I praye the) come forth vnto you, tyll I knowe what God will do for me. And he brought them before the kig of Moab. And they dwelt wt hi all the while that Dauid kepte him selfe i hold. And the prophet Gad sayde vnto Dauid: abide not in holde, but departe and go into the lād of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came ito
the forest Hareth. And Saul heard ỹ Dau-id was come abrode, and also the mē that were wyth hym. And Saul satt in Gibea vnder a tree in Rama, hauyng hys speare
in his hand, & all his men stode about hym
And Saul sayde vnto his seruauntes that stode about hi. Heare I praye you you sonnes of Jemini: will the sōne of Jsai ge-ue euery one of you feldes and vineardes, &
make you all captaynes ouer thousādes &
ouer hundredes? that ye haue also cōspired
agaynst me, and there is none that telleth
it me in myne eare. * And where as my son ne hath made a bonde wt the sonne of Jsai, 1.Reg.xviii.a

ther is none of you that mourneth for me,
or sheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my sō-ne hath stered vp my seruaūt to lye awayte
agaynst me thys same daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite which also stode by the seruauntes of Saul, and sayde: I saw the sonne of Jsai, whē he cam
to Nob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob, which asked councell of the Lorde for hym & gaue hym victayles, & the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kynge sent & called for Abimelech ỹ preast ỹ sonne of Ahitob, & all his fathers house: that is to saye, the preastes that were in Nob.
And they cam all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: heare now ỹ sonne of Ahitob. He answered: here I am, my Lorde. And Saul sayde vnto hym: why haue ye conspired a-gaynst me, ỹ & the sonne of Jsai, in ỹ thou hast geuen him vitaile, & a swerde, and hast asked councell of God for hi, that he shuld arise agaynst me, & lye awayte for me this daye? Ahimelech answered the king & sayd who is so faithfull amōg all thy seruaūtes
as Dauid, & therto the kinges sōne in law, & goeth at thy bydding, & is had in honour
re in thyne house? haue I this daye begōne first to aske cōcell of God for hi. That be farre frō me: yf I had knowen it, lett not ỹ kyng put soch a thyng vnto his seruaūt, in all ỹ house of my father. For thy seruaunt knew nothig of all this, ether lesse or moa-
re. The king sayde: thou shalt surelye dye Ahimelech, thou and all thy fathers house
And the king sayde vnto the fote men that stode about him: turne, & slay the preastes of the Lord, both because their hād is with Dauid, & because they knewe when Dauid fled, & shewed it not to me. But ỹ seruaūtes of

tes of the kyng wolde not moue their handes, to fall vpon the preastes of the Lorde. And the kyng sayde to Doeg: turne thou, and fall vpon the preastes. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and ranne vpon the preastes, and slue that same daye foure skore & fyue persones, ỹ dyd weare a lynnē Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preastes smote he wyth the edge of the swerde, both men & women, childzen and sucklynges, oxen and asses and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob (named Abiathar) escaped & fled to Dauid. And Abiathar shewed Dauid, how that Saul had slayne the lordes preastes. And Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same daye, whan Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. And I am cause of the deeth of all ỹ soules of thy fathers house. Abide thou wt me, and feare not: For yf anye mā seke my soule, he shall seke thyne also, wt me thou shalt be in sauegard.

CThe.xxtii.Chapter.

CDauid fleeth into the wildernes of ziph.

A Then they told Dauid sayīg: Behold the Philistines fight agaynst Keilah, and spoyle the barnes.

Therfore Dauid asked the Lordes aduyse, saying: shall I goo and smyte these Philistines? And the Lorde answered vnto Dauid: go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. And Dauids men ỹ were with him, sayd vnto him: se, we be afrayed here in Juda: how much more then yf we come to Keila agaynst the host of the Philistynes? Then Dauid asked ỹ Lorde agayne. And the Lord answered him and sayde: Aryse, & go downe to Keila, for I will delyuer the Philistines in to thyne hande.

And so Dauid and his men went to Keila, and fought with the Philistynes, & droue awaye their catell, and smote them with a great slaughter. And so Dauid saued the enhabiters of Keila. And it chaunced, when B Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keila, that he brought an Ephod with him in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saul sayde: God hath delyuered hi into myne hād. For he is shut in now ỹ he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all ỹ people together to warre, for to go downe to Keila, and to besege Dauid & his men. And Dauid hauig knowlege that Saul imagened myschef agaīst him, sayd, to Abiathar ỹ preast: * Bryng the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid: O Lord God of Israel, thi seruaūt hath heard, ỹ Saul is about to come agaīst Keila to destroye ỹ cytie for my sake: Wyll the men of Keyla delyuer me into hys hande? And will Saul come downe, as thy seruaunt hath heard saye? O Lord God of Israel, tell they seruaūt. And the Lorde sayde: he will come downe. Then sayd Dauid: will the men of Keila delyuer me and ỹ men that are with me into the hand of Saul? & the Lord sayde: they will betraye you. *1.re.xxx.b

Then dauid & his men which were vpon a syxe hūdred, arose & departed out of Keila & wēt whether they could. And it was told Saul, that Dauid was fled from Keila, & he let the iourney a lone. Dauid abode i the wilderneße in strōg holdes, & remayned in a moūtayne in the wildernesse of ziph. And Saul sought hi euery daye, but God delyuered him not ito his hād. And Dauid saw ỹ Saul was come out, to seke his life. And Dauid was in the wyldernesse of ziph in a thickett. And Jonathas Sauls sōne arose, & went to Dauid in to the thicket, & cōforted his hand in God, & sayde vnto hym: feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shall not fynd the, & thou shalt be kīg ouer Israel, & I must be next vnto the. And that doth Saul my father know. And they made abonde both of them togeather before the Lorde. And Dauid taryed styll in the thickett, and Jonathas went to his house. *1.re.xxiii.d and.xx.b.

Then came ỹ ziphites to Saul, to Gibea, saying: Doth not Dauid hyde hi selfe fast by vs in strōg holdes, in a thyckett that is by ỹ hyll of Hachila, on the ryght syde of ỹ wildernesse? Now therfore kyng, ỹ mayest come downe accozding to all the lust of thy soule: come downe, & oure parte shalbe to delyuer hym into the kynges hande. And Saul sayde: Blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue cōpassion on me. Go I prayе you, & ozdre the matter well, know & se his haunte, where hys fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me, that he is very subtel, & wozketh craftely. Se therfore, & know all ỹ lourkyng places, where he D hideth him selfe, and come ye agayne to me with the certentye, & I will go wyth you. And yf he be in the lād, I will serche hi out thozow out all the thousandes of Juda.

And they arose, and went to ziph before Saul, But Dauid and his men were in the wilderneße of Maon, in the playne ỹ is, on the right

the ryght hand of Jesimon. Saul also and his men wente to seke: and they tolde Dauid. Wherfore he went vnto a Rocke, and abode in the wildernesse of Maō. And whē Saul hearde that, he folowed after Dauid in the wildernesse of Maon. And Saul & his men went on the one syde of the mountayne, & Dauid & his men on the other syde. And Dauid toke thought, how to get frō Saul. For Saul & his mē cōpased Dauid & his men, rounde about, to take them.

But there cam a messēger to Saul, saying Hast the, & come, for the Philistines are come into the lād. Wherfore, Saul returned from persecuting Dauid, & went agaynst the Philistines. And therfore is it, ỹ they called the place: The rock of separacion. And Dauid went thence, & dwelt in strong holdes at Engadi.

CThe.xxiiii.Chapter.

CDauid fleeth into Engadi and there hydeth hym in a caue. Saul commeth in thither to do hys ealement.

A When Saul was come agayne from folowīg after the Philistines, it fortuned, that there were, which told hi saying: beholde, Dauid is in ỹ wildernesse of Engadi. Then Saul toke thre thousād chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid and his mē in the heigth of the Rockes, where wilde gootes remayne.

And he cam to the flockes of shepe in the waye. And Saul went in to a caue ☞ to couer his fete. And Dauid and hys mē remayned in the inward partes of the caue. And the men of Dauid sayd vnto him: se, ỹ daye is come, of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Beholde: I will delyuer thyne enemyes into thyne hād, & ỹ shalt do to him as it shall seme good in thy syght. Then Dauid arose and cutt of a lappe of Sauls garment priuelye. And immediatly ☞ Dauids hert smote hym because he had cutt of B a lapp of Sauls garment. And he sayde vnto his men: the Lorde kepe me frō doing that thīg vnto my master ỹ Lords anoynted, to laye mine hande vpō hym, seyng he is the anoynted of the Lorde. ✱(For as truly as the Lord liueth, excepte the Lorde smyte him, or excepte ✱ his daye come, or yf he go not downe to warre and perisshe: the Lord be mercifull vnto me, that I laye not my hād vpon the Lordes anoynted.) And so Dauid kept of hys seruaūtes with these wordes, and soffred them not to ryse agaynst Saul.

But Saul rose vp out of the caue & went awaye, Dauid also arose and went out of of the caue, and cryed after Saul, saying: My Lorde kyng. And when Saul loked behynde hym. Dauid stowped to the erth, and bowed him selfe, & sayd to Saul: wherfore geuest thou an eare to mennes wordes that saye, Dauid seketh euell agaynst the? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue sene. how that the Lord had delyuered the thys daye into myne hand in the caue. And some bad me kyll the, but I had compassion on the, and sayde: I will not laye my handes on my master, for he is the Lordes anoynted. And moreouer, my father, behold, & se yet the lapp of thy garment in my hand: in as moch as I kylled the not, when I cutt of ỹ lapp of thy garment. Understande therfore & se, ỹ there is nether euell nor wickednesse in me, and that I haue not synned agaynst the. And yet thou huntest after my soule to take it. The Lord be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lord auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpon the. Accordyng as the olde prouerbe sayeth: wyckednesse proceadeth from the wycked: But myne hande be not vpon the. After whom is the kyng of Israel come out? After whō dost thou moue persecuciō? after ☞ a deed dogg, and after a flee. The Lorde be iudge, and iudge betwene the and me, & se & pleate my cause, and auēge me of thyne hande. D

When Dauid had made an ende of speakīg these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde * is this thy voyce my sōne Dauid? and Saul lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte, and sayde to Dauid: thou art ryghteouser then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the wyth euell. And thou hast shewed thys daye, how that thou hast dealt louyngly wyth me, for as moche as whē the Lorde had locked me in thyne hādes, ỹ kylledst me not. For who shall finde his enemye, & lett him depart in to a good waye? Wherfore the Lord reward ỹ with good, for that thou hast done vnto me this daye. And now beholde, I wote well that thou shalt be kyng, and that the kingdom of Israel shalbe stablysshed in thyne hāde. Swere now therfore vnto me by the Lord that thou shalt not destroye my seade after me, & that thou shalt not put my name out of my fathers house. And Dauid ☞ sware vnto Saul, and Saul wēt home. But Dauid and his men gatt thē vp vnto an hold. *i.re.xxiiii.d.

CThe.xxv.Chapter.

CSamuel dyeth. Dauid fleeth into the wyldernesse of Pharan.

A And* Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites geathered togeather and lamented hym, and burped hym in his owne house at Rama. *i.re.xxviii.a.

And Dauid arose, and gat hym to ỹ wildernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon whose possession was in Carmel, and the man was excedyng myghtie, and had thre thousād shepe & a thousād gootes. And he was cheryng his shepe in Carmell.

The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of a singuler wisdome and bewtifull. But the man was churlysshe, ād of shrewde condicions, and was of the kynred of Caleb. And Dauid heard in the wildernesse, ꝑ Nabal dyd shere hys shepe. And Dauid sent out ten young men, and sayde vnto them: get you vp to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and grete hym in my name. And thus shal ye saye: peace be to ꝑ, peace be to thyne house, & peace be vnto all that thou hast. Beholde, I haue heard saye, ꝑ ꝑ hast sherers. Now, thy shepherdes were with vs

* (in the wildernesse,) and we dyd thē no spyte, nether was there ought * (of the flocke) myssing vnto them, all the whyle they were in Carmel: aske thy laddes, & they will shew the. Wherfore let these young men fynde fauore in thine eyes (for we come in a good season) and * geue I praye the whatsoeuer
* i.reg.xxv.a commeth to thyne hande, vnto thy seruātes, and to thy sonne Dauid.

And whan Dauids yongmen came, they tolde Nabal all those wordes in ꝑ name of Dauid, & thē helde theyr peace. And Nabal answered Dauids seruaūtes, & sayde: what is Dauid? & what is the sōne of Iſai? there is plentye of seruauntes now a dayes, that breake awaye euery man from his master. Shal I thē take my breed, my water & my flesshe, ꝑ I haue kylled for my sherers, & geue it vnto mē whō I wote not whēce they be? & so Dauids seruauntes turned their waye, and went agayne, and came and told him all those sayinges. And Dauid sayd vnto hys men: gyrde euery man hys swerde aboute him. And they gyrded euery mā his swerde aboute him, & Dauid was gyrded with his swerde. And there folowed Dauid vpon a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, saying: Beholde, Dauid sent messēgers vnto oure master out of the wildernesse to salute him & he rayled on thē. And yet the men are very good vnto vs, & dyd vs no displeasure, nether missed we any thing, as long as we were conuersant with thē, when we were in the feldes. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght & daye, all the whyle we were with thē keping shepe. Now therfore, take hede, and se what ꝑ hast to do, for there is an occasion of euell geuen agaynst oure master and all his housholde, seyng: he is as a sonne of beliall vngracious to speake to. Then Abigail made hast, & toke two hūdred loues, & two bottelles of wine, and fyue shepe readye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred frayles of reasyngs, and two hundred topnettes of kygges, and laded thē on asses, & sayde vnto her young mē: go ye before me. Beholde, I come after you. But she tolde her husbād Naball nothing therof. And as she rode on her asse she came preuely downe ꝑ syde of the hyll, & beholde, Dauid and hys mē came downe agaynst her, & she met thē.

And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felow hath in ꝑ wildernesse: so that nought was myssed of all ꝑ pertayned vnto hym. And he hath quite me euell for good. So and so do God vnto the enemyes of dauid, yf I leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawnyng of the daye, any thig ☞ that pisseth agaynst the walle.

And when Abigail saw Dauid, she hasted & lyghted of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her self to ꝑ ground and fell at his fete, and sayde: Let this vnhappie deade be counted myne, my Lorde, & let thine handmayde speake in thine audience, and heare the wordes of thy handemayde. Let not my Lorde * (the kyng) regard this vnthryftye mā Naball: for as his name is, so is he ☞ Nabal is his name, & folie is wt hī. But I thine hādmayd saw not ꝑ young men of my Lorde whō ꝑ sendedst.

Now therfore my Lorde, as sure as ꝑ lord lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, ꝑ Lorde hath withholden the frō cōming to shede blood, & withdraw ꝑ thine hand frō bloude sheade Now, I praye God, ꝑ thine enemyes & they ꝑ entende to do my Lorde euel, may be as Nabal. And now this is the ☞ blessyng which thyne hād mayde hath brought vnto my Lord: & lett it be geuen vnto ꝑ yōg men, that folow my Lorde. For geue the trespace of thine handmayde, for the Lord will make my Lorde a sure house, because my Lord fyghteth ꝑ batayles of ꝑ Lorde, and there coulde none euel be founde in the in all thy dayes. And yf any man ryse to persecute the, & to seke thy soule, ꝑ soule of my Lorde shall be bound as ☞ in ꝑ bōdell of ꝑ lyuing wt ꝑ Lord thy God. And ꝑ soules of thy enemyes shal God cast out, euen as out of the mydle of a slyng. And when ꝑ Lord shall haue done to my Lord all the good ꝑ he hath promised ꝑ, & shall haue made the ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no decaye vnto the, ner discourage of herte vnto my Lorde, ꝑ thou hast not shedde bloud causeles, ner auenged thy selfe,

But when the Lord shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, thē thynck on thyne handmayde. And Dauid sayd to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, which sent the this daye to mete me. Blessed is thy sayēg, & blessed art thou, which hast kept me thys daye from coming to shede blood, and from auengyng my self with myne awne hand. For in very deade, as sure as ꝑ Lord God of Israel lyueth, which hath kept me backe from hurtyng the, excepte thou haddest hasted and met me, thinkest ꝑ, there had bene left vnto Nabal by the dawnyng of the daye, a daye, a pisser agaynst the walle? And so Dauid receaued of her hād, that which she had brought him & sayd to her: go vp in peace to thyne house. Beholde, I haue herde thy voyce, and haue accepted thy persone.

And Abigail came to Nabal: and behold, he held a feast in his house, lyke the feest of a kyng, & Nabals herte was mery within hī, for he was very dronke. Wherfore she tolde him nothing, nether lytle nor moare, vntill ꝑ morow daye. But in ꝑ mornyng, whē the wine was gone out of Naball, hys G wife tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone & vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Nabal, ꝑ he dyed. And when Dauid heard that Nabal was deed, he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hād of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaunt from euell, and hath recōpensed the wickednesse of Nabal vpō his awne heed. And Dauid sent to comen wt Abigail: to thyntēt to take her to his wife. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her saying: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take ꝑ to his wife. And she arose, & bowed her self on her face to the erth, and sayde: Beholde: let thy handmayde be a seruaunt, to washe the fete of the seruauntes of my Lord. And Abigail hasted, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an Asse, wt fyue damoselles of hers ꝑ went at her fete, and she went after ꝑ messengers of Dauid, and became hys wife. Dauid also toke Ahinoam of Jezrahel, & they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue

¶ The.xxvi. Chapter.

¶ Saul sleapeth in his tent: and Dauid taketh awaye his speare and a cruse of water, that stode at his heed.

A THe ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibea, saying: Doth not Dauid hyde hym self in the hill of Hachila which is before Jesimon? Saul arose, and went downe to the wylderneſſe of ziph, hauyng thre thousande chosen mē of Israel with hym, for to seke Dauid in the wildernesse of ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Hachila which lyeth before Jesimon, by ꝑ waye side. But Dauid dwelt in ꝑ wildernesse. And he saw that Saul cam after hym into he wildernesse. Dauid therfore sent out spyes, & vnderstode, that Saul was come i very dede.

And Dauid arose and came to the place where Saul had pitched, & Dauid beheld the place, where Saul laye, and Abner the sōne of Ner which was his cheke captayne Saul laye within, & the people & the hoolste rounde about him. Then answered Dauid and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite, & to Abisai the sonne of Zaruia and brother to Joab, saying: who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? And Abisai saide: I will go downe with the.

And so Dauid and Abisai came downe to ꝑ people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye sleping within the hooste, & his speare stacke in the ground at his heed. But Abner & the people laye round about hym. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath deliuered thyne enemye into thyne hāde this daye. Now therfore, lett me smyte hym once with my speare to the erth, & I wyll not smyte hym the secōde tyme. And Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroye him not. For who can laye his hāde on the Lordes anoynted, & be giltles? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde shall smyte hī or his daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battell, & there perishe. The Lord kepe me from laying myne hāde vpō the Lordes anoynted: But take thou now the speare that is at his heed, & the crewse of water, & let vs go. And so Dauid toke ꝑ speare & the crewse of water from Sauls heed, and they gatt them awaye, and no man saw it or marked yt or awaked. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a deade sleape vpon thē. Then Dauid went ouer to the other syde, and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space beyng betwene them) and Dauid cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: Hearest thou not Abner? Abner answered, and sayde: What art thou that ☞ cryest to the kyng? and Dauid sayd ☞
*ii.reg.iii.c to Abner: art not thou a man: and who his lyke the in Israel? Wherfore thē hast thou not kept thy Lord the kyng? For there came one of the folke in, to destroy the kyng thy lord. It is not good that ꝑ hast done. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, * ye are wor- *i.reg.xxvi.c thy to dye, because ye haue not kepte youre master, the Lordes anoynted. And nowe se where the kynges speare is and the crewse of water, that was at his heed.

And Saul knew Dauids voyce, & sayde * is this thy voyce my sōne Dauid? & Dauid sayd: it is my voyce, my Lord, O kyng And he sayde: wherfore doth my lord thus persecute his seruaunt? for what haue I done? or what euell is in myne hād? Now therD fore let my Lord the kyng heare ꝑ wordes of his seruaūt. If ꝑ Lorde haue stered ꝑ vp agaynst me, let hi smell the sauoure of a sacrifice. But & yf they be ꝑ childzen of men, cursed are they before ꝑ lord. For they haue cast me out this daye frō abidyng i ꝑ enheritaūce of the Lord, saying: hēce, & go serue other gods. Now therfore let not my bloud fall to the erth before the face of the lorde. For the king of Israell is come out to hūt

a flee,as whan one doth hunt a partrege in the moũtaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue synned,come agayn my sõne Dauid,for I will do þ no moare harme,because my soule was precioulse in thyne eyes thys daye. Beholde, I haue played the fole,& haue erred exceedyngly. And Dauid answered and sayd: Behold,þ kyngs speare, lett one of þ yong men come ouer,& fett it. The Lorde reward euery man accordyng to his ryght wesnesse & fayth: for þ Lordde delyuered the into my hand thys daye, but I wolde not laye myne hand vpon þ Lordes anoynted. And beholde,lyke as thy lyfe was moche set bye this daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he delyuer me out of all tribulacion. Then Saul sayd to Dauid: Blessed art thou my sonne Dauid,for thou shalt be a doer and preuayle. And so Dauid went his waye, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶The.xxvii.Chapter.

¶Dauid fleeth to Achis kyng of Geth.

AND Dauid sayde in his hert: I shall perisshe one daye or other by the hand of Saul. Therfore is there nothing better for me, then to flee and saue my selfe in the land of the Philistines,and Saul shall ceasse & seke me nomore in all the coastes of Israel, & so shall I escape out of his hand. And Dauid arose, & he & þ syxe hũdred mẽ þ were wt him went vnto Achis, þ sonne of Maoch,kyng of Geth. And Dauid dwelt wt Achis at Geth,both he & his men,euery mã wt his housholde, & Dauid wt hys two wiues: Ahinoã þ Jezrahelite, & Abigail Nabals wife of Carmell. And it was tolde Saul,þ Dauid was fled to Geth, and he sought no moare for him. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: If I haue now found grace in thine eyes,lett thẽ geue me a place in some towne i þ feldes,þ I maye dwell there. For why shulde thy seruaũt dwell i þ heed cytie of þ kingdome wt þ? Then Achis gaue hym zikleg þ same daye, for which cause zikleg pertaineth vnto the kynges of Juda vnto thys daye. And þ tyme that Dauid dwelt i þ cõtreye of the Philistines,was foure monethes,and certayne dayes. And Dauid & his men wẽt vp,and ranne vpõ the Geluri-tes,the Gerzites & þ Amalekites: for those nacions were frõ the begynnyng the enhabiters of the lande, as men go to Sur, vnto the lãde of Egypte. And Dauid smote the land,and left nether man ner woman alyue,and droue awaye the shepe,the oxen, the asses,camelles,and clothes,and retourned,and came to Achis. And Achis sayde: where haue ye bene a rouig this daye? And Dauid answered: Toward þ south of Juda,& towarde þ south of the Jezrahelites, & towarde the south of the Cenites. And Dauid saued nether mã nor woman alyue ner sufered them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) leste they shuld telle on vs saig so dyd Dauid & so wylbe his maner all the while he dwelleth in the cõtreye of the Philistines. And Achis beleued Dauid saying He abhorreth his people of Israel, & therfore he shalbe my seruaunt for euer.

¶The.xxviii.Chapter.

¶The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul which seketh after an enchaunter.

AND it chaunced in those dayes, that the Philistines geathered their hoost together to warre, to fyght with Israel. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Be sure, thou shalt goo out with me to the battell,thou & the men þ are with the. And Dauid sayde to Achis: then þ shalt know, what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde agayne to Dauid: Then I will make þ keper of my heed for euer * Samuel was then deed,& all Israel had lamẽted hym, & buryed him i Rama his awne cytie. * And Saul hat put þ wemẽ that had spretes of prophesye,& þ Sothsayers out of the lãd. And the Philistines geathered together, & came,& pitched in Sunem. And Saul gathered all Israel togeather, & they pitched in Giboa: And whẽ Saul saw the hoste of the Philistines,he was afrayed, & his hert was sore astonyed. And whan Saul asked councell of the Lorde, the Lorde answered hi not,nether by dreames,nor by Urim nor yet by prophetes. Thẽ sayd Saul vnto his seruauntes * seke me a woman that hath a spyrete of prophesye, þ I maye go to her & aske of her. And hys seruauntes sayde to him: Beholde,there is a woman that hath a spyrete of prophesye at Endor.

And Saul chaunged him selfe, and put on other rayment, & then went he & two men with hym,and they came to the woman by nyght. And he sayde: prophesye vnto me by þ spyrete, & bryg me him vp whõ I shall name vnto the. And the womã sayde vnto hym: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done,how he hath destroyed þ wemen that had prophesyig spretes, & the Sorcerars out of the lãde. Wherfore then seketh thou an occasion agaynst my soule,that he maye kyll me? And Saul sware to her by the Lorde sayig: As suerly as þ Lorde lyueth,there shall no harme chaũce þ for this thyng. Thẽ sayd þ womã: whõ shall I fetche vp vnto the? he answered: Bryg me vp Samuel. Whẽ þ woman saw Samuel,she cryed wt a lowde voyce,and spake to Saul saying: why hast thou disceaued me? for þ art Saul. And þ kyng sayde vnto her, be not afrayde: What seest thou? The womã sayd vnto Saul: I se goddes alcẽdig vp out of

out of the erth. He sayde vnto her agayne: what fassiõ is he of? She answered: there cometh vp an olde man wt a mantell vpõ hym. And Saul perceaued þ it was Samuel & he stouped wt his face to the grounde, & bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou vnquieted me, to make me be brought vp? Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philystynes make warre agaynst me,& God is departed from me and answereth me no more, nether by pphetes, nether by dreames. And therfore I haue called the, þ thou mayest tell me, what I shall do. Then sayd Samuel: wherfore doest þ aske of me, whyle þ Lorde is gone from the, & is become thyne enemye? Truly þ Lord hath done for hym selfe, euen as he spake by my hãd. * For the Lorde hath rent the kingdome out of thyne hande,& geuẽ it thy neyboure Dauid. Because thou obeyedst not þ voyce of the Lord, nor executedst hys fearce wrath vpõ the Amalekites, therfore hath þ Lord done this vnto the this daye. And moreouer, the Lorde wyll delyuer Israel wt the, into the hãdes of the Philistines. * To morowe shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shall geue the hoste of Israel into the hãdes of þ Philistines. Then Saul fell streyght waye flatte on the erth a longe as he was, and was sore adread because of the wordes of Samuel.

And there was no strength in hym, for he had eatẽ no bread all the daye and the nyght before. And the womã cam vnto Saul, and sawe that he was sore troubled, and sayde vnto hym: Se, thyne hãdmayd hath obeyed thy voyce,& * haue put my soule in my hande, and haue harkened vnto thy wordes, which thou saydest vnto me. Nowe therfore harken thou also vnto þ voyce of thyne hãdmayd, and let me sett a morsell of bread before the, that thou mayest eate and gett thy strength,& then go on thy iourneye. He refused, and sayde: I wyll not eate. But hys seruaũtes & the womã togeather cõpelled him, and he harkened vnto theyr voyce. And so he arose from the erth, and sat him on a bedd. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and she hasted & kylled it, and toke flowre & knեded it, and dyd bake swete cakes therof, and brought thẽ before Saul and before his seruauntes. And whẽ they had eatẽ, they stode vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

THe Philistines were geathered togeather wt all their armyes vnto Aphec: And þ Israelites pitched in Ailn, which is i Jesrahel. And þ Lordes of the Philistines wẽt forth wt the hũdreds & thousandes. But Dauid & his mẽ came behide wt Achis. Then sayde the Lords of the Philistines, what are yonder Ebrues? Achis sayd vnto þ Lordes of þ Philistines: Is not thys Dauid the seruaunt of Saul the kynge of Israel, whych hath bene wyth me these dayes or yeres? I haue founde no fault in hym, sence he fledd vnto me vnto thys daye. And the Lordes of the Philistines were wroth wyth hym and sayde vnto hym: Make this felowe returne, that he maye go agayne to hys place whych thou hast appoynted hym: and let hym not go downe wyth vs to battell, lest in the battell he be an aduersarye to vs. For wherwyth coulde he better obtayne the fauoure of hys master, then wyth the heedes of these men? Is not thys Dauid, to whõ they sange in daunses: * Saul slue hys thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande? Then Achis called Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: As sure as the Lorde lyueth, thou hast bene honest, and good in my syght, whan thou wentest out & in wyth me in the hoost: neyther haue I founde euell with the, sence thou camest to me vnto thys daye: Neuertheless the Lordes of þ Philistines fauoure the not: Wherfore now returne, & go in peace, that thou displeask not the Lordes of the Philistynes. And Dauid sayde vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruaũt, as lõg as I haue bene wyth the vnto thys daye, þ I maye not go fyght againste the enemyes of my Lorde the kynge?

Achis answered & sayd to Dauid: I know that thou art good, & art in my syght, as an Angell of God. Not wythstandinge the Lordes of the Philistynes haue sayde: Let hym not go vp wt vs to battell. Wherfore nowe ryse vp early in þ mornyng wt thy masters seruauntes that are come to the: and when ye be vp early (as sone as ye haue lyght) departe. And so Dauid and his mẽ rose vp early to departe in the mornynge, & to returne into the land of the Philistines. And þ Philistines went vp to Jezraell.

¶The.xxx.Chapter.

¶Dauid returnynge from kynge Achis fyndeth zikleg burnt.

BUt whan Dauid & hys men were come to zikleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had rusched in vpon the south, and vpon zikleg, & had smytten zikleg, & burnt it wt fyre, & had taken the wemẽ (þ were therin) prisoners, both small & great: but slewe not a mã, saue caryed them wt thẽ, & wẽt theyr wayes. So Dauid and hys men came to the cytie: & beholde, it was burnt with fyre, & their wyues, theyr sonnes and their daughters were caryed awaye. Then Dauid and the people that was wyth hym, lyfte vp their voyces & wept, vntyll they could wepe no more. And Dauids two wiues were take prisoners also: Ahinoam the Jezrahelite, and abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And Dauid was in a shrewde combraūce: for the people entended to stone hym, because the hertes of all the people were vexed for theyr sonnes & theyr daughters.

But Dauid toke a good courage to hym
*i.re.xxiij.b. in the Lorde hys God & *sayde to Abiathar the preste Ahimelechs sonne: I pray the, bring me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid asked coūcell at the Lorde, sayinge: shall I folowe after thys companie: and shall I ouertake them: And he answered him: folow, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye.

So Dauid and the syx hūdred men that
C were with hym, wēt & cam to the riuer Besor, where a part of them abode. But Dauid and foure hundred men folowed: For two hundred abode behinde, beynge to werye to go ouer the ryuer Besor. And they foūde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought hym to

And when he had eaten, hys spyrite cam agayne to hym: for he had eaten, no bread nor dronke no water in thre dayes & thre nyghtes. And Dauid sayd vnto him: to whom belongest thou: & whence art thou: he sayd: I am a yōge mā of Egypt and seruaunt to an Amaleckite: and my master left me behynde, because it is thre dayes
D agone, þ I fell sycke: we came a rouyng vpō the south of Chrethus, and against Juda, and towarde the south of Caleb. And we burnt zikleg wyth fyre. And Dauid sayde to hym: canst thou bringe me to this company: And he sayde: swere vnto me by God, that thou wylt neither kyll me, nor delyuer me into the handes of my master, and I will bringe the to the companye. And whē he had brought hym thyther, beholde, they laye skatered abroade vpō the erth, eatynge & drinckynge, & daunsynge, because of the plēteous & great pray, þ they had caried awaye out of þ land of the Philistines, & out of the lāde of Juda.

And Dauid layd vpon thē from the euen,
E vntill the twilyght on the morow: so þ there escaped not a man of them, saue foure hundred young men which rode awaye vpō cameles, and fledd. And Dauid recouered all þ the Amalekites had caried awaye, & Dauid rescued hys two wyues: so that ther was no person of them lacking, small or great, sonne or daughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had take awaye, Dauid recouered them all agayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe, & the oxen. And they draue them before his catell, & sayd: this is Dauids pray. And Dauid came to the two hundred mē, þ were to werye for to folowe Dauid, whom they had made also to abyde at the ryuer Besor. And they cam to mete Dauid, & þ people þ were wyth him. And whē Dauid cam to þ people, he sa-
F luted thē. Then answered all the wycked & the vnthryftes (of the men þ went with Dauid) & sayde: because they went not with vs, therfore will we geue them none of þ praye, that we haue recouered, But let euery man take hys wyfe and hys chyldren: Those lett them carry awaye, and be walkynge.

Then sayde Dauid: ye shall not do so (my brethren) wt that which the Lord hath geuen vs, & hath preserued vs, & delyuered the companye þ came agaynst vs, into oure handes. For who shuld herkē vnto you in thys matter: *But as hys parte is þ goeth downe & *Josu.xxij.c
fyghteth, so shall his parte be, that taryeth by the stuffe, þ it maye be parted alyke. And so from þ daye forwarde: was that made a statute & lawe in Israel, vntyll thys daye.
When Dauid therfore cam to zikleg, he sent *(epystles) of the praye vnto the elders of Juda * and to hys frendes sayinge: se, there is a blessyng for you, of the spoyle of the enemyes of G the Lorde. C The lamentacion of Dauid for Saul & Jonathas.

ij.Re.xxx.c.
After the deeth of Saul when Dauid was returned from the *slaughter of the Amalekites, and had bene two dayes in zikleg: Beholde, there came a mā the thyrde daye out of the hoste from Saul, with his clothes rent and erth vpon hys heed. And when he came to Dauid, he fell to the erth and dyd obeysaūce. Dauid sayde vnto him: whence comest thou: He sayde vnto him: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid sayde vnto him. And what is chaūced: tell me. He sayde: the people is fled from the battell: and many of the people are ouerthrowen, and deed: and Saul & Jonathas his sonne are deed also.
And Dauid sayde vnto the younge man that tolde him these thynges: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas hys sonne be deed: The younge man that tolde him, answered: I came by chaunce to mount Gilboa: And beholde, Saul leaned vpon his speare. For the charettes and companyes of horsemen folowed harde after him. And whan he loked backe he sawe me, and called me. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto me: what art thou: I answered hym: I am an Amalekite. He sayde vnto me agayne: Stonde vpō me, and slee me: for anguysshe is come vpon me, though my lyfe be yet all in me. And so I stode vpō hym, and slue him: for I was sure þ he coulde not lyue, after D that he had fallen. And I toke the crowne þ was vpon hys heed, and the Brasselet that was on hys arme, and haue brought them hyther vnto my Lorde.

Then Dauid toke holde on hys clothes,
*ij.reg.iij.c. and rent them, *and so dyd all the men that and.xiij.f. were wt him And they mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntyll euen, for Saul and Jonathas his sonne, & for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowen with the swerde.

And Dauid sayde vnto the younge man C that brought him these tydinges. Whēce art thou: And he answered. I am the sonne of an alyaunt an Amalekite. And Dauid sayde vnto him: Howe is it þ thou wast not afrayed, to laye thyne hande on the Lordes anoynted, to destroye hym: And Dauid called one of his younge men and sayde: Go to, and runne vpon him. And he smote hym: that he dyed: then sayde Dauid vnto him: thy blonde

And Dauid mourned with thys lamentacyon ouer Saul and ouer Jonathas hys sonne, and bad teache the chyldren of Israel the vse of the bowe. And Beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the ryght wes. *(And he sayde: Consyder, O Israel, these that be deed and wounded vpon thy hye hylles.) O noble Israell, the Saul and Jonathas were louely & pleasaũt in their lyues, and in their deathes they were not deuided: They were swifter then Egles, and stronger then Lyons. Ye daughters of Israel, wepe ouer Saul, which clothed you in purple with pleasures, and hanged oznamentes of golde vpon your apparell. Howe were the myghtye slayne in battell? ## ¶The second Chapter.

¶Dauid is anoynted in Hebron. The battell of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Isboseth.

*i.re.xvij.a. 9.Reg.b.c.

After thys it fortuned, that Dauid ✱ asked councell at the Lorde, sayinge: shall I go vp into any of the cyties of Juda? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: go. And Dauid sayde agayne: Whither shall I go? He answered: Unto Hebron. And so Dauid went thither with his two wyues, Ahinoam ỹ Jesrahelite, & Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were wyth him, dyd Dauid carye vp also, euery man with his houshold. And they dwelt in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Juda came, and there they anoynted Dauid kynge, ouer the house of Juda. And they tolde Dauid sayinge: It is ✱ the men of Jabes in Gilead ỹ buryed Saul. And Dauid sent messengers vnto the men of Jabes in Gilead, and sayde vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed soche kyndnesse vnto youre Lorde Saul, and haue buryed him. And nowe the Lorde shewe mercye & trueth vnto you. And I wyll do you also soche kyndnesse as ye haue done in thys thynge. Therfore nowe let youre handes be stronge, and playe ye the mẽ: For your master Saul is deed. And they that are of the house of Juda, haue anoynted me kynge ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner that was captayne of Sauls host, toke Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and brought him to Mahanaim, and made hym kynge ouer Gilead, and ouer the Assurites, & ouer Jesrahel, Ephraim, Benjamin, and ouer all Israel. And Isboseth Sauls sonne was fourtye yere olde, when he began to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned two yere. But the house of Juda folowed Dauid. ✱ And the tyme which Dauid raygned in Hebrõ ouer the house of Juda, was. vij. yere and syxe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner and the seruauntes of Isboseth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gibeon.

*i.reg.xxvi.c

*ii.reg.b.a.

And Joab the sonne of zaruia and the seruauntes of Dauid went out, and mette them by the Pole of Gibeon. And they satt downe the one, on the one syde of the Pole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde to Joab: let the yõge men aryse, and ☞ playe before vs. And Joab sayde: Let them aryse. Then there arose and went ouer. twelue of Ben Jamin by nombre, which pertayned to Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruauntes of Dauid. And euery one caught hys felowe (that came agaynst hym) by the heed, and thrust hys swerde in hys syde, and so they felle downe together. Wherfore the place was called: The felde of the myghtye. And it is in Gibeon. And there beganne an exceadinge cruell battell that same daye. For Abner and the men of Israel fell before the seruauntes of Dauid.

And there were thre sonnes of zaruiah there: Joab, Abisai and Asahel. And Asahel was as lyght of fote as a wylde Roo, and Asahel folowed after Abner, and ✱ turned neither to the ryght hand nor to the lefte, frõ Abner. Then Abner loked behynde hym, and sayde: art thou Asahel? He answered: yee that I am. Abner sayde: turne the ether to ỹ ryghthand or to ỹ lefte and catche one of the younge men, and take the his weapõs. But Asahel wolde not depart frõ hym. And Abner sayde agayne to Asahel departe fro me. Wherfore shulde I smyte the to the groũde, and not be able to holde vp my face to Joab, thy brother? howbeit, whan he wolde in no wyse departe, Abner with the hynder ende of the speare smote hym vnder ✱ ỹ short rybbes, that the speare cam out behynde hym: ỹ he fell downe in ỹ same place, and dyed there. And as many as cam to the place where Asahel fell downe and dyed, stode still. Joab also & Abisai folowed Abner. And the sonne went downe, when they were come to ỹ hyll Ama that lyeth before Giah by the waye ỹ goeth thorowe the wyldernesse of Gibeon. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin geathered them selues together on a heape, to Abner, & stode on the toppe of an hyll. Thẽ Abner called to Joab, and sayde: shall the swerde deuoure styll for euer? knowest thou not, that it wylbe ☞ bitternesse in the latter ende? howe longe shall it be, yer thou bydde ỹ people returne from folowynge their brethren? And Joab sayde: as truely as God lyueth ☞ yf thou haddest not spoken in the morynge, the people had bene departed, euery one from persecutynge hys brother. And so ✱ Joab blewe a trompet, and all the people stode styll, and pursued after Israel no more nether fought they any more. And Abner & his men walked all that nyght thorowe the playne, & went ouer Jordan, & past thorowe all Bethhoron tyll they cam to Mahanaim.

And Joab returned frõ persecuting Abner. And whã he had geathered all ỹ people together, there lacked of Dauids seruaũtes nyntene men, & Asahel. But the seruaũtes of Dauid had slayne of Beniamin, and of Abners men, thre hũdred & thre skore men. And they toke vp Asahel, and buryed hym in the sepulchre of his father i Bethlehem. And Joab and his men went all nyght, vntyll the dawnyng of the daye, and came to Hebron.

¶Abner commeth to Dauid and bryngeth hym hys wyfe Michol. Joab killeth Abner.

There was longe warre betwene the howse of Saul, and ỹ howse of Dauid. But Dauid waxed stronger and stronger, & the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker. ✱ And vnto Dauid were ✱(sayre) chyldren borne in Hebron: his eldest sonne also was Ammon, of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite: the secõde Cheleab, of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Absalõ, the sonne of Maachah ỹ daughter of Thalmai, the kynge of Gessur: the fourth, Adonia, the sonne of Hagith: the fyfte, Sephatia the sonne of Abital: ỹ sixte Jethreã by Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne to Dauid in Hebrõ. And it fortuned, that whyle there was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubyne named Rizpa, the daughter of Aia. And Isboseth sayde to Abner: ☞ Wherfore hast thou ☞ gone into my fathers concubyne? Then was Abner very wroth for the wordes of Isboseth, & sayde: Am I not a ✱ dogges heed, which agaynst Juda do shewe mercye thys daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, & to his brethren and frendes, and haue not delyuered the into the hande of Dauid: and thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for this womã? ✱ So and so do God to Abner. For as the Lorde hath sworne to Dauid, so wyll I be on hys syde, to bryng the kyngdom from the house of Saul, that the throne of Dauid maye be stablysshed ouer Israel, and ouer Juda euẽ from Dan to Berlsabe. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a woorde to answer, because he feared hym.

Now then do it: for the Lorde hath sayd of Dauid: By the hãd of my seruaũt Dauid, I will saue my people Israel, out of ỹ handes of the Philistines, and out of the hande of all their enemyes. And Abner spake in ỹ eares of Beniamin, and went to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron, all that Israell was content wyth, and the whole house of Beniamin. And so Abner came to Dauid to Hebron, hauyng twentye men wt hym, & Dauid made him & the men that were with him a feast. And Abner sayde vnto Dauid: I wyll vp, and go geather all Israell vnto my Lorde the kyng, that they maye make an appoyntment wyth the, and that thou mayst commaunde all, as thyne hart desyreth. And whan Dauid had lett Abner departe, he went in peace.

the house of Abinadab that was at Gibea,
with the Arck of God, Ahio wēt before the Arck. And Dauid and all the house of Js-rael playde before the Lorde in sondrye instrumentes made of Cedre wodd, with har-pes, psalteries, timberelles, fedylles, and cymbals.
And when they cam to Nachons thres- 25

of God, and held it, for the oxen stombled.
And the Lorde was wroth wyth Uza, and God smote him i the same place ☞ for his ☞

then afrayed of the Lorde, and sayde: how shall the Arcke of the Lorde come to me?
And so Dauid wolde not bryng the Arcke

se of Jsrael brought þ arck ✠ (of the couenaūt) *5 of the Lorde, wyth showtyng and trompet
blowyng.
And it fortuned, that as the arcke of the Lorde cam into the citye of Dauid, Michol Sauls daughter loked thorow a window,
and saw kynge Dauid springe, and daunce
before the Lorde, and she dyspysed hym in her hert. And when they brought in þ Arck of the Lorde, they set it in his place, euen in D the myddes of the tabernacle ꝑ Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offered burnt offeringes & peace offeringes before the lord.

And as sone as Dauid had made an ende of offeryng burnt offerynges & peace offeryn-

Therfore Michol ꝑ daughter of Saul had no chylde, vnto the daye of her deeth.

¶The.vii.Chapter.

¶Dauid wold bupld God a house: but is forbyd-

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ The messengers of Dauid are vyllanously entreated of the kyng of Moab.

IT happened after this, þ the kĩg of the childzen of Ammon died, & Hanon his sonne raygned in his steade. Then sayd Dauid: I will shew kyndnesse vnto Hanon þ sonne of Nahas, as hys father shewed kyndnesse vnto me. And Dauid sent to conforte hym by the hand of his seruaũtes ouer-* (the death of) hys father. And Dauids seruauntes came into the lande of the childzẽ of Ammon, and the Lozdes of the childzen of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their Lozd: thynkest thou þ Dauid dothe honoure thy father, that he hath sent cõforters to the? Hath not Dauid rather sent his seruaũtes vnto þ, to searche þ cytie, & to spye it out, and to ouerthzow it?

Wherfore, Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, & shaued of the one halfe of euerye mannes berd and cut of their garmentes in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of thẽ, & sent them awaye. When they tolde it vnto Dauid, he sent to mete thẽ (for they were men exceedingly ashamed) & the kyng sayd: tarie at Jericho vntill your beerdes be growen, and then returne. And when the childzen of Ammon sawe that they stancke in þ sight of Dauid, they sent and hired the Syrians of the house of Rehob, & the Sirians of zoba. xx. thousand fote men, and of kyng Maacha a thousand mẽ, & of Istob twelue thousand men. And when Dauid hearde of it, he sent Joab & all the host of strong men. And the childzen of Ammon came out, and waged battell at the entring in of þ gate, & the Sirians of zobah, of Rehob, Istob and Maacah were by them selues in the felde.

When Joab sawe þ the front of the battell was agaynst hym before and after, he chose of all the frely young men of Israell, & put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he delyuered into the hãd of Abisay hys brother, þ he myght put thẽ in araye agaynst þ childzen of Ammon. And he sayd, yf the Sirians be stronger then I, thou shalt helpe me. But yf the childzen of Ammon be to strong for the, I will come ãd succoure the. Therfore qupte the lyke a man, & let vs stonde stiff for oure people, & for the cities of oure God. And the Lord do þ which is good in his owne eyes. And Joab prooceded forth, & þ people þ was with hym, to fight with the Sirians. But they fled before him. And when the childzen of Ammon sawe that the Siriãs were fled, thẽ fled they also before Abisay, and entred into the cityе. And so Joab returned from þ childzẽ of Ammon, & came to Jerusalem. And when the Siriãs sawe that they were put to þ worse before Israel, they geathered them to geather. And Hadarezer sent, & brought out the Sirians þ were beyounde the ryuer. And they came with their azmye and Hobah the captayne of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israel togeather, ãd passed ouer Jordan, & cam to Helam: And the Sirians set them selues in araye agaynst Dauid, & fought with him: and the Sirians fled before Israel. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundzed charettes of the Sirians, and fourtye thousand horsemen, and smote Sobah the captayne of their host, which also dyed there. And when all the kinges (that were seruauntes to Hadarezer) sawe that they were put to the worse before Israell, they made peace with them, & serued them. And so the Sirians feared to helpe þ childzen of Ammon any moare.

AND it came to passe þ (after the yeare was expyred) in the tyme when kynges vse to go forth to battell, Dauid sent Joab and hys seruauntes with hym, and all Israel, which * destroyed the childzen of Ammon, and beseged Raba. But Dauid taryed styll at Jerusalem. And it chaũced in an euenynge, that Dauid arose out of hys bed, and walked vpon the roufe of the kynges palace, and from the roufe he sawe a woman * washynge her selfe: and the womã was very beutyfull to loke vpõ. And he sent to enquyre what womã it shuld be, sayenge: is it not Bethsabe the daughter of Eliam, and wyfe to Urias the Hethite? And dauid sent messengers, and fett her. And she came in vnto hym * & he laye with her. And * (immediatly) she was purifyed from her vnclennesse, and returned vnto her house. And the woman conceaued, & sent and tolde Dauid, & sayd: I am with childe. And Dauid sent to Joab, (sayenge:) sende me Urias the Hethite. And Joab sent Urias to Dauid. And whẽ Urias was come vnto hym. Dauid demaunded of him: howe Joab dyd, and howe the people fared, and howe the mẽ of warre prospered. And Dauid sayd to Urias: go downe to thyne house, and washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed hym a seruyce from the kinges table. But Urias slept at the doze of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of hys Lozde, and wẽt not downe to hys house.

And Dauid sayde vnto Urias: * tarye here this daye also, and to morowe I wyll lett the depart. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye, and the morowe. And whã Dauid had called hym, he dyd eate and dzyncke before hym, and he made hym dzoncke. And at euẽ he went out to lye on hys couche with the seruauntes of his Lozd, but went not downe to hys house. On þ morow Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hande of Urias. And he wrote thus in þ letter, sayẽg: put Urias in the forefront of the sharper battell, and come ye backe from hym, that he maye be smytten and dye. So whan Joab beseged the cytie, he assygned Urias vnto a place, where he wyst that stroge men were. And the mẽ of the cytie cam out, and fought wyth Joab. And there were certẽ ouerthzowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sent, and tolde Dauid all the thynges concernynge the warre, and charged the messenger, sayenge: when thou hast made an ende of tellynge the matters of the warre vnto the kynge, yf he begynne to fume, and saye vnto the: wherfore approched ye so nye vnto the cytie, whan ye dyd fyght? wyst ye not that they wolde hurle and shote from the wall? who smote Abimelech sonne of Jereboseth? * dyd not a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hym from of the wall, and he dyed in Thebes? why went ye nye the wall? then saye thou: thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is deed also.

* ij.Re.xi.f.

So the messenger went, and came, and shewed Dauid all that Joab had sent hym for, and the messaunger sayd vnto Dauid: þ mẽ preuayled agaynst vs, and cam out vnto vs into the felde, & we-* (with violence.) stacke vnto them, euen vnto the enteryng of the gate. And the shoters shotte from the walles, vpon thy seruauntes, and some of the kinges seruaũtes be deed. And thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is deed also. And Dauid sayde vnto the messenger: thus shalt þ saye vnto Joab: let not that thynge trouble the. For * (the chaunce of warre is vncerte, and) þ swerde deuoureth one as well as another: make thy battell more stronge agaynst the cytye to ouerthzoweit, & se that thou courage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias heard that her husbande was deed, she mourned for hym. And whan the mournynge was past, Dauid sent and fett her to hys house, and she became hys wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But this thynge that Dauid dyd, displeased the Lozde.

AND the Lozde sent Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto hi and tolde hym: there were two men in one cytie, the one ryche, and the other poore. The ryche man had exceedynge many shepe and oxen. But the poore had nothynge saue one lytle shepe, which he had bought, and nozysshed vp. And it grewe vp with hym and with hys childzen also, and dyd eate of hys awne meate, and dzancke of hys awne cuppe, and slept in hys bosome, and was vnto hym as hys daughter. And there cam a straunger vnto the ryche mã. And he coulde not fynde in hys heart to take of hys awne shepe, and of hys awne oxen, to dzesse for the straunger that was come vnto hym. Howbeit, because in doyng thys deade, thou hast geuen the enemyes of the Lord a cause to rayle, the chylde that is borne vnto the, shall surelye dye. And Nathan departed vnto hys house. And the Lorde stroke the chylde that Urias wyfe bare vnto Dauid, and it sickened sore. Dauid therfore besought God for ỹ chylde, and fasted and went in, and laye all nyght vpon the erthe. And the elders of hys house arose and went to hym, to take him vp from ỹ erth. But he wolde not, nether dyd he eate meat wyth them.

And it happened the seuẽth daye, that ỹ chylde dyed. And the seruauntes of Dauid
E durst not tell him, that the chylde was deed. For they sayd: beholde, while the chyld was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not herken vnto oure voyce. Howe wyll he then vexe hym selfe, yf we tell hym, that the chylde is deed? But Dauid seynge hys seruauntes whysperynge, perceaued, that the chylde was deed, & Dauid sayd vnto hys seruauntes: is the chylde deed? They sayde: yee. And Dauid arose frõ the erth, and washed and anoynted him selfe, and chaũged his apparell, & came into the house of the Lorde, & worshypped, & afterward cam to hys awne house and badd ỹ they shulde set bred before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruauntes vnto hym: what thynge is thys, that thou hast done? Thou dyddest faste and wepe for the chylde, whyle it was a lyue, & as sone as it was deed, thou diddest ryse vp, and eate meate. He sayde: whyle the chylde was yet a lyue, I fasted and wepte. For this I thought: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercye on me, that the chylde maye lyue. * But nowe, seynge it is deed, wherfore shulde I fast? can I brynge him agayne any moare? I shall go to hym, rather thẽ he shall come agayne to me. ## C The.xiij.Chapter.

C Amnon Dauids sonne defyleth hys syster Thamar. Absalom therfore kylleth Amnon.

A Fter this it chaunced that Absalom the sonne of Dauid had a fayre syster, named Thamar, whom Amnon the sonne of Dauid loued. And he was so sore vexed, that he fell sycke for the loue of hys syster Thamar: for she was a virgyn, and he thought it harde for hym to haue hys purpose of her. But Amnon had a frende, called Jonadab, ỹ sonne of Simeah Dauids brother: and Jonadab was a very wyse mã. And he sayde vnto him: how cometh it, that thou beyng the kinges sonne, art thus consumed euery daye? Wylt thou not tell me? Amnon answered hym: I loue Thamar

Thamar my brother Absaloms syster. Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye ỹ downe on thy bedde, & make thy selfe sicke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: Oh let my syster Thamar come, and geue me meate, & dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it and eate it of her hande.

B And so Amnon laye downe, & made hym selfe sycke. And whẽ the kynge was come to se him, Amnõ sayde vnto him: Oh let Thamar my syster come, & make me a couple of frytters in my syght, that I maye eate of her hande. Then Dauid sent home to Thamar, sayẽg: go now to thy brother Amnõs house, and dresse him meate. So Thamar wente to her brother Amnõs house, and he was layed downe. And she toke floure, and made paste, and dressed frytters in his syght, & dyd bake them, and toke a platter, & powred them out before him, but he wolde not eate. And Amnon sayde: haue out all men from me. And they went all out from hym. And Amnon sayde vnto Thamar: brynge the meate into the chambre, that I maye eate of thyne hãd.
And Thamar toke the frytters, whych she had made, & brought them into the chambre to Amnon her brother. And whã she had set thẽ before him, to eate, he toke her, and sayd vnto her: come lye wt me my syster. And she C answered him: nay my brother, do not force me, for there hath no such thinge bene done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacion. For whither shall I be able to go wt my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the foles in Israel. O speake vnto the kynge, and he shall not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit he wolde not herken vnto her
*Ge.xxxviiia Leui.xviii.a. voyce but toke her, & *forced her, and laye wt her. And thẽ Amnon hated her exceadynglye: so that ỹ hate wher wyth he hated her, was greater then ỹ loue, wt which he before loued her. And Amnon sayde vnto her: vp, & get ỹ hẽce. She answered hi: Thou hast no cause. This cuell ỹ ỹ puttest me awaye is greater then ỹ other that ỹ dyddest vnto me. Neuertheles he wolde not heare her, but called his boye that serued him, & sayd: put awaye this woman frõ me, & bolt ỹ doze after her. And she had a kirtell of diuerse coloures vpõ hyr: for wt soche were ỹ kynges daughters (that D were virgines) appareled. Thẽ his seruaũt brought her oute, ãd locked ỹ doze after her. And Thamar toke & put asshes on her heed, & rent her gaye kyrtell ỹ was on her, & layed her hande on her heed, & so wẽt: & as she wẽt, cryed. And Absalom her brother sayde vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother bene with the? Now yet be still my syster: he is thy brother. Let not this thynge greue thine hert. And so Thamar remayned desolate in her brother Absaloms house. But whan kynge Dauid heard of all these thinges, he was very wroth.

(And he wolde not here the spyrite of Amnon hys sonne, for he loued hym, because he was hys eyrstborne.) And Absalom sayde vnto hys brother Amnon nether good ner badd. Howbeit Absalom hated Amnon because he had forced hys syster Thamar.

And it happened after two yere, that Ab- E

The king answered Absalom: naye my sonne. We will not go all, ner be chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye sore vpon hym: howbeit he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayd Absalom: yf thou wylt not come, then let my brother Amnon go wt vs. And the kynge answered hym: what nedeth it, that he go wyth the? But Absalom made soche instãce that he let Amnon, & all ỹ kynges chyldren go with hym.

Nowe had Absalom cõmaũded his yõge men, sayenge: marke when Amnons hert is mery wyth wyne, & when I byd you smyte Amnon, then kyll hym: and feare not, haue not I bydden you? be bolde therfore, & playe the men. And the younge men of Absalõ dyd F vnto Amnon euen as Absalom had cõmaũded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, & euery man gat hym vp, vpon hys Mule, & fled. And it forfuned, that whyle they were yet in the waye, tydynges cam to Dauid sayẽg: Absalõ hath slayne all the kynges sonnes, & there is none left alyue. And Jonadab the sonne of Shimeah Dauids brother, answered, and sayde: let not my Lorde suppose ỹ they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon only is deed. For that hath bene determined in Absaloms mynde, sence he forced hys syster Thamar. Nowe therfore, let not my Lorde the kynge take the thynge so greuously, to thincke that all ỹ kinges sonnes are deed, saue Amnon only is deed.

But Absalom fled. And the younge man G that kept the watche, lyfte vp hys eyes, and loked: And beholde, ther cam moche people by a waye, a longe by the hynder parte on an hylles syde. And Jonadab sayde vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes come: As thy seruaunt sayde, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyfte vp theyr voyces, and wepte. The kynge also and all hys seruauntes wepte exceadynglye. But Absalom escaped, and wẽt to Thalmai the sonne of Amihur kynge of Gesur. And Dauid mourned for hys sonne euery daye. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, and was there thre yeares. And kynge Dauid desyred to go forth vnto Absalom: For where as Amnon was dead, he was comforted ouer hym.

¶The.xliij.Chapter.

¶ By the wysdome of the woman of Thekoa Absalom is called agayne.

A IOab the sonne of zaruia perceaued, that the kynges hert was towarde Absalō, & he sent to Thekoa, and fett thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: kayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And anoynt not thy self with oyle. but be as a woman that had longe tyme mourned for some dead bodye. And come to the kynge, and speake of thys maner vnto hym. And so Ioab taught her what she should saye

And when the woman of Thekoa had fallen on her face to the grounde, and done B obeysaunce, she sayde vnto the kynge: helpe me O kynge. The kynge sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? She answered: I am a wedowe, and myne husbande is dead. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, and they two fought together in the felde, (where was no man to go betwene them) but the one smote the other and slewe hym. And beholde, the whole kynred is rysen agaynst thy handmayde, and they sayd: * delyuer vs him that smote hys brother: that we maye kyll hym for ☞ for ỹ soule of his brother whome he slue. And the kynge sayde C vnto the woman: go home to thyne house, I wyll geue a charge for the. And the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kynge: My Lorde O kynge, thys trespace be on me and on my fathers house, and the kynge and hys seate be giltlesse. And the kynge sayd: yf any man saye ought vnto the, bryng hym to me, and he shall hurte the no moare. Then sayde she: ☞ lett the kynge remember hys Lorde God, that the auenger of the bloude geather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slaye not my sonne. D The woman sayde: let thyne handmayde speake one worde moare vnto my Lorde ỹ kynge. And he sayde: saye on. The woman sayde: wherfore thē hast ỹ determined such a thyng agaynst ỹ people of God? For ỹ kynge doth speake this thynge as one which is fautye, that he shulde not fett home agayne hys banesshed. For we must nedes dye, & perysh as water spylt on the grounde, which cānot be geathered vp agayne: ☞ Neither doth God spare any soule. Let the kynge therfore fynde ỹ meanes, ỹ hys banysshed be not vtterly expelled frō hym. Nowe therfore am I come, to speake of this thing vnto the kynge my Lorde: For they ỹ be of the people, haue feared me. And thy hādmayde sayde: Nowe wyll I speake vnto ỹ kyng, parauenture the kynge will perfourme ỹ requeste of his hand- E mayde. And the kinge shall heare his handmayde, to delyuer her out of the hande of the man, that wolde haue destroyed me and also my sonne out of ỹ enheritaunce of God. And thyne handmayde sayde: the worde of my Lorde the kynge shall nowe be comfortable: For my Lorde the kynge is as an Angel of God, in hearyng of good and badd: therfore the Lorde thy God be with the.

Then the kynge answered, & sayde vnto ỹ woman: hyde not from me (I praye the) the thynge that I shall aske the: And the womā sayde: let my Lorde the kyng nowe saye on. And the kynge sayde: Is not the ☞ hāde of Ioab wyth the in all this matter? The woman answered, and sayde: * as sure as thy * 2. And so Absalom returned to hys awne house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so goodlye a mā as Absalō, for he was very bewtifull: so moche ỹ frō ỹ sole of his fote to ỹ toppe of his heed, there was no blemeche in him. And whē he shaued hys heed (for at euery yeares end he shaued it, because ỹ heer was heuie on hym, hym and must nedes shaue it) the heere of his heed wayed two hundred cycles after the G kynges weyght. And this Absalō had thre sonnes borne him and one daughter, named Thamar, whyche was a kayre womā to loke vpō. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Ierusalem, & sawe not the kynges face. Therfore Absalō sent for Ioab, to haue sent hym to the kinge. But he wolde not come to him. And whan he sent agayne, he wolde not come. Therfore he sayde vnto hys seruauntes: beholde, Ioab hath a parcell of lande fast by my place, and he hath barlye therin. Go, and set it on fire. And Absaloms seruauntes sett it on fyre. ✓ (And Ioabs seruauntes came wyth theyr garmētes rent, and sayde: Absaloms seruauntes haue burnt the pece of lande wyth fyre.

Then Ioab arose & came to Absalō vnto his house, & sayde vnto him: wherfore haue thy seruauntes burnt my felde wyth fyre. And Absalom answered Ioab: beholde, I sent for the, desyringe the to come, because I wolde haue sent the to ỹ kinge, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gesur. It had bene better for me, to haue bene there styll. Nowe therfore, wolde I se the kynges face. And yf there be any trespace in me, kyll thou me. And so Ioab came to the kynge, & tolde him: whych whan he had sent for Absalom, he came to the kynge, and fell to the grounde on hys face before hym. And the kynge kyssed Absalom.

¶ The.xvj. Chapter.

¶ Ziba bryngynge presentes to Dauid, dothe falsly accuse Miphiboseth. Semei curseth Dauid, & hourleth sto-eth wyth hys fathers Concubines.

AND when Dauid was a lytle past
the toppe of the hyll: beholde Ziba
the seruaunt of Miphiboseth came to mete hym with a couple of Asses
sadeled, and vpon them two hundzed loues and one hundzed bonches of Resynges, and an hundzed krayles of dzyed frygges, and a bottell of wyne. And the kyng sayd vnto ziba: what meanest thou wyth these? And ziba sayde. They be Asses ☞ foz the kynges

the younge men to eate, and wyne: that such as be faynt in the wyldernesse, maye dzynk.
And the kynge sayde: where is thy masters

he taryeth styll at Jerusalem. Foz he sayde:
thys daye shall the house of Israel restoze me
the kyngdome of my father. Then sayde the kyng to Ziba, beholde, thyne are all that pertayned vnto * Miphiboseth. And Ziba saye- * ii.reg.ix.

all the seruaũtes of kynge Dauid: And all ỹ

sayde * Semei whan he cursed: come foz the, * Exo.xxii.d.

sayde: what haue I to do wyth you ye son-hath bydden hym curse Dauid. Who dare then saye: Wherfoze hast thou done so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, and to all his seru-

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel was wyth him. And as sone as Hu-sai the Arachite was come vnto Absalõ, he sayde vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue ỹ kyng. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this ỹ kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not wyth hym?

Husai answered vnto Absalõ: naye not so,
but whom the Lozde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, hys will I be, and with hym wyll I dwell. Moreouer, vnto whome shall I do seruice, but euen to hys sonne? And as I was seruaunt before wt thy father, euen so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Ahithophell: geue councell, what is best foz vs to do. And Ahithophell sayde vnto Absalom: get the in vnto thy fa-

And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon ỹ ☞ toppe of the house. And he went in vnto hys fathers concubynes in the syght of all Israel.

And the councell of Ahithophel which he counceled in those dayes, was as a man had asked councell of God: euen so was all the co uncell of Ahithophel, both wyth Dauid and wyth Absalom.

¶ The.xvij.Chapter.

¶ Ahithophel, seynge hys councell disalowed of hym, whyle he is werye and weake handed,

and wyll feare hym: And all the people that are with hym, shall flee. And so will I smyte
the kynge onlye, and wyll bzyng agayne all v* the people vnto the, v* euen as easely as yf I wolde bzynge anye other thing. And whan
I haue slayne the man whom thou seke st, all the people shall haue rest. And ỹ saying pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai ỹ Arachite, and let vs heare his councell. Whẽ Husai was come to Absalom, Absalõ spake
vnto hym, sayinge: Ahithophel hath geuen
soche coũcell: Shall we do after his saying,
oz no? tell thou.

B Husai answered vnto Absalõ: the coũcell that Ahithophel hath geuen, is not good at this tyme: Foz (sayd Husai) ỹ knowest thy father, & his men, howe that they be strong.
And they be chafed in their myndes, and are *Ozo.xvij.b euen as a * Beare robbed of her whelpes in the felde. Thy father is a man also practised in warre, & maketh no tarienge with ỹ people. Beholde he lurketh now in some caue, oz in some other stroge place. And though some of his men be ouerthzowẽ at the fyrst bzunt,
yet they that heare it will saye: The people
that foloweth Absalõ, be put to the wozse.
And the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyõs, shall shzynke the-rat. Foz all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghtye man, and they whych be wyth
him are all men of warre.

Therfoze my councell is, that all Israel
be geathered vnto the, from Dã to Beerseba, (which are as ỹ sande of the see in nõbze)
and that thou go to batayle in thyne awne person. Foz so shall we come vpõ him in one place oz other, where we shall fynde hym, &
we will fall vpon him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the groũde. And of all ỹ men that are wyth hym, we shall not leaue hym
one. Moreouer, yf he be gottẽ into a towne, then shall all the men of Israel bzynge ropes to that cytie, and we wyll dzawe it into the ryuer, vntyll there be not one stone founde there. And Absalom and all the men of Is-vnto Sadock and Abiathar the Preastes:

of this and that maner dyd Ahithophel and the elders of Israel councell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceled. Nowe ther-foze send quickelye, and shewe Dauid saying:
tarye not all nyght in the feldes of the wyl-dernesse, but gett the ouer, lest the kynge be deuoured and all the people that are wt hym.
Nowe Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by ỹ
well Rogell: foz they myght not be sene to come into the cytie. And a wenche went and tolde them. And they went, & shewed kynge Dauid. E

Neuertheles a lad sawe them, and tolde
it to Absalom. But they went both of them a waye quyckelye, and cam to a mãnes house
in Bahurim, which had a well in his yarde, into the whych they went downe. And a woman toke and spzede a couerlet ouer the welles mouth, and strawed fyzmentie cozne theron. And the thynge was not spyed. And when Absalõs seruauntes came to the wyfe to ỹ house, they sayde. Where is Ahimaaz & Jonathas? The woman answered thẽ: they be gone ouer the lytell bzoke of water. And when they had sought them and coulde not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem.
And as sone as they were departed, ỹ other
came out of the well, and went and tolde kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and get you quyckly ouer the water foz soche councel hath Ahithophel geuen, agaynst you.
Then Dauid arose, & all ỹ people that were wt hym, and they were come ouer Jozdan be F that it was daye: so ỹ there lacked not one of thẽ, ỹ was not come ouer Jozdã. And when Ahithophel sawe, ỹ his councell was not folowed, he sadelled his Asse, & arose, & gate
hym home to hys awne house, and to hys

awne cytie, and put hys housholde in order, and hanged him selfe, and dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of hys father.

Then Dauid came to Mahenaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him. And Absalō made Amasa captayne of ỹ hoste in stede of Joab, whych Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra an Israhelite, that went vnto Abigail the daughter of Nahas syster to zeruia Joabs mother. So Israel and Absalō pytched in the lande of Gilead. And whē Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Nahas out of * Rabba the citie of the chil dren of Ammon, & Machir the sonne of Ammiel out of Lodeber, and * Berzelai the Gileadite out of Roglim, brought beddes, basens, erthen vesselles, wheat & barly, floure, and parched corne, beanes, rice, oolmell, hony, butter, shepe and chese of kyene, for Dauid and all the people that were with him, to eate. For they sayd: The people is hongrye, weerye, and thyrstye in the wylderneſſe.

¶ The.xviij. Chapter.

¶ Absalom is ouercome in battell. He hangeth by the heere in an Oke. He is kylled & put in a dytche. Dauid is so sorowfull for the deeth of Absalom that he wepeth.

AND Dauid nombred the people that were wyth hym, and sett captaynes ouer thousandes and of hundredes ouer them. And Dauid sent forth ỹ thirde parte of the people vnder the hande of Joab, and another parte vnder the hande of Abisai the sonne of zeruia Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hande of Ithai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde vnto the people: I wyll go with you also. And the people answered: Thou shalt not go forth: for yf we flie, oure aduersaries will not care for vs: nether shall they regard vs, though halfe vs were slayne: but ỹ art worth ten thousande of vs: wherfore it is better, ỹ thou succoure vs out of the cytie. And the kynge sayde vnto them: what semeth you best, that wyll I do.

23 And the kynge stode by the gate syde, and all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And ỹ kynge cōmaunded Joab
*ij.reg.xvi.d & Abisai, & * Ithai sayeng: intreate ỹ yonge man Absalom gently for my sake. And all the people heard, that the kynge gaue all ỹ captaynes charge concernynge Absalō. And so the people wēt out into the felde agaynst Israel, and the battel was in the woode of Ephraim: Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruauntes of Dauid, & there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twentye thousande men: For ỹ felde was fought there in dyuerse places, all abroade vpon the erthe. And ỹ wodd deuoured moo people that daye, than dyd the swerde. And Absalom came before the seruauntes of Dauid rydynge vpon a Mule, whych carped hym vnder ỹ thicke bowes of a great Oke. And his heed was caught of the Oke, and he was lifte vp betwene heuen & erthe: & ỹ Mule that was vnder hym, wēt his waye. And one ỹ sawe it tolde Joab, sayeng: beholde, I sawe Absalō hange in an Oke: and Joab sayde vnto the man ỹ tolde him. Yf thou dydest se hym, why dydest not thou there smyte him to the groūd, & I wold haue geuen the ten sicles of siluer, & a girdle.

The man sayde vnto Joab: though thou woldest laye a thousande sycles of syluer in my hande, yet wolde I not stretche out myne hande agaynst the kynges sonne. For we harde with oure eares whē the kynge charged the, and Abisai and Ithai, sayenge: Beware, ỹ none touch the yōnge mā Absalom. Moreouer, yf I had done it, I shulde haue done agaynst myne owne life: for there is no matter hyd from the kinge: yee and thou thy selfe woldest haue bene agaynst me. Then sayde Joab: I may not stande thus taryeng wyth the.

And he toke thre speares in his hande, & thrust them thorowe Absalō, while he was yet a lyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs wepōs, turned, and smote Absalom and slue him. And whē Joab blewe the trompet, the people returned from folowynge Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast hym into a great pytt in the wood, & layed a myghtie great heape of stones vpon hym. And all Israel fled to their tentes. And thys Absalom yet in hys lyfe tyme * toke counsell & reared vp a piller, whyche is in kynges dale. For he sayd: I haue no sonne. And therfore to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the pyller after hys awne name. And it is called vnto thys daye: Absaloms pyller.

* i.reg.xiij.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne nowe, and beare the kyng tydinges, how ỹ the Lorde hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of hys enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hym: ỹ art no man to beare good tydynges to daye: ỹ shalt beare tydynges another tyme: but to daye ỹ shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is deed. Thē sayde Joab to Chusi: go and tell the kynge, what thou hast sene: And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then sayd Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me also rūne after Chusi. And Joab sayd: Wherfore wilt thou runne my sonne, seing that for the tydynges thou shalt haue no rewarde: well (sayde he) come what will, let me runne. He sayd vnto him: runne. Thē Ahimaaz rāne by ỹ playne waye, and came before Chusi.

And

And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watcheman went vp to the rouffe ouer the gate vnto the walle, & lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe: & beholde, there cam a man runnynge alone. And ỹ watcheman cryed, & tolde ỹ kynge. And the kynge sayde: yf he be alone, there is good tydinges in his mouth. And he came, & droue nye. And ỹ watchemā sawe another man runnynge, and he called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there cōmeth another man runnynge alone. And the kynge sayde: he is also a tydinges bringer. And the watcheman sayde. me thynketh the runnynge of the formost is lyke ỹ runnynge of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock The kynge sayde: he is a good man, and commeth with good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called, & sayde vnto the kynge: good tydinges, and he fell downe flatt to the erth vpon his face before the kynge, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God, which hath shutt vp the men that lyft vp their handes agaynst my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayde: is the younge mā Absalom safe? Ahimaaz answered: Whē Joab sent (Chusi) the kynges seruaunt, and me thy seruaunt, I sawe much a doo. But I whotte not what it was. And ỹ kynge sayde vnto him: turne, and stande here. And he turned, and stode styll.

And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: Good tydinges my Lorde the kynge, For ỹ Lorde hath quytte the thys daye out of the hande of all them ỹ rose agaynst the. And the kynge sayde vnto Chusi. Is the younge mā Absalō safe? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my Lord the kynge, and all that ryse agaynst ỹ, to do the hurt, be as that younge man is. And the kynge was moued, and went vp to a chambre ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Absalō my sonne, my sonne.

¶ The.xix. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is restored to his kyngdome, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

AND it was tolde Joab: beholde, ỹ kynge wepeth and mourneth for Absalom. And the victorie of that daye was turned into mournynge vnto all ỹ people. For the people harde saye that daye, howe the kynge sorowed for hys sonne. And the people stale awaye that daye from goynge into the cytie, as people confounded stele awaye, when they flee in battel. But the kynge hyd his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sōne Absalom, O Absalon my sonne, my sonne.

And Joab came into the house to ỹ kynge, and sayde: thou hast shamed this daye the faces of all thy seruaūtes, which this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, & the lyues of thy wiues, and of thy concubynes, in that thou louest thyne enemyes, and hatest thy frendes. For thou hast declared thys daye, that thou regardest nether thy Lordes nor seruauntes. And this daye I do perceaue, that yf Absalom had lyued, & all we had dyed this daye, that had pleased ỹ well. Nowe therfore vp, and come out, and speake kyndely vnto thy seruauntes: For I swere by the Lorde, except thou come out, there will not tarye one man with the thys nyght. And that wilbe worsse vnto the, then all the euell that fell on the from thy youth vnto thys houre. Then the kynge arose, and satt downe in the Gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, sayinge: Beholde, the kynge doth sytt in ỹ Gate. And all the people came before the kinge. But Israel fled, euery man to hys tent.

And it fortuned ỹ all the people were at stryfe throwe out all the trybes of Israel, sayinge: the kyng saued vs out of the hāde of oure enemyes, he delyuered vs out of ỹ hāde of ỹ Philistines, and nowe he is fled out of the lande for Absalom. But Absalō whō we anoynted ouer vs, is deed in battell. Therfore, why are ye so styll, that ye bringe not ỹ kynge agayne? And kyng Dauid sent to Sadock and Abiathar ỹ preastes, sayinge: speake vnto the elders of Juda & saye: why are ye behynde, to bringe ỹ kynge agayne to his house, seynge that soch tydinges is come frō all Israel vnto the kynge euen to hys house?
*(For the kynge had sayde: Thus shall ye saye vnto the people of Juda.) Ye are my brethren, my bones & my flesshe: wherfore then are ye the last that bringe the kynge home agayne? And saye ye to Amasa: art thou not of my bone & of my flesshe? God do so and so to me, yf thou be not captayne of ỹ hoste to me for euer in ỹ rowme of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, euen, as the hert of one man: so ỹ they sent this worde to the kyng: Returne thou with all thy seruauntes. So the kynge returned, & came to Jordan. And Juda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete ỹ kynge, & to cōueye him ouer Jordā. And Simei * ỹ sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, whych was of Bahurim, hasted, and came with the men of Juda to mete king Dauid, and there were a thousande men of Beniamin wt hym, & * ziba the seruaunt of the house of Saul and his. xv. sonnes and twentye seruauntes with him. And they went quyckly ouer Jordan before the kynge. And there went ouer a boate that caryed ouer ỹ kynges housholde and they dyd him pleasure.

*ij.Reg.xix.a.

And Simei the sonne of Gera fell before the kynge (as he was come ouer Jordā) and sayde vnto hi: let not my Lorde impute wickednesse vnto me, ner remember the thinges (that they seruaunt dyd wickedly when my Lorde the kyng departed out of Jerusalem) that the kyng shulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunt doth knowe, howe ỹ I haue done amysse. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrst this daye of all the house of Joseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my Lorde the kynge. But Abisai ỹ sonne of zeruia answered, and sayde: shall not Semei dye for this, because he cursed the Lords anoynted? And Dauid sayde: what matter is bet wene you and me ye sonnes of zeruia? For thys daye ye be aduersaryes vnto me. Shall there any mã dye this daye i Israel? Do not I knowe, that I am this daye kynge ouer Israel? And therfore the kynge sayde vnto Semei: thou shalt not dye, & the kynge sware vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kynge, & had nether washed his fete, ner shauen his beerde, ner washed his clothes from the tyme the kynge departed, vntyll he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned that when he was come to Jerusalem, and mett the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: wherfore wentest not thou wyth me Miphiboseth? he answered: my Lorde, O kynge, my seruaunt deceaued me. For thy seruaunt sayde I wolde haue mine Asse sadled to ryde theron, for to go to the kynge, because thy seruaũt is lame. And ziba hath falsely reported of thy seruaũt vnto my Lorde the kynge. And my Lorde the kynge is as an angel of God: do therfore what semeth good in thine eyes. For all my fathers house were but deed mẽ before my Lorde the kynge: and yet dydest thou put thy seruaũt amonge thẽ ỹ dyd eate at thyne awne table. What ryght therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto ỹ kynge? And the kynge sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thyne awne cause? * (Is determyned, that) I haue sayde: thou and ziba deuide the landes bet wene you. And Miphiboseth sayde vnto ỹ kynge: yee lett him take all: for so moch as my Lorde the kynge is come agayne in peace vnto his awne house.

And Berselai the Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and went ouer Jordan with the kyng, to conuaye him ouer Jordã: Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure skore yere olde, & prouyded ỹ kynge of sustenaũce, whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verye great substaũce. And ỹ kynge sayde vnto Berselai: come thou with me, & I will fede the with me in Jerusalem. And * Berselai sayde vnto the kynge: I am thus olde, and howe am I able to go vp with the kynge vnto Jerusalẽ? I am this daye foure skore yere olde: and can I decerne betwene good and euell? hath thy seruaunt any tast in that he eateth or drincketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of synginge men & women? Wherfore then shulde thy seruaunt be yet a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge?

Thy seruaũt will go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge: and why wyll ỹ kynge recompence it me with soch a reward? O let thy seruaũt turne back agayne, that I maye dye in myne awne cytie, and (be buryed) in ỹ graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruaunt Chimeam: let him go with my Lorde the kynge, and do to him, what shall please the:

And the kynge answered: Chimeam shall go with me. And I will do to him that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan: And whẽ the kynge was come ouer Jordã, he kyssed Berselai, and blessed him, & he wẽt backe agayne vnto his awne place. And then the kynge went to Gilgal, and Chimeã wẽt with him, & so dyd all the people of Judã, and brought ouer the kynge, and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to the kynge, and sayde vnto him, why haue oure bzethren ỹ mẽ of Juda stolen the awaye and haue brought the kyng & his housholde, and all Dauids men with him ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israel: the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for ỹ matter? thynke ye that we eate of ỹ kynges cost, or that we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered ỹ men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten partes in the kynge, & haue therto more ryght to Dauid then ye. Why then dyd ye despyse vs, ỹ oure aduise shulde not be fyrst had in restoringe oure kynge agayne? And ỹ wordes of the mẽ of Juda were fearcer, then the wordes of the men of Israel.

The.xx. Chapter.

Seba the sonne of Bichri reuyleth Israel agaynst Dauid. Joab kylleth Amasa trayterously. The heed of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Dauids receauers are nombred.

When there cam thither a certayne mã of Belial (named Seba, the sonne of Bichri, a mã of gemini) he blew a trõpet & sayde: we haue no parte in Dauid, neither haue we enheritaunce in the sonne of Jsai, let the men of Israel departe vnto there tentes. And so euery euery man of Israel went from Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda claue fast vnto their kynge, frõ Jordan to Jerusalem.

And Dauid came to his house to Jerusalem, * and toke the ten women his concubines, that he had left behynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and fedd thẽ: but laye no moare wyth them. And so they were enclosed vnto the daye of their deeth, lyuynge in wedowhode. *2.Reg.xv.d. and.xvi.d.

Then sayde the kynge to Amasa: call me the men of Juda togeather agaynst the thirde daye, and be thou here also. And so Amasa went to gather the men of Juda to geather: but taried lõger, then the tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayde to Abisai: nowe shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs moze harme, then dyd Absalom. Take thou therfore thy Lordes seruaũtes, & folowe after him: lest he gett him walled cyties, and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joabs men, and the Crethites and the Phelethites, and all the myghtiest mẽ. And they departed out of Jerusalem to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And when they were at the great stone in Gibeon, Amasa went before them. And Joabs garmẽt (that he had about him) was gyrde vnto him, and he had gyrded theron, a knyfe, which was ioyned fast to hys loynes, in soch a sheth, ỹ (as he wẽt) it fell some tymes out. And Joab sayde to Amasa: art thou in health my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chynne with the ryght hande, to * kysse hym. But Amasa toke no hede to the knyffe that was in Joabs hande, for therwith he smote hym * in the short ribbes, and shed out hys bowelles to the groũde, and thrust at him no more, and he dyed. *20.Reg.xv.a. *3.Reg.ij.f.

So Joab and Abisai his brother folowed after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And one of Joabs men stode by him, and sayde: he ỹ beareth any fauoure to Joab, or good will to Dauid, let him go after Joab. And Amasa laye walowed in blonde, in the myddes of the waye. And there was a man, which whẽ he sawe that * all the people stode styll, he rowled Amasa out of the waye into the felde, & cast a cloth vpon him, because he sawe that euery one that came, stode styll by hym. And as sone as he was tombeled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri. *2.Reg.ij.g.

And he went thorowe all the trybes of Israel vnto Abel, and to Bethmaacha and all the places of Barim. And they geathered together, and went after him. And they came, & beseged him in Abel & in Bethmaacha And they cast vp a bancke agaynst the cytie that stode in the valleye. All the people that was with Joab, thrust at the wall to ouerthrowe it. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cytie, heare heare, byd Joab come hither, that I maye speake with hym. When Joab was come vnto her, the woman sayde: art ỹ Joab? he answered: I am he. She sayde vnto him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde? And he answered: I do heare. And she sayde agayne: * They spake in the olde tyme, sayinge: men must alke peace first, how moche rather shulde they so do to Abell? For so haue they contynued hytherto: I am one of them that are peaceable and faythfull in Jsrael. And thou goest about to destroye a citie and a mother in Jsrael. Why wilt thou deuoure the enheritaunce of the Lorde?

And Joab answered, and sayde: God forbyd, God forbid it me, that I shulde ether deuoure or destroye. The matter is not so: but a man of mount Ephraim (Seba ỹ sonne of Bichri by name) hath lyfte vp his hãde agaynst the kynge, euen against Dauid. Delyuer vs him only, and I will departe from the cytie. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shalbe throwẽ to the, ouer the wall. And then the woman went vnto all ỹ people with her wisdome. And they smote of the heed of Seba ỹ sõne of Bichri, and cast it out to Joab. * And he blewe a trompet, and they scattered from the cytie, euery man to his tent. And Joab returned to Jerusalem, vnto the kynge. *4.Reg.ix.g.

Joab was ouer all the hoste of Jsrael. And Banaia ỹ sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites & Phelethites. And Aduram was ouer the tribute. And Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahilud was Recorder. Seua was scribe. And Sadoch & Abiathar were the preastes. And Jra the Jairite was Dauids preast.

The.xxj. Chapter.

Thre deare yeres. The dengeaunce of the synnes of Saul spyghteth on hys seuen sonnes, whych are hãged. Foure great bacelles, whych Dauid had agaynst the Philistines.

When there fell an hongre in the dayes of Dauid, thre yeres together. And Dauid enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Saul, and ỹ house of blonde, because he slue the * Gibaonites. And the kynge called the Gibaonites, & sayde vnto them (Nowe the Gibaonites were, not of the * chyldren of Jsrael, but a remnaunt of the Ammonites, and the chyldren of Jsrael sware vnto them: And Saul sought to sley them, for a zele that he had to the chyldren of Jsrael and of Juda.) Wherfore Dauid sayde vnto thẽ, what shall I do for you, and wher with shall I make the attonemẽt, that ye maye blesse the enheritaunce of the Lorde? *i.re.xxii.d. *Iosua.ix.c.

The Gibaonites answered him: we wyll haue no syluer ner gold, of Saul ner of hys house: nether is it oure mynde, ỹ thou shuldest

Wdest kyll any man in Israel. He sayde: what saye ye then ꝑ I shall do for you? They answered the kinge: the man that cõsumed vs, & ymagened to bringe vs to nought him will we destroye, that nought of him continewe in any of the coastes of Israel. Let seuen men of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, and we will hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lorde dyd chose. And the kynge sayde: I will geue them you.

But the kynge had cõpassyon on Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the Lords othe ꝑ was betwene them: cuẽ betwene Dauid and Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rizpa the daughter of Aia (whõ she bare vnto Saul) euen Armoni and Miphiboseth, & the fyue sonnes of Michol (the daughter of Saul) whom she bare to Adriel the sonne of Barselai ꝑ Meholathite. And he delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gibeonites, which hanged thẽ in the hill before the Lorde. And they fell all seuen to geather, and were slayne in the dayes of heruest: euen in the fyrst dayes, and in the beginnynge of Barley heruest:

And Rizpa the daughter of Aia toke sackclothe and hanged it vp for thẽ vpon the Rocke, euen from the begynnunge of haruest vntyll rayne dropped vpon them out of heuen: and suffered nether the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by nyght. And it was tolde Dauid what Rizpa the daughter of Aia the concubyne of Saul had done: and Dauid went, & toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his sonne, frõ the men of Jabes in Gilead (which had stolen them from the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them whẽ the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa.) And he brought thence the bones of Saul, and ꝑ bones of Jonathas his sonne, & they toke vp the bones of them that were hãged. And the bones of Saul and Jonathas hys sonne buryed they in the contrey of Beniamin, in zela, in the sepulchre of Cis hys father. And when they had perfourmed all that the kynge commaunded. God was then at one with the lande.

It fortuned, that the Philistines had yet warre agayne with Israel. And Dauid wẽt downe & his seruauntes with hym, & fought agaynst the Philistines. And Dauid waxed fayntie, and Jesby of Nob one of the sonnes of the gyauntes (the yron of whose speare wayed thre hũdred sycles, and he beynge gyrded with a newe swerde) thought to have slayne Dauid. * But Abisai the sonne of zaruia succoured hym, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the seruauntes of Dauid sware vnto him, sayinge: Thou shalt go no moare out with vs to battell, that ꝑ quench not the lyght of Israel. And yet after this, there was a battell with the Philistines at Nob, and then Sibbechai the Husathite slewe Saph which was one of the sonnes of the gyauntes.

And there was yet another battell in * Nob with the Philistines, where Elhanam the sonne of Jaere Oregim, a Bethlemite slue one Goliath a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as great as a weuers cloth beame. *1. Par. xx.a

And there was yet another battell i Geth where was a man of a great stature, & had on euery hand. vj. fyngers and on euery fote vj. toes. xxiij. in all. And was borne also of the kynred of the giãtes in Geth. And whã he defyed Israell, Jonathas the sonne of Simea the brother of Dauid slewe hym These foure gyauntes were borne in Geth, & fell into the hande of Dauid and into the hãdes of his seruauntes.

The.xxij.Chapter.

The songe of Dauid for hys delyueraunce from hys enemyes.

AND Dauid spake the wordes of thys songe vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had delyuered him out of the hãde of all his enemyes, and out of the hande of Saul.

And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, and my castel, and my delyuerer. God is my strength, in him will I trust: he is my shylde, and the horne of my saluacyon: my worshyp and my refuge: my sauiour, thou shalt saue me from wronge.

* I will call on ꝑ Lorde which is prayse worthy, and so shall I be saued from myne enemyes. For the corrupcyons of deeth closed me about: the floudes of Belial put me in feare. The sorowes of hell compassed me about: the snares of deeth ouertoke me. In my tribulacyon will I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of his temple, and my crye shall enter into his eares. The erth trimbled and quaked: the foundacyons of heuen moued and shoke, whan he was angrye. *Psal. xviij. a.

Smoke went vp in his wrath, and consumynge fyre out of hys mouth, coles were kendled therof. And he bowed heuẽ, and came downe, and there was darcknesse vnder his fete. And he satt vpon Cherub & dyd flye he was seue caryed vpon the wynges of the wynde. He made darcknesse a tabernacle rounde about hym, with waters geathered to geather in thycke cloudes. Thorowe the brightnesse of his presence were the fyre coles kyndled.

God thundred from heuen, and he that is most hye, doth put out his voyce. He shotte arowes, and skatered them: he hurled lyghtenynge, tenynge, and ouerthrewe them. The flowinges of the see appered, and the foundacyons of the worlde were sene, by the reason of the rebukinge of the Lorde, and thorowe the blastynge of the breeth of hys nostrelles. He shall sende from heauen, and fett me, he shall plucke me out of many waters.

He shall delyuer me from my myghtye aduersarye, and fro myne enemyes, for they are to stronge for me. When they had ouertaken me in the daye of my calamytye ꝑ Lorde stayed me vp. For he brought me out into rowmth: he delyuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

*Rom.8.d. * The Lord will reward me accordinge to my ryghtwysnesse: accordynge to the pureneße of my handes will he recompense me. For I haue kept the wayes of the Lorde, & done no wyckednesse agaynst my God. For all his lawes are in my syght, & his statutes wyll not I put awaye fro me. In his syght also haue I bene vndefyled, & haue kepte me fro myne awne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghtwesnes, euẽ after my pureneße in his eyesyght. Wyth the godly thou shalt be godly, and wt the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the froward thou shalt be froward. And the poore people ꝑ are in aduersyte, ꝑ shalt helpe. And on ꝑ proude shalt thou cast thine eyes. Thou art my light O Lorde: ꝑ Lorde shall lyght my darknesse.

For with thy helpe I will runne thorowe an hoste of men, and in my God wyll I sprynge ouer a walle. God is vncorrupt in his waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that trust in him.

For who is a God, saue the Lorde? & who is myghtie, saue oure God? God strengtheth me with power, and ryddyth the waye in battell cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyke hartes fete, & setteth me fast vpon my hye holde.

*Psa.cxliiij. a * He teacheth my handes to fyght, ꝑ euẽ a bowe of stele is to weake for myne armes.

Thou hast geuen me the shild of thy saluacyõ, and with thy louinge mekenesse thou dost multiplie me. Thou shalt make me space to walke in, and my legges shall not fayle me. I will folowe vpon myne enemyes and destroye them, and turne not agayne vntyll I haue consumed them.

I will waste them and smyte them, that they shall not be able to aryse: yee, they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyrded me about with myght to battell, and them that roase agaynst me, hast thou subdued vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes (& them that hated me) to turne their backes to me, that I myght destroye them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: Yee, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I will beate them as smalle as the dust of the erth: I will stampe them as the dyrte of the strete, and will spreade them abroade.

Thou shalt delyuer me from the dissencyon of my people: thou shalt kepe me to be an heed ouer nacyons: the people whych I knewe not, shall serue me.

Straunge childzen dissemble with me: At the hearynge of the eare they obeye me.

Straunge chyldzẽ will chrynche awaye, and they shalbe smytten with feare in their preuye chamber. God is a lyue, and blessed be my maker: magnifyed be God, my moste stronge saluacion. It is God that auengeth me, and bryngeth downe the people vnder me. He delyuereth me fro myne enemyes, ꝑ also shalt lyfte me vpon hye from them that ryse agaynst me, thou shalt delyuer me from the wicked men.

And therfore I will prayse ꝑ (O Lorde) amonge the nacyons, and wyll synge vnto thy name. Whych sheweth greate saluacyõ for his kynge, and dealeth mercyfully with his anoynted: euen wyth Dauid, and wyth his sede for euermore.

The.xxiij.Chapter.

The last communicacyon of Dauid, and the descripcyon of the myghty men to hym belongynge.

THese be the last sayinges of Dauid. Dauid the sonne of Jsay sayde. And the mã (which was made, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and the noble Psalmist of Israel) sayde: ꝑ spyrete of the Lorde spake by me, & his worde was in my tonge. The God of Israel spake of me, euen ꝑ most myghtie of Israel, sayde: he ꝑ beareth rule ouer mẽ, ought to rule iustlye in ꝑ feare of God. And as ꝑ morynge lyght when the sonne is vp, a morynge in whych are no cloudes to lett the bryghtnelle, and as the grasse of the erth is by the vertue of the rayne. Shall not my house be so wt God? * For he hath made with me an euerlastinge conenaunt, perfecte and sure in all poyntes: & this is truly all my healthe & all my delire ꝑ it growe but not as grasse. But ꝑ vngodly mã of Belial shall be as a thorne cleane pluckt vp, which can not be taken wt handes: But the man that shall touche them, must haue yron, or a longe helue. * Or els must they be burnt with fyre in the same place. *2. Par.xxix. b. *ii. Esr.vij.c

These be the names of the myghtye men whom Dauid had: one ꝑ satt in ꝑ seat of wisdome, beinge chefest amõge thre, pleasaũt was he and stronge: he slue eyght hundred at one tyme. After him was Eleazar the sonne of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi, one of the thre worthies

wozthies ẅ Dauid, which dekyed the Philistines that were there geathered togethr to battell: whā the men of Jsrael were gone vp. He arose & layed on the Philistines, vntyll hys hande was werye, and clauе vnto the swerde. And the Lozde gaue greate victorye the same daye. And the people (which had fled) returned, and went after him to runne to the spoyle. After him was Samma the sonne of Age the Hararite: and the Philistines geathered togethr beside a towne. (Where was a parcell of lande full of ryce) and the people fled from the Philistines. But he stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slue the Philistines. And the the Lozde gaue great victorye.

1. Para. xi. b. * These thre (which were of the thirtye chefe captaynes) went downe to Dauid in ỹ haruest tyme vnto the caue Adullam, & the hoost of the Philistines abode in the valeye of Gesauntes. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the Soudioures of the Philistines were in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde. Oh, that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethlehem, foz to drincke. And the thre myghtie brake thorowe the host of the Philistines, & fett water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: Neuertheless he wolde not drincke ther of, but offered it vnto the Lozde, and sayde: the Lozde forbyd that I shulde do so. Is not this the blonde of the men that wente in ieopardye of their lyues? and therfoze he wolde not drincke it. And these thinges dyd these thre myghtie men. * Abisai the brother of Joab, ỹ sonne of Saruiah, was chefe amõge the thre, and he lyfte vp hys speare agaynst thre hundred, & slue them, and had the name amonge the thre. Foz he was nobler man then the thre and was their captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto (the first) thre.

v. Reg. xvi. d.

And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada (ỹ sonne of a myghtie man) valyant in actes, of Kabzeel, slue two stronge lyõs, euen lyõs of Moab. He went downe also, & slue a lyon in a pyt in tyme of snowe. And he slue an Egyptyan, a goodly bygge man, which had a speare in his hande. But he went downe to him with a staffe, and plucked the speare out of the Egyptians hande, and slue him wt̃ hys awne speare. These thinges did Banaiahu the sõne of Jehoiada, & had the name amõge the thre worthies. He was honorable amõge thirtye, but he attayned not to ỹ (first) thre. And Dauid made him of hys councell. Asahel the brother of Joab also was one of the thirtye. Then Elhanã the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Sãma the haronite: Elica the Harodite: Helez the Paltite: Ira the sonne of Akes the Thekoite: Abiezer of Anathoth: Mebonai the Husathite: zelmon an Ahohite: Maharai the Netophatite: Heleb the sonne of Baanah an Netophatite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai out of an hill of the chyldrẽ of Beniamin: Banaiahu the Phiratonite: Hedai, of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Asmauetha Barhumite: Elihaba a Saalbonite: and the sonnes of Jasen, Jonathas. Samma the Hararite. Ahiam the sonne of Sarar an Hararite: Eliphelet the sonne of Aasbai the sonne of a Maachathite: Eliam the sonne of Aithophel the Gilonite: Hezrai the Carmelite: Paarai the Arbite: Igal the sonne of Nathan of zoba: Bani the Gadite: zelec an Amonite: Naharai a Berothyte, which was the harnesbearer of Joab ỹ sonne of zarula. Ira the Iethzite: Gareb ỹ Iethzite Uria the Hethite, thirtye & seuen in all.

¶ The .xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Dauid causeth the people to be nombred, and therfoze is Jsrael plaged with pestilence: so that in thre dayes there dyed .lxx. thousande.

AND agayne, the Lozd was wroth agaynst Jsrael, and he moued Dauid agaynst thẽ, in ỹ he sayde: * go and nõbre Jsrael and Juda. A

* Exo. xxx. d.

Foz the kynge sayde to Joab the captayne of his host: go thou abroade nowe, thorow out all the trybes of Jsrael, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, & nombre ye the people, that I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseche ỹ Lozde thy God, to make ỹ people as many moo as they be: ye and an hũdred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lozde the kynge maye se them. And what is the cause ỹ my Lozde the kynge hath a lust to this thinge? Notwithstãdynge the kynges wozde preuayled agaynst Joab and agaynst the captaynes of ỹ hoste:

And Joab and the captaynes of the host went out from the presence of the kynge, to nombre the people of Jsrael. And they passed ouer Jozdan, and pitched in Aroer on the ryght syde of the cytie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad, ouer agaynst Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, and to the nether lande, where was a newe habitacyõ, & from thẽce they came to Dan Jaan about to Sidon, & came to the stroge holde of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites and of the Cananites, & then went out to ỹ South of Juda, euẽ to Beersaba. And so, whẽ they had bene abroade thorowe out all the lande, they returned to Jerusalẽ agayne, after the ende of nyne moncthes and twentye dayes. And Joab delyuered vp the nõbre and summe of the people vnto the kynge. And there were in Jsrael eyghte hũdred thousande men of myght ỹ dre we swerdes. And the men of Juda were fyue hundred thousande men. B

And Dauids hert smote hym, after that he had nõbred the people. And Dauid sayde vnto the Lozde: I haue synned exceedyngly in that in that I haue done. And nowe Lozde take awaye the trespace of thy seruaũt: foz I haue done very folyshely. And when Dauid was vp in a mozninge, the wozde of the Lozd came vnto the prophet Gad Dauids sear, sayinge: go and saye vnto Dauid, thus sayth ỹ Lozd: I offer the thre thynges, chose ỹ which of them I shall do vnto the.

So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed him, & sayde vnto him. Wilt thou haue seuen yeres hunger to come in thy lande, oz wilt ỹ flee. iij. monethes before thyne enemies, they folowinge the, oz that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy lande? Nowe therfoze aduyse the, & se, what answere I shall geue to him ỹ sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. * We will fall now into the hãde of the Lozde, foz moch is his mercye, and lett me not falle into the hande of man.

* Eccle. ij. c.

And so ỹ Lozde sent a pestilẽce in Jsrael. frõ the mozninge vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people from Dan to Beerseba seuẽty thousande men. And when the Angell stretched out his hãde vpon Jerusalem to destroye it, the Lozde had cõpassion to do that euell, and sayde to the Angell that destroyed ỹ people: it is nowe sufficient: holde thyne hande. And ỹ angell was by the threshinge place of Arekna the Jebusite. And Dauid spake vnto the Lozde (when he sawe the angell that smote the people) and sayde: loo, it is I that haue synned, and I ỹ haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done? lett thyne hande (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him: go vp and reare an aultare vnto the Lozd in the threshinge flowre of Arekna the Jebusite. And Dauid (accozdinge to the sayinge of Gad) wẽt vp, as the Lozde commaunded. And Arekna loked, and sawe the kynge and his seruauntes cominge towarde him. And Arekna wẽt out, and bowed him selfe before the kynge flat on his face vpon the groũde, and Arekna sayde: wherfoze is my Lozde the kynge come to his seruaunt? Dauid answered: to bye the threshinge flowre of the, and to make an aultare vnto the Lozde, that the plage maye ceasse from the people. D

And Arekna sayde vnto Dauid: let my Lozd the kynge take and offer what semyth him good in his eyes: Beholde, here be oxen foz burnt sacrifyce, and sleades and the other instrumentes of the oxen foz wood. All these thynges dyd Arekna geue vnto the kynge, & sayde mozeouer vnto the kynge: ỹ Lozde thy God accept the. And the kynge sayde vnto Arekna: not so, but I wyll bye it of the at a pryce, and wyll not offer sacrifyce vnto the Lozde my God of ỹ which doth cost me nothinge. And so Dauid bought ỹ threshynge flowre, & the oxen foz fyfftie sycles of syluer. And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto ỹ Lozde, & offered burnt sacrifyces and peace offeringes. And so the Lozde was intreated foz the lãde. And the plage ceased frõ Jsrael.

¶ The ende of ỹ second boke of Samuel: otherwyse called the seconde of the kynges.

¶ The thirde boke of the kynges after the reckonynge of the Latynistes: which thirde boke and the fourth also, is but one with the Hebrues.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The younge virgin Abisag kepeth Dauid in his extreme age. Adonia occupieth the realme vnwitynge to his father. Salomõ is annoynted kynge, and so Adonia getteth him awaye.

ND kynge A Dauid was olde & stryckẽ in yeres: so ỹ whan they coue red hym wt̃ clothes, he caught no heat. wher foze his seruaũtes sayde vnto hi: let there be sought foz my Lozd ỹ kynge a younge mayden, to stonde before ỹ kynge and to cherysshe hi. And let her lye in thy bosome, ỹ my Lozde the kinge maye get heate. And so they sought foz a fayze damosell thozow out all ỹ coastes of Jsrael, & fonde one Abisag a Sunamite, & brought her to the kynge. And the damosell was excedinge fayze, & cherisshed ỹ kynge, & ministred to hi. But ỹ kyng knewe her not.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe, sayinge: I willbe kyng. And he gatt him charettes & hozsmen, and fyfftie men to runne before him. And his father wolde not displeasse him at anye tyme, noz sayd so moch to him as, why doest thou so? And he was a goodlye mã, & his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he toke councell at Joab the sonne the sonne of Zaruia, & at Abiathar ỹ preast: And they helped Adonia. But Sadock the preast, Banaiahu ỹ sonne of Jehoiada, Nathā the prophet, Semei and Rei, and all the B men of myght which were with Dauid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrifyced shepe and oxen, and fatt catell, by the stone of *Iosua.xv.b Zoheleth, which is fast * by the well of Rogell, and called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and the men of Juda the kynges seruauntes. But Nathan the prophet and Banaiahu, and the other myghtie men, and Salomon his brother, he called not.

Wherfore, Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayinge: hast ỹ not heard howe that Adonia ỹ sonne of Hagith doth rayne, and Dauid oure Lord knoweth it not? Nowe therfore come, & I will geue ỹ counsell, howe to saue thyne awne lyfe, & the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Go and get the in vnto kynge Dauid, and saye vnto him: diddest not ỹ (my Lorde O kynge) swere vnto thy hādmayde, sayinge: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sytt vpō my seate: why is then Adonia kynge? Beholde, whyle thou yet talkest there with ỹ kyng, I will come in after ỹ, & cōfirme thy wordes.

C And Bethsabe went in vnto the kynge into the chābre. And the kinge was very olde, and Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto ỹ king. And Bethsabe stowped, & made obeysaunce vnto the kynge. And ỹ kynge sayde: what is thy matter? She answered him: Myy Lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall sytt vpō my seate. And beholde, nowe is Adonia kynge, & my Lord the kynge wotteth not of it. And he hath offered oxen, fat catell, & many shepe, and hath called all the sonnes of the kynge, & Abiathar the preast, and Joab the captayne of the holte. But Salomon thy seruaunt hath he not bydde. And nowe my Lorde (O kynge,) the eyes of all Israel wayte on the, ỹ thou shuldest tell them, who ought to sytte on the seate of my Lord the kynge after him. For elles when my Lorde the kynge shall sleape with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe ☞ *synners.

And whyle she yet talked with the kynge, Nathā ỹ prophet came also. And they tolde the kynge sayinge: beholde, here cōmeth Nathan the prophete. And whē he was come in to the kynge, he made obeysaunce before the kynge vpon his face on the ground, & Nathā sayde: Myy Lorde (O kynge) hast thou sayd, Adonia shall raygne after me, & he shall sytt
D vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye, & hath slayne many oxen, & fat shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes of the holt, & Abiathar the preast. And beholde, they eate and dryncke before him, and saye: God saue kynge Adonia. But me thy seruaūt, and Sadock the preast, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & thy seruaunt Salomon hath he not called. Is thys thynge done of my Lorde the kynge, & ỹ hast not shewed it vnto thy seruaūt, who shulde sytt on ỹ seate of my Lord ỹ kyng after him?

Then kyng Dauid answered & sayde: call me Bethsabe. And she came into the kynges presence, and stode before him. And ỹ kynge sware sayinge. As truly as the Lorde lyueth (ỹ hath rydd my soule out of all aduersyte) euen as I sware vnto the by the Lorde God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I do this daye. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the erth, & dyd reuerence vnto the kyng, & sayde. I praye God ỹ my Lorde kyng Dauid ☞ maye lyue euer. ☞
And kyng Dauid sayde: call me Sadock the E preast, & Nathā the prophet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada. And they came before the kynge. The kinge also sayde vnto them: take vnto you the seruauntes of youre Lorde, & set Salomon my sonne vpon myne awne Mule, & carye him downe ☞ to Gihon. And ☞ let Sadock the preast, & Nathā the prophet anoynte him there, kynge ouer Israel. And blowe ye with tropettes, & saye: God saue kyng Salomō. And then come vp after him, that he maye come and sytte vpon my seate. For he shalbe kynge in my steade. And I will cōmaunde him to be captayne ouer Israel and Juda. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kynge, & sayde, Amen. I praye God ỹ the Lorde God of my Lorde ỹ kynge saye so to. And as God hath bene with my Lorde the kynge, euē so be he with Salomō also, & make his seate greater, then the seate of my Lorde kynge Dauids hath bene.

And so Sadock the preast, and Nathan the prophet, & Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & the Crethites and Phelethites went downe, & sett Salomon vpō kynge Dauids Mule, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the preast toke an horne of oyle out of F
the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomō. And all they of the people blewe trompettes, and sayde: God saue kynge Salomō. And all the people cam vp after him, pyping with pipes and reioysynge greatlye, so ỹ the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonia and all the gestes ỹ he had called vnto him, heard it, euen as they had made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab heard the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: howe happeneth it ỹ there is soche a noyse in the cytie? And as he yet spake: beholde, Jonathas ỹ sonne of Abiathar ỹ preast came. And Adonia sayde vnto him: come in, for ỹ art a valeaūt man, and bryngest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered & sayd to Adonia:

Verely oure Lorde kynge Dauid hath made Salomon kyng. And the kynge hath sent vō him, Sadock the preaste, & Nathan the prophet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Crethites, and the Phelethites, and they haue set him vpon ỹ kynges mule. And Sadock the preast, and Nathan the prophet haue anoynted hym kyng in Sihō. And they
G came vp agayne, and reioysed, that the cytie dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse, that ye haue hearde. And Salomon sytteth on the seate of the kingdome. And moreouer the kynges seruauntes came to bleese oure Lorde kinge Dauid, sayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon more honorable then thy name, and make hys seate greater then thy seate. And the kynge bowed hym selfe vpon the bedd. And thus sayde the kynge: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israell: which hath made one to syt on my seate thys daye, myne eye seynge it.

And all the gestes that were with Adonia were afrayed, and rose vp, and went euery man hys waye. And Adonia fearyng the presence of Salomon, arose, and went, & (in & to the tabernacle of the Lorde) and caught holde on the hornes of the aultare. And one tolde Salomon, sayinge: beholde, Adonia doth feare kynge Salomon: for he hath * caught holde
*Exo.xxi.b on the hornes of the aultare, saying: let king Salomon swere vnto me thys daye that he wyll not sley his seruaūt with the swearde. And so kynge Salomon sent, and they brought hym frō the aultare. And he came, and dyd obeysaūce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayde vnto hym: gett the to thyne house.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And *iij.Reg.xvi.b
she sayde: * Commest thou peaceably? And he sayde: peaceably. He sayde moreouer: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. She sayde: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israell set their faces on me, that I shulde raygne, howbeit, ỹ kingdome is turned awaye, and geuē to my brother: for it is appoynted him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticion of the: denye me nott. And she sayde vnto him: Saye on. And he sayde: speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kinge, for he will not saye the naye, that he geue me Abisag the Sunamite to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kinge.

Bethsabe therfore went vnto the kinge Salomon, to speake vnto him for Adonia. D
And the kinge rose vp to mete her, and bowed him selfe vnto her, and satt him downe on his seate. And there was a seate sett for the kinges mother, and she sat on his right syde. Then she sayde: I desyre a lytell peticion of

And kinge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adonia? aske for him the kyngdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the preaste, and Joab the sonne of Zarua. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so, and so to me, yf Adonia haue not spoken this worde agaynst his awne lyfe. Nowe therfore, as trulye as the Lorde lyueth, which hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and ☞ made me an house, as he promised, Adonia shall dye thys daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym, that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the preste, sayde the kynge: get the to Anatoth vnto thyne awne feldes: for thou arte worthy of deeth: but I wyll not at this tyme kyll the, because thou bareste the arcke of ỹ Lorde God before Dauid my father, and because thou hast suffred with my father in all hys afflictiõs. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from being preste vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfill the wordes of the Lord which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tidynges came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia, though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and caught holde on the hornes of the aultare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, howe that Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the aultare. Then Salomon sent Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, sayinge: go and fall vpon him. And Banaiahu came into the tabernacle of the Lord, and sayde vnto hym, Thus sayeth the kynge: come out. And he sayde: naye, but I will dye eũ here. And Banaiahu brought the kynge worde agayne, saying: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kynge sayde. Do euen as he hath sayde: smyte hym, and burye hym, that thou mayest take awaye the blonde, which Joab shed causeleslye, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lorde shall brynge hys blond vpon his awne heed, for he smote two men right wyser and better then he, and slue them with the swerde, my father Dauid not knowynge therof: euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayne of the hoost of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether captaine of ỹ hoost of Juda. Theyr blonde shall therfore returne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of hys seed for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpõ his seed, and vpon hys house, and vpon hys seate shall there be peace for euer of the Lord.

So Banaiahu ỹ sonne of Jehoiada wẽt vp, and smote hym, and slue hym, and buryed hym in hys awne house in the wyldernesse. And the kynge put Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hoost and put Sadock the preste in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kynge sente and called Semei, and sayde vnto hym: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there: and se that thou go not forth thẽce any whether. For be thou sure, that the daye that thou goest out, and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalte dye ỹ daye, and thy blonde shalbe vpon thyne awne heade. And Semei sayde vnto the kynge. Thys is a good thynge: as my Lorde the kynge hathe sayde: so wyll hys seruaunt do. And Semei dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced after thre yeres, that two of the seruaũtes of Semei ranne away vnto Achis, sonne of Maacha king of Geth. And they tolde Semei, sayinge: beholde, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp, & sadled hys asse, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to seke hys seruauntes, and returned, and brought hys seruauntes agayne from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semei hathe gone from Jerusalem to geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge sent, and called Semei, and sayd vnto hym: Dyd I not charge the by the Lorde with an othe, and testifyed vnto the, sayinge: be sure, that whensoeuer thou goest out, and walkest abroade any whether, thou shalt dye ỹ deeth? And thou saydest vnto me: it is good tidynges that I haue heard. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I charged the withall?

The kynge sayde moreouer to Semei: *thou remẽbrest all the wyckednesse which thyne hert knoweth, and that thou dyddest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall brynge thy wyckednesse vpon thyne awne heed: and kyng Salomon shalbe blessed, and the seat of Dauid stablysshed before ỹ Lord for euer. So the kynge commaunded Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada: which went out, and smote hym that he dyed: And the kyngdome was stablysshed in the hande of Salomon.

And Salomõ sayde: thou haste shewed vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father great mercy, when he walked before the in trueth, in ryghtewesnes, & in playnesse of hert with the. And I was delyuered of a chyld with her in the house. And the thyrde daye after that I was delyuered, she was delyuered also: and we were together, and no straunger with vs in the house, saue we two. And thys wyues chyde dyed in the nyght, for she smothered it. And she rose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handemayde slepte, and layde it in her bosome, and putt her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I rose vp to geue my chylde sucke: beholde, it was deed. But whã I had loked vpon it in the morynge, beholde, it was not my sonne, which I dyd beare.

The other woman sayde: it is not so: but my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is deed. And D the sayde agayne: No, but thy sonne is deed, and my sonne is alyue. And thus they pleated before the kynge. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayth, this that is alyue is my sonne: and the deed is thyne. And the other saythe, naye: but thy sonne is the deed, & the lyuinge chylde is myne. And the kynge sayde: bryng me a swearde. And they brought out a swearde before the kynge. And the kynge sayde. Deuyde the lyuinge chylde in two, and geue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman, whose the lyuynge chylde was, vnto the kynge, for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne, and sayde: I beseche the my Lorde, geue her the lyuyng chylde, and in no wyse sleye it. But the other sayd: let it be nether myne nor thyne, but deuyde it. Then the kynge answered and sayd: *geue her the lyuing chylde, and sleye it not: *Luke.viij.c for she is the mother therof. And all they of Israel hearde of the iudgement, which the kynge hath iudged, and feared the kynge: for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in hym, to do iustice. ✠

And in the wall of the house, he made chābers rounde about, (euē in the walles of the house) rounde about the temple & the queer: and made sydes rounde about. The nethermost chamber was fyue cubytes broad, and the myddle was syxe cubytes broade, & the thyrd was seuē cubites broad. For without in the wall of ỹ house he layed beames rounde about, that the beames of the chābers shuld not be fastened in ỹ walles of the house. And the house was buylt of stone, made perfecte allready before it was brought thyther, so that there was neither hāmer, ner axe, ether any tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in buyldinge.

The doze of the myddle chābre was in ỹ
B ryght syde of the house: and men went vp wt
windyng stayres into the myddle chambre, and out of the myddle, into the thyrde. And so he buylte the house and fynyshed it, and rouffe it with beames of Cedar timber. And then he buylt chābers to all the tēple, of fyue cubytes heygth, and they were ioyned to the house with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, saying: concernynge the house which thou arte in buyldynge, yf thou wylt walke in myne ordinaūces, and execute my lawes, and kepe my commaundementes, to walke in thē: then wyll I make good vnto the my

Salomon therfore built the house and fynyshed it, and syled the walles of the house within, wt bordes of Cedar tree: euen frō the pauemēt of the house vnto the rouffe dyd he syle the walles of it within, with Cedar tre: and borded the floure of the house wt planckes of fyre.

And he syled .xx. cubytes ☞ in the sydes of the queer of the temple, both floore & walles with bordes of Cedar, & dyssed it within in the secrete place of the tēple, euen in the mooste holye. And the fyrst house, that is to saye, the body of the temple without, was fourtye cubites longe. And the Cedar of the C house within, was kerued with knoppes, & graue with floures, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was seue. And the queer that was within the temple, he prepared, to set there the arcke of the appoyntemēt of the Lorde: And the queer before was twentye cubites lōge, and twenty cubites in bredth, and twentye cubytes in heygth. And he syled it with pure golde, and borded ☞ the aultare with Cedar.

And Salomō also syled the house within with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne alonge the queer, which he had couered with golde. And the whole house, he ouerlayd with golde vntyll he had ended it. And the aultare ỹ was in the queer he ouerlayde with golde also.

And within the queer he made .ij. * Cherubins of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye. Fyue *Ero.xxv.b.

cubytes longe was a wynge of the one Cherub, and fyue cubites longe was a winge of the other Cherub: so that frō the vttermost parte of one wyng vnto the vttermost part of the other, were ten cubites.

And the other Cherub was ten cubites hye also, so ẏ both the Cherubes were of one measure & one fyse. For the heigth of the one Cherub was ten cubites, and so was it of ẏ other. And he put the Cherubes within the *Exo.xxv.b. ynner house. * And the Cherubes stretched
D out their winges, so that the one winge of ẏ one touched the one wall, and the one winge of the other touched the other wall. And the other two winges of them touched one another in the myddes of ẏ house. And he ouerlayed the Cherubs with golde.

And in all the walles of the house round about, he made fygures of carued and syled wozke: as namely, pictures of Cherubs and Palmetrees and grauen floures, both within in the queer, & without in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered with golde both within in ẏ queer and also without in the temple. And in the enteryng of the queer he made two dozes of Olyue tree. And both the vpper & two syde postes were .v. square. The two dozes also were of Oliue tree, and he graued them with graunyge of Cherubs and Palmetrees, and grauen floures, & couered them with gold, and layed thinne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and Palmetrees. And in like maner dyd he in the doze of the temple, saunge that the postes were of Olyuetre foure square. The two dozes were of fyre tree: and eyther doze with two folding leaues, he graued therō Cherubs Palmetrees, and flours: and couered them with golde, which was layed thynne vpō the carued wozke. And he buylt the ynner court wᵗ thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth yere was the foundacion of the house of the Lozde layed: euen in the moneth ziff. And in the eleuenth yere in the moneth Bull, which is the eyght moneth, was the house full fynished thozowout all the partes therof, and accozdynge to all the fasshyon of it. And so was he seuen yere in buyldynge it.

¶ The.vij.Chapter.

¶ The buyldynge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The fozme of the pyllers of brasse, of the brasen see &c.

BVt Salomon was buyldyng his awne house thirtene yere, & fynyshed it all. And he buylt the house * in the wodd of Libanon, an hundzed cubytes longe, and fyftye cubytes broad, & xxx. cubytes hye. And it stode vpon foure rowes of Cedar pyllars, and Cedar beames were layed vpon the pyllers. And ẏ rouffe was Cedar aboue vpon the beames, that laye on the pyllers: euen fyue and fourtye beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes: and the wyndowes were one agaynst another thre folde. And the dozes with the syde postes, and the vpperposte were foure square, and had windowes one agaynst another thre folde.

And he made a pozch by the pillars, that bare vp the house. l. cubites longe, and .xxx. cubites broad: & that pozch was before those & the other pillers. For there was a thick tree set before them. Then he made a pozche to syt a iudge in, syled with Cedar thorowout all the pauementes. And hys awne house (that he kept residēce in: & that was in another courte without ẏ pozch) was made of that same wozcke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter * whō
B he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto the fasshion * iii.reg.iii.
of that pozche. And all these were of the best stones, hewed after a measure, and sawed wᵗ sawes within and without, from the foundacion vnto the beames that laye aboue, after the measure, & euen so on the outsyde towarde the great court. And the foundacyon was layed vpon ryche stones & ẏ very great stones: wherof some were .x. cubites, & some viij. cubites. And aboue were good stones squared after a certayn rule, & couered wᵗ Cedar. And the great court roūd about was wᵗ thre rowes of hewed stone, & one rowe of Cedar plāckes, after ẏ maner of the ynner court of the house of the Lozde, & of the pozch of the temple. * And kyng Salomon sent and fett * ij.para.ii.a

The heigth of the one heed pece conteined .v. cubites, & the heigth of the other heed pece cōteyned .v. cubites also: he made also net wozck & garlandes of cheyne wozcke, vpō the heed peces that were on the top of the pyllers, euen seuen rowes vpō the one heed pece, and seuē vpon the other. And so he made the pyllers, and two rowes roūd about, in the one wzethen wozcke, to couer the heed peces ẏ were vpon the pomgranates. And thus dyd he also for the other heed pece. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of the pillers, couered he aboue with a curyous wozke of roses: towarde the palace by the space of .iiij. cubytes. Likewyse, vnder ẏ heed peces in those .ij. pillers beneth, ouer against ẏ middes & before ẏ net wozke. And vpō the secōde heed pece were ther .ij.C. pomgranates in two rowes round about. And he set vp the pillers in the pozch of the tēple. And whē he had set vp the pyllers was a wozke of roses, and so was ẏ wozkmanshyp of the pyllers finyshed.

And he made a molten lauatory, ten cubytes wyde frō brym to brym, roūd in compasse, & .v. cubytes hye. And a stryng of thirtye cubytes dyd cōpasse it about: and vnder the brym of it, there were knoppes round about, ten in one cubite: and they cōpassed the lauatory round about. And ẏ knoppes were cast wᵗ it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxē: of which thre loked toward the nozth. iij. towarde the west. iij. towarde the south, & iij. toward the east. and the lauatozy stode vpō them, & all theyr hinderpartes were inward. It was an hand breadeth thycke, & ẏ brym wzought lyke the brym of a cup wᵗ floures of lylies. And it conteyned two thousande bates.

And he made .x. sokettes of brasse. iiij. cubites longe, and .iiij. cubites broade a pece, & iij. cubites hye. And the wozke of the soketes was on this maner. They had sides, and the sydes were betwene the ledges. And on E the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen and cherubs. And lykewyse, vpō the ledges that were aboue: and beneth the lyons and oxen were certayne additions made of thynne wozke. And vnder euery soket, were foure brasen wheles, and bozdes of brasse. And in the foure cozners therof, were vndersetters vnder the lauatozye, cast eche ouer against hys felowe.

And the stalke of the lauatozy was in the
* myddle of it, * (where it is sene on the out syde) one cubite hye, and a cubite and an halfe roūde: and in the heigth of it were grauen wozkes, whose sydes were made foursquare, and not roūde. And vnder the sydes were .iiij. wheles: and the axeltrees ioyned fast to the bottome. And the heygth of euery whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the wozkmanshyp of the wheles was lyke the wozke of a charret whele. And the axeltrees, the naueles, spokes and shaftes were all molten: And there were foure vndersetters in the .iiij. cozners of one socket: and the vndersetters were of the very bottome selfe. And in ẏ heygth of the bottome was there round compasse of a cubite hye: and in that heygth of the bottome, there proceaded both ledges & sydes out of the same. For in the bozdes of the ledges, and on the sydes, he had grauen pyctures of cherubins, lyons and palme trees, one by an other roūde aboute. Thus made he the ten sockettes after this maner. And they had all one fasshion of castyng: one measure, and one fasse. Then made he .x. lauers of brasse, one lauer conteyning .xl. bates: and one lauer was F foure cubytes, and vpon euery one of the ten sockettes, he put one lauer. And he put fyue of those sockettes on the right side of ẏ house and other fyue on the lefte. And he set the lauatozye on the ryght syde of the house eastwarde and towarde the south.

And Hiram made pottes, shouels and basens, and so finyshed all the wozke ẏ he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lozde: ẏ is to saye, two pillers, two roūd heed peces, that were to be sett on the toppes of the two pillers. ii. net wozkes to couer the two roūd heed peces set vpō the toppes of the pyllers, and .iiij.C. pōgranates for the two net wozkes, euē two rowes of pomgranates in one net wozke, to couer the two heed peces that were to be sett on the toppes of the pyllers. And the ten sockettes, and ten lauers on the sockettes. The lauatozy and .xij. oxen vnder it: and pottes, shouelles and basens. And all these vessels which Hirā made to kyng Salomō for the house of ẏ Lozd, were of bryght brasse. In the playne of Jozdan did the king cast them: euen in the thycke claye betwene Sococh and zarthan. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwayed, because they were so exceadyng many, neyther founde they oute the weyght of the brasse.

And so Salomō made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lozde: the golden aulter and the golden table, wheron the shewe bread was. And fyue candelsticks, for the ryght syde, and fyue for the lefte before the queer of pure golde: with floures, lampes, and snoffers of golde: & boules, flat peces, basons, spones and masoures of pure golde: and hyndges made he of golde for the dozes of the queer, the place moost holy, and for the dozes of the temple also.

And so was ended all ẏ wozke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lozde. And * Salomō brought in ẏ thinges which * ij.par.iiij.a Dauid his father had dedicated: euen the siluer, golde, & vessels: and layed thē vp amōge the treasures of the house of the Lozde.

For I haue halowed this house (which thou hast buylte) to put my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne herte shalbe there perpetuallye.
And yf thou wylt walcke before me (as Dauid thy father walcked) in pureness of herte and in ryghteousnesse) to do all that I haue commaunded the, and wylt kepe my statutes, & my lawes, then wyll I stablysshe the seate of thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer, as I promysed to Dauid thy father sayinge,

* iij.Reg. ☜

For Pharao kynge of Egypte went vp, & toke Gazer, and burnt it with fyre, and slue the Cananites ỹ dwelt in the cytie, and gaue it for a present vnto hys daughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether: and Baalath and ☞ Thamar in the wyldernesse and in the lande: and all the treasure cyties that Salomon had, *(and were vnwalled: those he made stronge) and cyties for hys charettes, & cyties for hys horsemē, and all that Salomon desyred and wolde buylde in Jerusalem, in Libanon, and in all the lande of hys dominyon.

And all the people that were lefte of the Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, Heuites ād Jebusites, (whych were not of the chyldren of Israel) theyr chyldrē that were lefte after them in the lande, whom the chyldren of Israel also were not able to destroye. Those dyd Salomon compell to bryng tribute vnto thys daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon * make no bonde men. But they were men of warre, hys ministers, hys * Leui. Lordes, his captaynes, and rulers of his charettes, and of hys horsemen. And these were the Lordes, that were sett ouer Salomons worke: euen fyue hundred were they and fyftye, and they ruled the people that wrought the worcke.

And Pharaos daughter came vp oute of the cytie of Dauid vnto the house which Salomō had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buylde Millo. And thryse a yere dyd Salomon offer burntofferinges and peace offeringes vpon the aultare, whyche he buylt vnto the Lorde. And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before the Lorde, and so he fynyshed the house.

And kynge Salomon made a nauye of shyppes in Azion Gaber whyche is beside Eloth, on the bryncke of the redd see, in the lande of Edom. And Hyram sent by shyppe also of hys seruauntes, that were shypmen, and had knowledge of the see, wyth the seruauntes of Salomon. And they came to Ophyr and fet from thence one and twentye skore skore hundred weyght of golde, & brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶The. x. Chapter.

¶The quene of Saba commeth to heare the wysdome of Salomō, whose royalme is here described.

And
*ij.Par.ix.b Gen.xxv.a.

AND the *Quene of Saba hearynge the fame of Salomon (concernynge the name of the Lorde) came to proue hī with harde questyons. And she came to Jerusalem with a very great trayne: with Camelles that bare swete odoures, and golde exceadynge moche, and precyouse stones. And she came to Salomon and comoned with him of all that was in her hert. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questiōs, so that there was not one thinge hydd from the kynge, which he expounded not vnto her.

And the quene of Saba cōsydred all Salomons wysdome, and the house that he had buylded, and the meate of his table, & ☞ the syttynge of hys seruauntes, the order of hys mynisters, and theyr apparell, hys dryncke, and his burnt sacrifices that he offered in the house of the Lorde, and she was astonnied.
And she sayde vnto the kynge. It was a true worde that I hearde in myne awne lande of thy sayinges, and of thy wysdome. Howbeit I beleued it not, tyll I came, & sawe it wyth myne eyes. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba accordynge to all her desyre whatsoeuer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a free wyll with his awne hande. And so she returned vnto her awne countrey: both she, and her seruauntes.

¶ The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yeare, was fyre hundred thre score and fyre talentes of golde, besydes that he had of chapmen and of marchauntes and of Potycarpes, and of all the kynges of Arabye, and of the Lordes of the countreye. And kynge Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beatē gold, fyre hūdred sycles of gold went to a buckler. ## The. xi. Chapter.

¶Salomō hath seuen hundred quenes and thre hundred Concubynes, which bryngē hym to Idolatrye. His aduersaryes rebell agaynst hym. He dyeth.

A *iij.Re.xii.a

BVt kynge *Salomon loued many outelandishe wemen: and the daughter of Pharao: and wemen of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, uites and hethites. Where as yet (concernynge these nacyons) the Lorde sayde vnto the chyldren of Israell: * come not ye at them, nor let them come at you: elles wyll they turne youre hertes after theyr goddes. Neuertheles, Salomō claue vnto them in loue. * And he had seuen hundred Quenes, and thre hundred cōcubines, and his wyues turned a waye his hert. For it came to passe, when Salomon was olde, hys wyues turned his hrte after other Gods: and his herte was not perfecte with the Lord his God, as was the herte of Dauid his father: for Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of the zidons, and Milcom, the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomō wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, & folowed not the Lorde perfectly, as dyd Dauid hys father. For than did Salomō buylde an hye place for Chamos the abominacyon of Moab, in the hyll that is before Jerusalem, & vnto Moloch the abhominacyon of the chyldren of Ammon. And lykewise dyd he for all his outlādishe wyues, which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr gods. And the Lorde was angrye with Salomon, because hys hert was turned from the Lorde God of Israel * which had appeared vnto him twyse, and gaue him a charge (cōcerninge this thinge) that he shuld not folowe other gods. But he kepte not that, which the Lorde commaūded him, wherfore the Lord sayde vnto Salomon: for as moch as this is done of the, and thou hast not kepte myne appoyntmēt, and my statutes (which I commaunded the) I wyll rent the kyngdome from the, and wyll geue it to thy seruaunt. Notwithstandynge in thy dayes I will not do it because of Dauid thy father but will take it frō the hāde of thy sonne. Howbeit, I will not take awaye all ye kyngdome: but will geue one trybe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaunt, and because of Jerusalē which I haue chosen.

And the Lorde stered vp an aduersarye vnto Salomō: euen one Hadad an Edomite of the kynges sede, which was in Edō. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the captayne of the hoste was gone vp to burye thē that were slayne, he smote all the men chyldren in Edom. For syxe monethes dyd Joab remayne there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And thys Hadad fled and certen other Edomites of hys fathers seruauntes with him, to come into Egipte: Hadad beyng yet a lytle chylde. And they arose out of Madian, and came to Paran, and toke mē with them out of Parā and came to Egypte vnto Pharao kynge of Egipte, which gaue him an house, & appoynted him vitayles, and gaue him lande.

And Hadad gat greate fauoure in ye syght of Pharao, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of his awne wyfe, euen the syster of Thahpenes the quene. And ye sister of Thahpenes bare him Genubath his sonne, whom Thahpenes norisshed i Pharaos house. And Genubath was of Pharaos household amonge the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad heard in Egypte, that Dauid was layde to slepe wyth hys fathers, and that Joab the captayne of ye host was deed also, he sayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne awne contreye. Pharao sayde vnto hym: what hast thou lacked here with me, ye thou woldest thus go to thine awne cōtreye? He answered. Nothing. howbeit, let me go And God stered him vp an other aduersary, one Rezon the sonne of Eliada, whyche fled from his Lorde Hodadezer kynge of zoba. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captayne ouer the companye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelt there, and raigned in Damasco: Therfore was he an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomō. And this was ye myschefe, in that Hadad dyd abhorre Israel, and raygned ouer Syria

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephrathite of zareda (whose mother was called zeruah, which was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruaunt) lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kynge. But this was the cause, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng. Salomon buylte Mello, & mended the brokē places of the cytie of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the younge man, that he was able to do the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all ye tribute of ye house of Joseph. And it chaunced at that season, that Jeroboam went out of Jerusalē, and the prophete Ahiah the Silonite mett him by the waye haynge a newe mantell on hym, and they two were alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantell that was on hym and rent it in twelue peces, and sayde to Jeroboā take the ten peces. For thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: behold, I wyll rent the kyngdome oute of the handes of Salomon, and wyll geue ten tribes to the * and he shall haue one, for my seruaunte Dauids sake and for Jerusalem the cytie whyche I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: because they haue forsaken me, and haue worshypped vnto Astharoth the God of the zidons, & Chamos the God of the Moabites, and Milcom the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes (to fulfyll my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes) as dyd Dauid hys father.

I wyll not take the whole kyngdome out of his hāde: but wyll make hym chefe all hys lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruauntes sake, whom I chose: because he kepte my cōmaundementes and my statutes. * But I wyll take the kyngdome out of his sonnes hande, & wyll geue it vnto the, euen ten tribes of it: and vnto hys sonne wyll I geue one trybe, ye Dauid my seruaunt maye haue a lyght allwaye before me in Jerusalē, the cytie which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, & thou shalt raygne accordynge to all that thy soule desyreth, & shalt be kynge ouer Israel. And yf thou herkē vnto all that I commaunde the, & wylt walke in my wayes & do that is ryght in my syght, that thou kepe my statutes ād my commaūdementes (as Dauid my seruaunt dyd) then wyll I be with the, & buylde the a sure house that shall contynewe, as I buylte for my seruaunt Dauid, and wyll geue Israel vnto the And I wyll for thys offence (which Salomon hath commytted) vexe the seede of Dauid, but not for euer.

Salomon sought therfore to kyll Jeroboam, and Jeroboam arose, and fled vnto Egypte vnto Sisak kynge of Egypte, and cōtinued there in Egypte vntyll the deeth of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that concerne Salomon, and all that he dyd, and hys wysdome: are they not wrytten in the boke of the wordes of Salomon? The tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalē vpon all Israel, was fourtye yere. And Salomon slepte and he layde him with hys fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ The.xii.Chapter.

¶ The kingdome is deuyded, Rehoboham raygneth ouer.ii.trybes, and Jeroboā ouer.x. Aduram is stoned. Jeroboam maketh golden calues.

AND * Rehoboam went to Sichem: for all Israel were come to Sichem, to make him kynge. And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which was yet in Egypte) heard of it * for he fled to Egypte from the presence of kyng Salomon, & dwelt in Egypte. So they sent and called hym. and Jeroboam and all the congregacyon of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayenge thy father made oure yocke grenouse, nowe therfore, make thou the grenouse sernice of thy father and hys sore yocke which he putt vpon vs, lyghter, & we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke coūcell with the olde men that stode before Salomon hys father, while he yet lyued, and sayde: what coūcell geue ye, that I maye haue matter to answere thys people? And they sayde vnto hym: If thou be a seruaunt vnto thys people this daye, and folowe theyr myndes and answere them, and speake kynde wordes to them: they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer.

But he forsoke the councell that the olde mē had geuen him, and called vnto hys councell yonge men, that were growen vp with him, and wayted on hym.

And he sayde vnto them: what councell geue ye, that we maye answere thys people? for they haue commoned with me, sayenge: make the yocke which thy father dyd putt vpon vs, lyghter? And the younge men that were growen vp with hym, spake vnto hym sayenge: Thus shalt thou speake vnto thys people (that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made oure yocke heuye, butt make thou it vs lyghter) Euen thus shalt thou saye vnto them: * My lytle fynger shalbe wayghtier, thē my father was in the loynes. And nowe where as my father did lade you & put a grenouse yocke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. My father also corrected you wt scourges, but I wyll chastyse you with scorpions. And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge had apoynted, sayenge: come to me agayne the thyrde daye. And the kyng answered the people churlyshly, and lefte the oldemens councell (that they gaue hym) & spake to them after the councell of the younge mē, sayenge. My father made youre yocke grenouse, and I will make it grenouser. My father also chastised you with whyppes, but I wyll chastise you with scorpyons. And the kynge herkened not vnto the people. for it was the ordinaunce of God, that he myght * perfourme hys sayenge, which ye Lorde spake by Ahiah ye Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

And so, when all Israel sawe, ye the kynge regarded them not, the people answered the kynge with these wordes, sayenge, * what porcion haue we in Dauid: we haue no enheritaūce in the sonne of Isai. * To youre tentes, O Israel, nowe se to thyne awne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto theyr tentes. howbeit, ouer the chyldren of Israel which dwelt in the cytie of Juda, dyd Rehoboam raygne styll. Then kynge Rehoboam sent Adurā the receauer of the tribute. And all they of Israel stoned hym to deeth. But kynge Rehoboā made spede to gett hym vp to hys charet, and to flye to Jerusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid, vnto thys daye. And when all Israel heard that Jeroboā was come agayne, they sent and called hym vnto the multitude, and made hym kynge ouer all Israel: and there was no trybe that folowed the house of Dauid, but Juda onely. * And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Juda, with the trybe of Ben Jamin an hundred & foure skore thousande of chosen mē (which were good warryoures) to fyght agaynst the house of Israel, racl, and to bryngе the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

And the wozde of God came vnto Semaia the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of F Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda & Benjamin, and to the remnaunt of the people, sayenge: Thus sayth the Lozde. Ye shall not go vp, noz yet fyght agaynst youre bzethzen the chyldzen of Jsrael, returne euery man to his house, foz this thynge is my doing. ## ¶The.xiij.Chapter.

¶Jeroboam doinge sacrifyce vnto the calues, is rezprehended of the Pzophete. Hys hande dzyeth vp, whyle he putteth it out agaynst the Pzophete. The Pzophete is kylled, and burged.

AND beholde, there came & a man of God out of Juda (by the wozde of the Lozd) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stode by the aulter to put incēse. And he cried agaynst the aultare in the wozde of the Lozd & sayde. O aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lozd: Beholde, a chylde shall be bozne vnto the house of Dauid, (Josia by name) & vpon the shall he offer the pzeastes of the hillaultares that burne incense vpon the, & mennes bones shalbe bzent vpon the. And the kynge sayde vnto the mā of God come home with me, that thou mayest dyne, and I wyll geue the a rewarde. And the mā of God sayde vnto the kynge: yf thou woldest geue me halfe thyne house, I will not go in with ỹ, nether wyll I eate bzeade oz dzincke water in thys place. And there dwelt & an olde pzophet in Bethel, & hys sonne came, and tolde hym all the wozkes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel: ād the wozdes which he had spoken vnto the kynge & tolde they theyr father also. And they yr father sayde vnto thē: what waye went he? And his sonnes shewed him what waye the mā of God went, which came fom Juda. And he sayde vnto hys sonnes: sadle me the Asse. Which whan they had sadled, he gatt hym vp theron, ād went after the man of God, & founde hym syttynge vnder a tre. And he sayde vnto him: art thou the mā of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde: Jam.

He sayde vnto him: come home with me, D

And he cryed vnto the man of God that came from Juda, sayenge: thus sayth the Lozd because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lozde, and hast not kept the cōmaundement which the Lozde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne, and hast eaten bzead and dzoncke water, in the place (concernynge the which the Lozde dyd saye vnto the: Thou shalt eate no bzead noz dzyncke water) thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchze of thy fathers.

And so it came to passe, that when he had eaten bzead and dzoncke, the pzophete which bzought him agayne, sadled him an asse. And iii.reg.xiii.f whan he was gone, * a Lyon mett hym by

And men that passed by, sawe the carkasse cast in the waye, and the Lyon standynge therby: & they came and tolde it in the towne where the olde pzophete dwelt. And when the pzophete that bzought him backe agayne from the waye, hearde therof, he sayde: it is the mā of God: he was disobedient vnto the wozde of the Lozde, and therfoze the Lozde hath delyuered him vnto the Lyon, which hath rent him and slayne him, accozdinge to the wozde of the Lozde, which he spake vnto hym. And he spake to his sonnes, sayinge. sadle me an Asse: and so they dyd. And he went, and foūde hys bodye cast in the waye, and the Asse and the Lyon stode by the coarse. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse, noz hurt the Asse.
And the pzophete toke vp the bodye of the F Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon raygned in Juda, and Rehoboam was .xli. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned .xvij. yere in Jerusalem (the cytie which the Lorde dyd chose out of all the trybes of Israel, to put his name there.) The rest of the wordes that concerne Rehoboam, and all ꝑ he dyd, are they not wrytten in the boke of the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda? And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all theyr lyues. And Rehoboam slepte with his fathers, and was buried beside his fathers in the cytie of Dauid. Hys mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Abiam hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ Wicked Abiã raygneth ouer Juda, & ryghtewes Asa succedeth in hys rowme. The battell betwene Asa & Baasa. Jehosaphat succedeth Asa. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa kylleth Nadab.

IN the .xviij. yere of kynge * Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raygned Abiã ouer Juda. Thre yere raygned he in Jerusalem, and hys mothers name was Maacha the daughter of Abisalom. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam B and Jeroboam as lõge as he lyued. *xii.par.xvi.a * And Baasa kynge of Israel, went vp agaynst Juda, & buylt Rama, so ꝑ he wolde

And beholde, I haue sent vnto the a present of syluer & golde ꝑ thou come & breake the bonde ꝑ thou hast wt Baasa kynge of Israell, that he maye departe from me. So Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Asa, and sent the captaynes of the hostes (which he had) agaynst the cyties of Israel, & smote Hion, & Dã, & Abel,
E Beth Maacah, & all the region of Cenereth with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa heard therof, he lefte buylding of Rama & dwelt i Thirza. Then kyng Asa made a proclamacyõ thorowout all Juda, ꝑ none shuld be excused. And so they toke the stones of Ramah & the tymber (wherwith Baasa had buylded,) & kyng Asa buylt with them the hyll of Ben Jamin and Mizpa.

The remnaunt of all the wordes that concerne Asa, and all hys myght and all that he dyd, & the cyties whych he buylded, are they not wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda? Neuertheles in hys

And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to raygne vpon Israel the seconde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned vpõ Israel two yere. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, walkynge in the waye of hys father and in hys synne wherwith he made Israel synne. And Baasa the sonne of Ahia (whych was of the house of Jsachar) cõspired agaynst hym, and Baasa smote him at Gibbethon which is a cytie of the Philistines: for Nadab & all Israel layed
G seage to Gibbethon. Euen in the thirde yere *iii.re.xvi.a of Asa kynge of Juda, dyd Baasa slaye him, and raygned in his steade. * And it fortuned that whan he was kyng, he smot all ꝑ house of Jeroboã, and lefte him naught that breathed, vntyll he had put hym cleane out, accordyng vnto the sayeng of the Lord, which he spake by his seruaunt Ahia the Selonite: because of the synnes of Jeroboã wherwyth he synned and made Israel synne, whan he wyth hys prouocacyon angred the Lorde God of Israel.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Nadab, and all that he dyd, are they not wrytte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kynge of Israel all theyr dayes.

So in the thyrde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Baasa the sonne of Ahia to raygne ouer all Israell in Thirza .xxiiij. yeare. And he dyd ꝑ which is euell in the syght of ꝑ Lorde, walkynge in the waye of Jeroboã, & in his synne, which made Israel to synne.

¶ The .xvj. Chapter.

¶ Jehu prophesyeth agaynst Baasa, whom Ela succedeth. Zimri kylleth hys master Ela, and destroyeth ꝑ house of Baasa. Ahab succedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wicked Jezabel.

THen the worde of the Lorde came to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baasa, sayeg: for as moche as I exalted the out of ꝑ dust, & made the captayne ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to synne, to angre me wt theyr synnes: Beholde, I wyll roote out the posterite of Baasa, and the posterite of hys house, and wyll make hys house lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. * That *iii.re.xxiii.c man of Baasa whych dyeth in the cytie, him and.xxi.d. shall the dogges eate: and that man of hym whych dyeth in the feldes, shall the foules of the ayre eate.

The rest of ꝑ wordes ꝑ cõcerne Baasa, & B what he dyd, & his power, are they not wrytten in ꝑ boke of ꝑ chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And so Baasa slepte wt hys fathers, & was buried in Thirza. And Ela his sonne raygned in his steade. And by the hãde of the prophete Jehu ꝑ sonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lorde agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, & agaynst all the wickednesse that he dyd in the syght of the Lorde (in angringe hym wt the worke of his awne handes) that he shulde be lyke the house of Jeroboam, & ☞ because he kylled hym. * (that ☞ is to saye Jehu the sonne of Hanani the prophete.

The .xxvj. yere of Asa kynge of Juda beganne Ela ꝑ sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thirza, two yere. And his seruaũt zimri (which was captayne of halfe his charettes) conspired agaynst hym, as he was in Thirza drynckynge: and was dronken in ꝑ house of Arza stuard of hys house in Thirza. And zimri came, and smote him, and kylled hym in the .xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned in hys steade. And it fortuned that whan he was kynge * and satt on *Ero.xvi.d.
hys seate, he slue all the house of Baasa, not i.Reg.ii.b.
leaupynge therof, one to pisse agaynst a wall: Yee, he slue hys kynsfolkes and frẽdes, allo.

And thus dyd zimri destroye all the house of Baasa, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake agaynst Baasa by the hande of Jehu the prophet, for all the synnes of Baasa & synnes of Ela hys sonne, whych they synned, and made Israel to synne, and angre the Lord God of Israel with their vanities. The rest of ỹ wordes ỹ concerne Ela, & all he dyd, are they not wrytte in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel?

In the .xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, dyd zimri raygne. vij. dayes in Thirza, and the people was then in the hoost besegynge Gebethon a citie of ỹ Philistines. And ỹ people in the hoost heard one saye: zimri hath cõspired, & slayne ỹ kynge: Wherfore, all they of Israell made Amri (the captayne of the hoost) kyng ouer Israel that same daye, euẽ in ỹ hoost. And Amri departed vp frõ Gibbethon, and all Israel with hym, & they beseged Thirza. And when zimri sawe ỹ the citie must nedes be taken, he went into the palayse of the kynges house, and burnt him selfe and the kynges house wt fyre, and so dyed, for his synnes whych he synned, in doynge ỹ which is euell in the syght of the Lorde, and in walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam and in hys synnes whych he dyd, and in that he made Israel to synne.

The rest of the wordes ỹ concerne zimri and the treason ỹ he wrought, are they not wrytten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? Then were the people of Israel deuyded into two partes, for halfe ỹ people folowed Thibni ỹ sonne of Ginath, makynge hym kynge: & the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled agaynst the people that folowed Thibni the sonne of Ginath. And so Thibni dyed, and Amri raygned.

In ỹ .xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israel .xii. yere. Sixe yere raygned he in Thirza. He bought the hyll ✣ Sohomron of one Schemar for two talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hill, and called the name of the cytie whych he buylt, after the name of Schemar whych had bene owner of the hyll Schomron. But Amri wrought that which is euell in ỹ eyes of the Lorde, and dyd worsse then all ỹ were before hym. For he walked in all ỹ waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & in hys synnes, ỹ made Israel synne, to anger ỹ Lorde God of Israel wt their vanyties. The rest of the wordes ỹ cõcerne Amri, & all ỹ he dyd, & his strength ỹ he shewed, are they not written in the boke of the chronicles of ỹ kynges of Israel? And so Amri slepte wt hys fathers and was buryed in Schemaron, and Ahab his sonne raygned in hys steade.

In ỹ .xxxviij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Ahab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and the same Ahab the sonne of Amri raygned ouer Israell i Samaria .xxij yere. And Ahab the sonne of Amri dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, aboue all that were before. For it semed vnto hym but a lyght thinge to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. he toke Jezabel also the daughter of Ethbaal kynge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and ✱ went and serued Baal, & worshypped hym. And he reared vp an aultare for Baal in the temple of Baal, whych he had buylded in Schomron. And Ahab made grooues, and proceded further in angrynge the Lorde God of Israel then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym. ✱iiij.reg.x.b.

✣ In his dayes dyd Hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho. And it ✱ coste him Abirã his eldest sonne whẽ he layde ỹ foundacion, & his yõgest sonne Segub, whẽ he sett vp the gates, accordyng vnto the worde of ỹ Lord ✱ which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun. ✱Josu.vi.d. ✱Josua.vi.a

¶ The .xvij. Chapter.

¶ Elias is norysshed and fed of Rauens, and after is sent to Sarphath (otherwyse called Sarepta) to a woman, whose chylde he rayseth to lyfe.

AND Elia the Thesbite (whych was of ỹ enhabiters of Gilead) sayde vnto Ahab: ✱ as truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stande ✱ there shalbe neither dewe nor rayne these yeres, but accordynge to my worde. ✱iij.re.xvij.c. ✱ Deut.xi.b. iij.reg.viij.d. Jacob.b.d.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto hi, sayẽg: gett the hence, & turne the estwarde, & hide thy selfe in ỹ brooke Cherith, ỹ is it that lyeth before Jordã: Thou shalt drynck of ỹ ryuer, & I haue cõmaũded the rauens to fede ỹ there. And so he wẽt, & dyd according vnto the worde of ỹ Lord: For he wẽt, & dwelt by ỹ brooke Cherith, ỹ is before Jordan. And ỹ rauẽs brought him bread & flesche in the morning, & lykewise bread & flesch in ỹ euenig, & he drancke of the brooke. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the meale in the barell shall not be wasted nether shall the oyle in the cruse be mynished, vntyll the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the erthe. And she went, and dyd as Elia sayde. And Elia toke the boye, and brought hym downe out of the chambre into the house, & delyuered hym vnto hys mother, and Elia sayde: beholde, thy sonne lyueth. And the woman sayde vnto Elia: nowe I knowe, that thou art a man of God, and that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouth, is true. ✣ ✱iiij.re.iiij.f. Iacob.vj.c.

¶ The .xviij. Chapter.

¶ Elia is sent to Ahab. Obadia (otherwyse called Abdia) bryngeth an hũdred pphetes. Elia kylleth all Baals prophetes: & afterwarde obtayneth rayne.

AFter processe of many dayes ỹ worde of the Lorde came to Elia in the thyrde yeare, sayinge: go shewe thy selfe vnto Ahab, and ✱ I wyll sende rayne vpon the erth. And Elia went to shewe hym selfe vnto Ahab, & ther was a great famyshement in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadia, whych was the gouerner of hys house: & Obadia feared God greatlye: For when Jezabell destroyed the prophetes of ỹ Lord, he toke an hũdred prophetes and hyd thẽ, fyftie mẽ in one caue & fyftie in another, & prouyded bred & water for thẽ. And Ahab sayde vnto Obadia: Go into the lãde, vnto all fountaynes of water, & vnto all brokes, yf happlye we maye fynde grasse, to saue the horses ãd the mules, & that we destroye not some of the beastes. And so they deuyded the lãde betwene thẽ, to walke thorow it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadia went another waye by hym selfe. ✱ iij.re.xviij.d. ✱ Deu.xi.b. Iames.b.c.

And it chaunced that as Obadia was in the waye, Elia mett hi. And Obadia knewe hym, & fell on hys face, & sayde: art not ỹ my Lord Elia? And he answered hym: I am he. Go and tell thy Lorde: beholde, Elia is here. He sayde: what haue I synned, that ỹ woldest delyuer thy seruaũt into ỹ hãd of Ahab, to sley me? As trulie as the Lord thy God lyueth, there is no nacyon or kyngdome, whether my Lorde hath not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde: he is not there, he tooke an othe of the kyngdome & nacyõ, whan he founde the not. And nowe thowe sayest: goo & tell thy Lorde, that Elia is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spyrete of the Lord shall carie the into some place that I do not knowe. and so when I come and tell Ahab, & he canne not finde the, he shall sleyme. But I thy seruaũt feare the Lorde from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell slue the prophetes of ỹ Lorde howe I hydde an hundred men of the Lordes prophetes, fyftie mẽ in one caue and fyftie in another, and prouyded thẽ of breed and water? And nowe thou sayest, goo thou nowe and shewe thy Lorde. Beholde, Elia is here, that he maye sleyme?

And Elia sayde: as truly as the Lorde of Hostes lyueth, before whõ I stande, I wyll shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. So Obadia went to mete Ahab, and tolde hym. And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it fortuned ỹ whan Ahab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto him: art thou he that troubleth Israel? He answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lorde, and thou hast folowed Baal. Nowe ther fore sende and geather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel, and the prophetes of Baal ✱ foure hundred and fyftie, and the prophetes of the Idols grooues foure hũdred, which eate of Jezabels table. So Ahab sent vnto all the chyldren of Israel, & gathered ỹ prophetes togeather vnto mount Carmel. ✱iiij.re.xviij.e

And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayde: howe lõge halte ye betwene two opy-

I onely remayne a prophete of ỹ Lorde: but Baals prophetes are foure hundred and fyftie. Let them therfore geue vs two oxen, & let them chose the one, & cut hym in peces, & laye hym on wodd, and put no fyre vnder: and I will dresse the other oxe, & laye him on wodd, and will put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of youre God, & I wyll call on the name of the Lorde: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let him be God.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.

¶ The fyrst and seconde tyme ỹ Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kynge of Syria.

And Benhadad the kyng of Syria gathered all his hoste toge-
A ther, hauynge .xxxij. kynges wt hym, and horses and charettes: & went vp and besieged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kynge of Israel into the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus sayeth Bēhadad. Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the fayrest of thy wyues, and of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered and sayde. Ryght Lorde kynge according to thy sayeng, I am thyne and all that I haue.

And whan the messengers came agayne, they sayd: thus sayeth Bēhadad. For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, sayinge: thou shalt delyuer me thy syluer & thy golde, and thy wyues, & thy chyldren. I wyll therfore sende my seruaūtes vnto ỹ to morow this ty-
B me: & they shall serche thyne house, & the houses of thy seruaūtes. And whatsoeuer is pleasaunt in thyne eyes, they shall take it in their hādes, and bringe it awaye. Then the kyng of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayde: take hede I praye you & se, howe thys fellow goeth about myschefe. For he sēt vnto me, for my wyues, for my chyldrē, for my syluer & for my golde: & I denyed hym not. And all the elders & all the people sayde: herken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherfore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that thou dyddest send for to thy seruaunt at the fyrst tyme, that I wyll do, but this thing I maye not do. And the messengers departed, and brought answer agayne. And Benhadad sent vnto hym agayne, and sayd: and thus do the Gods vnto me, yf ỹ dust of Samaria be ynough for all the people that folowe me, to take euery man an hādfull. And the kynge of Israel answered, & sayde: tell hym: let not him that putteth on his harnesse boste hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. And it fortuned, that whē Bēhadad heard de that tydynges, as he was wt ỹ kynges drynkyng with in the paupllyons, he sayde vnto his seruauntes, put on yō harnesse. And they set them selues in araye agaynst the cytie.

And beholde there came a Prophet vnto
C Ahab kynge of Israel, sayinge: thus sayth the Lorde. Hast thou sene all this great multitude? beholde, I wyll delyuer it into thyne hande this daye, and thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lorde. And Ahab sayd: By whō? he sayde: thus sayth the Lorde: euen by the seruaūtes of ỹ gouernoures of the shires. He sayde agayne: Who shall ordre the batayll? And he answered: thou. Then he nombred the seruauntes of the gouerners of the shyres: and they were two hundred and .xxxij.

And after them also, he nombred all the people, all the chyldē of Israel, euen seuen thousande. And they went out at none. but Benhadad dyd dryncke tyll he was droncken in the pauylyons both he and ỹ kynges: euen. xxxij. kynges, that holpe hym. And the seruaūtes of the gouernours of the shyres wēt out fyrst.

And Benhadad sent out, and they shewed hym, sayeng: there are mē come out of Samaria. he sayde. Whether they be come out for peace, take them a lyue: or whether they be come out to fyght, take them yet a lyue. And so those younge men of the gouernours of the shyres came out of the cytie, and the Host after them, and they slue euery one hys enemye that came in his waye. And the Siriens fled, and they of Israel folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Syria scaped on a horsse, wyth his horsemen. And the kynge of Israel went out, and smote the horsses & charettes, & wyth a great slaughter slue he the Sirians.

And there came a Prophete to the kynge of Israel, and sayde vnto hym: go forth and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou doest: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Siria wyll come vp agaynst the. And the seruauntes of the kyng of Siria sayde vnto hym. The Gods of the hilles are theyr Gods, and therfore they had the better of vs: but let vs fyght agaynst them in the playne, and for what ye will, we shall haue the better of them. And this do: take ỹ kynges awaye euery man out of his place, ād put dukes in their rowmes. And do thou nombre the an hoste, lyke the host that thou hast loste, soche horses & soch charettes, and we will fyght agaynst them in the playne, & thou shalt se vs gett the better of them. And he herkened vnto their voyce, & dyd euen so.

And it fortuned, that after the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombred the Syri-
E ans, and wēt vp to Aphek to fyght agaynst Israell. And the childrē of Israel were nombred, & with theyr whole nombre went they agaynst them, and the chyldrē of Israel pitched before them, lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes: but the Sirias fylled the coūtreye. And there came a mā of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: thus sayth the Lorde: Because the Sirians haue sayed: the Lorde is but God of the hylles, and not God of the valeys: therfore will I deliuer all this great multitude into thine hāde, & ye shall knowe, that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one ouer agaynst the other. vij. dayes, & it came to passe, ỹ in the seuenth daye ỹ batayle was ioyned. And ỹ chyldrē of Israel slue of ỹ Siriās an hūdred thousand fote mē i one daye. But the rest fled to Aphek into ỹ cytie. And there fell a walle vpon. xxvij. thousand of ỹ men ỹ were lefte. And Bēhadad fled, & came into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

And his seruaūtes sayde vnto hym. Behold, we haue heard e saye, that ỹ kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kinges. We will therfore put sacke cloth about o loynes and ropes about oure neckes, & go out to the kyng of Israel: yf happlye he wyll saue thy lyfe. And so they gyrded sacke clothe aboute theyr loynes & put ropes aboute theyr heedes, & came to ỹ kyng of Israel, & sayde. Thy seruaunt Benhadad sayth, I praye ỹ let me
F lyue. He sayde: is he yet a lyue? he is my brother. And they toke ỹ worde for good lucke & hastely caught it out of his mouth & sayde: yee thy brother Bēhadad. He sayd: go, bring hym hyther. And Benhadad came out vnto hym, & he caused him to come vp into ỹ charett. And he sayd vnto him: the cyties whych my father toke frō thy father, I wyll restore agayne. And thou shalt make streates for ỹ in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria.
☞ And I wyll make an apoyntment with
☜ the, & send the awaye. And so he made an appoyntment with him, and sent hym awaye.

And there was a certen man of ỹ childrē of ỹ prophetes, which sayde vnto his neyghboure in the worde of the Lorde: smyte me I praye the. And the mā wold not smyte him: Then sayde he vnto him. Because thou hast not herkened vnto ỹ voyce of the Lorde: beholde as soone as ỹ art departed from me, a lyō shall slaye the. And it came to passe, ỹ as soone as he was departed frō him, * a Lyon * iii.re.xiii.
founde him, & slue him. Then he founde another man & sayde: smyte me I praye the. And G the man smote him, so that in smytinge he woūded hym. So ỹ Prophete went forth, & wayted for the kyng by the waye, & put him selfe out of knowledge wt asshes, which he layed vpon hys face. And whē the kyng came by, he cryed vnto ỹ kyng, & sayd: thy seruaūt went out in ỹ myddes of ỹ battell. And beholde, there wēt a waye a man, whō another man brought vnto me, and sayde: kepe this man. And yf he be myssed or lost, thy lyfe shall go for his: or else, thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaūt had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto hym: euen so shall thy iudgement be, as thou hast defyned it thy selfe.

And he hasted, & toke ỹ asshes awaye frō his face: & the kyng of Israel knewe him, ỹ he was of ỹ Prophetes. And he sayde vnto hī: thus sayth ỹ Lorde: because thou hast lett go ☞ a man that ☜ is in my curse, thy lyfe shall go for his lyfe, and thy people for his people. And ỹ king of Israel wēt to his house, wayworde, & i displeasure, & came to Samaria.

¶ The. xxj. Chapter.

¶ Jezabel commaundeth to kyll Naboth, for the vyneyard that he refused to sell to Ahab. Helias reproueth Ahab, and he repenteth.

After

A After these thynges, it chaūced, ỹ Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneyarde in Jezrahel, harde by ỹ palace of Ahab kyng of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, sayēge. * Geue me thy

And Naboth sayde to Ahab: the Lorde forbyd ỹ frō me, that I shulde geue the enheritaunce of my father vnto the.

And Ahab came into hys house heuye.
B & euell a payde, because of the worde which Naboth the Jezrahelite had spoken to him, for he had sayde: I wyll not geue the the enheritaunce of my fathers. And he layde him ☞ downe vpon his bed, and turned awaye his face, (to the wall) and wolde eate no breade. But Jezabell hys wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto hym: why is thy spyrite so wayworde, that thou eatest no breade? And he sayde vnto her: For I spake vnto Naboth the Jezraelite, and sayde vnto hym: geue me thy vyneyarde for money: or else yf it please ỹ, I wyl geue the another vyneyarde for it. And he answered: I wyl not geue the my vyneyarde.

C And Jezabell his wyfe sayde vnto hym: Dost thou thus gouerne the kyngedom of Israel? vp, & eate breade, and set thyne hert at rest, I will geue the, ỹ vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And so she wrote a letter in Ahabs name, and sealed it wyth hys seale and sent the lettre vnto the elders and to the nobles that were in hys cytye dwellinge wyth Naboth. And she wrote in ỹ letter, sayenge: proclayme a fast, and set Naboth on hye amonge the people, and set two

They proclamed a fastyng, and set Naboth among the chefe of the people, & there came in two men (the childrē of Belial) and sate before him. And the two vnthryftie persones wytnessed agaynst Naboth, in the presence of ỹ people, sayēg: Naboth dyd blaspheme God
*Actes.vii.g and the kyng, * And they caried hym out of ỹ cytie, and stoned hym wyth stones that he dyed. And then they sent to Jezabel, sayēge: Naboth is stoned to dethe. And it fortuned when Jezabel heard that Naboth was stoned to deeth: she sayde to Ahab: vp, ād take possession of the vyneyarde of Naboth, the E Jezrahelite, which he denied to geue the for money, for Naboth is not aliue, but deed. And when Ahab heard that Naboth was deed, he stode vp to go downe to the vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite, and to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Elia the Thelbite, sayēg: vp and go downe to mete Ahab kynge of Israel, which is in Samaria. For lo, he is gone downe to ỹ vineyarde of Naboth: to take possession of it. And therfore shalt thou saye vnto him thus sayth the Lorde: hast thou kylled, & gotten possession? And of Jezabel spake the Lorde sayeng: G

But there was none lyke Ahab which dyd euen sell hym selfe, to worcke wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and that because Jezabel hys wyfe prycked hym forwarde. He dyd exceadynge abhominablye, in folowyng foule Idoles, according to all thynges, as did the Ammorites * whom the *Deut.xxi.f

And the worde of the Lorde came to Elia, the Thelbyte, sayenge: seest thou how Ahab humbleth hym selfe before me? because he so submytteth hym selfe before me, I wyl not bringe that euell in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes, wyll I bringe euell vpon hys house. And they continued three yere without warre betwene Siria and Israel.

¶ The.iij Chapter.

¶ The kynges of Israel, Juda and Edom lacke water, which they obtayne throughe the prayer of Elisseus. The kynge of Moab fighteth against Israel.

JEhoram the sonne of Ahab beganne to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria the .xviij. yere of Jehosaphat kynge of Juda, and raygned twelue yeres. And he wrought euell in the syght of the Lorde: but not lyke his father and lyke his mother, for he put awaye ꝑ ymages of Baal, that his father had made.
Neuertheless, he cleaued vnto the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which made Israel to synne) and departed not ther from.

And Mesa kynge of Moab was a Lorde of shepe, and rendered vnto the kynge of Israel an hundred thousande lambes & an hundred thousande rammes with ꝑ wolle. But whan Ahab was deed, it fortuned, that the kynge of Moab rebelled agaynst the kynge of Israel. And kynge Jehoram went out of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israell, & wẽt, & sent to Jehosaphat ꝑ kynge of Juda, sayinge: the kynge of Moab hath offended agaynst me, wilt thou come wt me agaynst Moab to battell? He answered: I wyll come vp, for as I am, so art ꝑ and as my people be, so are thy people, & thy horses as myne. And he sayde. what waye shall we go vp? And he answered. The waye thorowe the wildernesse of Edom.

And so the kynge of Israel toke his iour- B
neye, and the kynge of Juda, & the kynge of Edom. And when they had cõpassed ꝑ waye seuen dayes, they had no water for the hoost and for the cattell that folowed them. And ꝑ kynge of Israel sayde. Alas, ꝑ Lorde hath called these thre kynges together, to delyuer thẽ ouer into the hande of Moab. But Jehosaphat sayde: * is there not here a prophet of * 1.Re.rrij.c.
the Lorde, that we maye enquyre of ꝑ Lorde by him? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and sayde: here is Elisa ꝑ sonne of Saphat, which powred water on the hãdes of Elia. And Jehosaphat sayde Is not the worde of the Lorde wt hym? And so the kynge of Israel, & Jehosaphat and the kynge of Edom went downe to him.

And Elisa sayde vnto the kynge of Israel. what haue I to do with the? Get the, to the prophetes of thy father, and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him. Ohnaye, For the Lorde hath called these thre kynges together to delyuer thẽ into the hãde of Moab. For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall se nether wynde nor rayne, & yet the broke shalbe fylled wt water, that ye maye dryncke, both ye, and youre beastes, and youre cattell. And this is yet but a small thynge in the syght of the Lorde, for as moch as he will geue ouer ꝑ Moabites also into youre handes. And ye shall smyte euery stronge towne, and euery goodlye cytie, and shall fell euery pleasaunt tree, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euery good platte of grõde with stones. And in the morninge, whan the meate-offerynge was offred, it fortuned, that there came water by the waye from Edom, and the contreye was fylled with water.

And when all the Moabites heard ꝑ the kynges were come vp to fyght agaynst thẽ, they gathered all togeather, frõ ꝑ youngest that

that was able to put on harneſſe and ſo vpwarde, and ſtode in the bozder of the lande.

And they were vp early in the mozninge and the ſonne ſhone vpon the water, that the Moabites ſawe the water a farre of as red as blonde, and they ſayde. This is ỹ blonde of ſlaughter: the kynges are ſlayne and one hath ſmyttē another. Nowe therfoze Moab gett the to the ſpoyle. And whē they came to the hoſte of Iſrael, the Iſraelytes ſtode vp and ſmote the Moabites, ſo that they fledd bekoze them, but they folowed vpon them, & ſmote Moab. And they ouerthrewe the cyties, & on euery good parcell of lāde, caſt euery mā his ſtone, and fylled it, and they ſtopte all the welles of waters, and felde all ỹ good trees. Onely in the cytie of Kyrick left they the ſtones therof: howbeit they went aboute it with ſlynges, and ſmote it.

And when the kynge of Moab ſawe, that the battell was ſoze agaynſt him, he toke wt him ſeuen hundzed men that dzewe ỹ ſwerde to haue gone thozowe, euen vnto ỹ kynge of Edō: but they coulde not. And then he toke his eldeſt ſonne (that ſhulde haue raygned in his ſteade) & offered him foz a burnt offering vpon the wall. And ther was great indignacyon agaynſt Iſrael, and they departed from him, and returned to their awne lande.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

¶ God geueth a certen pooze woman oyle & floure by Eliſeus. Eliſeus (whom the text calleth Eliſa) obtayneth of God a chylde foz hys hoſteſſe: which dyeth and is after rayſed to lyfe. He maketh ſweete the porage: and multiplieth the loaues.

A Nd there cryed a certen woman of the wyues of the prophetes vnto Eliſa, ſayinge: thy ſeruaunt my huſbād is deed, and thou knoweſt, that thy ſeruaunt dyd feare the Lozde. And the creditoz is come, to fett my two ſonnes, to be his bondemen. Eliſa ſayde vnto her. Tell me what ſhall I do foz ỹ? What haſt thou in thyne houſe? She ſayde, thyne handmayde hath nothinge at all in ỹ houſe, ſaue a pitcher with oyle. He ſayde vnto her: Goe foz bozowe veſſell foz the, of them that are without euen of all thy neyboures, emptie veſſelles and that not a fewe. And when thou art come in, thou ſhalt ſhutt the doze after the and after thy ſonnes, and powze out into all thoſe veſſelles, and ſett aſyde ỹ which is full.

And ſo the woman went from him, and ſhutt the doze after her and after her ſonnes. And they bzought to her, & ſhe powzed out. And it came to paſſe, that when the veſſelles were full, ſhe ſayde vnto her ſonne: bzynge me yet a veſſell. And he ſayde vnto her: I haue no mo. And the oyle ceaſed. Then ſhe came, and tolde thē man of God. And he ſayde: go & ſell the oyle, & paye thē ỹ thou art in dett vnto, but lyue ỹ & thy chyldzen of ỹ reſt.

And it fell on a daye, that Eliſa came to Sunem, where was a great woman, ỹ toke him in, foz to eate bzeed. And ſo it came to paſſe, that frō that tyme fozth (as ofte as he came ỹ waye) he turned in thither to eate bzeed. And ſhe ſayde vnto her huſbād. Beholde, I perceaue, that this is a holy man of God, that cōmeth ſo oft by oure place. Lett vs make him a chambze (I prayze the) with walles, & let vs ſet hym there a beed, & a table, a ſtole & a candelſticke: that he maye turne in thyther when he commeth to vs.

And it foztuned on a daye, ỹ he came thither & turned into the chambze, & laye there in, and ſayde to Gehezi his ſeruaūt: call this Sunamite. And whan he called her, ſhe preſented hyz ſelfe bekoze hym. And agayne he ſayde vnto hym: Tell her. Beholde, thou haſt bene carefull foz vs, and haſt made all thys prouiſiō. what ſhall we nowe do foz ỹ? wolddeſt thou be ſpoken foz to the kynge oz to the captayne of the hoſte? She anſwered I dwell amonge myne awne people. And he ſayde agayne, what is to be done foz her? Gehezi anſwered. Verely ſhe hath no chylde, & her huſbande is olde. And he ſayde: call her. And whan he had called her, ſhe ſtode in the doze. And he ſayde * by ſoch a tyme, and aſſone as the frute can liue, thou ſhalt embzace a ſonne. And ſhe ſayde: Oh naye my Lozde, ỹ mā of God, do not lye vnto thine hādmayd. And the wyfe conceaued, and bare a ſonne ỹ ſame tyme alon that Eliſeus had ſayde vnto her as ſone as the frute coulde haue lyfe.

* Ge. xviij. Roma. ix.

And when the chylde was growne, it fell on a daye, that he wēt out to his father, and to the reapers. And he ſayde vnto hys father, my heed, my heed. And he ſayd to a lad. Carye him to his mother. And whan he had taken him and bzought him to his mother, he ſate on hez knees tyll none, and then dyed. And ſhe went vp, and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and ſhut the doze about him, and went out, and called vnto her huſbande and ſayde: ſende with me (I prayze ỹ) one of the younge mē & one of the Aſſes, foz I wyll runne to the man of God, and come agayne. And he ſayde: wherfoze wylt thou go to him ſeinge that to daye is nether newe mone noz Saboth daye. She anſwered: Foz healthy. Then ſhe ſadelled an Aſſe, & ſayde to hir ſeruaunt: leade awaye the aſſe, and make her not to go ſlowly (becauſe I ryde vpon her) but whan I byd the.

And ſo ſhe went & came vnto the man of God, to mount Carmel. And it foztuned: that when the mā of God ſawe her farre of, he ſayde to Gehezi his ſeruaūt. Beholde, yōder is the Sunamite. Rūne therfoze to mete her, and ſaye vnto her: Is all well with the and with thy huſbād, & with the ladd? And ſhe anſwered. All is well. And whē ſhe came to the man of God vp to the hyll, ſhe caught him by the fete. But Gehezi went to her, to thruſt her awaye. And ỹ man of God ſayde: let her alone, foz her ſoule is vexed within her, and the Lozde hath hidd it from me, and hath not tolde it me. Then ſhe ſayde: dyd I deſyze a ſonne of my Lozde? dyd I not requyre the, that thou ſhulde ſt not diſceaue me?

Then he ſayde to Gehezi: * gyrde vp thy loynes, and take my ſtaffe in thyne hāde, and go thy waye. * Iff mete anye mā ſalute him not. And yf any ſalute the, anſwere him not agayne. And laye my ſtaffe vpō the face of the chylde. And the mother of the chylde ſayde: * as ſure as the Lozde lyueth, & as thy ſoule liueth. I will not leaue ỹ. And he aroſe and folowed her. Gehezi went bekoze them, & layed the ſtaffe vpon the face of the chylde. But there was nether voyce noz any feling. Wherfoze he went agayne to mete him, and tolde him, ſayinge: the childe is not awaked.

And when Eliſa was come into ỹ houſe: Beholde, the chylde was deed and layde vpō his bed. He went in therfoze, & ſhut the doze to the ladd and him, and prayed vnto ỹ Lozde. * And went vp & laye vpō the ladd, & put his mouth on his mouth, & his eyes vpō his eyes, & his handes vpon his hādes, and whā he ſo laye vpon the chylde, the fleſhe of the chylde waxed warme. And he wēt agayne, & walked once vp and downe in ỹ houſe, and then went vp, and layed him ſelfe vpon him agayne. And then ỹ chylde gaſped ſeuen times and opened his eyes. And he called Gehezi, & ſayde: Call foz this Sunamite. So he called her: which whē ſhe was come in vnto him, he ſayde vnto her: * take thy ſōne. Ther foze ſhe went in, and fell at his fete, & bowed her ſelfe to the grounde, and toke vp her ſonne, and went out.

Eliſa came agayne to Gilgal, and there was a derth in the lande, and the chyldzē of the prophetes dwelt with him. And he ſayde vnto his ſeruaunt. Set a great pot on the fyze, and make pottage foz the chyldzen of the prophetes. And one went out into the felde, to gather herbes, & founde a wylde vyne (as it were) and gathered therof wylde Coloquyntydas his lappe full, & came, & chzed them into the potte of potage: foz they knewe it not. So they powred out foz the men to eate. And it foztuned, ỹ when they taſted of the pottage, they cryed out, and ſayde: O thou man of God there is deeth in the pot: and they coulde not eate therof. But he ſayde: bzynge meale. And he caſt it into ỹ pot, & ſayde: fyll foz the people, that they maye eate, and there was no moze harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Saliſa, & bzought the man of God bzead of ỹ fyrſt frutes, euē. xx. loaſes of barlye, and newe cozne which was yet in his bagges. And he ſayde: Geue vnto the people, that they maye eate. And his mynſter anſwered: why, ſhall I ſet this bekoze an hundzed men? He ſayde agayne: geue it vnto the people that they maye eate. Foz thus ſayth the Lozde * they ſhall eate, and ther ſhalbe left ouer. And ſo he ſett it bekoze them, & they dyd eate, and left ouer, accozdynge to the wozde of the Lozde.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Naaman the Syrian is healed of hys leproſye. Gehezi is ſtryken with a leproſye, becauſe he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman, captayne of the hoſte of the kynge of Syria, was a greate man, and honozable in the ſyght of his maſter: becauſe ỹ by him the Lozde had geuē * health vnto Syria. * He was alſo a myghtie man, and experte in warre, but he was a leper. And the Syrians had gone out by cōpanies, & had bzought out of the contreye of Iſrael a lytle mayde, & ſhe was with Naamās wyfe. And ſhe ſayde vnto her lādye: I wold to God my Lozde were with the prophet that is in Samaria: foz he wolde delyuer him of his leproſie. And he went in, and tolde his Lozde, ſayinge: thus and thus ſayde the mayde, that is of ỹ lāde of Iſrael. And ỹ kynge of Syria ſayde: Come and entre in and I wyll ſende a letter vnto the kynge of Iſrael. And he came, and toke with him ten talentes of ſyluer, and. vj. thouſande peces of golde, & ten chaunge of raymētes, and bzought the letter to ỹ kynge of Iſrael contaynynge this tenoure: Nowe when this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue therwith ſent Naaman my ſeruaunt to the, that thou mayeſt rydde him of his leproſie. And it foztuned, that when ỹ kynge of Iſrael had redde the letter, he rent his clothes, and ſayde: * am I God, that I ſhulde ſlaye, & make alyue? Foz he doth ſende to me that I ſhulde delyuer a man frō his leproſie. Wherfoze cōſyder (I prayze you) and ſe howe he ſeketh a quarell agaynſt me. which when Eliſa the man of God had hearde, howe that the kynge of Iſrael had rent his clothes, he ſent to ỹ kynge, ſayinge. Wherfoze haſt thou rent thy clothes? let him come nowe to me, & he ſhall know, ỹ there is a prophet in Iſrael.

* Deut. xxxij. c.

And ſo Naaman came wt his hozſſes and with his charettes, ād ſtode at the doze of the houſſe of Eliſa. And Eliſa ſent a meſſenger vnto him, ſayinge: go and waſhe ỹ in Jozdā ſeuen tymes, & thy fleſhe ſhall come agayne to the, & thou ſhalt be cleanſed. But Naamā was wzoth, & wēt awaye, & ſayde. Beholde I thought wt my ſelfe: he wolde ſurely come out, and ſtande & call on the name of ỹ Lozde his God, and put his hande on the place that he maye heale the leproſie. Are not Abana & Pharphar, ryuers of Damaſco, better then all the waters of Iſrael? Yf I waſhe me alſo in them tn them, shall I not be clensed? And so he turned him, and departed with displeasure. And his seruauntes came, & cõmoned with hym, and sayde: Father, yf the prophete had bydd the do some great thinge, oughtest thou not to haue done it? how moch rather then, whã he sayth to the: washe, and be cleane? Then went he downe, & washed him selfe seuẽ tymes in Jordã, accordynge to the sayinge of ỹ man of God, & his flesshe chaũged, like vnto *Luke.iiij.c. ỹ flesshe of a lytle chylde, * & he was cleãsed.

And he turned agayne to the man of God, he and all his cõpanie, and stode before him, and sayde: Beholde, I knowe nowe ỹ there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. Nowe therfore take a blessinge of thy ser- *iiij.re.v.b.a naũt. But he sayde: * as surely as the Lorde liueth (before whom I stãde) I will receaue none. And whan the other wolde haue constrayned hym to receaue it, he wolde not. And Naaman sayde: (Euen as thou wylt, but I beseche the.) Shall there not be geuẽ to thy seruaũt as moch of this erthe as two mules maye beare? For thy seruaũt will here forth offer neither burnt sacrifyce nor offeringe vnto any other God, saue vnto the Lorde. But herin the Lorde be mercyfull to thy seruaũt, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon, & doth worshyppe there, & leaneth on my hande, and I also worshyppe in the house of Rimmon. (Whan I do worshyppe I saye, in the house of Rimmõ, the Lorde be mercyfull vnto thy seruaunt because of thys thinge. Vnto whõ he sayde: go in peace. And when he was departed from him as it were a furlonge of groũnde, Gehezi the seruaunt of Elisa the man of God, sayde: beholde, my master hath spared Naaman thys Syrian, that he wolde not receaue of hys hande those thynges ỹ he offered. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wyll runne after him, & take some what of him. And so Gehezi folowed Naaman. And whẽ Naamã sawe him runninge after him, he lyght downe from the charet, to mete him, and sayde: *is all well? He ans- *iiij.re.xiij.d wered: All is well. Beholde, my master hath sent me, sayinge: se, there be come to me euen nowe frõ mount Ephraim two ponge men of the chyldren of the prophetes: geue them I praye the, one talẽt of syluer and two chaunge of garmẽtes. And Naamã sayde: With a good will. Take two talentes: & he compelled him to bynde two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two chaunge of garmentes, and layed them vpon two of his seruauntes, to beare them before him. And whan he came in to a secrete place, he toke them frõ their hande, & bestowed it in the house, & the men were let go, and they departed.

But he went in, and stode before his master. And Elisa sayde vnto him: whence commest ỹ Gehezi? He sayde: thy seruaunt went no whether. But he sayde vnto hym: went not myne hert with the, when the man turned agayne from his charet to mete the? Is it nowe a tyme to receaue moneye, to receaue garmentes, olyue trees, vyneyardes, shepe and oxen, men seruauntes & mayde seruauntes? The leprosye therfore of Naaman shall cleane vnto the, and vnto thy seed for euer. * And he went out from his presence *iiij.re.v.a. vj.Par.xxvj.a a leper, as whyte as snowe.

¶ The.vj. Chapter.

¶ Eliseus maketh pryon to swymme aboue the water. The Syrians beseage Israel, so that two wemen agree togeather to eate their awne chyldren.

The chyldren of the prophetes sayde vnto Elisa: Beholde, the place where we dwell with ỹ, is to lytle for vs. We wyll therfore go vnto Jordane, and take thence euery mã a beame, and buylde vs a place, to dwell in. And he answered: goo. And one sayde: be content I praye the, and come with thy seruaũtes. And he answered: I wyll come, and so he went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cutt downe wood. But it fortuned, that as one was fellinge downe of a tre, the axe heed fell into the water. And he cryed, & sayde: Alas master, it was lent me. And the man of God sayde. Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut downe a stycke, & cast it in thither, & immediatly the yrõ dyd swymme. Therfore sayde he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hande, and toke it vp.

But the kynge of Syria warred agaynst Israel, & toke councell with his seruauntes, and sayde: In ponder secrete place shalbe my remaynynge. And the man of God sent vnto the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Beware, that thou go not ouer to soch a place, for there the Syrians are lurkynge. Therfore the kynge of Israel sent to the place which the man of God tolde him, and warned him of, and saued him selfe from it, not once nor twyse.

And the hert of the kynge of Syria was troubled for this thinge, and he called for his seruaũtes and sayde vnto them: wyll ye not shewe me, which of oure mẽ * (betrayeth me) to the kynge of Israel? And one of his seruaũtes sayde: none my Lorde o kynge. But Elisa the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the kynge of Israel, yea euen, the wordes ỹ thou speakest in thy preuye chãbre. He sayde: go, & spie where he is, that I maye sende and fett him. And one tolde him, sayinge: beholde, he is in Dothã. Therfore sent he thither horses and charettes, and a myghtye hoste. And they came by nyght, & cõpassed ỹ citie about.

And when the seruaunt of the mã of God rose vp early to go out: Beholde, there was an hoste round about the towne with horses and charettes. And his seruaunt sayde vnto him:

him: Alas master, what shall we do? He ans- *para.xxij.b wered * feare not, for they that be with vs, are moo then they that be wyth them. And Elisa prayed and sayde: Lorde (I beseche ỹ) open hys eyes, that he maye se. And the Lorde opened the eyes of the ponge man. And beholde, the mountayne was full of horses, and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Elisa. And when they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Smyte thys people (I praye the) with * blindnesse. *Gen.xix.c. xxxiiij.xix.c And he smote them with blindnes, accordinge to the desyre of Elysa. And Elisa sayde vnto them this is not the waye, nether is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyll bringe you to the mã whom ye seke. But he led them to Samaria.

And it fortuned, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayde: Lorde, open their eyes that they maye se. And the Lorde opened their eyes, and they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Elisa, when he sawe them: My father, shall I smyte them: And he answered: Thou shalt not smyte them. But smyte those that thou hast taken with thyne awne swerde, and wyth thyne awne bowe. But rather set bread and water before them, that they maye eate and drincke, and go to their master. And he prepared a great refeccyon for them. And when they had eaten and dronke, he sent thẽ awaye and they went to their master. And so the soudyoures of Syria came nomore into the lande of Israel.

After thys it chaunced, that Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his hoste & wãt vp, and beseged Samaria. But there was a greate derth in Samaria: and beholde, they beseged it, vntyll an Asses heed (was solde) for foure skore syluer pens, and the fourth part of a Cab of doues donge for fyue sicles. And as ỹ kynge of Israel was gonge vpõ the wall, there cryed a womã vnto him sayinge: helpe, my Lorde O kynge. He sayd: yf ỹ Lord do not succoure the: wherwith can I helpe the: wt the barne, or wt the wyne presse? And the kynge sayde vnto her: what wilt ỹ? She answered: ponder womã sayde vnto me: brynge thy sonne, ỹ we maye eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morowe. * And so we dressed my sonne and dyd *Reui.xxvj.d eate him. And I sayde to her the other daye: Deu.xxviij.f. Ezech.v.d. brynge thy sonne ỹ we maye eate hym, and she hath hyd her sonne. And it came to passe, that when the kynge hearde ỹ wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, and went vp on the wall. And the people loked: and beholde he had a sacke cloth vnder, vpon hys flesshe. *Luke.xiij.a Then he sayde: * God do so & so to me, yf the heed of Elisa ỹ sonne of Saphat shall stãde on him this daye. But Elisa satt in his house and the elders satt by him, & the kynge sent a man before him. But yer the messenger came to him, he sayde to the elders: haue ye not sene, howe that this sonne of this murtherar hath sent, to take awaye myne heed? be circumspect when the messenger commeth, and shut the doze, and holde him at the doze: is not the sounde of hys masters fete behynde him? Whyle he yet talked with thẽ: Beholde ỹ messenger came downe vnto him, & sayde beholde, this euell is of ỹ Lorde, & what moze shall I loke for of the Lorde?

¶ The.vij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa prophesyeth plentyfulnes of bytailles and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians runne awaye & haue no man folowynge them. The Lorde that wolde not beleue the wozde of Elisa is trodden to deeth.

Then Elisa sayde: heare ye the wozde of the Lorde: thus sayth ỹ Lorde. * to mozowe thys tyme shall a *iiij. re.vij.b bousshell of fyne floure be solde for a Sicle, and two bousshelles of Barley for a Sycle in the gate of Samaria. Then a certayne Lorde (on whose hand the kynge leaned) answered the man of God, and sayde: beholde, yf the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heuen, myghte this sayinge come to passe? He sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it wt thyne eyes, but shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure leperous men at ỹ entringe in of ỹ gate. And they sayde one to another, why sytt we here, vntill we dye? Yf we saye: we will entre into the citie, beholde: the derth is in the cytie, and we shall dye therin. And yf we sytt styll here, we dye also. Nowe therfore come, and let vs fall vpõ the hoste of the Sirians: If they saue oure lyues we shall lyue: yf they kyll vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the nyght, to go to the hoste of ỹ Sirians. And when they were come to the vttmost parte of the hoste of Syria: beholde, there was no man there.

For the Lorde had made the hoste of the 15
Sirias * to heare a noyse of charettes and a *iij.reg.vij.a noyse of horsses, & the noyse of a great hoste. Ja.xxxvij.a. In so moch ỹ they sayde one to another, lo, ỹ kynge of Israel hath hyred agaynst vs ỹ kynges of the hethites, and the kynges of the Egypcyans, to come vpõ vs. Wherfore they arose and fled in ỹ nyght, and left their tẽtes their horsses, and their Asses, and the felde which they had pytched euẽ as it was, & fled for their lyues. And when these lippers came to the edge of the host, they wẽt into a tent, & dyd eate, & dronke, & caryed thence syluer, & gold and raymẽt, and went and hydd it: came agayne and entred into another tent, and caryed thence also, and went and hydd it.

Then sayde one to another: We do not well thys daye, for asmoch as it is a daye to bringe good tydinges, & we holde oure peace Yf we tarye tyll ỹ daye lyght, some mischeffe

wyll

wyll come vpon vs. Nowe therfore come, that we maye goo, and tell the kynges houshold. And so they came, & called vnto the porter of the cytie, and tolde them sayinge: we came to the pauilions of the Syrians: & se, there was no man there, nether voyce of man, but horsses and Asses tyed, and the tentes were, euen as they were wont to be.

And so the man called vnto the porters, & they tolde the kynges house within. And the kynge arose in the nyght, and sayde vnto his seruauntes. I wyll shewe you nowe, what the Syrians haue done vnto vs. They knowe that we be hungrye, & therfore are they gone out of the pauylions, to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: Whā they come out of the cytie, we shall catch them alyue, and get into the cytie. And one of his seruauntes answered, and sayde. Let men take (I praye you) fyue of ỹ horsses that remayne, and are ☞ lefte in the multitude. Beholde & they are euen as all the multitude of Israel that are lefte in ỹ cytie: beholde (I saye) they are euen as all the multitude of ỹ Israelytes that are consumed, & we wyll sende, & se. They toke therfore the horsses of two charettes, and the kynge sent after the hoste of the Syrians, D sayinge: go, & se. And they went after them, euen vnto Iordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vesselles which the Syrians had cast from them in their haste.

And the messengers returned, and tolde the kynge. And the people went out, & spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And so it came to passe, that a bushel of fyne flowre was sold for a sycle, and two bushelles of barley *iiij.re.vij.a for a sycle * according vnto the worde of the Lorde. And the kynge appointed ỹ Lorde (on whose hand he leaned) to be at the gate. And ỹ people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed, according vnto the worde of the man of God which he sayde, when ỹ kynge came downe to him. And so came the thynge to passe ỹ the man of God had spoken to ỹ kynge, sayinge: two bushelles of barley for a sycle, & a *iiij.re.vij.a bushell of fyne floure for another, shalbe * to morowe this tyme in the gate of Samaria. Wher vnto that Lorde answered the mā of God, and sayde. Yee, and yf ỹ Lorde made wyndowes in heauē myght it come to passe? And he sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, & shalt not eate therof. And euen so chaunced it vnto him: for the people troad vpon him in the gate, and he dyed.

¶ Elisa prophesieth vnto the Sunamite ỹ derth of. vij. yere. After ỹ deth of Benhadad raygneth Hazaell in Siria. Iehoram ỹ sonne of Iehosaphat raygneth in Iuda. Edom falleth from Iuda, Ohoziah succedeth Iehorā.

*iiij.re.iiij.a THen spake * Elisa vnto the womā (whose sonne he had restored to lyfe agayne) sayinge: vp and go, thou and thyne house, & sojourne wheresoeuer thou canst, for ỹ Lorde hath called for a derth, and the same shall come vpō ỹ land seuen yeres. And the woman arose, and dyd after the sayinge of ỹ man of God, and went both she and her household, & sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at ỹ seuen yeres ende, it forturned, that the woman came agayne out of the lande of ỹ Philistines, and went out to call vpō the kynge for her house and for her land. And the kynge talked with Gehezi the seruaunt of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the all the great deades that Elisa hath done: He tolde B ỹ kynge, howe he had restored a deed bodye to lyfe agayne: but in the meane tyme ỹ woman (whose sonne he had rayled vp agayne) cryed to ỹ kynge for her house & for her lāde. And Gehezi sayde: My Lorde O kyng, thys is the woman, and thys is her sonne whom Elisa rayled vp agayne. And whan ỹ kynge asked the woman, she tolde hym. And so the kynge delyuered her a chābyrelayne, sayinge: restore thou vnto her all that are hers, and all the frutes of the felde, sence the daye that C she left the lande, vnto this tyme.

*iiij.re.viij.a And * Elisa came to Damascon, & Benhadad the kynge of Siria was sycke. And one tolde him sayinge. The mā of God is come hither. And ỹ kynge sayde vnto Hazael: *iiij.re.viij. * take a present in thine hāde, and goo mete a. the man of God, that thou mayest aske the Lord by him, whether I shall recouer of this disease. And so Hazael wēt to mete him and tolde the present with him, and of euery good thinge of Damascō, euē as moch as fourtye Cameles coulde beare, and came & presented hym selfe before hym, and sayde: Thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge, shall I recouer of this disease?

And Elisa sayd vnto him: go & saye vnto him: thou shalt recouer, howbeit ỹ Lorde hath shewed me, ỹ he shall surely dye. And D * he loked aside, and was aschamed, and ỹ * man of God wepte. And Hazael sayde: why wepeth my Lord? He answered: for I know the euyll thinges that thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israel: for their stronge cyties shalt thou sett on fyre, and their yonge men shalt thou slay with ỹ swerde & shalt dasshe out the braynes of their suckynge chyldren, & all to teare their wemen with chylde.

But Hazael sayde: what is thy seruaūt, a dogge, that I shulde do this great thynge? And Elisa answered: the Lorde hath shewed me, that thou shalt be kynge of Siria. And so he departed from Elisa, & came to his master, which sayde to him. What sayde Elisa to the? He answered: he tolde me, that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe it forturned, that he toke a thicke cloth, and dypt it in water, and ☞ spred it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his steade.

The fyfte

The fyfte yeare of Iehoram the sonne of Ahab kynge of Israel, Iehosaphat beynge also kinge of Juda, Iehorā the sonne of Iehosaphat kynge of Juda, begāne to raygne. *ii.par.xxi.a *xxxii. yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eyght yere in Ierusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kinges of Israel, as they that were of ỹ house of Ahab: for the daughter of Ahab was his wyfe, and he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde. And ỹ Lorde wolde not destroye Juda, and that because of Dauid hys seruaunt, *ii.reg.viij.c as he promysed hym to geue hym all waye E a lyght amonge hys chyldren.

*In those dayes Edō dyd wickedly whē he was vnder the hande of Juda. For they made them a kynge of theyr awne. So Iehoram went to zair, he and all his charettes with hym. And he rose by nyght, and smote the Edomites, which cōpassed hym in, with the captaynes of hys charettes, & the people fledd into theyr tentes. But Edom rebelled, so that he wold not be vnder the hāde of Juda vnto thys daye. And then Lobnah began to be disobedient euen that same tyme.

The rest of the wordes that cōcerne Joram and all that he dyd, are they not wrytte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And Joram rested with hys fathers, and was buryed beside his fathers in the cytie of Dauid. And ☞ *Ahaziahu his sonne ii.pa.xxii.a raygned in his steade. In the. xij. yere of Joram the sonne of Ahab kynge of Israel, dyd F Ahaziahu the sonne of Iehorā kinge of Juda begynne to raygne. Two & twentye yere olde was Ahaziahu when he begāne to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Ierusalem, and hys mothers name was Athaliahu the daughter of Omri kynge of Israel. But he walked in the waye of the house of Ahab, and dyd euell in the sight of the Lorde, euen as dyd the house of Ahab. For he was ỹ sōne in lawe of the house of Ahab.

G And he went with Iorā the sonne of Ahab to warre agaynst Hazael kynge of Siria, in Ramoth Gilead, & the Sirians wouded Joram. And *kynge Joram went back iiii.reg.ix.c agayne to be healed in Iesrahel of the woūdes which the Siriās had geuē hym at Ramoth, when he fought agaynst Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ahaziahu the sonne of Iehoram kynge of Juda went downe to se Iorā the sonne of Ahab in Iesrael, because he was sycke there.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ Iehu is made kyng of Israel, and kylleth Iehorā the kyng therof, and Ahaziahu, otherwyse called Ochozias, the kynge of Juda also, and causeth Iezabell to be caste downe out of a wyndowe, and the dogges eate her.

A AND Elisa the prophete called one *iiij.re.iiij.e of the chyldren of the prophetes, & sayd vnto him: *gyrde vp thy loynes, and take thys boxe of oyle in thyne hande, and get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And when thou commest thyther, loke where is Iehu the sonne of Iehosaphat, the sōne of Nimsi, and go to him, and make him aryse vp from amonge hys brethren, & carye hym to a secret chambre. Then take the boxe of oyle, and powre it on hys heed, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. And then open the doore, and flee without any taryinge. And so the seruaunt of the prophete gat him to Ramoth Gilead: and when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the hoost were syttynge together. And he sayde: I haue an errand to ỹ, o captayne. And Iehu sayde: vnto which of all vs? he sayde: to the, o captayne. And he arose, and went into the house.

And he powred the oyle on hys heed, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth the Lorde God D of Israel: *I haue anoynted the to be kynge *iiii.reg.xix.c ouer the people of the Lorde, euen ouer Israel. Thou shalt smyte ỹ house of Ahab thy master, that I maye auēge the bloud of my seruauntes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruauntes of the Lorde, of the hande of Iezabel, for the whole house of Ahab shalbe destroyed, and * I wyll destroye from A- *iii.reg.xxi.f hab, euen hym ỹ maketh water agaynst the wall, and him that is preserued and forsaken in Israel: and I wyll make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat, and lyke the house of Baasa ỹ sonne of Ahia. And as for Iezabel * the dogges *iiii.re.ix.e shall eate her in the felde of Iezrael, and ther shalbe none to burye her. And he opened the dore, and fledd.

Jehu came out to the seruauntes of hys lorde, and one sayde vnto hym, is all well? C Wherfore came thys madd felowe to the? And he sayde vnto thē: ye knowe what maner of man it is, and what hys cōmunicacyō is. They sayde vnto hym agayne: it is not so, tell vs. He sayde: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. Then they * beside the hozologye hasted, and toke euery man hys garment, and put it vnder hym, and blewe with trompettes, sayinge: Jehu is kynge. And so, Jehu the sonne of Iehosaphat the sonne of Nimsi conspyred agaynst Iozam. Iozam kepte Ramoth Gilead, he and all Israel because of Hazael kynge of Siria: and *kynge Joram returned to be healed in Iezrahel, of the woundes *iiii.re.viij.g which the Sirians had geuen him, when he fought with Hazael kynge of Siria.

And Jehu sayde: If it be youre myndes, D then let no man departe and scape out of the cytye, to go, & tell in Iezrahel. So Jehu gatt vp into a charette, and wente to Iezrahel, where Iozam laye, & Ahaziahu kyng of Juda was come downe thither to se Iorā. And the watchman that stode on ꝑ towze in Jezracl, spyed the company of Jehu as he came, and sayde: I se a companye. And Jehozam sayd: take an hozsmā, and sende to mete thē, that he maye aske whether it be peace. And so there went one on hozsbacke to mete him, and sayde: thus sayth the kynge: is it peace? and Jehu sayde: what hast thou to do with peace? turne the behynde me. And the wathman tolde, sayinge: the messenger came to them, but he commeth not agayne.

E Then he sent out another on hozsbacke, which came to them, and sayde: thus sayth the kynge: is it peace? Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace? turne the behind me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: he came to them also, and commeth not agayne, and the dryuynge is lyke the dryuynge of Jehu the sonne of Nimsi: for he driueth the charet as he were madd. And Jehozam sayde: make ready. And ꝑ charet was made ready. And Jehozam kinge of Israel, and Ahazia hu kynge of Juda went out ether of them in hys charet agaynst Jehu, and met hym in ꝑ furlonge of Naboth ꝑ Jezraelite. And it fortuned, that when Jehozam sawe Jehu, he sayde: is it peace Jehu? He answered: What peace (shulde there be, so lōge as ꝑ whordoms of thy mother Jezabel, and her witchcraftes are so great? And Jehozā turned his hādes, and fledd, and sayde to Ahaziahu: ther is falshed, o Ahaziahu. And Jehu toke a bowe in hys handes, and smote Jehozā betwene the armes, & the arowe went thorowe hys hert.

F And he fell downe flatt in hys charet. Then sayde Jehu to Bidkar a captayne: take him, & cast him in the platt of the grounde of Naboth the Jezraelite. For I remēbre ꝑ whan I and ꝑ roade together in a charet after Ahab his father, ꝑ Lorde layed this heuy burthē vpō hym. I haue sene yesterdaye ꝑ blond of Naboth, & the bloude of his sonnes, sayde the Lord: & I will qupte it the in this groūd, sayth the Lorde. Nowe therfore take him, & cast hym in the plat of ground, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. But whē Ahaziahu the kynge of Juda sawe this, he fledd by the waye of the gardē house. And Jehu folowed after hym, & sayde: smyte him also in the charet: * (and they smote hym) in hys charet at ꝑ gopynge vp to Gur by Jibleā, & he fled to Hagiddo, & ther dyed. And his seruaūtes caried hym in a charet to Jerusalem, & buryed hym there in his sepulchre, w̄ his fathers, in ꝑ citie of Dauid. And in the xi. yere of Jozā ꝑ sonne of Ahab, beganne Ahaziahu to raygne ouer Juda. And whē Jehu was come to Jezrahel Jezabel heard of it, & starched her face, G & tired her heed, & loked out at a windowe. And as Jehu entred at ꝑ gate, she sayde: had zimri peace which slue hys master? And he lyft vp his eyes to the windowe, and sayde: who is of my syde, who? And ther loked out to hym two or thre chamberlaynes. And he sayde: throwe her downe. So they threwe her downe, and her bloude dasshed towarde the wall, & toward the horses, and he troade her vnder fote.

And when he was come in, he dyd eate & dzincke, & sayde: go & vyset I prayе you yonder cursed creature, and burie her: * for she is a kynges daughter. And so when they came to burye her, they founde nomore of her then the skulle, and the fete, and the palmes of her handes. Wherfore they come agayne, & told hym. And he sayde: thys is the worde of the Lorde, which he spake by the hāde of his seruaunt Elia the Thesbite, sayinge: * in the felde of Jezrahel shall dogges eate the flesh of Jezabel. And so ꝑ carkas of Jezabel was euen as donge vpon the earth, in the felde of Jezrahel: so that no man myght saye: Thys was Jezabel.

¶ The. x. Chapter.

¶ Jehu causeth the. lxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne and after ꝑ. xlij. of hys brethren. He syndeth a meane also to kyll all the prestes of Baal. After hys death, hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

A Ahab had *. lxx. sōnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent * Jos. viij. to Samaria vnto ꝑ rulers of Jezrael, to the elders, and to them that brought vp Ahabs children, sayinge: nowe whan thys letter commeth to you, ye ꝑ haue with you your masters sōnes, ye haue with you both charettes and horses: a strong citye haue ye also: and harnes, loke which of your masters sōnes is best and most mete, and set hym on hys fathers seate, & fyght for ꝑ B poure Lordes house. But they were exceadingly afrayde, & sayde: se, two kinges were not able to stande before hym, how shall we then be able to stande? And he that was gouerner of Ahabs house, and he that ruled the citye, ꝑ elders also, & ꝑ tutours sent to Jehu, saieng: we are thy seruaūtes, & will do all ý, ꝑ shalt byd vs: we wyll make no man kynge: therfore do ꝑ what semeth good ī thine eyes:

Then he wrote another letter to thē, sayinge: If ye be myne, and wyll herken vnto my voyce, then take the heades of the mē that are youre masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrahel by to morowe thys tymē. And the kynges sonnes were. lxx. personnes, and they were with the great men of the citye, which brought them vp. And when the letter came to them, they toke the kynges chyldren, and slue them, euen. lxx. personnes, & layed theyr heedes in basketes, and sent them to him to Jezrahel. And there came a messenger, and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heedes of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde: let them laye them on two heapes in the enterynge in of the gate, vntyll the morynge.

And

C And whā it was daye, he went out, and stode, & sayde to all ꝑ folke: ye be ryghteous. Beholde, I cōspired againste my master, and slue him. But who slue all these? Lerne here, ꝑ ther shall fall vnto the erth nothyng of the worde of ꝑ Lorde, which he spake cōcerning the house of Ahab. For ꝑ Lord hath brought to passe the thinges ý he spake by ý hāde of his seruaūt * Elia. And so Jehu slue all ý remayned of the house of Ahab, in Jezrahel: and all ý were great w̄ him, & his kynsfolkes and his prestes, so ý he let nothing of him remayne. And he arose, & departed, & came to Samaria. And whā Jehu was in the waye to the house where the shepherdes dyd there their shepe, he met w̄ the brethren of Ahaziahu king of Juda, & sayde: what are ye? They answered: the brethren of Ahaziahu are we, and go downe to salute ꝑ children of ý kinge and of ꝑ quene. And he sayde: take thē alyue. Whō when they had taken them alyue, they slue them at the well which was beside the house where the shepe are shoren, euen two and fourtye men, nether left he any of them.

D And when he was departed thence, he met * Jer. xxxv. a w̄ Jehonadab ꝑ sonne of * Rechab cōmynge agaynst him. And he blessed him, & sayde to hym: is thyne hert ryght, as myne hert is true w̄ thine? And Jehonadab answered: yea that it is, (yf it, he sayeth he) then geue me thyne hande. And whā he had geuen him his hand, he toke him vp to him into ý charet, & sayde: come w̄ me, & se the zeale that I haue for the Lord: & so they made him ryde in hys charet. And when he came to Samaria, he slue all ý remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyll he had wypte him out, accordyng to the saying of the Lorde which he spake to Elia.

And Jehu gathered all ý people together 3. reg. xvi. g and sayd vnto thē: * Ahab serued Baal a lytle. But Jehu shall serue hym more. Nowe therfore call vnto me all ý prophetes of Baal, all soch as serue him, & all his prestes, and E let none be lackyng. For I haue a greate sacrifyce to do to Baal: & therfore, whosoeuer is myssed, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a sutteltye, to the intēt that he might destroye ý seruaūtes of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Proclayme an holy conuocacyon for Baal, and Jehu sent vnto all Israel. And all ý seruauntes of Baal came, ý ther was not a mā lefte behynde that came not. And they came into the house of Baal, & the house of Baal was full from one ende to another.

And he sayde vnto hym that was the keper of the vestrye, bringe forth garmētes for all the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And when Jehu went with Jehonadab the sonne of Rechab into ý house of Baal, he sayde vnto the seruauntes of Baal: searche, and loke, that there be here w̄ you none of the seruauntes of the Lorde, but the seruauntes of Baal only. And when they wēt in to offer sacrifice & burntoffringe: Jehu appoynted. lxxx. men without, & sayd: If any of the mē whom I haue brought vnder youre handes, escape, he that letteth him go, shall dye for hym.

And it fortuned, ý assone as he had made F an ende of offering the burntsacrifyce, Jehu sayde to the men of warre and to the captaines: go in, and slaye them, let none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the swearde. And the men of warre and the captaynes cast them out, and went vnto the citye of the tēple of Baal, and fet the ymages out of the temple of Baal, and burnt them. And they brake the ymage of Baal, & brake the house of Baal, & made a drafte house of it vnto thys daye. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But frō ý synnes of Jeroboā the sōne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne: Jehu departed not, nether from folowing of them * (nether forsoke he) * the golde G calues that were in Bethel and in Dan.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Jehu: because thou hast done ryght well, in bryngynge to passe the thynge that is ryght in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab accordinge to all thinges ý are in myne hert, therfore shall * thy children vnto the fourth ge- * iiij. reg. xv. c. neracyon syt on the seate of Israel. But Jehu cared not for this, to walke in the lawe of the Lord God of Israel with all his hert: for he departed not from the sinnes of Jeroboā, which made Israel to synne.

In those dayes the Lorde began to cut G Israel short: * and Hazael smote the in all ý * iiij. reg. x. b. coastes of Israel, frō Jordan eastwarde: euē all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, the Rubentes, and thē ý were of Manasses, frō Aroer vnto the ryuer of Arnon: euen Gilead & Basan. The rest of the wordes ý cōcerne Jehu, & all ý he dyd, and all his power, are they not written in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel? And Jehu slept w̄ hys fathers, & they buryed him in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raygned in hys steade. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, is xxviij. yeres.

¶ The. xj. Chapter.

¶ Athalia putteth to deeth all the kynges sonnes except Jehoaz ꝑ sonne of Ohoziah, which is hidden and after her death is made kynge.

A And Athalia the mother of Ahaziahu, when she sawe that her sonne was deed, she arose, and destroyed all the kinges seede. But Jehosaba the daughter of kynge Jozam, and syster of Ahaziahu, toke Joas the sonne of Ahaziahu, and stale hym from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, ād his nource with hym, out of a sleppynge chābre, and hyd hym from Athalia, that he was not slayne. And he was with her hyd in the house of ý Lorde vj.yere. And Athalia did raigne ouer ỹ lãde.

And the.vij.yere Jehoiada sent and fet ỹ rulers ouer hũdzedes, w̃ the captaynes, & thẽ of the garde, and toke them to hym into the house of the Lozde, and made a bonde w̃ thẽ, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lozde, and shewed them the kynges sonne. And he cõmaũded thẽ, saying: thys is it ỹ ye must do: one thyzd parte of you, whose dewty is to come on ỹ Sabboth daye, shall kepe the watch of the kynges house. And another thyzde parte shall kepe the gate of Sur: and another thyzd parte shall kepe ỹ gate, which is behynde them of the garde: and so shall ye kepe the watche of the house of Messiah, & two partes of you, that is, all that go out on the Sabboth daye, shall kepe the watche of the house of the Lozde about the kynge, and ye shall cõpasse the kynge rounde about, and euery mã shall haue his weapen in his hãde. And whosoeuer cõmeth with in the ranges, let hym be slayne. And se that ye be with the kynge as he goeth out and in.

And the captaynes ouer ỹ hũdzedes dyd, according to all thinges that * Jehoiada the preste cõmaunded: and they toke euery man hys mẽ, that were to come in on ỹ Sabboth daye with thẽ that shuld go out on ỹ Sabboth, and came to Jehoiada the preste. And to the captaynes ouer hundzedes, dyd the preste geue kinge Dauids speares & shyldes that were in the tẽple. And they of the garde stode, & euery man had his weapen in hys hande rounde about the kynge, frõ ỹ ryght corner of the temple to the left, alonge by the aultar and the tẽple. And he bzought out the kynges sonne, & put the crowne vpon him: & delyuered hym * the witnesse, and made him kyng, & anoynted hym. And they clapte their handes, and sayde: God saue the kyng:

* And when Athalia heard the noyse of ỹ rũnynge of the people, she came to the people into the tẽple of the Lozde. And when she loked, behold, the kyng stode by a piller, as the maner was, and the syngers & the tröpettes by the kynge, and all the people of the lande reioyced, and blewe w̃ tröpettes. And Athalia rent her clothes and cryed: treason, treason. But Jehoiada the preste commaunded the captaynes of the hundzedes that had the rule of the hoost, and sayd vnto thẽ: haue her out without the tẽple, ỹ she maye be within the ranges, and yf any folowe her, kyll hym with the swearde: foz the preste had sayd she maye not be slayne in the house of the Lozd. And they layde hãdes on her tyll she came in to the waye, by the which the hozses went in to the kinges palace: & there was she slayne.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene the Lozde and the kinge, and the people, that they shuld be the Lozdes people, and also betwene the kynge and the people. And all the people of the lãde wẽt into ỹ house of Baal, and destroyed it, his aultars also. & his ymages bzake they downe lustely, and slue Mathan the pzeaste of Baal befoze the aultars. And the pzeste set a watch ouer the house of the Lozde, and roke the rulars ouer hundzedes, the captaynes & them of the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they bzought the kynge from the house of the Lozde: and came by the waye of the gate of them of the garde to the kynges palace. And he sat hym downe on the seate of the kynges. And all the people of the lande retoysed, and the cytye was in quyet. And they slue Athalia w̃ the swearde beside the kinges palace. Seuẽ yeare olde was Jehoas, when he beganne to raygne.

The.xij.Chapter.

Jehoas maketh prouisyon foz the repayzinge of the tẽple, he is kylled by two of hys seruauntes, and Amaziahu raygneth in hys steade.

And he beganne to raygne in the vij. yeare of Jehu. xl. yeare raygned he in Jerusalem: & his mothers name was zebiah of Beerseba. And he did ỹ which was good in the syght of ỹ Lozde, as longe as Jehoiada the preste enfourmed hym. But the hylaultars were not takẽ awaye, foz ỹ people offered & burnt incense yet vpon the hylaultars. And Jehoas sayde to the prestes: all the syluer of dedicat thinges ỹ be bzought to the house of the Lozde in curraunt moneye, ỹ is to saye, the money that euery man is set at, and all the money ỹ euery man with a willing hert geueth & bzingeth into the house of the Lozde, let the prestes take it to thẽ, euery mã of his aquayntaũce, to repayze the bzoken places of the house, whereseoeuer any decaye is foũde. And so it came to passe, that vnto the.xxiij. yere of king Jehoas, ỹ prestes had mended nothyng, that was decayed in ỹ temple. Then kyng Jehoas called foz Jehoiada the bysshop, and the prestes, and sayde vnto thẽ: why repayze ye not the bzokẽ places of the temple? Nowe therfoze, se that ye receaue nomoze money of your aquayntaũce, except ye delyuer it to repayze the temple withall. And the prestes consented to receaue nomoze money of the people: except to repayze the decayed places of the temple.

But

But Jehoiada the preast toke a chest and bozed an hoale in the lyd of it, & set it beside the altare on the ryght syde, as euery mã cõmeth into the temple of the Lozde. And the preastes ỹ kepte the vessels, put therinnall the money ỹ was bzought into the house of the Lozde. And it foztuned, that when they sawe there was moche money in the chest, * ỹ kynges scribe and the hye preaste came, vp, and tolde the money that was foũde in the house of the Lozde, and put it in to a bagg.

And they gaue the money sealed into the hãdes of thẽ that executed the wozcke, and that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lozde: and they bzought it out to the carpenters and buylders (that wzought vpon the house of the Lozde) and to masons and hewers of stone: And they bought tymbze and hewen stone, to repayze the decayen in the house of the Lozde, and to all that went out to mende the temple: howebeit there was not made foz the house of the Lozde, bowlles of syluer, instrumentes of Musicke, basens, trompettes oz any vessells of golde, oz vessell of syluer, of the money that was bzought in to the house of the Lozde: But they gaue that to the wozckemen, and repayzed therwyth the house of the Lozd. Mozeouer, they rekoned not wyth the men, into whose handes they delyuered that money to be bestowed on wozckemen: foz they dyd their busynes faythfully. Howbeit trespace money and synne money was not bzought into the house of the Lozde, foz it was the preastes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Siria vp, and fought agaynst Geth and toke it, & Hazael set hys face to go vp to Jerusalem. And Jehoas kynge of Juda toke all the halowed thynges that Jehosaphat, Jehoram and Haziahu his fathers kynges of Juda, had dedicat, and that he hym selfe had dedicated, and all the golde that was foũd in the treasures of the house of the Lozde and in the kynges house, and sent it to Hazael kynge of Siria: and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The remnaunt of the wozdes that concerne Jehoas and all that he dyd, are they not wzitten in the boke of the Chzonycles of the kynges of Juda? And hys awne seruaũtes arose, and wzought treason, and slue Jehoas in the house Millo, whan he came downe to Silla. Jozabar the sonne of Semeath and Jehozabad the sonne of Somer hys seruauntes, smote hym, & he dyed. And they buryed hym wyth his fathers in ỹ cytie of Dauid. And Amaziahu hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The.xiij.Chapter.

Jehoahaz the sonne of Jehu is delyuered into the handes of the Syriẽs, & dyeth. Joas hys sonne raygneth in hys steade. Elisa dyeth.

In the.xxiij. yeare of Joas the sonne of Ahaziahu kynge of Juda, Jehoahaz the sonne of Jehu beganne to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria seuẽtene yeare. And he wzought that wyech was euell in the syght of the Lozde, and folowed the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat wyech made Israel to synne, and departed not ther frõ. And the Lozde was angry wyth Israel, and delyuered them into the hand of Hazael kynge of Siria, and into the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes.

And Jehoahaz besought the Lozde, & the Lozde heard him. Foz he cõsidzed the trouble of Israel, wher with the king of Siria troubled them. And the Lozde gaue Israel a delyuerer, so that they went out from vnder the subiecyon of the Siriãs. And the chyldzẽ of Israel dwelt in theyr tentes as befoze tyme. Neuertheless they departed not frõ the synnes of the house of Jeroboam, wyech made Israel synne, but walked ỹ thẽ. And there remayned an Idols groue styll also in Samaria. Neither dyd he leaue of the people to Jehoahaz, but fyfty hozsemẽ ten charettes, & ten thousande fotemen * foz the kynge of Siria destroyed them, and made them lyke thzesshed dust. The rest of the wozdes that concerne Jehoahaz, and all that he dyd, and hys power, are they not wzyttẽ in the boke of the Chzonycles of the kynges of Israel? And Jehoahaz slepte wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in Samaria, and Joas his sonne raygned in hys steade. In the.xxxvij. yeare of Joas kynge of Juda, beganne Jehoas the sonne of Jehoahaz to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria syxtene yeare, and dyd that wyech is euell in the syght of the Lozd, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, (that made Israel synne) foz he walked therin.

The remnaunt of the wozdes that cõcerne Joas & all ỹ he dyd, & hys power wherwyth he fought agaynst Amaziahu kyng of Juda are they not wzyttẽ in the chzonycle boke of the kynges of Israel? And Joas slepte with his fathers, and Jeroboã sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

When Elisa was fallen sycke of hys syckenesse (wherof he dyed) Joas the kinge of Israel came downe vnto hym, & wepte befoze him, & sayd: * O my father, my father, the charet of Israel, & the hozsemen of the same. Elisa sayde vnto hym: take bowe & arowes. And he toke vnto him bowe & arowes. And he sayde to the kyng of Israel: put thine hãd vpõ the bowe, & he put his hãde vpõ it. And Elisa put his hãdes vpõ the kinges hãdes, & sayde: open a windowe eastward: & whã he had opened it, Elisa sayde: shote, & he shotte.

And he sayd: the arowe of helth of the Lord: and the arowe of helth agaynst Syria, for þ shalt smyte Syria in Aphek, tyll thou haue made an ende of them.

And he sayd: take þ arowes. & he toke thē: And he sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: smyte the groūde: & he smote thrise and ceased. And the man of God was angrie w̄ him, & sayd: þ shuldest haue smytē fyue or sixe tymes * (or seuen tymes) & then thou haddest smytten Syria tyll thou haddest made an ende of them: where nowe þ shalt smyte Syria but thrise. And so Elisa dyed and they buryed hym, & þ soudiares of the Moabites came into þ lād, * the same yeare. And it chaunced as some of them were burienge a man, and spyed the soudyars, they cast the mā into the sepulchre of Elisa. And whā the mā was rolled downe, and touched the body of Elisa * he reuyued, and stode vpon hys fete.

But Hazael vexed Israel, all the dayes of Iehoahaz. And þ Lord had mercye on them & pitied thē, & had respecte vnto thē, because of his appointmēt made w̄ Abrahā, Isahac & Iacob, and wolde not destroye thē, nether cast he thē from hym as yet. So Hazael the kynge of Syria dyed and Bēhadad his sonne raygned in his steade. And Iehoas þ sonne of Iehoahaz wēt agayne, and toke out of the hāde of Benhadad þ sonne of Hazael, the cyties which he had taken away out of the hande of Iehoahaz hys father, in warre: for thre tymes dyd Ioas beate him, and restored the cyties vnto Israel agayne.

¶ The .xiij. Chapter.

¶ Amaziahu the kynge of Juda putteth to deeth the manquellers of his father, and after smyteth Edom. Ioas dyeth & Ieroboā hys sonne succeadeth in hys rowme. & after hym raygneth zachariah. Amazia is kylled in Lachis, and Azaria raygneth in hys steade.

In the seconde yere of Ioas sonne of Iehoahaz kynge of Israel raygned Amaziahu the sonne of Ioas kynge of Juda: * he was .xxv. yeare olde when he began to raygne, and raigned .xxix. yeare in Jerusalem, & hys mothers name was Iehoadan, of Jerusalē. And he dyd þ which is good in the syght of the Lorde, yet not lyke Dauid his father: but dyd accordynge to all thynges as Ioas hys father dyd. Nether were the hyllaulters taken away: for as yet the people dyd sacrifice & burnt incēse on the hyllaulters. And assone as the kyngdome was setteled in hys hande * it came to passe, that he slue hys seruauntes which had kylled the kynge hys father. But the chyldren of those murtherars he slue not, accordynge vnto it that is writtē in the boke of the lawe of Moses: where in the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: * let not the fathers dye for the chyldren, nor let the chyldren be slayne for the fathers: But let euery mā be put to death for his awne sinne.

He slue of Edom in the salt valeye * ten thousande, and toke the castell on the rock in the same battell, & called the name of it Iokthеel vnto this daye.

Then Amaziahu sent messengers to Iehoas the sonne of Iehoahaz sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel, sayinge: come, ☞ let vs se eche other. And Iehoas the kynge of Israel sent to Amaziahu kynge of Juda, sayinge: * dyd not a thystle þ is in Libanon, sende to a Cedre tre that is in Libanon, sayinge: geue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe: And the wylde beaste that was in Libanon, wēt and troade downe the thistell. Thou hast smyttē Edō, thyne hart hath made the proude: Enioye thys glory, & tarye at home. Why dost thou prouoke to mischeue, þ thou shuldest be ouerthrowen, and Juda wyth the?

But Amaziahu wolde not heare. And Iehoas kynge of Israel wēt vp, and he and Amaziahu kynge of Juda sawe eyther other at Bethsames whych is in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled euery man to theyr tentes. And Iehoas kinge of Israel toke Amaziahu king of Juda, the sonne of Iehoas the sonne of Ahaziahu, at Bethsames, and came to Jerusalem & brake downe the wall of Jerusalem from the gate of Ephraim to þ corner gate, foure hundred cubytes. And he toke all the golde and syluer and all the vesselles that were founde in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasures of the kynges house, and the chyldren toke he to be hys wardes & returned to Samaria agayne.

The rest of the actes of Iehoas which he dyd, & hys power, and howe he fought with Amaziahu kyng of Juda, are they not written in the Chronycle boke of the kynges of Israel: and Iehoas slept with his fathers, and was buryed at Samaria, amonge the kynges of Israel: and Ieroboam hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

Amaziahu the sonne of Ioas kynge of Juda, lyued after the deeth of Iehoas sonne of Iehoahaz kynge of Israel, fyftene yeare. And the remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Amaziahu, are they not wrytten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Juda? But they conspired treason agaynst him in Jerusalē: and whā he fled to Lachis, they sent after him to Lachis, and slue hym there. And they brought hym on horses, & he was buryed at Jerusalē wyth hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid. * And all the people of Juda toke Azaria, whych was .xvi. yere olde, and made hym kynge for hys father Amaziahu. He buylt * Elath, and brought it agayne to Juda, after that the kynge was layde to rest wyth hys fathers.

In the .xv. yeare of Amaziahu the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, was Ieroboā þ sōne of Joas

Joas made kynge ouer Israel in Samaria, and raygned .xli. yere, and wrought þ which was euell in þ syght of þ Lorde. Nether turned he away from all the sinnes of Ieroboam the sōne of Nebat which made Israel to synne. He restored the coaste of Israel frō the enterynge of Hemath vnto the see of þ wildernes, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde God of Israel, which he spake ☞ by the hande of his seruaunt * Iona the sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of Geth hepher. For the Lorde sawe howe that the affliccyon of Israel was exceadynge bytter, in so moche that the preioned and the forsaken were at an ende. And ther was none to helpe Israel. And the Lorde sayde not, that he wolde putt out the name of Israel from vnder heauen, but he helped thē by the hande of Ieroboam the sonne of Joas.

The rest of the wordes þ concerne Ieroboam, and all that he dyd, and hys strength, which he executed in the warres, and howe he restored Damasco, and Hemath to Juda in Israel, are not they written in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel? And Ieroboam slepte with hys fathers, euen w̄ the kynges of Israel, and zacharia his sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ Azaria the kynge of Juda becommeth a leper. Of Iothā, Sallum, Menahem, Pekahia, Uriah, Iotham, and Ahaz.

In the .xxvij. yere of Ieroboā kinge of Israel, beganne Azaria sonne of Amazia kynge of Juda to raygne. Sixtene yeare olde was he when he was made king, and he raygned two and fyftye yeare in Jerusalem, and hys mothers name was Iecholeiahu of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all thynges as dyd hys father Amaziahu: saue þ the hylaultars were not put away: for the people offered, and burned incense styll on the hylaultars.

And the Lorde smote the kynge, and he was a leper vnto þ daye of his deeth, * and dwelt in a seuerall house at libertye, and Iothā the kynges sonne gouerned the palace, and iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the wordes þ concerne Azaria and all þ he dyd, are they not written in the boke of þ chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And so Azaria slepte with his fathers, and they buryed him with hys fathers in the cītye of Dauid, and Iotham hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

In the .xxxviij. yere of Azaria kynge of Juda dyd zacharia the sonne of Ieroboā raigne vpon Israel in Samaria .vj. monethes: and wrought þ which was euell in þ syght of the Lorde, as dyd hys fathers: and turned not away from the synnes of Ieroboā the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to sinne. And Sallum the sonne of Jabes conspyred against hym, & smote hym in the syght of the people, & kylled him, & raygned in his steade.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Zacharia, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel. Thys is also the worde of the Lorde, which he spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: * thy sonnes shall syt on the seate of Israel in þ fourth generacion after the. And it came so to passe.

Sallum the sonne of Jabes beganne to raygne in the .xxxix. yere of Azaria kynge of Juda: & he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Menahē the sonne of Gadi went vp frō Thirza, & came to Samaria, & smote Sallum the sonne of Jabes in Samaria, & slue him, & raygned in his steade. The rest of the wordes that concerne Sallum, & the treason which he cōspired, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. The same tyme Menahem destroied Thiphlah, & all þ were therin, & the coastes therof frō Therzahi. And because they opened not to hym, he smote it, and rypte vp all their wemen with chylde.

The .xxxix. yere of Azaria kinge of Juda began Menahē the sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Israel ten yeare in Samaria. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, & turned not away all his dayes frō the synne of Ieroboā the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne. And Phul the kinge of Assiria came vpō þ lāde. And Menahē gaue Phul a M. talētes of syluer, that his hand might be with him and stablyche the kyngdome in his hande. And Menahem made a proclamacīō for the money in Israel, that all men of substaunce shulde geue the kynge of Assiria fyftye sycles of syluer a pece. And so the kyng of Assiria turned back agayne, and taryed not there in the lande. The rest of the wordes þ concerne Menahem, and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Israel? And Menahē slepte with his fathers, & Pekahia his sonne dyd in his steade succede him in the kyngedome.

In the fyftyth yeare of Azaria kynge of Juda, beganne Pekahia the sonne of Menahem to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria two yere, & dyd that which was euell in the sight of the Lorde: and lefte not of frō the synnes of Ieroboā the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel synne. But Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, which was a captayne of his, conspired agaynst hym, and smote hym in Samaria, euen in the palace of the kynges house with Argob and Aria: and with him were fyftye men of the Gileadites: and he kylled hym, and raygned in hys rowme. The rest of the wordes that concerne Pekahia, and all that he dyd, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the.lij yere of Azaria kynge of Juda beganne Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria.xx. yeare, & dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, and turned not a waye fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, that made Israel synne. In the dayes of Pekah kyng of Israel, came Thiglath Peleser kynge of Assiria, and toke Jion, Abel, Bethmaacha, Janoah, Kedes, Hazor, Gilead, Galile, and all the lande of Nephthali, & caryed the awaye to Assiria:

And Hosea ꝑ sonne of Ela cõspired treason agaynst Pekah the sonne of Remaliah, and smote him, and slue him: and raygned in hys steade in the.xx. yere of Jotham the sonne of Uziahu. The rest of the wordes ꝑ concerne Pekah and all that he dyd, behold, they are wyttē in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel.

The seconde yeare of Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu kinge of Israel, beganne Jothā the sonne of Uziahu kynge of Juda to raygne. Fyue and twentye yere olde was he whē he began to raygne: and he raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Jerusa the daughter of Zadok. And he dyd ꝑ which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde: euē accordynge to all as dyd his father Uziahu, so dyd he. But the hyaulters were nott put a waye: for the people offered ād burnt incēse styll in the hyaulters: he buylt the hyghe doze of the house of the Lord. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jotham, and all that he dyd, are they not wrttē in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde beganne to sende into Juda, Rezin the kyng of Siria, and Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu. And Jotham slepte wt his fathers, and was buried wt his fathers in the cutye of Dauid hys father, and Ahaz hys sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ The.xvj. Chapter.

¶ Ahaz kynge of Juda consecrateth hys sonne in fyer, and hath many battayles agaynst the kynge of Israel. In the steade of Ahaz raygneth Hezekia hys sonne.

A *ii. Paralip. xxviij.a. The.xvij. yeare of Pekah ꝑ sonne of Remaliahu kynge of Israel, Ahaz the sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda, beganne to raygne. Twenty yere olde was he, when he was made kynge: and raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was ryght in the eyes of the Lorde hys God, lyke Dauid hys father: But walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, yee, and made *hys sonne to go thorowe the fyer, after the abhominacyons of the Heythen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt incēse in the hyaulters and on the hylles, and vnder euery thick tree. *Then Rezin kynge of Siria and Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kynge of Israel came vp to Jerusalem to fyght. And they fought agaynst Ahaz, but could not ouercome hym. At the same tyme Rezin kynge of Siria brought Elath agayne to Siria, and rydd the Jewes thence. And the Sirians *came to Elath, and dwell therin vnto thys daye.

And Ahaz toke the syluer and the golde that was founde in ꝑ house of the Lorde, and in the treasures of ꝑ kinges house, and sent a rewarde to the kyng of Assiria. *And the kynge of Assiria consented vnto hym. And kynge Ahaz went to Damasco, to mete Thiglath Peleser king of Assiria. And when kynge Ahaz sawe an aulter that was at Damasco, he sent to Uria the preste the paterne of the aulter, & the fassyon of it, and all the worckmanshyp therof. And Uria the preste made an aulter in all poyntes lyke to the patern which kinge Ahaz had sent from Damasco: euen so dyd Uria the preste make it, agaynst king Ahaz came from Damasco. And so, when the kyng was come from Damasco, he sawe the aulter, and the kyng wēt to it, & offered therō. And he burnt hys burntoffrynge, and hys meatofferinge, and powred hys drynckofferynge: and sprynckled the bloude of hys peaceofferynges belyde ꝑ aulter, ꝑ was by ꝑ brasen aulter which was before the Lord, and set it wout the temple betwene the aulter and the temple of the Lord: and put it on the northsyde of the aultare.

And kynge Ahaz commaunded Uria the preste, and sayde: vpon the greate aulter set on fyer in the mornyng the burntofferinge, & in the euen the meatoffering, and the kinges burntsacrifyce & his meatofferinge, with the burntofferyng of all the people of the lande, and their meatofferinge, & their drynckofferinges: & powre therby, all the bloude of the sacrifyce offrynges. But ꝑ brasen aulter will I come and se. And Uria the preste dyd accordinge dinge to all thynges as kynge Ahaz cōmaūded hym. *And kynge Ahaz brake the sydes of the botomes, and toke the lauer frō of them, and toke downe the Lauatorye frō of the brasen oxen that were vnder it, & put it vpon a pauemēt of stones. And the veyle for the Sabboth (that they had made in the house) & the kynges entrye without turned he to the house of the Lorde, for (feare of) the kynge of Assyria. The reste of the wordes ꝑ concerne Ahaz, what he dyd, are they not wzitten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda: And Ahaz slepte with hys fathers, and was buryed with hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid: and Hezekia his sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ Hosea kynge of Israel is taken. And he and all hys realme brought to the Assyrians.

A IN the.xij. yeare of Ahaz kynge of Juda, beganne Hosea the sonne of Ela to raigne in Samaria vpō Israel.ix. yeare, and dyd ꝑ which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, but not as the kynges of Israel that were before him. And Salmanasar kyng of Assyria came vp agaynst him, and Hosea became hys seruaunt, and gaue hym presentes. And the kynge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea: for he had sent messengers to So, kynge of Egypte, and brought no presente vnto ꝑ kynge of Assyria, from yeare to yeare: and therfore the kynge of Assyria toke hym: and put hym in prison. * And then the kynge of Assyria came vp thozo wout all the lande, & gat vp against Samaria, and besieged it thze yeare. In ꝑ nynth yeare of Hosea, tye *kynge of Assyria toke Samaria, and caryed Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and put them in Hala, in habor by the ryuer of Goza, and in the cyties of the Medes. For it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lorde theyr God, which had brought them out of the lande of Egypt, from vnder the hande of Pharao kynge of Egypte) and feared other Gods. And they walked in the ceremonyes of the hethen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel, & in the ceremonies which the kynges of Israel had made. And the children of Israel went about to hyde those thinges that were not well, frō the Lorde theyr God. And they buylt them hyaulters in all theyr cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watch, and also in the strōge townes. And they made thē ymages and groues in euery hye hyll, and vnder euery thyck tre. And there they burnt incense in all the hyaulters, as dyd ꝑ hethen (whō the Lorde caryed awaye before them (and wrought wycked thynges to angre ꝑ Lorde withall: For they serued most vyle Idoles, wherof the Lorde had sayde vnto them.

And the Lorde was exceadinge wroth vō Israel and put them out of hys syght * that there was lefte but the trybe of Juda onely. Neuertheles, Juda also kept not the cōmaūdemētes of the Lorde theyr God, but walked in the ceremonies of Israel, which they made And the Lorde cast vp all the seed of Israel, and vexed them, and delyuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had cast them out of hys syght. For Israel deuyded themselues from the house of Dauid, & made them a kinge, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And Jeroboam * drue we Israel awaye, that they shulde not folowe the Lorde, and made them synne a greate synne: For the chyldrē of Israel walked in all the synnes of Jeroboā which he dyd, and departed not therfrō, vntyll the Lorde put Israel awaye out of hys syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruauntes the prophetes. And so was Israel caryed awaye out of theyr awne lāde to Assyria euē vnto thys daye.

And the kynge of Assyria brought men from Babylon, from Cutha, from Iua, frō Hanath, and from Sepharuaim, and put thē in the cyties of Samaria, in steade of ꝑ chyldrē of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cyties therof. And it fortuned, that at the begynnynge of theyr dwellinge there, they feared not the Lorde. And ꝑ Lorde sent lyons amonge them, which slue them. Wherfore, men sayde to the kynge of Assyria. The nacyons which thou hast trāslated, & put in ꝑ cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the lande, therfore he hath sent lyons vpon them: and beholde they slaye them, because they knowe not the maner of worshyppyng of ỹ God of the lãde.

Then the kynge of Assyria commaunded sayenge: carye thether one or twayne of the Preastes, whom ye brought thence, and let them go, and dwell there, and teache them ỹ fassyon howe to serue the God of the cõtreye. And then one of the Preastes which they had caryed thẽce came, and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them howe they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euery nacyon made them Gods of theyr awne and put them in the houses of the hyllaulters which the Samaritans had made, euery naciõ in their cyties wherin they dwelt. The mẽ of Babilõ made ☞ Socoth Benoth: and the men of Cuth made Nergal: and the men of Hamath made Asima. The Auites made Nibbaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuites burnt theyr chyldren in fyre for Adramelech and Anamelech, the Gods of Sepharuaim. And so they feared the Lorde, and made them Preastes of the hyllaulters, which sacrifyced for them in the houses of the hyllaulters. And so they feared the Lorde, and serued theyr awne Gods after the maner of the people, whom they caryed thence.

And vnto this daye they do after the olde maner: and nether feare God, nether do after ☞ theyr ordinaũces and customes, and after the lawe and commaundement which the Lorde commaunded the chyldren of Jacob, * Gen.xxxii.e whõ he called Israel. And the Lorde made an appoyntement wyth them, and charged them, sayenge: * feare none other Goddes, * Judi.vi.b. xxe.e.a. nor bowe youre selues to them, nor serue thẽ nor sacrifyce to thẽ: but feare the Lord which brought you out of the lãde of Egypte with greate power and a stretched out arme: hym feare, and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifyce. The statutes, ordinaunces, lawe and commaundement which he wrote for you, se that ye be diligent to do for euermore, & feare not any other goddes. And the appoyntemẽt that I haue made with you, se ye forget not and feare none other goddes: but the Lorde youre God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all youre enemyes. Howbeit, they dyd not herken, but dyd after theyr olde custome. And so these nations feared the Lorde, and serued theyr ymages also: lyke as dyd theyr chyldren and theyr chyldrens chyldren. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto thys daye.

¶ The.xviii. Chapter.

¶ Hezekia kynge of Juda putteth downe the brasen serpent, and destroyeth the Idolles. Salmanasar byngeth Israel to the Assyrians. The blasphemy of Sennacherib or Sanherib.

IN the thyrde yere of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israel it came to passe, that Hezekia the sonne of Ahaz kyng of Juda dyd raygne. * Twẽtye and fyue yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned. xxix. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Abi the daughter of zacharia, and he dyd ỹ which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde accordyng to all as dyd Dauid hys father. * He put awaye the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the * brasen serpent that Moses had made: for vnto those dayes the chyldren of Israel dyd burne sacrifice to it, & he called it ☞ Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after hym was none lyke him amonge all the kynges of Juda, nether were there anye soche before hym. For he claue to the Lorde, and departed not from hym, but kepte hys commaundementes, which the Lorde commaũded Moses. And the Lorde was with hym: so ỹ he prospered in all thynges which he toke in hande. And he rebelled agaynst the kynge of Assyria, and serued him not. He smote the Philistines euen vnto Aza and ỹ coastes therof, ☞ both castels where they kepte watches) and stronge cyties.

* And in the fourth yeare of kynge Hezekia, (which was the seuenth yeare of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israell) it fortuned, that Salmanazar kyng of Assyria came vp agaynst Samaria, & beleged it. And after thre yeres they toke it euen in the syxte yere of Hezekia: that is to saye, ỹ nynth yere of Hosea kynge of Israel. And Samaria was wonne. And the kynge of Assyria, dyd carye awaye Israel vnto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of the Medes: because they wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde theyr God: but transgressed hys appoyntment, and all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lord commaunded, & wolde nether heare them nor do them.

* iiij. Regũ. xviii.a.

* Therfore in the. xiiii. yeare of kynge Hezekia dyd Sennacherib kynge of Assyria come vp agaynst all the stronge cytyes of Juda, and toke them. And Hezekia kynge of Juda sent to the kynge of Assyria to Lachis, saying: ☞ I haue offended: departe frõ me, and me, and all ỹ thou puttest on me, that will I beare. And the kynge of Assyria appoynted vnto Hezekia kynge of Juda thre hundred talentes of syluer, & thirtye talentes of gold.

* iiij.re.xviii.d. * And Hezekia gaue him all the syluer that was foũde in the house of the Lorde, & in the D treasures of the kynges house. At the same ☞ season dyd ☞ Hezekia rent of the dores of the temple of the Lorde & the pillers (whych the sayde Hezekia kynge of Juda had couered ouer) & gaue thẽ to the kynge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Tharthan and Rabsaris and Rabsake from Lachis to kynge Hezekia with a great hoste agaynst Jerusalem. And they went vp, and came to Jerusalem, & gat them vp, & stode by the cõduyte of the vpper pole which is in ỹ waye of the fullers felde. And whan they had called to the kynge, there came out to them,

* Gal.i.b. E * Eliakim ỹ sonne of Elkia which was stuarde of housholde, and Sobna the scribe, & Joah the sonne of Asaph, the recorder. And Rabsake sayde vnto them: Tell ye Hezekia I praye you: thus sayth the great kynge, euẽ the kynge of Assyria: What cõfidence is this ỹ thou hast? dost thou speake soche a lyghe worde in dede? Wy cõcell and power I wilbe ready to make warre. On whõ then doest thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me?

* Esa.xxxvi. d. Ezech.xxix.a. * dost thou trust to the staffe of this broken rede Egypte, on which yf a mã leane, it wyll go into his hande, and pearce it. Euen so is Pharao kynge of Egypte vnto all that trust on him. * If ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde oure God: Is not that he whose hilaulters and his other aulters, Hezekia hath put downe, and hath sayde to Juda & Jerusalem, ye shall worshyppe before this aulter here in Jerusalem.

Nowe therfore delyuer wardes to my Lorde ỹ kynge of Assyria, that ye rebell not, & I wyll delyuer the two thousande horses, yf thou be able to sett ryders vpon thẽ: Why thynkest thou scorne at the presence of one of the leest Dukes of my maisters seruauntes, & trustest to Egypte for charettes and horsmẽ? Moreouer, am I come now without ỹ byddinge of the Lorde to this place, to destroye it? the Lorde sayde to me: go vp to this lãde, F and destroye it. And Eliakim the sonne of Helkia & Sobna, & Joab sayde vnto Rabsake: speake (I praye the) to thy seruaũtes in the Syrians language, for we vnderstande it: & ☞ talke not wt vs in the Jewes tonge, in the eares of this people that are on ỹ wall. And Rabsake sayde vnto them: hath my maister sent me to thy master and to ỹ, to speake these wordes? hath he not sent me because of the men which sytt on the wall, ỹ they maye eate their awne donge, & dryncke their awne pisse with you?

And so Rabsake stode, and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes languge, and spake sayinge: heare the sayinge of the great kynge of Assyria. Thus sayth the kynge: let not Hezekia begile you, for he shall not be able to delyuer you out of myne hãde: nether let Hezekia make you to trust in the Lorde, sayinge: ỹ Lorde shall surely delyuer vs, and this cytie shall not be geuen ouer into ỹ hãde G of the kynge of Assyria. Herken not vnto Hezekia, for thus sayth the kynge of Assyria.

☞ Deale kyndely with me, & come out ☞ to me. And then eate euery man of his awne vyne, and of his awne frygge tree, & dryncke euery mã of the water of his awne well, tyll I come, and fett you to as good a lande as youres is: a lande of corne and wyne, a lande of bread and vyneyardes, a lande of oyle, of olyue trees, and of hony: that ye maye lyue, and not dye. And herken not vnto Hezekia, for he begyleth you, sayinge: the Lorde shall delyuer vs. * hath euery one of the Gods * Esa.xx.b. of the nacyons deliuered his lande, out of the hande of the kynge of Assyria? where is the God of Hamath, & of Arphad? and where is the God of Sepharuaim, Hena & Iua? dyd they delyuer Samaria out of myne hande, & what God is it amonge all the goddes of the nacyons, that hath delyuered his lande out of myne hande, Shall the Lorde deliuer Jerusalem out of myne hande?

But they ỹ were of the people held their peace, and answered not him a worde: for ỹ kynge had cõmaũded, sayinge: answere him not. Then Eliakim which was the stuard of housholde, and Sobnah ỹ scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Hezekia ☞ with their clothes rent, and tolde him the wordes of Rabsake.

¶ The.xix. Chapter.

¶ The Angell of ỹ Lorde kylleth an hũdred fourre skore and fyue thousande men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is kylled of his awne sonnes.

IT came to passe, ỹ when kynge Hezekia heard it, he rent hys clothes, and put on sacke, and came A into the * house of the Lorde, and * esa.xxxvii.a sent Eliakim which was ỹ stuard of housholde, and Sobna the Scribe, & the elders of ỹ preastes clothed in sacke, to Isay the prophete the sonne of Amoz. And they sayde vnto him, thus sayth Hezekia ☞ this daye is a daye of tribulacyon and of rebuke and blasphemy. For the chyldren are come to the byrth, and there is no strẽgth to be delyuered. Paraduenture the Lorde thy God wyll heare all the wordes of Rabsake, whõ the kynge of Assyria his master hath sent, to raile on the lyuynge God, and to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lorde thy God hath harde: And lyfte thou vp thy prayer B for the remnaũt that are lefte. So the seruauntes of kynge Hezekia came to Isay: And

Isay

Isaie sayd vnto them: So shall ye saye to youre master: Thus sayth the Lorde: be not afrayde of ỹ wordes which thou hast heard,
with which the younge men of the kynge of Assyria haue rayled on me. Beholde, I will put him in another mynde, and he shall heare
tydinges, and so returne to hys awne lande:
2.Pa..xxvij * And I will bringe to passe, ỹ he shall fall
a.Pa.xxvij.d vpon the swerde * euen in his awne lande.

And Rabsakeh went backe agayne, and founde ỹ kynge of Assyria fyghting agaynst Libna: for he had hearde, howe that he was departed frō Lachis. And whē he hearde men saye of Thirhaka kynge of ỹ blacke Moores:
Beholde, he is come out to fyght agaynst ỹ,
he departed, & sent messengers vnto hezekia sayinge. Thus speake to hezekia kynge of Juda, sayinge: let not thy God disceaue ỹ, in whō ỹ trustest, sayinge: Jerusalem shalt not C be delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast heard, what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterly destroyed thē. And vt shalt thou *(alone) escape? haue the Gods of the hethen delyuered thē, which myne auncetries haue destroyed: As Gozan, & Haran, Rezeph, & the chyldren of Eden which were in Withlasar? where is ỹ kynge of Hamath,
and the kyng of Arphad, the kynge of the cy-tie of Sepharnaim, & of Hena & Iua?

So Hezekia receaued the letter of ỹ hande
of the messengers, and redd it: And Hezekia
went vp into the house of the Lorde, & layde
it abroade before the Lorde. And Hezekia prayed before the Lorde, and sayde: O Lord God of Israel, which dwellest betwene the Cherubs, ỹ art God alone ouer all the kyng-domes of the erth, thou hast made heauen &
earth Lord, bowe downe thine eare, & heare:
Open Lorde thyne eyes (I beseche the) & se:
and heare the wordes of Sēnacherib which hath sent thys man to raple on the lyuynge
God. Of a truthe Lorde, the kinges of Assyria haue destroyed nacyōs and their landes, and haue sett fyre on their Gods. For they were no Gods, but the worcke of the handes of man: euen of wood & stone. And they destroyed them. Nowe therfore, O Lorde oure
D God, I beseche the, saue thou vs out of hys
hāde, ỹ all the kyngdomes of the earth maye
knowe, that thou onely art the Lorde God.
And Isay the sonne of Amoz sent to Hezekia, sayinge: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: ỹ which thou hast prayed me, cōcern-ynge Sennacherib kynge of Assyria, I haue hearde it. This is therfore the worde that ỹ ☞ Lord hath sayde of him: ☞ The virgin enē

whom hast thou blaspheamed? Agaynst whō hast thou exalted thy voyce, and lyfted vp thyne eyes so hye. Euen agaynst the holy of Israel. ☞ By the hande of thy messengers ☞
thou hast rayled on the Lorde and sayde: w̄
the multitude of my charettes I am come vp to the ☞ toppes of the mountaynes, euen ☞ alonge by the sydes of Libanon, and I wyll G
cut downe the hye Cedar trees and the lustie
fyre trees therof: and I will go into the lodging of his nest, & into ỹ wood of his playne.
I haue digged & dzoncke straunge waters,
and w̄ the steppe of my goynge will I dzye
all the water poles that are beseaged.

Hast thou not hearde, howe I haue ordeyned soch a thinge a great whyle a goo, & haue prepared it frō ỹ begynninge? And shall I not nowe bringe it forth, ỹ it maye destroye,
and to bringe stronge cyties into wast hea-ten w̄ blastinge. I knowe thy dwellinge, thy commynge out, and thy goynge in, *(and thy wape) & thy furye agaynst me. And because ỹ ✠ ragest agaynst me, and thynckest thy selfe so blessed: this is come vp vnto myne eares, &

I will put my hoke in thy nastrels, and my bytt in thy lyppes, and will bringe the backe
agayne, the same waye thou camest.

And this shalbe a sygne vnto the (O Hezekia) Ye shall eate this yere of soch thynges
as growe of them selues, and the next yeare soch as come vp of those that dyd growe of their awne accorde. And the third yere sowe ye and reape, plāt vyneyardes and eate the frutes therof. And it that is escaped & lefte, of ỹ daughter of Juda, shall yet agayne take rotinge downe warde and beare frute vpwarde. For out of Jerusalē shall go a remnaunt, and a nombre that shall escape out of G
mount Sion: the zele of the Lorde of hostes shall bringe thys thynge to passe.

Wherfore, thus sayth ỹ Lorde, cōcerninge
the kinge of Assyria: he shall not come to this cytie, nor shote an arowe into it, nor come before it with shilde, nor cast bancke agaynst
it: but shall go backe agayne the waye he came, & shall not come into this cytie sayeth the Lorde. For I will defende this cytie, to saue it, for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruauntes sake.

And so it came to passe that the selfe same nyght ỹ angell of the Lorde wēt out & smote
in the Hoste of the Assyriās an hūdred foure skore and fyue thousande. And when ỹ remnaunt were vp erlye in the mornynge: they sawe, they were all deed coarsles. * And so *Reg.xix.
Sennacherib kynge of Assyria auoyded and departed, and went agayne, & dwelt at Niniue. And it fortuned, ỹ as he was in a tēple

¶ The.xx. Chapter.

¶ Hezekia is sycke, and receaueth the sygne of his health.
He receaueth rewardes of Benodach, and is reprehended of Isay because he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth and Manasseh hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

A Bout that tyme * was Hezekia sycke vnto ỹ deeth. And the pro-phete Isay ỹ sonne of Amoz came to him, and sayde vnto hym.
Thus sayth ỹ Lorde: * put thyne
housholde in an ordre, for thou shalte die, and not lyue. And Hezekia turned his face to the wall, & prayed vnto the Lorde, sayenge:
I beseche the nowe, O Lorde, remēbre howe
I haue walked before the in trueth and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy syght, and Hezekia wepte sore.

And it fortuned that * afore Isay was gone out into the myddle of the courte, the worde of ỹ Lorde came to him, sayinge: turne agayne, and tell Hezekia the captayne of my people: Thus sayth ỹ Lorde God of Da-uid thy father: I haue herde thy prayer, and sene thy teares. And beholde, I wyll heale ỹ, so that on the thyrde daye thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lorde. And I wyll adde vnto thy dayes yet fyftene yere, and will de-lyuer the and this cytie out of the hāde of the kynge of Assyria, and wyll defende thys cy-tie for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruauntes sake. And Isay sayde. Take a lōpe of fygges. And they toke and layed it on the sore, and he recouered.

And Hezekia sayde vnto Isay. what shalbe
the signe, that the Lorde wyll heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lord
the thyrde daye? Isay answered: thys sygne shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde xxxviij.c will do that he hath spoken. * Shall the shadowe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? Hezekia answered it is a lyght thynge for the shadowe to go downe or ten degrees. or *(nether is that my desyre.) but yf the shadow go backewarde ten degrees, it is no xxxviij.c lyght thynge. And Isay the prophete called vnto the Lorde, * and he brought the shadow ten degrees backwarde by which it had gone downe in the dyall of Ahaz.

C * The same season Berodach Baladan
Isa.xxxix.a the sonne of Baladā kynge of Babilon sent letters & a present vnto Hezekia, for he had hearde, howe that Hezekia was sycke. And Hezekia was glad of them, and shewed them
all hys treasure house syluer, golde, odoures, precious oyntmente, all the house of hys ar-
moure, and all that was founde in hys treasures: there was nothinge in hys house, & in all his realme, that Hezekia shewed thē not.

And Isay the prophete came vnto kynge D Hezekia, and sayde vnto hym. What sayed these men, and from whēce came they to the?
And Hezekia sayde: they be come from a farre countree, euen from Babilon. And he sayde agayne: what haue they sene in thy house?
Hezekia answered: all the thynges that are in my house haue they sene: there is nothynge
amōge my treasures, that I haue not shewed them. And Isay sayde vnto Hezekia: heare
the worde of the Lorde: Beholde, the dayes come, that all that is in thy house, and what soeuer thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto thys daye * shalbe carped into Babylon, * iiij. Regū.

they take awaye, and they shalbe chambre-
layns in the palayce of the king of Babilon.
And Hezekia sayde vnto Isay: welcome be the worde of the Lorde which thou hast spoken: And he sayde: shall ther not be peace and truthe in my dayes?

The remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Hezekia, and all hys power, and howe
he made a pole and a conduyte, and brought water into the cytie, are they not written in (euẽ all the wordes of the boke which the kynge of Juda hath red) because they haue forsaken me, and haue burnt incense vnto other Gods, to angre me with all the workes of theyr handes: Wy wrath also shalbe kyndled agaynst thys place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kynge of Juda (which sent you to aske councell of the Lorde,) so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel as touchynge the wordes which ye haue heard: Because thyne herte dyd melt, and because thou hast hũbled thy selfe before me the Lorde, when ỹ heardest what I spake agaynst thys place, and agaynst the enhabiters of the same (howe that they shulde be destroyed and acursed:) and hast rent thy clothes and wepte before me: of that also haue I hearde, sayth the Lorde. Beholde therfore, I wyll receaue the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be put into thy graue in peace, and thyne eyes shall not se all the euell, which I wyll bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kyng worde agayne.

¶The.xxiii.Chapter.

¶Josia readeth Deuteronompe before the people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had kylled the preastes therof. He kepeth passeouer. He was kylled in Mageddo, and hys sonne Jehoahaz raygneth in hys steade. After he was taken, hys sonne Jehoakim was made kynge.

And all the people consented to the appoyntment.

And the kynge commaunded Helkia the hye preaste, and the inferioure preastes and the kepers of the ornamentes, to bringe out of the temple of the Lorde, all the vesselles ỹ were made for Baal, for the Idole groues, & for all the Hoste of heauen. And he burnt thẽ without Jerusalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caryed the asshes of them into Bethel. And he put downe ☞ ỹ ministers of Baal ☞ whom the kynges of Juda had founded to burne incense in the * hyllaulters and cyties * iiii.Regũ. xxiii.a. of Juda, that were rounde aboute Jerusalem, and also them that burnt incense vnto Baal, to the sonne, to the mone, to the planetes, and to all the Hoste of heauen. And as Josia turned hym selfe, he spyed the graues that were in the mount, and sent and fett the bones out of the graues, and burnt them vpon the aulter, to polute it, accordynge to ỹ worde of the Lord that the man of God proclaymed * which tolde the same wordes.

* iii. Regū. xiii.a. Then he sayde: what graue stone is yonder that I se? And the men of the cytie tolde hym, it is the sepulchre of the man of God, whych came from Juda, and tolde the selfe same thynges that thou hast done to the aulter of Bethel. And he sayd let hym be: & that no man moue hys bones. And so hys bones were saued with ỹ bones of a prophete that came out of Samaria.

And all the houses of the hyllaulters in the cyties of Samaria which the kynges of Israel had made, to angre * (the Lorde) with all: those Josia put out of the waye, and dyd to them accordyng to all the actes that he had done in Bethel. And therto workers with spretes, & sothsayers, ymages, ydoles, and all the abhominacyons that were spyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, those did Josia put out of the waye, to perfourme the wordes of the lawe, which were wrytten in the boke, that Helkia the preaste founde in the house of the Lorde: lyke vnto him was there no kyng before hym, that turned to the Lorde with all hys herte, with all his soule & all hys myght accordyng to all the lawe of Moses, nether after hym arose there any soche as he.

Not withstandinge the Lorde turned not frō the fearcenesse of hys great wrath (wherwith he was angrie agaynst Juda) because of all the prouocatiōs that Manasse had prouoked hym withall. And the Lorde sayde:

* iii. Regū. xxiiii.a * I wyll put Juda also, out of my syght, as I haue done a waye Israel, and wyll cast of thys cytie Jerusalem which I haue chosen, and the house of whyche I sayde: my name shalbe there.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Josia and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Juda?

* ii. Para. xxv.d. * In hys dayes Pharao ☞ Necho kyng of Egypte wēt vp agaynst the kynge of Assyria to the ryuer of Euphrates. And kynge Josia went agaynst hym, and was slayne of hym at Magiddo, when he had sene hym. And hys seruauntes caryed hym deed from Magiddo, and brought hym to Jerusalem & buryed hym in hys awne sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke ☞ Jehoahaz the sonne of Josia, and anoynted hym, and made hym kynge in hys fathers steade.

Jehoahaz was.xxiii. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Hamiel ỹ daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of ỹ Lorde, accordinge to all thynges as his fathers had done. And Pharao Necho put hym in bondes at Ribla in the lande of Hamath, that he shulde not raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a trybute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talent of golde. And Pharao Necho made Eliakim ỹ sonne of Josia kyng in the rowme of Josia his father, and turned hys name to Jehoakim, and toke Jehoahaz awaye, whych when he came to Egypte, dyed there.

And Jehoakim gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharao: & taxed the lande, to geue the moneye accordinge to the request of Pharao: requyringe of euery mā (accordynge to theyr abylite) syluer and golde: euen of the people of the lāde, to geue vnto Pharao Necho. Jehoakim was.xxv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned a.xi. yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was zebuda the daughter of Pedaia of Ruma. And he dyd that which was euell in ỹ syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all thinge as his fathers had done.

¶ The.xxiiii. Chapter:

¶ Jehoakim dyeth, Jerusalem is beseged of the Babylonians. Jehoakim yeldeth hym selfe to the kyng of Babylon. And in hys rowme came Mathaniah, which was called zedekiah.

IN hys dayes came Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon vp, and Jehoakim became hys seruaunt thre yere, and then turned, and rebelled agaynst hym. And the Lorde sent vpō him ☞ men of warre from amonge the Caldeys, from amonge the Syrians, out of the Moabites, and from the chyldren of Ammon: and sent them agaynst Juda, to destroye it, accordynge to the sayinge of the Lorde, which he spake by hys seruauntes the prophetes. Onely, at the byddynge of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put them out of his syght, for the synnes of Manasse, accordynge accordynge to all that he dyd: and for the innocent blonde that he shed, and fylled Jerusalem with innocent blonde: and the Lorde wolde not be reconcyled.

B The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehoakim, & all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda? And so Jehoakim slepte wt̄ hys fathers: and * Jehoachin hys sonne raygned in hys steade. And the kynge of Egipt came nomore out of his lande: for the kynge of Babylō had taken frō the ryuer of Egipt vnto the ryuer of Euphrates, all ỹ pertayned to the kynge of Egipte. Jehoachin was xviij. yere olde, & raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. His mothers name also was Nehusta, ỹ daughter of Elnathā of Jerusalem. And he dyd ỹ which was euell in the sight of the Lorde, accordīg to all as hys father had done. * In that tyme came the seruauntes of Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylō vp against Jerusalē, & the citye was beleged. And Nabuchadnezar the king of Babylō came agaynst the citye: & his seruauntes dyd belege it.

C * And Jehoachin ỹ kyng of Juda came out to the kynge of Babylō, he and hys mother, hys seruauntes, hys lordes, and hys chāberlaynes. And the kyng of Babilon toke him, in the eyght yere of hys raygne.

* And he caryed out thence all the treasures of the house of the Lorde, & the treasure of the kynges house: and brake all the vessels of golde, which Salomon kynge of Israel had made in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lorde had sayde. And he caryed awaye all Jerusalē, and all the lordes, and all the strōg men of warre, euen.x. M. into captiuite: and all craftes men and kepers, none remaynyng saue the poore commen people of the lande.

D And he caryed awaye Jehoachin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, his chamberlayns, and thē that were myghty in the lande: those caryed he awaye into captiuyte frō Jerusalē to Babilō. And all the actiue mē of warre, euen.vij. M. and craftesmen, and potters. M. all ỹ were stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kinge of Babilon bryng to Babilon captyue. * And the kynge of Babylon made Mathania hys fathers brother, kynge in his steade, & chaūged hys name to zedekia.

* Jere. lii.a. * zedekia was.xxj. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned cleuē yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Hamital the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, accordynge to all as Jehoachin had done. For the wrath of the Lorde was moued agaynst Jerusalem and Juda, vntyll he cast thē out of hys syght. And zedekia rebelled agaynst the kynge of Babylon.

¶ The.xxv. Chapter

¶ Jerusalē is beseged of Nabuchodonezar, otherwyse called, Nebuchadnezer, and it and the temple are bothe burnt. The sonnes of zedekia are slayne before hys eyes, and after are hys awne eyes putt out. Juda is brought to Babylon, and after is Jehoachin exalted.

AND it fortuned, * that in the nynth yere of hys raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth: Nebuchadnezar kynge of Babilon came, he and all his hoost agaynst Jerusalem: and pitched agaynst it, and made engynes agaynst it on euery syde. And the citye was beseged vnto the eleuenth yere of kinge zedekia. * And the nynth daye ☞ of the moneth, there was so greate hongre in the citye, that there was no ☞ breed for the people of the lande.

* Jer. xxxix.a and.lii.a. * Ezec. xx.d. and.xxiv.a

And the citye was brokē vp: and all the men of armes fledd by nyght, by a waye thorowe a gate which is betwene two walles, by the kynges garden: the Chaldees lynge about the citye.

And the kynge went the waye towarde the playne. And the soudyers of ỹ Chaldees folowed after the kynge, and toke him in the playne of Jericho, and all hys armye were scatered awaye from hym, * (and lefte hym.) So they toke the kynge, and brought hym to Nebuchadnezar the kynge of Babylon to Ribla, where ☞ they reasoned wt̄ hym. And they slue the sonnes of zedekia before hys eyes: and he put out the eyes of zedekia, and fettered him with two chaynes, and caryed hym to Babylon.

And the.vij. daye of the.v. moneth which is the.xix. yere of kyng Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon, came Nebusaradan a seruaunt of the kynge of Babylon, and chefe captayne of the men of warre, vnto Jerusalē: & burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, ād all the houses of Jerusalem, & all great houses burnt he wt̄ fyre. And all the soudiers of the Chaldees that were with the chefe captayne of the men of warre, broke downe ỹ walles of Jerusalem rounde about. But the rest of the people ỹ were left in the citye, and them ỹ were fledd to the kyng of Babylō, wt̄ the rēnaunt of the comen people, dyd Nabusaradā the chefe captayne of the mē of warre carye awaye: but the captayne of the soudyers lefte of the poore of the lande, to dresse the vynes, and to tyll the grounde.

* And the pyllers of brasse that were in ỹ house of the Lord, and the sockettes, and the brasen lauatory that was in the house of the Lorde dyd the Chaldees breake, and caryed all the brasse of them to Babylon. And the pottes, shouelles, dressynge knyues, spones, and all the vessels of brasse that they mynystred in, toke they awaye. And the fyer pannes, and basens, and soche thinges as were of golde, & of siluer, thē toke the chefe captayne awaye: euen two pyllers, one lauatory, and

* iij. reg. vij.b Jere. lii.c i. Par. xviij.b

the lokettes which Salomon had made for the house of the Lord. The brasse of all these vesselles was without waighte. The heygth of the one pyller was .xviij. cubytes, and the heed therō was brasse, and thre cubytes hye and vpon the heed was there a wrethē worke and pomegranates rounde aboute, all of brasse. And of the same fassyon was the seconde pyller, with a wrethen worke.

E And the cheke captayne of ỹ mē of warre toke Saraia the cheke preste, and zephoniah the hyest preste saue one, and the thre kepers of the holy thynges. And out of the citye he toke a chamberlayne, that had the ouerlight of the men of warre, and .v. men of thē that were euer in ỹ kynges presence, which were founde in the cytie: and him that was scrybe to the captayne of the hoost, which brought out the people of the lāde to warre, and thre skore men of the people of the lande, ỹ were founde in the citye. And Nebusaradan the cheke captayne of the mē of warre toke these, and brought them to the kynge of Babylon to Ribla. And the kynge of Babylon smote them, and slue them at Ribla in the lande of Hanath. And so Juda was carped awaye out of theyr lande.

F Howebeit, there remayned people in the lande of Juda, whom Nebuchadnezar kyng of Babylon lefte, & made Gedalia the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan ruler ouer thē. And all the captaynes of the souldyers, and other men hearde, ỹ the kynge of Babilon had made Gedalia gouerner: and there came to Gedalia to Mazphah: Ismael the sonne of Nethania, Johannan the sonne of Kareca, Saraia the sonne of Thanhumeth ỹ Netophathite, and Jazaania the sonne of Maachati, & theyr men. And Gedalia sware to them and to the mē whom they had with them, and sayde vnto thē: feare not ye because ye are the seruauntes of the caldees, dwell in the lande, and serue the kinge of Babilon, and ye shalbe well.

G But it chanced in the seuenth moneth, that Ismael the sonne of Nethania the sonne of Elisama, of the kynges bloude, came, and ten men with hym, and smote Gedalia, that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes and ỹ Chaldees that were with hym at Mizpa. And all the people, bothe small and greate, and the captaynes of warre arose, and came to Egipte: for they were afrayd of the Chaldees. Notwithstandyng yet in the seuen and thyrtye yere after Jehoachin kynge of Juda was carped awaye the seuen and twentye daye of the twelueth moneth, Euilmerodach kynge of Babylō, the same yeare ỹ he begāne to raygne, dyd ☞ lyfte vp the heade of Jehoachin kynge of Juda out of the prison, and spake kyndely to hym, and set hys seate aboue the seate of the kynges that were with hym in Babylon: and chaunged hys prison garmentes. And he dyd euer eate breed before hym, all the dayes of hys lyfe. Hys porcyon was a contynuall porcyon that was assigned hym of the kyng, euery daye a certayne, as longe as he lyued.

¶ The genealogye of the sonnes of Juda and Symeon.

A *ge.xxxviij.g and.xlvi.b The sonnes of Juda: * Pharez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur and Sobal. And Reaia the sonne of Sobal begat Jahath. And Jahath begat Zhumai and Lahad: and these are the kinredes of the zoreathites. And of these came the father of Etham, Jezrael, Jisma and Jidbas, and the name of theyr syster was Hazlelpeni. Penuel was the father of Gedor. And Eser the father of Husa. And these are the sonnes of Hur the eldest sonne of Ephrata the father of Bethlehem. And Ashur the father of Thekoa had two wyues: Helcah and Naara. And Naara bare hym Ahusam, Hepher, Themni and Hahasthari. These were the sō-
B nes of Naarah. And the sonnes of Helcah were zareth, Jezoar and Ethnan. And Coz begat Anub and zobeba, and the kynred of Aharhel the sonne of Harum. And Joabes was more honorable then his brethren. And hys mother called his name Jabes, sayinge. because I bare hym with sorowe. And Jabes called on the God of Israel, sayinge: If thou wylt blesse me in dede, and enlarge my coastes, and shalt let thyne hāde be with me. and wylt kepe me from euell that it hurt me not: And God graunted hym hys desyre.

Chelub the brother of Suah begat Mehir, whych was the father of Esthon. And Esthon begat Bethrapha, and Paseha, and C Thehinna the father of the citye of Nahas: these are the men of Recha. The sonnes of Kenas: Othniel and Saraia. And the sōnes of Othniel were Hathath.

And Meonothi begat Ophrah. And Seraia begat Joab the father of the valeye of craftes men (so called) because they were craftes men. And the sonnes of Caleb the sonne of Jephune were: Iru, Ela and Naā. And the sonne of Ela was Kenas. And the sonnes of Jehalelel were ziph, and ziphah, Thiria and Asarel. And the sonnes of Ezra: were: Jether, and Mered, Epher, Jalon, Thahar, and Miriam, and Sammai, and Isbah the father of Esthemoa. And hys wyfe Jehudia bare Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Socho, and Jeruthiel the father of zanoah. And these are the sonnes of Bithiah the daughter of Pharao, whych Mered toke. The sonnes of the D wyfe of Hodia the syster of Nahan the father of Keilah were: Barmi, and Esthemoa. the Maachathite. The sonnes of Symon were: Ammon, and Rimna, Benhanan and Thilon. And the sonnes of Jissi were: zoheth, and Benzoheth.

*ge.xxxviij.g *The sonnes of Selah the sonne of Juda were: Er the father of Lecha, and Laada the father of Maresa, and the kynredes of the householdes of them that wrought linnen in the house of Asbea. And Jokim and the men of Chozebah, and Joas, and Saraph, whych had the dominyon in Moab, and Jasubi Lehem: These also are wordes of olde. These were potters, and dwelt there amonge trees & hedges, nye vnto the kynge: because of hys worke.

The sonnes of Simeon were: Nemuel, E Jamin, Jarib, zerah and Saul: whose sonne was Sallum: and the sonne of hym was Mibsam, and hys sonne was Misma. And the sonne of Misma was Hamuel, and hys sonne was zachur, and the sonne of hym was Simehi. Semehi had syxtene sonnes & syxe daughters. But hys brethren had nott manye chyldren, neyther was all the kynred of them lyke to the chyldren of Juda in multytude. And they dwelt at Beersheba, Molada, and at Hazar Sual, at Bilha, at Ezem, and at Tholad, at Bethuel, at Horma, and at ziklag, at Bethmarcaboth, Hazar Susim, at Bethbirei, and at Saaraim. These were theyr cityes vnto the raygne of Dauid. And theyr vyllages were: Etan, and Ain, Rimmon, Tochen and Asan, fyue townes: and all theyr vyllages that were rounde aboute the same cytyes vnto Baal. F Thys is the habitacyon of them, and theyr genealogie.

¶ The genealogye of Ruben and Gad and of the halfe tribe of Manasse.

A THe sonnes of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel: for aslmoche as he was the eldest, * and had defyled hys fathers bedd, his byrthryght was geuen vnto the sonnes of Joseph the sonne of Israel. Howbeit, the genealogy is not rekoned after this byrthryght. For Juda, he preuayled aboue hys brethren, and of this tribe came ꝑ chefe, and the byrthryght was geuen to Joseph.

* Gen.xlix.a Deu.xxi.b. Num.xxvi.a.

The sonnes then of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel were: Henoch, Phalu, Hezron and Charmi.

The sonnes of Joel: Samaiah: hys sonne, Gog hys sonne, and Semhi hys sonne, Micah hys sonne, Reaia hys sonne, and Baal hys sonne, Beera hys sonne. Whome Thiglath Pylneser kynge of Assyria caryed awaye: for he was a great lorde amõg the Rubenites. And when hys brethren in theyr kynredes, rekoned the genealogye of theyr generacyõs: Jeiel and zachariah were the chefe.

And Baal the sonne of Azan, the sonne of Sema, the sonne of Joel, dwelt in Aroer: and so forthe vnto Nebo and Baalmeon.

B And eastwarde, he enhabited vnto the entrynge in of the wyldernesse, from theryuer Euphrates: for they had moche catell in the lande of Gilead.

And in the dayes of Saul, they warred with the Hagarites, which were ouerthrowen into theyr hande. And they dwelte in theyr tentes throwout all the east lande of Gilgal.

And the chyldren of Gad dwelte ouer against them in the lande of Basan, euen vnto Salcha. And in Basan, Joel was ꝑ chefest, and Saphan the nexte, then Janai and Saphat. And theyr brethren of the housholde of theyr fathers, were Michael, Meosuesam, Seba, Jozai, Jahean, zia, Eber, Senen. These are the chyldren of Abihail the sonne of Huri, the sonne of Jeroah, the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Michael, the sonne of Jesisai, the sonne of Jahdo, the sonne of Buz. Ahi (the sonne of Abdiel, the sonne of Guni) was a captayne of the housholde of theyr fathers. And they dwelt in Gilead, in Basan, and in her townes, and in all the suburbes of Saron, and in theyr borders.

C All these were rekoned by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kynge of Juda, and in the dayes of Jeroboam kyng of Israel. The sonnes of Ruben, and of Gad, and of halfe the tribe of Manasse, were eyghtynge men, and able to beare shylde and swearde, and to shote with bowe, excercysed in warre, euen foure and fourtye thousande, seuen hundred and threskore, that wente out to the warre. And they fought with the Hagarites, with Jetur, Nephis and Nodab. And they were helped of the Lorde against thẽ, and the Hagarites were delinered into their hande, and so were all that were with them. For they cryed to God in the battayll, and he hearde them, because they put theyr trust in hym. And they toke of theyr catell and of theyr camels, fyftye thousande, and two hundred and fyftye thousande shepe, and two thousande asses, and of the soules of men, an hondred thousande: and there fell many wounded, because ꝑ warre was of God. And they dwelt in theyr steades, vntyll the tyme that they were caryed awaye.

D And the chyldren of ꝑ halfe tribe of Manasse dwelt in the lande, from Basan vnto Baal Hermon, and Semir, and vnto mount Hermon: for they were growne to a greate multitude. And these were the heedes of the housholdes of theyr fathers: Epher, and Jesi, Eliel and Azriel, Jeremia and Hodauia, and Jaohdiel, stronge men and valeaunt, famouse men, and heedes of the housholdes of theyr fathers.

And they transgressed agaynste the God of theyr fathers, and went a whorynge after the goddes of the people of the land, whõ God destroyed before them: and God stered vp the spyrte of Phul kynge of Assiria, and the spyrte of Thiglath Pilneser kynge of Assiria, and caryed them awaye: euen the Rubenytes, the Gaddites, and ꝑ halfe tribe of Manasse, and brought them vnto Halah, habor, Hara: and to the ryuer Gozan, vnto thys daye.

¶ The battell of Saul agaynſt the Philiſtines: in whych he dyeth, and hys ſonnes alſo.

A And the Philiſtines fought agaynſt Iſrael. *And the mẽ of Iſrael fled before the Philiſtines, & were ouerthrowen & woũded in Mounte Gilboa. And ỹ Philiſtines folowed, & were fearce after Saul & his ſonnes. & the Philiſtines ſmote Jehonathan & Abinadab & Malchiſua the ſonnes of Saul: And the battell went ſore agaynſt Saul, *1.reg.xxxi.a and.b.

Saul, & the archers founde hym, and he was woũded of ſhoters. Then ſayde Saul to his wepõ bearer * drawe thy ſwerde, and thruſt me thorow therwith, that theſe vncircũciſed come not and do me ſhame. But hys wepon bearer wolde not, for he feared exceadynglye. So Saul caught a ſwerde, and fell vpon it. Judi.ix.g. 1.reg.xxxi.b And when his harneſbearer ſawe that Saul B was deed, he fell on a ſwerde alſo and dyed.

And thus Saul and his thre ſonnes, and all they of hys houſe dyed together. And whẽ all the men of Iſrael that were in the valeye, ſawe howe they fled, and that Saul and his ſonnes were deed, they forſoke theyr cyties and ranne awaye, and the Philiſtines came, and dwelt in them.

C *1.reg.xxxi.c * And it fortuned that on the morowe when the Philiſtines came to ſtripe the deed bodies) they foũde Saul & hys ſonnes ouerthrowen in mount Gilboe. And when they had ſtript hym, they toke hys heed, and hys harneſſe, and ſent them into the lande of the Philiſtines roundeabout to ſhewe thẽ vnto theyr Idols, and to the people. And they put his harneſſe in the houſe of theyr God, & ſet vp hys heade in the temple of Dagon.

D And when all they of Jabes in Gilead hearde all that the Philiſtines had done to Saul: they aroſe (all the ſtrongeſt of them) and fet awaye the body of Saul, and the bodyes of his ſonnes, and brought them to Jabes, and buryed the bones of them vnder an oke in Jabes and faſted ſeuen dayes.

So Saul dyed for hys treſpace that he treſpaced agaynſt the Lorde, in ỹ he kept not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he ſought and aſked councell of a womã that wrought with a ſpyrite, and aſked not of ỹ Lorde. And therfore he ſlue hym, and turned the kyngdome vnto Dauid the ſonne of Iſai.

¶ After the deeth of Saul is Dauid annoynted in Hebron. The Iebuſites rebell agaynſt Dauid, frõ which he taketh the Towre of Syon. Hys men are nõbred.

A 2.reg.v.b Then all Iſrael gathered them ſelues to Dauid vnto Hebron * ſayenge: Behold, we be thy bones and thy fleſſhe. And moreouer in tyme paſt, euen when Saul was kynge, thou leddeſt Iſrael out & in. And the Lorde thy God ſayde vnto the: thou ſhalt fede my people Iſrael, and thou ſhalt be captayne ouer my people Iſrael. Therfore came all the elders of Iſrael to the kynge, to Hebron, and Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron, before the Lorde. And they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer *1.Par.xi.a. Iſrael, * accordyng to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Samuel.

And Dauid and all Iſrael went to Jeruſalem, which is Jebus: where as were ỹ Jebuſytes, the enhabiters of the lande. And the enhabiters of Jebus ſayde to Dauid: thou cõmeſt not here. Neuertheleſſe, Dauid wanne the caſtell of Syon, which is called the cytie 25 of Dauid. And Dauid: * ſayde, whoſoeuer *2.Reg.v.b ſmyteth the Jebuſytes fyrſt, ſhalbe the principall captayne and a Lorde. So, Joab the ſonne of zaruia went fyrſt vp, and was made the cheke captayne. And Dauid dwelt in the caſtell Syon, and therfore they called it the cytie of Dauid. And he buylt ỹ cytie on euery ſyde, euen from Hillo roundeabout, and Joab repared ỹ reſt of the cytie. And Dauid proſpered, and wared greate, and the Lorde of Hoſtes was with hym.

C * These are the principall men of power *2.Regũ. whom Dauid had, and that clene to hym in xxiii.a. hys kyngdome with all Iſrael, to make hym kynge, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde vnto Iſrael. And this is the nombre of the myghtye men whom Dauid had: Joſobeam the ſonne of Hachmoni the cheke amõge thirtye: he lyfte vp hys ſpere agaynſt thre hundred, and woũded them at one tyme.

After hym was Eleazar his vncles ſõne an Ahothite, which was one of the thre myghtyeſt. He was with Dauid at Paſdammim, & there the Philiſtines were gathered together to battell. And there was there a parſell of grounde full of barleye, and the people fled before the Philiſtines. And they, the thre afore ſayde, ſtept forth into the middes of the felde, and ſaued it from burnynge and ſlue the Philiſtines. And the Lorde gaue a great victorye.

And the thre of the thyrtye chefe captaynes went to a rocke to Dauid, into the caue D Adullam. And the hoſte of the Philiſtines abode in the valey of Rephaim. And whan Dauid was in the holde, ỹ Philiſtines watch was at Bethlehem ỹ ſame time. And Dauid longed, & ſayde: * Oh that one wolde gene *2.Regum. me dryncke of the water of the well that is at xxiii.c. the gate at Bethlehẽ. And the thre brake thorowe the Hoſt of the Philiſtines, and drewe water out of the well, that was by the gate at Bethlehẽ: & toke it, and brought it to Dauid. Neuertheleſſe, Dauid wolde not drynke of it, but rather offered it to the Lorde, and ſayde: my God forbyd it me, that I ſhulde do thys thynge. Shall I dryncke the bloude of theſe men, that haue put theyr lyues in Jeopardye? (for with the Jeopardye of theyr lyues they brought it) therfore he wolde not drincke it. And this did theſe thre myghtyeſt.

And Abiſai the brother of Joab: he alſo E was captayne amonge thre: for he lyfte vp hys ſpere agaynſt thre hundred, & woũded them, and had a name amonge the thre: Yee amonge thre, he was more honorable then ỹ two, for he was their captayne. Howbeit, he attayned not vnto the *(great) thre. 40

Banaia the ſonne of Jehoiada (the ſonne of a very ſtronge man) dyd greater actes then

then Cabzeel: for he slue two strong lyons of Moab, and went downe, and slue a Lyon in a pyt in time of snowe. And he slue an Egyptian, whose stature was euen fyue cubytes longe, & in the Egyptians hãde was a speare lyke a weauers beame. And the other went downe to hym with a waster, and plucked ỹ speare out of the Egyptians hande, and slue him wt his awne speare. Soche thynges dyd Banaia the sõne of Iehoiada, & had ỹ name amõge the thre myghtyest, & was honorable amõg thirtie: but attayned not vnto ỹ (first) three. And Dauid made him of hys councell.

The other mẽ of armes were these: Asahel ỹ brother of Joab, Elhanan hys vncles sonne of Bethlehem. Sammoth the Harodite, Helez the Pelonite: Ira the sonne of Ikkes ỹ Thekoite, Abieser the Anatothite: Sibacai the Husathite, Ilai the Ahohite: Maharai ỹ Nethophathite, Heled the sonne of Baana ỹ Nethophatite. Ithai the sonne of Ribai of Gibea that pertayneth to the childzen of Bẽiamin: Benaia the Phirathonite: Hurai of the ryuers of Gaas, Abiel the Arbathite: Azmaueth the Baharumite, Eliahba the Saalbonite. The sonnes of Hassem the Gezonite, Jonathan the sonne of Sage, an Hararite. Ahiam the sonne of Sacar the Hararite, Eliphal the sonne of Ur. Hepher the Mecherathite, Ahia the Pelonite: Hezro ỹ Carmelite, Naari ỹ sonne of Ezbai: Joel ỹ brother of Nathan: Mibhar the sonne of Hagri: zelegã the Ammonite, Naharai a Berothite the bearer of the harnesse of Joab the sonne of zeruia: Ira the Ithrite, & Gared a Jethrite. Uria the Hethite, and zabad the sonne of Ahlai. Adina the sonne of Siza a Rubenite, a captayne of the Rubenites, and thyrtie wt him. Hanan the sonne of Maacah, and Josaphat a Mithamite: Uzia an Astherathite: Sama and Jehiel the sonnes of Hothan an Aroerite: Jediel the sonne of zimri, and Joha hys brother an Hathizite. Eliel a Mahanyte, Jeribai & Josaia the sonnes of Elnaam, and Ithma a Moabite. Eliel and Obed, and Jasiel a Mesobaite.

The. xii. Chapter.

What they were that went with Dauid when he fledde from Saul.

A These are they that came to Dauid to ziklag, whyle he yet kept hym selfe close, because of Saul ỹ sonne of Cis: and they were very stronge helpers in battell. They were weapened with bowes, & coulde hurle stones with the ryght hãde and with the lyft and shote arowes oute of a bowe, & were of Sauls brethren, euẽ of Beniamin. The chefest were Ahiezer, and Joas ỹ sonnes of Simaa a Gibeonite, and Jeziel and Pelet the sonnes of Asmaueth. Beracah and Jehu of Anathoth. And Ismaia a gilbeonite a mighty man amonge thyrtie, and more then the thyrtie. Jeremiah, Jehaziel, Johanan, & Josabad of Gedor. Eleusai, Jerimoth Bealia Semaria, and Seaphatia, the Haraphites. Elcana, Iesia, Azarael, Joezer, Jasebeam Hakorim. Joela and zebadiah the sonnes of Jeroam of Gedur.

B And of the Gadites there separated them selues, some vnto Dauid into the holde of ỹ wyldernesse, men of myghte, and men apte for warre, & ỹ coulde hãdle shylde and speare, whose faces were lyke the faces of Lions, and they were as swyfte as the Roes in the mountaynes: Ezer the fyrst, Obdia the secõde, & Eliab the thyrde, Masmana the fourth, Jeremia the fyfte. Atthai the syxte, Eliel the seuenth, Johanan the eyght, Elsabath the nynth, Jeremia the tenth, and Machbaonai the eleuenth. These were of ỹ sonnes of Gad, and were captaynes ouer the men of warre, the small pursued an hundred, and the great a thousande. These are they that went ouer Jordan in the fyrst moneth when he had fylled ouer all hys banckes. And they put to flyght all them of the valeye both towarde the East and Weste.

C And there came of the childzen of Beniamin and Juda to the holde vnto Dauid. And Dauid wẽt out to mete them and answered, and sayde vnto thẽ, If ye be come peasably vnto me, to helpe me, myne hert shalbe knytt vnto you. But and yf you come to betraye me to myne aduersaryes (seynge ther is no wyckednes in myne handes) the God of oure fathers loke theron and rebuke it. And the sparyte came vpon Amasai which was the chefe amonge thyrtye, and he sayde, thyne are we Dauid, and on thy syde thou sonne of Jesai: * Peace, peace be vnto the, and peace be to thyne helpers, for thy God is thyne helpe. Then Dauid receaued them, and made them heedes of companyes of the men of warre. * God.filij.

D And there fell some of Manasse to Dauid when he came with the Philistines agaynst Saul to battell, * but they helped them not for ỹ Lordes of the Philistines toke aduysement and sent hym a waye agayne sayinge he wyll fall to hys Master Saul to the ieopardie of oure heedes. As he went to ziklag, there fell to hym of Manasseh: Adna Jozadad, Jediel, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu and zilthai, heedes of the thousandes that were of Manasse. And they holpe Dauid agaynst the rouers. For they were all myghtie mẽ of warre, and captaynes in the hoost. For at that tyme there came one or other to Dauid daye by daye to helpe hym: vntyll it was a greate hoost, lyke the hoost of God. * 1.Sam.xxix.

And this is the nõbre of the chefe captaynes that were prepared to battell, and came to Dauid to Hebron, to turne the kyngdome of Saul of Saul to hym, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

E The childzen of Juda that bare shylde & speare, were syxe thousande and eyght hundzed ready prepared to ỹ warre. Of the childzen of Simeon, men of myght to warre, seuen thousande and one hundzed. Of the childzen of Leui, foure thousande and syxe hundzed. And Jehoiada was the cheke of them of Aaron, and with him thre thousande and seuen hũdzed. And zadock a younge man strõg and valeaunt & of his fathers housholde. xxii captaynes. And of the childzen of Beniamin the bzethzen of Saul, thre thousande. And a greate parte of them dyd (vnto that tyme) folowe the house of Saul.

And of the childzen of Ephraim. xx. thousande & eyght hundzed mightye men of warre and famous men in the housholde of their fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manasseh xviii. thousande, which were appoynted by name to come and make Dauid kynge. And of the childzen of Issacar, which were men ỹ had vnderstandynge in the ryght tyme, to knowe (howe to cõmaunde) what Israel ought to do. The heedes of them were two hũdzed and all their bzethzẽ were at their wyll. And of zabulõ that went out to the battayll and proceded forth to the warre, wt all maner of instrumentes of warre, fyftye thousand that were prepared to the warre, without anye dublenesse of hart. And of Nephthali a thousande captaynes, and with them (with shyld & speare) xxxvii. thousande. And of Dan prepared to battel. xxviii. thousande & syxe hundzed. And of Asser that went out to the warre, & kepte the forefront of the batell, fourtye thousand. And of ỹ other syde of Jordan, of ỹ Rubenites, and Gaddites & of the halfe tribe of Manasse, with all maner of instrumentes of warre, an hundzed & twentye thousande.

All these were men of warre, keppynge the forefront of the batell with perfect hart, and came to Hebron to make Dauid kynge ouer all Israel. And all the rest of Israel was of one accorde, to make Dauid king. And there they were with Dauid thre dayes, eatynge and drinckinge: for theyr bzethzen had prepared for them. Moreouer they that were nye them, vntyll Issacar, zabulõ and Nephtali, brought breade on Asses, Camels, Mules, & oxen, and meate: floure, kygges, raysynges, wyne and oyle, oxen, and shepe aboundãtlie. For there was ioye in Israel.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Arcke is brought agayne from Kariath Jarim to Jerusalem. Uza (otherwyse called Osa) dyeth.

A And Dauid counceled with the capitaynes of thousandes and hundzedes, & with all ỹ Lordes, and sayd vnto all the congregacyon of Israel: If it seme you good, and to be of the Lorde oure God, we wyll take and sende vnto oure bzethzen that are left in all the lãde of Israel, & with them also, to the preastes and Leuites which are in their cyties & Suburbes, togather thẽ together vnto vs. And we wyll bzynge agayne ỹ Arcke of the Lorde to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the cõgregaciõ was cõtent that he shulde do so, for the thyng semed good in ỹ eyes of all the people.

So Dauid gathered all Israel together from Sihor in Egypte, vnto ỹ entrynge of Hemath, to bzinge the arcke of the Lorde from kyriath Jearim. And Dauid went vp & all Israel to an hye place towarde kyriath Jearim, that was in Juda, to fet thence the arcke of the Lord God, that dwelleth betwẽ the Cherubes: where hys name is called on. And they caryed the Arcke of God in a newe carte out of ỹ house of Abinadab. And Uza & hys brother guyded ỹ carte. And Dauid & all Israel played before the arcke of God wt all theyr myght, with syngyng, and harpes, psalteries, & tymbzelles and trompettes. And when they came vnto the threshynge flowre of Chidon, Uza put forth his hande to holde the arcke, for the oxen (bepnge a lytle wylde) stõbled. And the Lorde was wroth with Uza, and smote hym, because he put hys hande to the arcke. And there he dyed before God. And Dauid was out of quyete, because the Lorde had rent a rent in Uza, & he called the name of that place: ỹ rẽtyng of Uza vnto this daye And Dauid was afrayde of God that daye saying: howe shall I bringe the arcke of God home to me? And so Dauid brought not the arcke home to hym to ỹ cytie of Dauid: But caried it into the house of ObedEdom a Gethite. And the arcke of God remayned with ObedEdom, euen in hys house, thre monethes. And he blessed the house of ObedEdom and all that he had.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Hyram sendeth worde and workemen to Dauid which hath two victories of the Philistines.

SO Hyram the kynge of Tyre sent messengers to Dauid & tymbze of Cedar trees, with masons and carpenters, to buylde hym an house. And Dauid perceaued, that the Lorde had confirmed hym kynge vpon Israel, and that hys kyngdome was lyfte vp on hye, because of hys people Israel. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalẽ, and begat mo sonnes and daughters. These are the names of hys childzen, which were borne vnto him at Jerusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan and Salomon: Jibhar, Elisua and Elipalet, Noga, Nepheg and Japhia. Elisama, Beeliada and Eliphalet.

And when the Philistines heard ỹ Dauid was anoynted kynge vpon all Israel, all the Philistines

Philistines went vpto seke Dauid. And Dauid heard of it, and wēt oute agaynst them. And the Philistines came in, & praunsed thorowe the valey of Rephaim. And Dauid asked cōcell at God saying: shall I go against the Philistines, and wylt thou delyuer them into myne hande? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: go vp, for I wyll delyuer thē into thine hāde. And so they came vp to Baal Perazim & Dauid smote them there. And Dauid sayd: God hath deuided myne enemies with myne hande, as a man wolde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place Baal Perazim. And whā they had lefte theyr gods there, Dauid gaue a commaundment, and they were burnt with fyre.

And the Philistines came together agayne & rushed into ỹ valley. And Dauid asked agayne at God. And God sayde to hym: go not vp after thē, but turne awaye from thē, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer agaynst the peeretres. And when thou hearest a sound go in the toppes of the peeretrees, thē go out to battell: for God is gone forth before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. Dauid therfore dyd as God cōmaunded him: & they smote the hoste of the Philistines, frō Gibeon to Gazer. And ỹ fame of Dauid wēt out into all landes, and the Lorde made all nacyons feare hym.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

¶ The Leuites bynge the Arcke agayne. Dauid dauncyng before it, is despysed of his wyfe Michol.

AND Dauid made hym houses in ỹ cytie of Dauid, and prepared a place for the arcke of God, pytched for it a tent. Then Dauid sayde. the arcke of God ought not to be caryed but of the Leuites. For them hath the Lord chosen to beare the arcke of the Lorde, and to minister vnto hym for euer. And Dauid gathered all Israell together to Jerusalem, to fetche the arcke of the Lorde vnto hys place which he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought together the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cahath was Uriel the chefe, and of hys brethren there were an hundred and. xx. Of the chyldren of Merari: Asaia the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred and. xx. Of the sonnes of Gerson: Joel the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elizapan: Semaia the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of hebron: Eliel the chefe, and of hys brethren. lxxx. Of the sonnes of Uziel: Aminadab the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and twelue.

And Dauid called zadock and Abiathar the preastes, and the Leuites, Uziel, Asaia Joel, Semaia, Eliel and Aminadab: & sayde vnto them: ye that are the principall fathers of the Leuites, se that ye be holy with youre brethren, that ye maye bringe in the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the fyrst, ỹ Lord oure God made a rent amonge vs, for that we sought hym not as the fashyon ought to be. So the preastes and the Leuites sanctifyed them selues, to fett the Arcke of the Lord God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Leuites bare the Arcke of God, vpon theyr shulders with staues theron, as Moses commaunded accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

And Dauid spake to the chefe heedes of ỹ Leuites, that they shulde appoynte certayne of theyr brethren to synge with instrumentes of Musicke, psalteries, harpes and symbales that they might make a sounde, and to synge on hye with Joyfulnesse: And ỹ Leuites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and (of his brethren) Asaph the sonne of Berechia: And of the sonnes of Merari and of theyr brethrē Ethan the sonne of Cusaiahu. And with thē theyr brethren of the secōde degree: zacharia, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiahu, Maasiah, Mathathiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikneiahu, Obed Edō, & Jaiel, porters. So Hemā, Asaph & Ethan the syngers made a sounde with symbales of brasse And zacharia, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maasaiahu and Banaiahu played with psalteries on an Alamoth. Mathathiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikneiahu, Obed Edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah played vpon harpes an eyght aboue, with courage. And Chenaniahu the cheke of the Leuites, was master of the songe, for he taught other to synge, because he was a man of vnderstandynge.

Berecia and Elcana kepte the doze of the Arcke. And Secaniahu, Jehosaphat, Nethanael, Amasai, zachariahu, Banaiahu & Eliezeer the preastes dyd blowe with trompettes before the Arcke of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia were kepers of ỹ doze of the arcke.

* And Dauid and the elders of Israel and the capitaynes ouer thousandes, went to fet the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of the house of Obed Edom with gladnes. And when God helped the leuites, that bare the Arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde, they offered seuen oxen, and seuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym a lynnen garmēt, lyke as had also all the Leuites that bare the Arcke, and so had the syngers, and Chenania ỹ ruler of the songe, with the syngers. And Dauid had vpon hym an Ephod of lynen. And all they of Israel brought the Arcke of the Lordes couenaunt with showtynge, and blowyng of the shawme and trōpettes: makynge a noyse with symbales, psalterues, and harpes.

And as the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol

chol the daughter of Saul, lokynge out at a wyndowe, sawe kyng Dauid daunsyng and playinge, and she despysed hym in her herte.

¶ The.xvi. Chapter:

¶ Dauid ordeyneth Asaph and hys brethren, to minister before the Lorde. He hym selfe prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

AND they brought in ỹ arcke of God and set it in the myddes of the tent that Dauid pytched for it. And they offered burnt sacrifyces and peace offerynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offerynge the burntofferynges and peaceofferynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde. And he dealt to all Israel (both man & woman) a cracknell of breade, and a good pece of flesshe, and a flacket of wyne.

And he appoynted certen of the Leuites to minister before the Lorde, & to repete, & to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israel. And Asaph was the chefe, & next to hym zacharia, Jeiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Mathathia, Eliab, Benaia, * Obed Edom, & Jeiel with psalteries & harpes. But Asaph made a sounde with symbales. Banaiahu & Jahaziel preastes blewe wt trōpettes continuallye before the Arcke of the couenaunt of God.

And that same tyme Dauid did appoynte chefelye to thanke the Lorde, by Asaph & his brethren. * O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, call vpon hys name, make hys actes knowē amonge the people.

Synge vnto him & playe vnto him: talke of all hys wonderfull dedes. Reioyce in hys holy name: let the hertes of thē that seke the Lorde, be glad. Seke the Lorde and hys strēgthe: Seke hys presence allwaye.

Remembre his marueiles which he dyd, and hys wonders, & the iudgementes of hys mouth. The seed of Israel are hys seruauntes: the chyldren of Jacob are hys chosen. He is the Lorde oure God: in all landes are hys iudgementes. Thynke on hys appoyntment for euer, (and on the worde which he commaunded to a thousande generacīōs.) Which he made with Abraham, and of hys othe to Isahac: which he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euerlastynge couenaunt, sayinge: to the wyll I geue the lande of Canaā, to be the porcyon of youre enheritaunce. When you were fewe and smalle in nombre, and sogeourners therin. And they walked from nacyon to nacyon, and frō one kyngdome to another people. He suffered no man to do them wronge: but rebuked, euen kynges for theyr sakes. Touche not myne anoynted, and do my prophetes no harme.

* Synge vnto the Lorde all the erthe: and shewe from daye to daye hys Saluacyon.

Tell of hys glorye amōge the heithen: his wonderfull dedes amonge all nacyons.

For greate is the Lorde, and worthy to be praysed exceadyngly: he is to be feared aboue all Gods.

For all the Gods of the people are of no value: But the Lorde made heauen.

Prayse and honoure are in hys presence: strength and gladnes are in hys place.

Ascrybe vnto the Lorde ye kynredes of people, Ascrybe to the Lorde, glorye and domynion. Ascrybe vnto the Lorde, the glorye due vnto hys name: bringe sacrifyces, and come before hym, and worshippe the Lorde with holy honoure.

Let all the erth feare hym, all though the compase of ỹ erthbe so stablyshed that it cannot be moued: let the heauēs reioyse, and let the erth be glad, and lett men tell among the nacyons, that the Lorde is kynge.

Let the see thunder and the fulnesse therof lett the feldes reioyse, and all that is therin.

Then shall the trees of the wood reioyse at the presence of the Lorde, because he commeth to iudge the erth. O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, for he is good, for hys mercye endureth euer: and saye ye: saue vs (o God) of oure saluacion, geather vs to gether, and delyuer vs frōamonge the hethē, that we maye geue thankes to thy holy name, & triūphe in the prayse of the. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel for euer & euer, and let all people saye Amen, and prayse the Lorde.

And so, he lefte there before the arcke of ỹ Lordes couenaunt, Asaph & hys brethren, to minister before the Arcke cōtinually, in soch thynges as were to be done daye by daye, (and that by theyr courses.) And Obed Edom & hys brethren, threskore and eyght, and Obed Edom the sonne of Jedithun, and Hosa were apoynted to be porters. And zadock ỹ preast and hys brethren the preastes, were before ỹ tabernacle of ỹ Lorde, in the hye place ỹ was at Gibeō, to offer burntofferynges vnto the Lorde, vpō the burntoffering aultare perpetuallye, in the mornyng and euenyng, accordyng to all ỹ which is written in the lawe of the Lorde, which he cōmaunded Israel. And with them were Heman & Jedithun, & other that were chosē (whose names were expressed) to geue thankes to the Lorde, ỹ his mercye lasteth euer. And with them dyd Heman and Jedithun, synge with the trompettes & symbales, symbales makynge a swete melody with instrumentes of Musycke and godly songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were porters. And all the people departed, euery man to hys house: and Dauid returned to blesse hys house.

¶The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ Dauid is forbydden to buylde an house vnto the Lorde. Christ is promysed vnder the figure of Salomon.

A AND it fortuned ꝑ whan Dauid dwelt in hys house, he sayde to Nathan the prophete: lo, I dwell in * an house of Cedar tree: but the Arcke of the Lordes couenaunt remayneth vnder curtaynes. And Nathan sayd to Dauid: do all that is in thyne herte, for God is with the.

* ii.Re.vii.a

And the same nyght it fortuned that the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: go and tell Dauid my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lorde, thou shalt not buylde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I brought out the chyldren of Israel vnto thys daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habitacyon to another. And wherlocuer I haue walked wyth all Israel, spake I euer one worde to anye of the iudges of Israell (whom I commaunded to fede my people,) sayinge: why haue ye not buylt me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore, thus shalt ꝑ saye vnto my seruaũt Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes: I toke the out of the pastures whan thou wentest after shepe, that thou shuldest be captayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene wt the whither soeuer thou hast walked, & haue weded out all thyne enemyes out of thy sight & haue made ꝑ a name, lyke ꝑ name * (of one) of the greatest men that are in the erthe. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel and made it faste, so that nowe they maye dwell in theyr place, and moue nomore. Neither shall the chyldren of wyckednesse vexe them any moare as at the begynnynge. And sence the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel, I haue subdued all thyne enemies, and I tolde the, that the Lorde wolde buylde the an house.

C Thys also shall come to passe: when thy dayes be expired, ꝑ thou must go vnto thy fathers, I wyll rayse vp thy seed after ꝑ which shalbe of thy sonnes, and I wyll prepare for hym the kyngdome. He shall buylde me an house, and I wyll stablisshe his seate for euer. I wylbe hys father, and he shalbe my sonne, and I wyll not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from hym that was before the. But I wyll sett hym in myne house and in my kyngdome for euer, and hys seate shalbe sure for euermore.

According to all these wordes, and according to all thys visyõ, dyd Nathã tell kinge Dauid. And Dauid the kynge came & sat before the Lorde, & sayde: what am I (O Lord God,) and what is myne household, that thou hast promoted me thus farre? And yet thys semed lyttel in thyne eyes, O God: But thou hast also spoken of thy seruauntes house for a greate whyle to come: and hast loked vpon me as vpon a man of hye degree (O Lorde God.) What shall Dauid desyre more of the for the honoure of thy seruaũt? For thou hast knowen thy seruaunt: O Lorde for thy seruauntes sake, euẽ according vnto thyne awne hert hast thou done all thys magnificence, to shewe all great thinges. Lorde, there is none lyke the, neither is there anye God saue thou, according to all that we haue heard wt oure eares. Moreouer, what nacion on the erth is lyke thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and redeme thẽ to be hys awne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terriblenesse, with castyng out nacyons from before thy people, whõ thou hast delyuered out of Egypte?

D Thy people of Israel dyddest thou make thyne awne people for euer, and thou becamest theyr God. Therfore nowe Lorde, let the thynge that thou hast spoken cõcernynge thy seruaunt and hys house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hast sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnifyed for euer, that it maye be sayde: the Lorde of hoostes is the God of Israel (euẽ the God of Israel) & the house of Dauid thy seruaũt endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast tolde thy seruaunte, ꝑ thou wylt buylde him an house. And therfore thy seruaũt hath founde in hys hert to praye before the. And nowe Lord, thou art God, and hast promised thys goodnesse vnto thy seruaunte. Nowe therfore, let it be thy pleasure to blesse ꝑ house of thy seruaunt, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lorde) the same is blessed for euer.

¶The.xviii.Chapter.

¶ The Battelles of Dauid agaynst the Philistines.

A AND after this it fortuned, ꝑ Dauid smote the Philistines, and subdewed them, & toke Gethe the townes ꝑ * longed therto, * ii.re.viii.a out of the hande of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, and the Moabites became Dauids seruauntes, and payde hym tribute. And Dauid smote Hadarezer kynge of Zoba vnto Hanath, as he went to stablisshe hys dominion by the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from hym a thousande charettes, & seuen thousande horsemen, & twẽtye thousand fotemen, & lamed all ꝑ charett horses, & reserued of them an hundred charettes. And whẽ the Syriens of Damasco came to helpe Hadadezer kynge of Zoba, Dauid slue of the Syriens .xxii. thousande, and Dauid B subdued subdued Syria Damasco: And the Syriẽs became Dauids seruaũtes, & brought hym trybute. And the Lorde preserued Dauid in all that he went to.

And Dauid toke ꝑ shyldes of golde that were on the seruauntes of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. And frõ Tebhath & from Chun (cyties of Hadarezer) brought Dauid exceadynge moche brasse. Wher wt Salomon made ꝑ brasen lauatorye, * the pillers, & the vesselles of brasse. * iii.Re.vii.b / Iere.iii.c.

C And when Tou kynge of Hemath, heard how Dauid had beaten all the strength of Hadarezer kynge of Zoba, he sent Haduran his sonne to kynge Dauid, to make peace wt hym & to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, & beaten him (for Tou had warrew wt Hadarezer) & Dauid brought, all maner of Jewelles of golde, syluer and brasse wt hym. And kynge Dauid dedicated them vnto the Lorde, with ꝑ syluer & gold ꝑ he brought from all nacyõs, from Edom, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, & from Amalec. And Abisai ꝑ sonne of Zeruia slue of the Edomites in the salte valeye .xviii. thousande, and put Soudiars in Edom, and all the Edomites became Dauids seruauntes. Thus the Lorde kepte Dauid in all ꝑ he toke in hãde.

D And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, & executed iudgemẽt and ryghteousnes amonge all his people. And Joab ꝑ sonne of Zaruia was ouer the hoste, and Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahilud recorder, and Zadock the sonne of Ahitub and Abimelech ꝑ sonne of Abiathar were ꝑ preastes, and Sausa was scribe, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites, and the Phelethites, & the eldest sonnes of Dauid were nexte vnto the kynge.

¶The.xix.Chapter.

¶ Hanon kynge of the sonnes of Ammon, doth greate iniurye to the seruauntes of Dauid.

A AFTER this, it chaunced that * Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his sonne raygned in his steade. And Dauid sayde, I wyll shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon ꝑ sonne of Nahas, because hys father dealt kyndelye with me: And Dauid sent messengers to cõforte hym ouer the deeth of hys father. And the seruauntes of Dauid came into ꝑ lande of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to cõforte hym. But the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde to Hanon: thynkest thou ꝑ Dauid doth honoure thy father in thy syght, ꝑ he hath sent conforters vnto the? Are not hys seruaũtes come to searche, to loke, and to spye out the lande?

* ii.Reg.x.a.

B Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes * (and polde them) and shaued them, and cut of their cootes harde by their buttokes, and sent them awaye. And there went certayne and tolde Dauid, howe ꝑ men were serued. And ꝑ kynge sent to mete them (for ꝑ men were exceadynglye ashamed) and ꝑ kynge sayde: tarye at Jericho, vntyll youre beardes be growen, and then returne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stanke in ꝑ syght of Dauid. Hanon & the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talẽtes of syluer to hyre them charettes & horsemen, out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria Maacha & out of Zoba. And they hyred .xxxii. thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacha & his people, which came, and pytched before Medeba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues togeather frõ their cyties, & came to battel.

C And whan Dauid heard of it, he sent Joab and all ꝑ hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and put them selues in araye to battel before the gate of the cytie. And ꝑ kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues backe in the felde.

When Joab also sawe that ꝑ frõte of the battell was agaynst him before & behynde, he chose out of all the chosen men of Israel, and put them in araye agaynst ꝑ Syrians. And ꝑ rest of the people he delyuered vnto the hande of Abisai his brother, & they put them selues in araye agaynst ꝑ chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: If the Siriãs be to strõg for me, ꝑ shalt succoure me: & yf ꝑ chyldren of Ammon preuayle agaynst ꝑ, I will helpe ꝑ. Plucke vp thyne hert, & let vs playe the men, for oure peoples sake & for ꝑ cyties of oure God, & the Lorde shall do ꝑ which is good in his awne syght. So Joab & the people ꝑ were wt him, drue nye before ꝑ Syriãs vnto ꝑ battayll, & they fled before him. And when ꝑ chyldren of Ammon sawe ꝑ the Syriens were fled, they ranne awaye lykewise before Abisai his brother, and gat them into ꝑ cytie. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

D And when ꝑ Siriẽs sawe ꝑ they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers & fet out ꝑ Siriẽs ꝑ were beyond ꝑ ryuer, & Sophach ꝑ capitayne of ꝑ hoste of Hadadezer wẽt before them. And it was tolde Dauid, & he geathered all Israel, & wẽt togeather ouer Jordan, & came, and set vpon them. And whan Dauid had put him selfe in araye agaynst the Siriens they fought with him. But ꝑ Siriẽs fled before Israel. And Dauid destroyed of the Siriens seuen thousãde charettes, & .xl. thousãd fote men, and kylled Sophach ꝑ captayne of ꝑ hoste. And when ꝑ seruaũtes of Hadarezer, sawe, that they were put to ꝑ worse before thẽ of Israel, they made peace wt Dauid, & became his seruauntes. Nether wolde the Siriens helpe ꝑ chyldren of Ammon any more.

¶ Dauid causeth the people to be nombred: and there dye.lxx.thousande men of the pestilence.

A
ND Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, & prouoked Dauid to nōbre Israel. And Dauid sayde to Joab and to the rulers of ỹ people. Go ye and nōbre Israel from Beer Seba to Dan, and bryng it to me that I maye know the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lorde make hys people an hundred tymes so manye mo as they be. But my Lorde O kīg, are they not all my Lordes seruauntes? why then doth my Lorde requyre thys thynge? why wyll my Lorde be a cause of trespace to Israel?

Neuertheless, the kynges worde preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab departed and walked thorowe out all thē of Israel, and came to Jerusalem agayne & gaue the nombre of the counte of the people vnto Dauid. And all they of Israel were a thousand thousande & an hūdred thousande men that drue swerde: and Juda was. cccc. lxx. thousande men that drue swerd. But ỹ Leuites and Ben Jamin counted he not amōge thē. For ỹ kynges worde was abhominable to Joab. And the Lorde was displeased with thys thynge, and smote Israel. And Dauid sayde vnto God: I haue synned exceadynglye in doynge this thynge. And nowe (I beseche the) do awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunt, for I haue done very folyshlye.

And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids

seer, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid, sayinge: Thus sayth ỹ Lorde: I geue the, the choyse of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth the Lorde. Chose the, ether thre yeares sampyschement, or thre monethes to be destroyed before thyne aduersaryes, and that ỹ swerde of thyne enemyes maye ouertake the: or else the swerde of the Lorde and pestilence in the lande thre dayes, and ỹ Angell of the Lorde destroying thorowe out all ỹ coastes of Israel. And nowe aduise thy selfe, what worde I shall brynge agayne to hym that sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad. I am in an exceadynge straite: Let me fall nowe into the hande of the Lorde, for passynge great are hys mercyes, but let me not fall into the hand of men.

So ỹ Lorde sent pestilence vpon Israel, and there were ouerthrowen of Israel. lxx. thousande men. And God sent the Angel in to Jerusalē to destroye in it. And as he was about to destroye, ỹ Lord behelde, and had compassyon on the euyll, and sayde to the Angell ỹ destroyed: it is ynough, let now thyne hande ceasse. And the Angell of the Lorde stode by ỹ threshynge flowre of Ornan the Jebusyte. And Dauid lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe ỹ Angell of the Lord stande betwene ỹ erth and heauen, haynge a drawen swerde in hys hande, stretched out towarde Jerusalem. Then Dauid & ỹ elders of Israel wyche were clothed in sacke, fell vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that cōmaunded ỹ people to be nōbred? It is I that haue synned & done euell in dede, & what haue these shepe done? let thyne hāde (O Lorde my God) be on me and on my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shulde be punysshed.

And the Angell of the Lorde cōmaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shulde go vp, and set vp an aulter vnto the Lorde, in the threshynge flowre of Ornan the Jebusyte. And Dauid went vp accordynge to the sayinge of Gad, which he spake in the name of ỹ Lorde. And Ornan turned aboute, and sawe the Angell, & hys foure sonnes were with hym, and hyd them selues: But Ornan

Ornan was threshyng wheat. And as Dauid came to Ornā, Ornā loked & sawe Dauid, and went out of the threshynge floure, and bowed hym selfe to Dauid wyth his face to the grounde.

And Dauid sayde to Ornan: geue me the place of the threshyng flowre, that I maye buyld an aulter therin vnto the Lord. Thou shalt geue it me for as moche money as it is worthe, that the plage maye ceasse from the people. And Ornan sayde vnto Dauid: take

And kynge Dauid sayd to Ornan: not so, but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worth. For I wyll not take that whych is thyne for the Lorde, ner offer burntoffrynges wythout coast.

And so Dauid gaue to Ornā for that place, sycles of gold. vi. hūdred by waight. And Dauid buylt there an aulter vnto the Lord, and offered burntofferynges & peaceoffrynges, and called vpon the Lord, and he heard hym from heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of burntoffering. And whan the Lord had spoken to ỹ Angell, he put vp his swerd agayne into ỹ shethe of it. At that tyme whē Dauid sawe, that the Lorde had hearde hym in the threshynge flowre of Ornan the Jebusyte: he vsed to offer there. For the tabernacle of the Lord which Moses made in the wildernesse, and the aulter of burntofferynge were at that season in the hyll at Gibeō. And Dauid coulde not go before it to aske councell at God, for he was aferde of the swerde of the Angell of the Lorde.

¶ The.xxij.Chapter.

¶ Dauid willeth hys sonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lorde: wheych thynge he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

A
ND Dauid sayde: thys is ỹ house of the Lorde God, and thys is the aultare for the burntofferynge of Israel.

And Dauid commaūded to geather together the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, and he sett masons to hewe fre stone, for the buylding of the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentie of yrō for nayles and dores of ỹ gates, and to ioyne withall, and aboūdāce of brasse without wayght, and Cedar trees wythout nombre. For the zidons and they of Tyre brought moch Cedar wood to Dauid. And Dauid sayde. Salomon my sonne is yōge and tēder, and the house that is to be buylt for the Lorde, must exceade in greatnesse, ỹ it maye be spoken of and prayse̊d in all lādes. I wyll therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid prepared many thinges before his deeth.

And he called Salomon his sonne, & charged him to buyld an house for the Lord God of Israel. And Dauid sayde to Salomon.

And I haue prepared tymbre and stone, and thou mayest puide more therto. Moreouer, thou hast workemen wyth the pnowe, & masons and carpenters to worke in stone & tymbre, and many men ỹ be actiue for euery worke. And of golde, syluer, brasse and yron, there is no nombre. Up therfore, and be doynge, & the Lorde shalbe wyth the.

And Dauid cōmaūded all ỹ lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomō his sonne, saying: Is not ỹ Lord yō God w̄ you? & hath he not geuē you rest on euery syde? for he hath geuen ỹ enhabitoures of ỹ lande into my hande, & the lāde is subdued before the Lord & before his people. Nowe therfore set youre hertes & yō soules, to seke the Lord youre God. Up, and buylde ye the temple of the Lorde God, to bryng the Arcke of the couenaunt of ỹ Lord and the holy vesselles of God, into the house so buylt for the name of the Lorde.

¶ The.xxiij.Chapter.

¶ Dauid beyng olde, ordeyneth Salomon kynge. He causeth the Leuites to be nōbred, & assygneth them to theyr offyces.

A
SO when Dauid was olde and full of dayes, * he made Salomon hys sonne kynge ouer Israel. And then he geathered togeather all ỹ Lordes of Israel wyth the preastes and the Le-uites. And the Leuites were nombred from the age of .xxx. yeare and aboue, and the nõbre and summe of them was .xxxviij. thousande men. Of which .xxiiij. thousande were set to further the worcke of the house of the Lorde. And syxe thousande were officers & Judges. Foure thousande were porters and foure thousande praysed ỹ Lorde with soche instrumentes as was ☞ made to prayse wythall.

And so Dauid put an order amõg thẽ deuidinge thẽ in partes. Of ỹ children of Leui: Gerson, Cahath & Merari: Of the Gersonites was Laadã & Semei. The sonnes of Laadã. the chefe was Jehiel, zethan & Joel, three. The sonnes of Semei: Selomith, Haziel, & Haran, three. These were ỹ aunciẽt fathers of laadã. And ỹ sõnes of Semei were Jahath, zina, Jeus & Beria: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Jahath was the chefe, zina the seconde. But Jeus and Beria had not many sonnes, therfore they were in one rekenynge, accordyng to theyr fathers housholde rekened for one auncient housholde.

The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Izahar, Hebron and Uziel, foure. * The sonnes of Amram: Aaron & Moses. And Aaron was separated, to haue the rule of the holy thynges in the place moost holye, he and hys sonnes for euer: and to burne incense before the Lorde, and to mynistre vnto him, & to blesse in his name for euer. Moses also the man of God, and his children, were named wyth ỹ trybe of Leui. The sonnes of Moses: Gerson and Eliezer. Of the sonnes of Gerson: Sebuel was the chefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rehabia the chefe. And Eliezer had none other sonnes: But the sonnes of Rehabia were very manye. The sonnes of Izahar: Salomith, the chefe. The sonnes of Hebrõ: Jeriahu the fyrst, Amaria the seconde, Jahaziel the thirde, and Jecameam the fourth. The sonnes of Uziel: Micha the fyrst, and Iesia the seconde. The sonnes of Merari: Mahli and Musi. The sonnes of Mahli Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar dyed, and had no sonnes, but daughters, and their brethrẽ the sonnes of Cis toke them. The sonnes of Musi: Mahli, Eder, & Jeremoth, three. These are the children of Leui after the housholde of theyr fathers, euen the auncient of the fathers according to theyr offices, and after ỹ nombre and summe of ỹ names of them that dyd the worcke in the seruice of the house of the Lord, from the age of twentye yeares & aboue. And Dauid sayde: the Lorde God of Israel hath geuen rest vnto his people, that they maye dwell in Jerusalẽ for euer. That the Leuites also shuld nowe nomore beare ỹ tabernacle & all the vesselles for the seruice ther of: for according to the last wordes of Dauid, the Leuites were nombred frõ twẽtye yere and aboue, and their office was vnder the hande of the sonnes of Aaron, for the seruice of the house of the Lorde, in the courtes & celles, and in the purifyinge of all holye thynges, and in the worcke of the seruice of the house of God. In the shewe breed in ỹ fyne flowre, in ỹ meate offeringe, in the wafers of swete breed, in the fryinge panne, in the grydyron, and in all maner of measures and syse, and to stãde euery daye in the mornynge, to thanke and prayse the Lorde, and so lykewyse at euen. And to offer all burntsacrifyces vnto the Lorde, in ỹ Sabbothes, in the newe moones, & on the festfull dayes by nombre and custome cõtinually (as they were commaunded) before the Lorde. And that they shulde wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse, and on the holy place, and on the sonnes of Aaron their brethren, in the seruice of the house of the Lorde.

¶ The .xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Dauid assygneth offices to the sonnes of Aaron.

THese are the deuisyõs of the sonnes of Aarõ: The sonnes of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar & Ithamar. * Nadab also and Abihu dyed before theyr father, & had no chyldrẽ: But Eleazar and Ithamar executed the prestes office. And Dauid ordered them on this maner: zadock of ỹ sonnes of Eleazar, & Ahimelek of ỹ sonnes of Ithamar were accordyng to theyr offices in theyr ministracyõ. And there were mo auncièt mẽ founde amõge ỹ sonnes of Eleazar, then the sonnes of Ithamar. And thus were they ordred together: Amonge ỹ sonnes of Eleazar there were syxtene rulers, according to the housholde of their fathers: & eyght amõg the sonnes of Ithamar according to ỹ household of theyr fathers. And thus were they put in order by lott, ỹ one sorte from the other, & so were there rulers in ỹ Sanctuarye & Lordes before God, as well of ỹ sonnes of Ithamar as of ỹ sonnes of Eleazar. And Simeia the sonne of Nathaneel the Scribe, of the kynred of the Leuites wrote thẽ before the kyng and the Lordes, & before zadock the preast and Ahimelech the sonne of Abiathar, and before the auncièt fathers, before ỹ preastes & the Leuites: one principall household beyng reserued for Eleazar and one for Ithamar.

And the fyrst lot fell to Jehoiarib, & the seconde to Jedaia. The thirde to Harim, & the fourth to Schozim. The fyfte to Melchia, & the syxte to Miamin. The seuẽth to Hakos, & the eyght to * Abia. The nynthe to Jesua, & ỹ tenth to Secamahu. The leuẽth to Eliasib, & the twelueth to Jakim. The thirtenth to Hupa, & the fourtẽth to Jesebeab. The fyftenth to Bilga, & ỹ syxtenth to Immer. The seuẽtenth to Hezir, & ỹ eyghtẽth to Hapzez. The nynetenth to Pathahia, and the twentieth to Jehesekel. The twẽtieth & one to Jachin and ỹ .xxij. to Gamul. The .xxiij. to Delaiahu, and the .xxiiij. to Maasiahu.

These are the ordinaunces of thẽ in their offices, whan they came into the house of the Lorde, accordyng to their maner vnder Aaron their father, as the Lorde God of Israel had commaunded hym.

The rest of the sonnes of Leui, are these: of the sonnes of Amram, Subael. Of ỹ sonnes of Subael, Jehediahu. Of the sonnes of Rehabia, ỹ fyrst Jesia. Of the Jezaharites, Selomoth. Of ỹ sonnes also of Selomoth, Jahath. his sonnes Jeriahu ỹ firste Amariahu ỹ secõde, Jahaziel the thirde, & Jekamcã the fourth. Of the sonnes of Uziel, Micha. Of the sonnes of Micha, Samir. The brother of Micha was Jisia. Of the sonnes also of Jisia zechariahu. The sonnes of Merari, were: Mahli & Musi. The sonnes of Jaaziahu, Beno. The sonnes of Merari by Jahaziahu, Beno, Sohem, zacur & Ibri. Of Mahli came Eleazar & he had no sõnes. Of Kis: the sonnes of Kis: Jerahemeel. The sonnes of Musi: Mahli, Eder and Jerimoth. These are ỹ children of the Leuites after the housholde of their fathers. And these cast lottes next to their brethren the sonnes of Aaron, in the presence of Dauid the kyng, and zadoc & Ahimelec & the auncient fathers, preastes, & Leuites: euen the principall fathers before their ponger brethren. ℟ (the lott made equall distribucyon amonge them all.)

¶ The .xxv. Chapter.

¶ The syngers are appoynted, wyth theyr places, and lottes.

AND so Dauid and the captaynes of ỹ hoste appoynted out to do seruyce, ỹ sonnes of Asaph Heman and Jeduthun, whan they dyd prophesye wyth harpes, psalteries and symbales. ## ¶ The .xxvi. Chapter.

¶ The porters of the temple are ordeyned, euery man to the gate whych he shulde kepe.

THese are the deuisyõs of the porters, Amõge the Corethites: Meselemiahu the sonne of Kore of the chyldren of Asaph.

And the sonnes of Meselemiahu were these: zachariahu the eldest, Jedihel the seconde, zebadiahu the thyrde, and Jathniel the fourth, Elam ỹ fyfte, Jehohanã the sixt, & Elioenai the seuẽth. The sonnes of Obed

Edom: Semeia the eldest, Jehosabad the seconde, Joah the thyrde, Sacar the fourth, & Nethanael the fyfte, Amiel the syxte, Issachar the seuenth, Peulthai the. viij. for God blessed hym.

And vnto Semeia his sonne were sonnes borne, ꝑ ruled in the house of their father, for they were men of myght. The sonnes of Semeia: Othni, Rephael, Obed and Elzabad & hys brethren were stronge men. Elihu and Samahiahu. All these were of the chyldren of Obed Edom, they and their children, and their brethren, actiue men and of strength to do seruice, euen. lxii. of Obed Edō. And Meleniah had sonnes and brethren, actiue men
B xviii. The sonnes of Hosa of the chyldren of Merari: Simri the chefe, & though he was not the eldest, yet his father sett hym in ꝑ chefest place. Helkiahu the seconde, Tebaliahu the thirde, and zechariahu the fourth: all the sonnes and brethren of Hosa were. xiii.

Amonge these was deuyded the offyce of the portershyppe that they shulde be aunciēt men, to wayte wyth theyr brethren, whan they mynistred in the house of the Lord. And they cast lottes, bet wene the great and small after the houshold of their fathers, for euery gate. And the lot on the east syde fell vpon Selemeiahu. And for zachariahu hys sonne (which was a wise counceller) they cast lottes, & hys lot came out towarde the North. And Obed Edoms lot fell to ꝑ South. And for hys sonnes fell the houses of Asuppim. For Suphim and Hosa towarde the west, with the gate that stondeth toward the hyer waye: one watch beynge ouer agaynst another.

In the east were syx Leuites: & towarde the North. iiii. a daye: toward ꝑ South. iiii. a daye, & towarde Asuppim, two & two. In C Pharbar towarde the west: two at ꝑ goyng vp, & two in Pharbar. These are ꝑ deuisyōs of the porters among the sonnes of Korah & amonge the sonnes of Merari. And of the Leuites, Ahiah had the ouersyght of the treasure of the house of God, and of the treasure of the dedicat thynges.

As concernyng ꝑ sonnes of Laadā whych were ꝑ chyldrē of the Gersonites. Of Laadā came aunciēt fathers, Euen of Laadā there came Gersuni & Jehieli. The sonnes of Jehieli: zethan & Joel hys brother, which were ouer the treasures of the house of the Lorde. Of the Amramites also & Izaharites, Hebronites & Ozielites, was Subuel ꝑ sonne of Gerson the sonne of Moses, a ruler ouer the treasures. And of his brethren the sonnes of Eliezer, was Rahabiahu, whose sonne was Isaiahu, whose sonne was Jozā, whose sonne was zichri, whose sonne was Selomith, whych Selomith and hys brethren
G were ouer all the treasures of the dedycate thynges, which Dauid the kynge, & the auncient fathers, the capitaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes, & the captaynes of the hoste, had dedicated out of the spoyles wōne in battels: they dyd dedicate thē to maintayne the house of the Lorde: & all that Samuel the sear, and Saul the sonne of Cis, and Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of zaruia had dedicated, & whosoeuer had dedicate anye thynge, it was vnder the hande of Selomith and of hys brethren.

Of ꝑ Izaharites was Chenaniahu & hys sonnes, appoynted to the busynesse without forth ouer Israel: for they were officers and Judges. And of the Hebronites Hasabiahu & his brethren, men of actiuite a thousande & seuē hundred, were officers amonge them of Israel beyond Jordan westward, in all busynesse belō ging to God, and seruice of the kynge. Amōge ꝑ Hebronites was Jedia the chefest, euen a prince among the Hebronites & fathers of hys kynred. And in the fourtye yeare of the kyngdome of Dauid, they were sought for. And there were found amōge thē men of actiuite at Jazer in Gilead. And hys brethrē were men of actiuite, euē two thousand & seuen hundred, auncient fathers, whō kynge Dauid made rulers ouer the Rubenites, Gaddites, and ouer the halfe trybe of Manasse, for euery matter pertaynynge to God, and for the kynges busynesse.

And of all my sonnes (for ꝑ Lord hath geuē me manye sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to sytt vpō the seat of ꝑ kyngdom of ꝑ Lord in Jsrael. And he sayde vnto me: * Salomō * i.par.xxii.c thy sonne, he shall buyld me an house & courtes, I haue chosen hym to be my sonne, & I wilbe his father. I will stablyshe his kingdōe for euer, If he will be strōg to do my cōmaūdmentes, & my lawes, as it goeth this daye. ii.para.vi.b.

Now therfore, in the syght of all Jsrael the cōgregacyō of ꝑ Lorde, & in the audience of oure God: kepe & seke for all the cōmaundmentes of the Lord yō God, ꝑ ye maye enioye a good land, & leaue inheritaunce for yō childrē after you for euer. And ꝑ Salomon

my sonne, knowe thou ꝑ God of thy father,
* Psal.xvij.c. and serue hym with a pure hert, and wyth a swete courage. * For the Lorde sercheth all hertes, and vnderstandeth all the ymaginacyons of thoughtes. And yf thou seke hym, he wyll be founde of the: But yf thou forsake hym, he wyll cast the of for euer. Take hede nowe, for ꝑ Lorde hath chosen the, to buylde hym an house of a Sanctuarie. Be stronge therfore, and playe the man.

¶ And Dauid gaue Salomon his sonne the
* paterne of the porche *(of the temple also) & of ꝑ houses that longed therto, of the store houses, vpper chambres, ynner parloures, & of the house of the mercyseate: & the example of all that he had in hys mynde, for the courtes of the house of the Lorde, & for all the celles rounde about, for the treasures of the house of God, and for the treasures of the dedycate thynges, & for the diuisyons of the preastes and Leuites that wayted by course, & for all the worke manshyp, that shulde serue for the house of the Lorde, & for all the vesselles that shulde serue in the house of the Lorde. For golde & for the wayght of golde, for all vesselles of londrye minystracyōs: for all maner of vesselles of syluer in weyght, & for all vesselles, whatsoeuer purpose they serued vnto.

The wayght of golde for the candelsticke, and the golde for their lampes, with the wayght for euery cādelstycke, & for the lampes therof. And for the candelstyckes of syluer by wayght, both for the cādelstycke and also for her lāpes accordinge to the diuersite
D of ꝑ vse of euery cādelstycke. And by wayght
* (he gaue) golde for the tables of shewe breed, euen for euery table: and lyke wyse syluer for the tables of syluer. And golde for flesheho-kes, cuppes and dryncknyng pottes: And pure golde in wayght for basens, euē for euery basen. And lyke wyse syluer by wayght, for euery basen of syluer. And for the aulter of incense, pure golde by wayght. And gold for the paterne of the charett of the Cherubes ꝑ stretched out their wynges, and couered the Arche of ꝑ couenaunt of the Lord. All (sayde Dauid) was geuen me by wrytynge of the hande of the Lorde, whych made me vnderstande all the worke manshyp of the paterne.

And Dauid sayde to Salomon hys sonne: Be stronge, and do manfully, feare not, nor be fayntharted. For the Lorde God, euē my God, is wyth the, and he shall not fayle the, nor forsake the, vntyll thou hast fynysshed all the worke that must serue for ꝑ house of the Lord. Beholde, the preastes and Leuites are deuided in companyes, for all maner of serupce that pertayneth to the house of God: they are wyth the for all maner of worke manshyp, and so are all that excell in wysedome for any maner of serupce. Thou hast allo the Lordes and all the people for euery thynge that thou hast nede of.

¶ The.xxix. Chapter.

¶ The offerynges of Dauid & of the prynces for the buyldynge of the temple. Dauid dyeth, & Salomon hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

AND Dauid the kynge sayde vn
I to all the congregacyon: * God
* iij.reg.b.a hath specially chosen Salomō my sonne whych is yet younge & tēder, & the worcke is greate, for the house shall not be for mā, but for the Lorde God. Moreouer, I haue prepared wt all my myghte for the house of God: golde for vessels of golde, syluer for thē of syluer, bra sse for thynges of bra sse, yron for thynges of yron, & wood for thynges of wood: and onix stones, and stones to be sett, glystringe stones and of diuerse coloure, and all maner of precyouse stones, and marble stones in great aboundance. And because I haue lust to ꝑ house of my God: I haue of myne owne propre good, of golde and syluer wych I haue sentrally geuē to the house of my God, besyde all ꝑ I haue prepared for ꝑ V holy house: euen thre thousande talentes of golde of Ophir, and seuen thousande talētes of tryed syluer: to ouerlaye the walles of the houses withall: ꝑ golde for thynges of golde syluer for them of syluer, & for all maner of worcke by ꝑ handes of artifycers. And who soeuer is willing, maye this daye consecrate hys hande vnto the Lorde.

And so the auncient fathers and the Lordes of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes of thousandes and hundredes, with the Lordes that were rulers ouer the kynges worke, were wyllynge and gaue for the seruyce of the house of God, fyue thousande talentes of Golde, and ten thousande peces of golde: and ten thousande talentes of syluer, and xviij. thousande talentes of bra sse, and an hūdred thousande talētes of yron. And they with whom precyouse stones were fou nde ga ue thē to the treasure of the house of ꝑ Lord, by the hande of Iehiel the Gersomite.

And the people reioysed, whā they were ¶ so wyllynge to geue their goodes, and wyth a perfecte hert they offred vnto the Lorde. And Dauid the kynge reioysed wyth great gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacyon, and sayde: Blessed be thou Lord God of Israel oure father, from euer and for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, and power, glorie, victorie and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in erth is thyne, & thyne is the kyngdom (O Lorde) and thou excellest aboue all, euen as the heed of all. And rychesse and honoure come of the, and thou raygnest ouer all, and in thyne hande is power and strength, and in thyne hand it is to make great & to geue strēgth vnto all.

And

And nowe oure God, we thanke the, and D prayse thy glorious name. But who am I? and what is my people? that we shulde enforce oure selues to geue these thiges so willingly? But all thynges come of the: and of that which we receaued of thyne hande we
*Ge.xlvij.b. haue geuen the. * For we be but straungers
Psal.xxxix.c. before the, and soiourners, as were all oure Deu.xi.c. fathers. Oure dayes on the erth also are but *Sap.ij.b. as a * shadowe, and there is none abydinge. O Lorde oure God, all this stuffe ꝑ we haue prepared to buylde the an house for thy holy name, cōmeth of thyne hande, & is all thyne. (I wote also my God) that thou tryest the hertes, and hast pleasure in vnfaynednesse. And in the vnfaynednesse of myne herte I haue willinglye offred all these thinges. And nowe haue I seue thy people which are foūde here, to offer vnto the willyngly and wyth gladnesse. O Lorde God of Abrahā, Isahac, & of Israel oure fathers, kepe this for euer, as the begynnynge of the thoughtes of the E herte of thy people, and prepare their hertes vnto the. And geue vnto Salomō my sonne, a perfecte herte, to kepe thy commaundemētes, thy testymonies and thy statutes, and to do all, & to buylde the house for the which I haue made prouision for.

And Dauid sayde to all the cōgregacyon:
☞ Nowe blesse the Lorde youre God. And all the cōgregacion blessed the Lorde God of their fathers, and bowed downe their heades and worshypped the Lorde and the kynge. And they offered offerynges vnto the Lorde. And on the morowe after ꝑ sayde daye, they offered burnt offerynges vnto the Lorde. euē a thousande yōnge oxen, a thousande rāmes
F & a thousande shepe, with their dryncke offerynges. Many sacrifyces offred they for all Israel, & dyd eate & dryncke before the Lorde the same daye wt greate gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge the seconde tyme, and annoynted him prynce before the Lorde, and Sadock to be the hye *iij.reg.ij.c. preaste. * And Salomon sate on the seate of the Lorde, and was kyng in steade of Dauid his father, & prospered, and all they of Israel obeyed him. And all the Lordes and men of power, and all the sonnes of kynge Dauid submitted them selues, & were vnder kynge *iij.re.iiij.d. Salomon. * And the Lorde magnified Salomon in dignitye, in the syght of all them of Israel, and gaue him so glorious a kyngdome as no kynge had before him in Israel.

G And so Dauid the sonne of Isay raygned ouer all Israel. And ꝑ space that he raygned ouer Israel, was fourtye yere: seuen yeare raygned he in Hebrō, & xxxiij. yere raygned he in Ierusalē. And he dyed in a good age: full of dayes, ryches and honoure. And Salomō his sonne raygned in his steade. The actes of Dauid ꝑ kynge fyrst and laste, beholde, they are written in the boke of Samuel the sear, and in the boke of Nathan ꝑ prophete, and in ꝑ boke of Gad the sear, wt all his kyngdome and power & tymes, ꝑ wēt ouer him and ouer all Israel, & ouer all ꝑ kyngdomes of ꝑ erth.

¶ The offerynge of Salomon in the hyaulter at Gibeō, where he receaueth an answer of God, what wysdome shulde be geuen him: wyth the nombre of his charettes and horsemen.

ND Salo I
mō ꝑ sōne of Dauid waxed strōge in hys kingdome *ij.re.iij.a.
& ꝑ * Lorde his God was with him, & magnifyed hi in ꝑ dignitye. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to the captaynes ouer thousandes, to ꝑ captaynes ouer hundredes, to ꝑ iudges and to euery officer in all Israel, and to the awncient fathers. And so Salomō & all the congregacyon with him * went to iij. re iij.a.
the hye place that was at Gibeon: for * there † i.Par.xxi.d

nesse, & * offred a thousande burntsacrifyces vpõ it. And ỹ same nyght dyd God appeare vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto hym: aske, what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercye vnto Dauid my father, and * hast made me to raygne in his steade. * Nowe therfore O Lorde God, let thy promyse which thou madest vnto Dauid my father, be true. For * ỹ hast made me kynge ouer a people: which is lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Wherfore, geue me nowe wysdome & knowledge, that I maye be able to go out and in before this people: for who els * (worthely) can iudge this people that is so great?

* And God sayde to Salomon, because this was in thyne hert, and because thou hast not asked treasure, and rychesse, & honoure, and the lyues of thyne enemyes, nether yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge for thy selfe, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kyng: wysdome and knowledge is graũted vnto the, and I will geue the treasure, and rychesse, and glorye: so that amonge the kynges that haue bene before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke the. And so Salomon cam from the hylaulter (that was at Gibeon) to Jerusalem, frõ the tabernacle of witnesse, and raygned ouer Israel. And * Salomon geathered charettes and horsemen: and he had a thousande, and foure hundred charettes, and .xij. thousande horsemen, whõ he bestowed in the charet cyties, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And * the kynge made syluer and golde at Jerusalem, as plenteous as stones: and Cedar trees made he as plentie as the mulberye trees that growe in the valeyes. And ỹ horses which Salomon had, were brought hym out of Egypt by the kynges marchauntes ỹ were together, which beynge of one cõpany, toke thẽ out at a pryce. They came also and brought out of Egypte a charet for syxe hundred peces of syluer: euen an horse for an hũdred & fyftie. And so brought they horses for all the kynges of the Hethites, & for the kynges of Syria by their awne handes.

The seconde Chapter.

Salomon sendeth to Hyram the kynge of Tyre for wodd and workemen.

AND Salomõ determined to buylde an house for the name of ỹ Lorde, and an house for his kyngdome and Salomon tolde out thre skore and ten thousande men to beare burdẽs, and foure skore thousande men to hewe stones in the mountayne, and thre thousande and syxe hundred to ouer se them.

* And Salomon sent to Hyram ỹ kynge of Tire sayinge. As thou dydest deale with Dauid my father and * dydest send him Cedar wodde, to buylde him an house to dwelle in, euen so deale with me: For I am aboute to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to offre vnto him holy thinges, and to burne swete encẽse, and to sett the wbreed before him continually, to offre burntsacrifyces of the morninge and euenynge: on the Saboth dayes, in ỹ fyrst daye of euery newe moone, & in the solempne feastes of the Lorde oure God: for it is an ordinaunce to be continually kepte of Israel. And ỹ house which I buylde shalbe great: for great is oure God aboue all Gods. But who is able to buylde him an house: when that heauen, and heauen aboue all heauẽs is not able to receaue him: what am I then that I shulde buylde hym an house: nay, but euen to burne sacrifice before him, shall this buyldinge be: sende me nowe therfore a cõynge man, ỹ can worcke in golde and syluer, in brasse and yrõ, in purple, cremosin and yelowe sylke, and that can skylle to graue, with the connynge men that are with me in Juda and Jerusalem, whom Dauid my father dyd prepare. Send me also Cedar trees, pyne trees & Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote that thy seruauntes can skylle to hewe tymbre in Libanõ. And beholde, my men shalbe wt thyne, that they maye prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I am determyned to buylde, shalbe wonderfull greate. And beholde, for the vse of thy seruauntes the cutters and hewers of tymbre: I haue geuen .xx. thousande quarters of beaten wheate, and .xx. thousande quarters of barleye, and .xx. thousande bates of wyne, and .xx. thousãde bates of oyle. And Hirã kynge of Tire answered in wrytinge, which he sent to Salomon. Because ỹ Lorde hath loued his people, therfore hath he made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which made heauẽ and erth, and that hath geuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne, and one ỹ hath discrecion, prudence, and vnderstandynge, to buylde an house for the Lorde, & a palace for him selfe. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstandynge (whom my father Hurã dyd vse) * the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a mã of Tire, and he can skylle to worcke in gold and syluer, in brasse and yron, in stone and tymbre, in purple and yelowe sylke, in fyne whyte and cremosin: and can graue sondrie maner of grauinges, and to fynde out dyuerse maner of sotle worke that shalbe sett before him, with thy connynge men, & with the connynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. Nowe therfore, ỹ wheate, and barleye, oyle and wyne which my Lorde hath spokẽ of, let him sende vnto his seruauntes. And we will cut wood in Libano, as moch as thou shalt nede, and will bring it to ỹ, in shippes by see to Japho, from from whence thou mayst carye them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nõbred all the straungers that were in the lãde of Israel, after the nombre of them whom his father Dauid had nombred. And they were founde an hũdred and .liij. thousande and syxe hundred. And he set .lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and .lxxx. thousande to hewe stones in ỹ mountayne, and thre thousande and syxe hũdred officers, to set ỹ people a worke.

The .iij. Chapter.

The temple of the Lorde and the porche are buylded, with other thynges therto belongynge.

AND Salomon beganne to buylde the house of ỹ Lorde at Jerusalẽ in mount Moria * where (the Lorde) appeared vnto Dauid his father: euen in the place that Dauid prepared in the threshynge floure of Ornan ỹ Jebusyte. And * he began to buylde in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth & the fourth yeare of his raygne. And these are the paternes wherby Salomon was instructe to buylde ỹ house of God. The length was thre skore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredthe .xx. cubytes. The porche, ỹ was in bredth as large as the temple, had .xx. cubytes: and the heygth was an hundred & .xx. cubytes. And he ouerlayed it on ỹ vnner syde with pure golde.

And the greater house he syled with fyrre tree, which he ouerlayde with the best gold, and graued therto palmetreys and cheynes. And he ouerlayed the house with precyouse stone bewtyfully. And the golde was golde of Paruaim. The house (I saye) ỹ beames, postes, walles and dores therof, ouerlayed he with gold, and made grauen worke vpon the walles.

And he made ỹ house moost holye, whose length was .xx. cubytes lyke to the bredthe of the house, and the bredthe therof was also .xx. cubytes. And he ouerlayde it wyth good golde, euen with .vj. hundred talentes. And the waight of the nayles of gold was fyftie sycles. And he ouerlayde ỹ vpper chãbres with golde.

* And in ỹ house most holy, he made two Cherubyns of ymage worke, lyke chyldren, and ouerlayde them with gold. And ỹ wynges of the Cherubs were .xx. cubytes longe. The one wynge was fyue cubites, reaching to the wall of the house, and the other wynge was lykewyse fyue cubytes, reachynge to ỹ wynge of the other Cherub. And euen so the one wynge of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, reachynge to the wall of the house, and the other wynge was fyue cubites also, and reached to the wynge of the other Cherub. So that the wynges of the sayde Cherubs were stretched out .xx. cubytes. And they stode on their fete, and loked inwardes. And he made a fore hangyng of yelow sylke purple, cremolyne, and fyne white, and caused the pictures of Cherubs to be brodered theron. And he made before the house, two pyllers of .xxxv. cubytes hye. And the heed that was aboue on the toppe of euerye one of thẽ was fyue cubytes. And he made chaynes of wrethẽ worke for the queere, and put them on the heedes of the pyllers, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the cheynes. And he reared vp the pyllers before the temple: one on the ryght hande, and the other on the lefte, and called ỹ ryght Jachin, and the lefte Boaz.

The .iiij. Chapter.

The aulter of brasse, the Lauatorye, the vesselles to washe with, the candelstyckes, &c.

AND he made an aulter of brasse .xx. cubytes longe, and .xx. cubytes broade, and ten cubytes hye. * And he cast a brasen Lauatorye of ten cubytes from brym to brym, rounde in compasse, and fyue cubytes hye: and a lyne of thyrtye cubytes dyd cõpase it rounde aboute. And vnder it was the fashyõ of oxen which dyd compase it roũde aboute: with ten cubytes dyd they compase the Lauatory roũde aboute, and there were two rowes of oxen which were cast of lyke molten worke. And it stode also vpon twelue oxen: thre loked towarde the North, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the South, and thre towarde the Est, and the Lauatory was set vpõ them, and all their backes were towarde the Lauatory. And the thyckest of it was an handbreede, and the brym lyke the brym of a cuppe, with floures of lylyes. And it receaued and helde thre thousande bates.

* And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the lefte, to washe and clẽse in them, soch thinges as they offred for a burntofferynge. But the great Lauatory was for the preastes to washe in. And he made ten candelstyckes of golde (accordinge to the paterne ỹ was genẽ of them) and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande and fyue on ỹ lefte. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght syde, and fyue on the lefte. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the courte of the preastes, & the great courte and dores to it: and ouerlayde the dores of them with brasse. And he set the great Lauatorye on ỹ ryght syde of the Est ende, ouer agaynst the South. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and basens, and fynesshed the worke that he was appoynted to make for kynge Salomõ in the house of God. The two pyllers, the couerynges or two heedes on the toppes of the pyllers: & the two wrethes to couer the two scalpes or heedes that were on the toppes of the pyllers: and foure hundred hūdred pomegranates on the two wreethes, two rowes of pomegranates on one wreethe, to couer the two toppes or heedes that were on the pyllers. And he made two bottomes, and lauers made he vpon the bottomes: the great Lauatory, and twelue oxen vnder it. Pottes also and shouelles, fleshe hokes, and all these vesselles dyd Hyrā (hys father) make to kynge Salomon for ỹ house D of the Lorde, of bryght brasse. In the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge cast them, euen in the claye ground that is, betwene Socoth & zaredatha. And Salomō made all these vessellesin greate aboundaunce, for the weight of brasse coulde not be rekened.

And Salomon made all the vesselles that were for the house of God: the golden aulter also & the tables to sett the shewbred vpon Moreouer, the cādelstickes with their lampes (to burne after the maner before the quere) and that of precious golde: and the flowres and the lampes, and the snoffers made he of golde, and that perfecte gōlde: and ỹ diuersynge knyues, basens, spones and censers
✱ of pure golde. And ✱(he made) the dore of the temple, and the ynner dores within the place moost holye, and the ynner dores of the temple, were gylted. And so was all the worcke ỹ Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ The Arcke is brought into the temple, which is fylled with the glorye of the Lorde.

AND so all the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynished, and ✱ Salomon brought ✱ 3.Re.vij.g. in all the thynges that Dauid his father had dedycated, with the syluer and golde and all the Jewelles, and put them amonge ỹ treasures of the house of God.

✱ 1ij.re.viij.a Then Salomon ✱ gathered the elders of Jsrael together and all the heedes of the trybes, and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Jsrael, vnto Jerusalem: to bringe ỹ Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde out of the cyte of Dauid which is zion. Wherfore all the men of Jsrael resorted vnto the kynge in the feaste, euen in the seuēth moneth. And all the elders of Jsrael came, and the Leuites toke
B vp the Arcke. And the preastes and the Leuites brought awaye the Arcke and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holy vesselles that were in ỹ tabernacle, and they bare them. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacyon of Jsrael ỹ were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, offered sheepe and oxen, so manye, that they coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And the preastes brought the Arcke of ỹ appoyntement of the Lorde vnto his place, euen into the quere of the temple within the place moste holye, and set it vnder the wynges of the cherubs, that the Cherubs stretched out their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke, & the Cherubs couered both ỹ Arcke
C and her barres aboue on hye. And the barres of the Arcke, were so longe, that the heades of the barres were sene without the Arcke within ỹ quere, but not without. And there ỹ Arcke remayned vnto this daye. But there ✱ 1ij.re.viij.a. was nothynge in the Arcke, ✱ saue the two tables which Moses put therin at Horeb, when the Lorde made a couenaunt with the chyldren of Jsrael, after they were come out of Egypt. And it fortuned, that when the preastes were come out of the holy place the sanctuarye was fylled with smoke, for all ỹ preastes that were present, were sanctifyed
D and dyd not then waye by course, that both the Leuites and the syngers, vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun, were appoynted to sondrye offyces with their chyldren and brethren & were arayed in fyne whyte, haynge Symbales, Psalteries, and Harpes, & stode at the East end of the aulter. and by them an hūdred and. xx. preastes blowinge with trōpettes. And the trompette blowers and the syngers so agreed, ỹ it semed but one voyce in prayesinge and thankynge the Lorde. And whan they lyfte vp their voyce with ỹ trompettes, symbales and other instrumentes of musyck, and whan they prayse ỹ Lorde,
✱ (and sayde) howe that he is good, and that his mercye laisteth euer, ỹ house of God was fylled wt a cloude: so that the preastes coulde not endure to mynister by the reason of the cloude. For the maiesty of the Lorde had fylled the house of God.

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the prayer that he made vnto God.

THen Salomon sayde: ✱ the Lorde hath spoken, howe ỹ he wyll dwell in the cloude. And I haue buylt an habitacyon for the, and a place for thy dwellynge for euer. And the kynge turned his face, and blessed the hole congregacyon of Jsrael, and all the congregacyon of Jsrael stode. And he sayde: blessed be ỹ Lorde God of Jsrael which hath with his handes, fulfylled it, that he spake with his mouth to my father Dauid, sayinge: ✱ sence the daye that I brought my people out of the lande of Egypt, I chose no cytie amonge all ỹ trybes of Jsrael to buylde an house in, ỹ my name myght be there, nether chose I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Jsrael: saynge ỹ ✱ I haue chosen Jerusalem, that my name myght be there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Jsrael.

✱ And whan it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for ỹ name of ỹ Lorde God of Jsrael: ỹ Lorde sayd to Dauid my father: for as moch as it was in thyne

herte to buylde an house for my name, thou dydest well that thou so thoughtest in thyne
, hert. Notwithstandynge, ỹ shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which is procreaded out of thy loynes, he shall builde an house for my name. The Lorde therfore, hath made good his sayinge that he hath spoken, and I am rysen vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and am set on the seate of Jsrael, as the Lorde promyled, and haue buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Jsrael. ¶The fyre consumeth the sacrifyce. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

*iiii.re.viij.c. Leui.ix.d. *ii.re.viij.g. And * when Salomon had made an ende of prayinge, there came downe fyre from heauen, & consumed the * burnte offeryngе and the sacrifyces. And the house was fylled with ỹ glorie of the Lorde, & the preaste coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. ¶The cyties, that Salomon buylded after that the house of God was fynyshed.

A iii.reg.ix.b And it fortuned, that after. xx. yeare, when Salomon had buylt the house of the Lorde and hys awne house: he buylte the cyties that Hiram gaue him, and put of the chyldren of Israell in them. And Salomon went to Hamath zoba, and stregthedit. And he buylt Thadmor in the wyldernesse, and repayred all the store cyties which were in Hamath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vpper and Bethhoron the nether, stronge cyties, haupnge walles, gates and
B barres. And Baalah and all the store cyties that Salomōhad, and al the charet cyties, ād the cyties of the horsemē, and euery pleasaunt place, that Salomon had lust to buylde in Jerusalem and Libanon, and thorowe out all the lande of his dominion.

And all the people that were lefte of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezytes, Heuites & Jebusites, which were not of the chyldren of Israel: but were the chyldren of them, which were lefte after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the chyldren of Israel, them dyd Salomon make to paye trybute vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondmē for his worke: but they were men of warre and rulers and great Lordes with hym, ād captaynes ouer his charetes and horsemen. And kyng Salomons offycers that ouersawe and ruled
C the people, were two hundred and fyftye.

And Salomon brought the daughter of Pharao out of the cytie of Dauid, into the house that he had buylded for her. For he sayd: my wyfe shall not dwel in the house of Dauid kyng of Israel, for it is holy, because that the Arcke of the Lorde is come vnto it.

Then Salomon offered burnt offeringes vnto the Lorde, on the aulter of the Lorde which he had buylt before the porche, doyng euery thynge in his due tyme and offeryngе accordynge to the commaundement of Moses, in the sabbothes, newmoones, and so
*Exo.xxiii.c Deut.xvi.c lempne feastes, * thre tymes in the yeare, that is to saye, in the feast of swete bread, in the feast of weakes, and in the feast of tabernacles.

And Salomon set the sortes of preastes
to their offyces, as Dauid his father had ordered thē, and the Leuites in theyr watches for to prayse & ministre before the preastes daye by daye, and the porters by course at D euery gate. * For so had Dauid the man of *i.Par.xv.d God commaunded. And they omytted not the commaundement of the kynge vnto the preastes and the Leuytes, concernynge eny maner of thynge, and concernynge the treasures. For Salomon made prouisiō for the charges, from the fyrst daye that the foundacion of the house of the Lorde was layde: tyll it was fynished, that the house of the Lorde was perfecte. Then went kyng Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Eloth at the
* (reed) see syde in the lande of Edom. And * Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruauntes, shyppes ād seruauntes that had knowledge of the see: and they came with the seruauntes of Salomon to Ophir, and carped thence foure hundred and fyftye talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶The. ix. Chapter.

¶The communicacyon of Salomon wyth the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that the one gaue the other. The deeth of Salomon, after whom succeadeth Roboboam.

A And * whā the quene of Saba hearde *iii.reg.x.a Matth.xii.d Luc.xi.d
of the fame of Salomon, she came to proue hym in harde questions at Jerusalem, with a very great company, with camelles that bare spices & plentye of golde and precyouse stones. And when she was come to Salomō, she commoned with hym of all that she had in her herte. And Salomon sayled her, all her questions, and there was not one worde hyd from Salomon, whych he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomō and the house that he had buylte, and the meate of hys table, the syttynge of his seruaūtes, and the standing of his wayters, theyr apparell, hys butlers, theyr apparell, hys goynge vp, by the whych he went into the house of the Lorde, ther was nomore spyrete in her.

And she sayde to the kynge: the sayenge
B which I heard in myne awne lāde, of thyne actes, ād of thy wysdome, is true. I beleued not ỹ wordes of thē, vntyll I came, & myne eyes had sene it. And beholde, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: for thou exceadest ỹ fame that I hearde. Happye are thy men, and happy are these thy seruaūtes which stande before the alwaye, & heare thy wysedome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God, which had lust to the, to set the kynge on his seat, that thou myghtest be kyng, ordeyned by the Lorde thy God. Because thy God loueth Israell, and hath delyte to make them contynue euer, therfore made he the kynge ouer them to do ryght and equyte.

And

¶ And she gaue the kyng an hundred .l.xx. talentes of golde, and of spyces exceadynge great abundaunce and precious stones, neither was there any more soche spyce, as the quene of Saba gaue kyng Salomon. And the seruauntes of Hiram and the seruaūtes of Salomon which brought golde from Ophir, brought also Algume wood āde precious stones. And the kyng made of the Algume wood, steyzes in the house of the Lorde and in the kynges palace, and harpes and psalteries for syngers. And there was no soch wood sene before in the lande of Juda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba euery pleasaunt thing that she asked but not so moche as she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went awaye to her awne lande with her seruauntes.

D The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was syxe hundred. lxvi. talentes of golde, beslydes that which chapmē and marchauntes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia and rulers of that countrey, brought gold and syluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, and .vi. hundred syeles of beaten gold were spent upō one bucklar: and thre hundred shyldes made he of beaten gold, and one shylde cost thre hundred peces of golde, and the kyng put them in the house that was in the forest of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great seat of Juorie, & ouerlayde it with pure golde. And ther were syxe steppes to the seate wyth a fote stole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the syttynge place, ād two lyons standynge by the pomelles. And xii. lyons stode on the one syde and on the other: upō the syxe steppes, so that there was no soche worke made in any kyngdome.

And all the drynckinge vesselles of kyng Salomon were of golde, and all the vessels of the house that was in the forest of Libanon, were of precious golde: for syluer was counted nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges shyppes wente to Tharsis wyth the seruauntes of Hiram: euery thre yeare once came the shyppes to Tharsis, and brought golde, syluer, Juorie

If and apes and pecockes.

*iii.Reg.x.d * And kyng Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in rychesse and wysedome. And all the kynges of the earth sought the presence of Salomō, to heare his wysdome that God had put in hys herte: And they brought euery man his present: vesselles of syluer, and vesselles of golde, rayment, harnesse, spyces, horses and mules, and what soeuer myght be gotten, yeare by peare.

4 iii.Regum. iiii.d. * And Salomon had foure thousande stalles for horses and charettes, & twelue thousande horsemen, whom he bestowed in the charet cyties, & some were with the kyng at Jerusalē. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were frō Euphrates vnto the lāde of the Philistimes, ād to the border of Egipt.

G * And the kynge made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous, as the mulbery trees that growe in ỹ valleyes. And they brought vnto Salomō horses out of Egypt, & out of al lādes. *iii.Reg.x.d ii.Par.i.d.

*The rest of the actes of kyng Salomon, fyrst and last, are they not writtē in the sayenges of Nathan the Prophete, and in the prophesye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the visions of Jedo the sear of visions, agaynst Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat? And Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel fourtye yeares. And Salomon slepte wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Reboboam his sonne raygned in his steade. *iii.Reg.xi.g

¶The.x.Chapter.

¶ The folysshnesse of Reboboam, and the deuysion of hys realme.

A Nd * Reboboam went to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Israell come together, to make hym kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which *was fled into Egypte from the presence of Salomon the kynge) hearde it, he returned out of Egypt. And they sent ād called hym. And so Jeroboā and all they of Israel came and comoned wyth Reboboam, sayenge: Thy father layed a greuouse pocke vpon vs: nowe therfore remptte thou somewhat of the greuouse seruyce of thy father and of his heuye pocke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to thē: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed. A *iii.Regum, xii.a. *iii.reg.xi.g

And kynge Reboboam counsayled wyth the elders that had stande before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and he sayde: what councell geue ye me, to answere thys people agayne? And they tolde him, sayinge: If thou be kynde to thys people, and shewe thy selfe lowely to thē, and speake louynge wordes to thē, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he left the councell whiche the elders gaue him, ād toke councell wyth the youngemen, that were growē vp with hym and that stode in his presence. And he sayde vnto thē: what aduise geue ye, that we may answere thys people, which haue cōmoned wyth me, sayinge: Abate some what of the pocke, which thy father dyd put vpon vs. 13 C

And the yonge men that were growen vp wyth hym, spake vnto hym, sayinge: Thus shalt thou answere the people that spake to the, sayinge: Thy father made oure pocke heuye: but make thou it some what lyghter for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto thē, my lytle fynger shalbe heuyer then my fathers, loynes

*iii.Re.xii.c. loynes. * For where my father put a heuye pocke vpon you, I wyll put more to your pock: my father chastysed you wt whyppes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpions.

And so Jeroboam & all ỹ people came to Reboboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge badde, saying: come agayne to me the thyrd daye. And ỹ kynge answered them cruelly: and kyng Reboboam left ỹ councell of the aged men, and answered them after ỹ aduise of ỹ yonge men, sayinge: My father made your pocke greuous, and I wyll adde therto: my father chastysed you with whyppes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpions. And so the kynge herkened not vnto ỹ people: but ỹ occasion came of God, ỹ the Lord myght make good his saying, * which he spake, by the hande of Ahia the Silonite, to Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. *iii.Re.xi.f.

D And when all they of Israel sawe that ỹ kynge wolde not agree vnto them, ỹ people answered ỹ kynge sayinge: what parte haue we wt Dauid, or enheritaūce wt the sonne of Isai? let euery man of Israel go to his tent. * And now Dauid, se to thyne awne house. And so all Israel gat them to their tētes, so ỹ Reboboam raygned ouer no moo of ỹ chyldren of Israel, then dwelt in the cyties of Juda. Then kynge Reboboam also sente Haduram ỹ was ruler ouer ỹ tribute, and ỹ chyldren of Israel stoned hym wt stones ỹ he dyed. But kyng Reboboam made spede to get him vp to his charret, to flye to Jerusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst ỹ house of Dauid vnto thys daye. *iii.Re.xii.d

¶The.xi.Chapter.

¶ Reboboam is forbydden to fyght agaynst Jeroboam. He hath .xviii. wyues, and .lx. concubines, and by them xviii. sonnes, and .lx. daughters.

A Nd whā Reboboam was come to Jerusalem, * he gathered of the house of Juda & Beniamin, nyne score thousande chosen men of warre to fight agaynst Israel, & to brynge ỹ kyngdome agayne to Reboboam. And the word of the Lorde came to Semeiahu the man of God, saying: speake vnto Reboboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, & to all them of Israel that are in Juda & Beniamin, & saye: thus sayeth ỹ Lorde. Ye shall not go vp nor fight agaynst your brethren: returne euery man to his house, for thys thynge is done of me. And they obeyed ỹ wordes of ỹ Lorde, and returned frō goynge agaynst Jeroboam. *iii.Re.xii.e.

B And Reboboam dwelt in Jerusalem, and buylt strōge cyties in Juda. He buylded vp Bethleem, and Etham, and Thekoe: Bethzur, Socho and Adullam: Gath, and Maresa: and ziph Adurahim, Lachis and Asecha: zorca Aialon and Hebron, which is in Juda & Beniamin, stronge cyties. And he repayred ỹ stronge holdes & put captaynes in them, and store of vitayle, & wyne, & oyle. And in all cyties he put shyldes & speares, and made them exceadynge stronge, haynge Juda and Beniamin on his syde.

And the prestes and ỹ leuites that were in all Israel, resorted to hym out of all their coastes. For the leuites lefte their suburbes and their possession, and came to Juda and Jerusalem: * for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them out from mynystrynge vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned hym prestes for the hyaultares, for the deuylles and for the calues which he had made. And after ỹ leuites there went of all ỹ trybes of Israel, soche as submitted their hertes to seke the Lorde God of Israel, and came to Jerusalem, to offer vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And so they strengthed the kyngdome of Juda, and made Reboboam the sonne of Salomon myghtye thre yeare longe, for thre yere they walked in ỹ waye of Dauid and Salomon. *ii.pa.xiii.b. *iii.Re.xii.g

And Reboboam toke hym Mahalath ỹ daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wyfe, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Isai, which bare hym chyldren Jeus, Samaria, and zaha. And after her he toke * Maaca ỹ daughter of Absalon which bare hym Abia, Atthai, ziza, & Selomith. And Reboboam loued Maacah the daughter of Absalon aboue all his wyues & concubynes, for he toke eyghtene wyues and thre score concubynes, and begat .xxviii. sonnes and .lx. daughters. Ad Reboboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the cheefe ruler amonge his brethren, and to haue the ouersyght of the kyngdome. And he played wysely, and scatered all his chyldren thorowe out all the countreyes of Juda and Ben Jamin vnto euery stronge cytie. Wherupon the lordes of Israel and the kynge humbled them selues, and sayde, the Lorde is ryghteous. And whan the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the worde of ꝑ Lorde cam to Semeia, sayinge: They submitte them selues, therfore I wyll not destroye them. But I wyll delyuer them somwhat, and my wrath shall not burne vpon Jerusalem by ꝑ hāde of Sesac. Neuertheless, they shalbe hys seruaūtes, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruice, and the seruice of the kyngdomes of the worlde.

C And so Sesac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of ꝑ kynges house: he toke euen all. And he
* iii.Reg.x.d caryed awaye the shyldes of golde, * which Salomon made. In steade of which, kynge Rehoboam made shyldes of brasse, and cōmytted them to the hādes of the captaynes which had ꝑ ouersyght of the fotemen, and that kept the entraunce of ꝑ kynges house. And it came to passe, that when the kynge entred into the house of the Lorde, the garde came & fet them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambre. And when he humbled hym selfe, the wrath of the Lorde turned from hym, that he wolde not destroye all together. And in Juda all was well.

D And so kyng Rehoboam waxed myghty & raygned in Jerusalem. And Rehoboam was.xli. yere olde, whē he began to raygne, & he raygned.xvii. yeres in Jerusalem, the cytie which the Lorde had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel to put his name there. And hys mothers name was Naama an
*iii.Reg. xiiii.f. Ammonitesse. * And he dyd euyll, because he prepared not hys hert to seke the Lorde.

The actes also of Rehoboam, fyrst and last, are they not wrytten in ꝑ sayinges of Semeia the prophete, and of Iddo the sear which noted the genealogie? and there was warre alwaye betwene Rehoboam & Jeroboam. And Rehoboam slept w̄ his fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid, and Abia his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

¶ The victory of Abia agaynst Jeroboam.

In the.xviii. yere of kynge Jeroboā * began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, & he raygned thre yere i Jerusalē. His mothers name also was Michaiahu the daughter of Uriel of Gibea. And there was warre betwene Abia & Jeroboam. And Abia made prouisyon for ꝑ warre, hauyng valeaūt & expert men of warre, euen.iiii.C.M. chosen men. And Jeroboā set him selfe in araye to fyght agaynst hym, w̄.viii.C.M. picte men which were stronge & men of armes.

And Abia stode vp vpō zemaraim an hill which is in mount Ephraim, & sayd: heare me ꝑ Jeroboam and all Israel. Do not you knowe, howe ꝑ the Lorde God of Israel gaue ꝑ kyngdome, ouer them ol Israel, to Dauid for euer, euen to hym and to hys sonnes
B with a salted couenaūt? And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat ꝑ seruaunt of Salomon the sonne of Dauid is rysen vp, & hath rebelled agaynst his lorde. And ther gathered to hym lewde men ꝑ chyldrē of Belial, & preuayled agaynst Rehoboam ꝑ sonne of Salomon: when Rehoboam was yong & tēder hearted, & coulde not stande before them.

And nowe ye saye, ꝑ ye be able to preuayle agaynst ꝑ kyngdome of the Lorde, which is in ꝑ hande of the sonnes of Dauid, & ye be a greate multitude, & haue the golden calues * which Jeroboam made you for gods. * iii.Reg.xii.d
And * haue ye not cast out the prestes of the * ii.para.xi.c
Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the leuites, and haue made you prestes after the maner of the naciōs of other lādes? so that whosoeuer commeth, & consecrateth his hāde with a yōge oxe & seuen rammes, the same maye be a preste of them that are no gods.

But we belonge vnto the Lord our God whom we haue not forsaken, and ꝑ prestes are ꝑ sonnes of Aaron, which ministre vnto
C the Lorde, and ꝑ leuites wayte vpon theyr office. They burne vnto ꝑ Lorde euery morninge & euenynge, burnt sacrifyces & swete incēse: ꝑ shewe bread set they in order vpon a pure table: & prepare ꝑ candelstick of gold w̄ the lāpes of ꝑ same to burne euer at euen. And truly we kepe the watche of the Lorde oure God: but ye haue forsakē him. And behold, God hym selfe is our captayne, & hys prestes blowe w̄ the * tröpettes, & crye alarum agaynst you. O ye chyldren of Israel, fyght not agaynst the Lord God of your fathers: for it wyll not prospere with you. * Leui.f.4.

But for all ꝑ, Jeroboā cōuayed men preuely about, to come behynde them: & so they were before Juda, & ꝑ layers in wayte were behynde thē. And when they of Juda loked about, behold the battayll was before & behynde, & they cryed vnto ꝑ Lord & ꝑ prestes blewe w̄ ꝑ tröpetes, & ꝑ men of Juda gaue a showte

D showte. And as the men of Juda showted, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboā and all Israel before Abia and Juda. And ꝑ children of Israel fled before Juda, and God delyuered them into theyr hande. And Abia & hys people slue a great slaughter of thē: there fell downe wounded of Israel.v.C.M. chosen men. And so the chyldren of Israel were brought vnder, at that tyme, and the chyldrē of Juda preuayled: because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Abia followed after Jeroboā, and toke cities from hym, Bethel w̄ the townes belongyng therto, Jesana with the townes that lōged therto, and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboā recouered no strength agayne in ꝑ dayes of Abia. And ꝑ Lorde plaged him, & he dyed.

But Abia waxed myghtye, and maryed xiiij. wyues, and begat.xxij. sonnes, and.xvj. daughters. The rest of the actes of Abia, his customes and hys sayinges are wrytten in the storye of the prophete Iddo.

¶ The.xiiij. Chapter.

¶ Of Asa kyng of Juda.

A And Abia slepte w̄ hys fathers, and they buryed hym in ꝑ cytie of Dauid, and * Asa hys sonne raygned in hys steade. In whose dayes the *Math.i.b. lande was in quyetnes ten yere.

*ii.Re.xv.a And * Asa dyd that was good & right in the eyes of the Lorde hys God: for he toke awaye straunge aultars and the hyllaultars, and brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe and cōmaundement. And he put awaye out all the cyties of Juda the hylaultars and the ymages: and ꝑ kyngdome was quyet before hym. And he buylte stronge cities in Juda: because the land was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeares. For the Lorde had geuen hym rest.

B Therfore he sayde to Juda: let vs buyld these cityes, and make about them walles, towres, gates and barres, for the lāde is yet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lorde oure God: we haue sought hym, and he hath geuen vs rest on euery side: & so they buylt and it prospered with them. And Asa had an armye of men that bare shyldes and speares, out of Juda, three hundred thousand: and out of Benianin that bare shyldes and drue bowes, two hūdred & foure skore thousande, all these were valeaunt men.

C And there came out agaynst them zarah
*ii.par.xvi.c the blacke moran * with an hoost of ten hondred thousande, and three hōdred charrettes, and came as farre as Mareša. And Asa wēt out before him, and they ioyned the battayll in the valey of zephata beside Mareša. And *i.reg.xviij.b Asa cryed vnto the Lorde hys God, & sayde: Lorde, * it is no harde thige with ꝑ to helpe ether many, or thē that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lorde our God, for we trust to the, and in thy name we go agaynst thys multytude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, and no man shall preuayle agaynst the.

So the Lorde smote the blacke mores be- D fore Asa and Juda, & the blacke mores fled. And Asa and the people that was with hym, folowed after them vnto Gerar. And the blacke mores hoost was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them lefte, but were destroyed before the Lorde and before his hoost. And they caryed awaye a myghtye greate praye. And they smote all the cyties rounde about Gerar. For the feare of ꝑ Lorde came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cyties and there was exceadynge moche spoyle in them. They smote also the tentes of catell, & caryed awaye plentye of shepe and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

Kynge Asa by the monycyon of the prophete Azaria sacrifyceth to the Lord. He deprīueth his mother of her dompnyon.

A And the spyrete of God came on Aza- A ria the sonne of Oded. And he went out to mete Asa, & sayde vnto him: heare me Asa, and all Juda, and Benianin. The Lorde is with you, whyle ye be with hym, and when ye seke hym, he wyll be founde of you: and agayne, when ye forsake hym, he also wyll forsake you. And truly, for a longe season in Israel no mā sought the true God, no man regarded ꝑ preste that taught them, no mā cared for the lawe. And when any man in hys trouble dyd turne vnto the Lord God of Israel, and sought him, he was founde of them. And in that time there was no peace to hym, that dyd goo out and in: but greate sedicyon was there amonge all the inhabiters of the earth. And nacyon was destroyed of nacyon, and cytie of cytie: for God dyd moue all aduersitye amonge them. Playe ye therfore the men, and let not youre handes slacke, for youre worke shalbe rewarded.

And when Asa hearde those wordes, and B
the prophesye of Azaria the sonne of Oded ꝑ prophete, he toke courage, & put awaye the abhominable ydols out of all ꝑ lande of Juda and Benianin, & out of the cityes which he wāne in mount Ephraim, and renued the aultar of the Lorde, that was before ꝑ porch of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Benianin, and the straungers with thē out of Ephraim, Manasse, & Simeon. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they sawe that the Lorde hys God was w̄ hym.
So they assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde monethe, the fyftenth yeare of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lord ꝑ same tyme of the spoyle which they had brought vij.C. oxen, and.vij. thousande shepe.

And they made a couenaunt to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, with all theyr hert & all theyr soule. And whosoeuer wolde not seke the Lorde God of Israel, shulde dye for it: whether he were small or great, mā or woman. And they sware vnto the Lorde with a loude voyce, showtynge & blowyng wyth tröpettes and shawmes. And all they in Juda reioyced at ỹ oth, for they had swore vnto the Lorde, with all theyr herte, and sought hym with all theyr lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue thē rest rounde about on euery syde.

And kinge Asa put Maacha his mother out of auctorite, because she had made an abhominable pdoll *(of Priapus) in a groue: and Asa brake downe her pdoll, and stāped it, & burnt it at the broke Cedron. But all ỹ hyl-aulters were not take awaye out of Israel: though the hert of Asa was perfecte all hys dayes. And he brought into ỹ house of God the thynges that hys father had dedicat, and that he hym selfe had dedicate: euen syluer, & golde, and Jewelles. And ther was nomore warre vnto the *xxxv. yere of the raygne of Asa.

¶ Asa, for feare of Baasa kyng of Israel, maketh a couenaunt with Benhadad kynge of Syria.

In the.xxxvi. yere of the raygne of Asa, came *Baasa kyng of Israel vp agaynst Juda, and buylt Rama, to the entent that he wolde let none passe out or in *(safely) to Asa kynge of Juda. And Asa fet out golde and syluer, out of the treasures of ỹ house of the Lorde, & of the kynges house, & sent to Benhadad kyng of Syria ỹ dwelt at Darmesec, and sayd: There is a confederacion betwene me & the, betwene my father & thine. Beholde, I haue sent the syluer and golde, that thou wylt come and breake thyne appoyntment wt Baasa kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frō me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, and sent to the captaynes of hys armye to the cityes of Israel. And they smote Jion, Dā, and Abelmaim, and the strong cyties of Nephthali. And when Baasa hearde this, he left buyldynge of Rama, and let his worcke cease. And then Asa the kyng toke all Juda, and caryed awaye the stones and tymbre of Rama, wherwith Baasa was a buyldyng, and he buylt therwith Geba and Mizpa.

¶ At that same tyme, Hanani the seer came to Asa kyng of Juda, & sayde vnto hym: because thou hast trusted in the kyng of Syria, and not rather put thy trust in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the host of the kynge of Syria escaped out of thyne hāde. * Had not the blacke mores and Lubim an exceadinge great hoost with many charettes and horsemen? And yet because thou trustedest in the Lorde, he delyuered them into thyne hande. For the eyes of ỹ Lorde beholde all the erth, to strength them that are of perfecte hert towarde him. * herin thou hast done folyshly, and therfore from henseforth thou shalt haue warre. ## ¶ The.xvij.Chapter.

¶ Jehosaphat causeth the feare of the Lorde to be renued amonge the people.

And * Jehosaphat his sōne raygned in hys steade, & preuayled agaynst Israel. And he put souldyers in all the stronge cyties of Juda, and sett rulers in the lande of Juda and in the cityes of Ephrai, which Asa his father had wōne. And the Lorde was with Jehosaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Baalim. But sought the Lorde God of hys father, & walked in hys commaundmentes: and not after the doynges of Israel. And the Lorde stablisshed the kyngdome in his hande, and all they that were in Juda, brought hym presentes, so that he had aboundance of riches and honoure. And he lyft vp his hert vnto ỹ wayes of the Lorde, and he putt downe yet more of the hylaultars and groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yere of hys raygne he sent to hys lordes, euen to Benhail, Obadia, zacharia, Nethanel and to Michaahu, ỹ they shulde teach in the cityes of Juda, and with them he sent leuites: euen Semeiahu, Nethaniahu, zabadiahu, Asahel, Semiramoth, & Tubadonia, and with them Elisamah and Jehoram prestes. And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of the lawe of God wt thē, and went about thorowout all the cityes of Juda, and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all ỹ kyngdomes of the landes that were rounde about Juda, & they fought not agaynst Jehosaphat. And some of ỹ philistines brought Jehosaphat gyftes, and tribute syluer: And therto

¶ The.xviij.Chapter.

¶ After Ahab had asked councell of the foure hundred prophetes, he put Michea in preson. He dyeth with the shott of an arowe.

And Jehosaphat had aboundance of rychesse and honoure, and ioyned affinyte wt Ahab. And * after certayne yeres he wēt downe to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab slue many shepe & oxen for hym, and for the people that he had with hym, and entreated him to go vp with hym vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Ahab kynge of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat kynge of Juda: wylt thou go with me to Ramoth in Gilead? And he answered hym: I wyll be as ỹ, and my people shalbe as thyne, and we wyll go with the to the warre.

A * iiij.re.xxii.a

And Jehosaphat sayd vnto the kynge of Israel: aske councell I praye ỹ, at the worde of the Lorde, thys same daye. Therfore the kyng of Israel gathered together of prophetes. iiij.C. men, and sayde vnto thē: shall we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or shulde I cease? And they sayde: go vp, & God shall delyuer it into the kinges hāde. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there yet here neuer a prophete more of the Lordes, ỹ we might aske of him? And the kinge of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man, by whō we maye aske the Lorde. But I hate him: for he neuer propheciethe me good, but alwaye euell, and the same is Michea the sonne of Jimla. And Jehosaphat sayd: let not the kynge saye so.

And the kinge of Israell called one of his chāberlaynes, and sayde: fetch hether quyckly Michea the sonne of Jimla. And ỹ kynge of Israel and Jehosaphat kyng of Juda sate ether of thē on his seate in their apparell, in a threshing floure beside ỹ gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesyed before thē. And one zedekia the sonne of Chanana had made hym hornes of yron, & sayd: thus sayth the Lorde: with these shallt ỹ ouerthrowe Syria, vntyll they be brought to naught. And all the prophetes prophesyed euē so, sayynge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and it shall prospere with the: for the Lord shall delyuer it into the hande of the kynge.

C

And the messenger ỹ wēt to call Michea, spake to him, saying: beholde, the wordes of the prophetes speake good to the kyng with one assent, lett thy wordes therfore be lyke one of theirs, that thou speake that which is pleasaunt. And Michea sayd: as truly as the Lorde liueth: euen what my God sayth, that wyll I speake. And whā he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto hym: Michea, shuld we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or leaue of? And he sayde: go vp, & all shalbe well: & they shalbe delyuered into your hāde. And the kyng sayde to him: So & so many tymes do I charge the, ỹ thou saye nothynge but ỹ trueth to me, in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayde: I dyd se all thē of Israel scatered in the mountaynes, as shepe ỹ haue no shepherde. And the Lord sayde: these haue no master, let them returne euery mā therfore to hys house in peace. And the kynge of Israel sayd to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, ỹ he wold not ppheey good vnto me: but euell?

But he sayde agayne: therfore heare ye ỹ worde of the Lorde. * I sawe the Lorde syt vpon his seate, & all the company of heauen stode on hys ryght hande & on hys lefte. And ỹ Lorde sayde: who shall deceaue Ahab king of Israel, ỹ he maye go vp & be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Gilead? And he sayde: one sayth this, another that. And there came out a spryte, & stode before the Lorde, & sayde: I wyll deceaue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherin? And he sayd: I will go out, & be a lyinge spryte in ỹ mouth of all his prophetes. And the Lorde sayde: ỹ shalt deceaue him, and shalt preuayle: go out, and do euen so. And now therfore beholde, * ỹ Lord hath put a lyinge spryte in the mouthes of all these thy prophetes, & the Lorde hath spoken euell agaynst the. And zedekia the sonne of Chanana went to, & smote Michea vpon ỹ cheke, & sayde: by what waye went the spryte of the Lorde frō me, to speake wt the? And Michea sayde: thou shalt se the daye when thou shalt go in from chābre to chābre, for to hyde thy selfe. And the kinge of Israel sayde: take ye Michea, and bryngе hym to Amon ỹ gouerner of the citye, & to Joas the kinges sonne, & ye shall saye: thus sayth the kynge: putt thys felowe in the preson house, & fede hym wt breed of affliction & water of trouble vntill I come agayne in peace. And ꝑ kyng of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: I must chaunge me, when I go to the battayll: but se that thou haue thyne awne apparell vpon the. And the kynge of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and they came to battayll. But ꝑ kyng of Syria had commaunded the captaynes of the charrettes that were with him, sayinge: se that ye fight not agaynst small or greate, saue agaynst the kynge of Israel onely.

And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe Jehosaphat, they sayde: it is the kynge of Israel, and therfore they compassed about hym to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed out, & the Lorde helped him, and God chased them awaye from hym. For it came to passe that when the captaynes of the charretes perceaued that it was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe agayne frō him. And a certayn mā drewe a bowe with all hys myght, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene ꝑ ioyntes of his habergyn. And he sayd to hys charretman: turne thyne hande, ꝑ thou mayest carye me out of the hooste: for I am wounded. And the battayll ceassed that daye. Howbeit the king of Israel caused his charet to stond still agaynst the Syriās vntyll euen. And about the tyme of the sunne going downe, he dyed.

¶ After Jehosaphat was rebuked by the prophet Jehu, he called agayne the people to the honourynge of the Lorde God.

AND Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda came home agayne in peace to Jerusalē. And Jehu the sonne of Hanani the sear wēt out to mete hym, and sayde to kynge Jehosaphat: Woldest ꝑ helpe the vngodly, and loue them ꝑ hate the Lorde? Therfore is wrath come downe vpō the, frō before the Lorde. Neuertheles, there are some good actes founde in the, in ꝑ thou hast hewen downe the groues out of the lande, and hast prepared thyne herte to seke God. And so Jehosaphat dwelt at Jerusalē: & turned & went out to the people frō Beersleba to moūt Ephraim, & brought thē again vnto ꝑ Lord God of their fathers. And he set iudges in the lāde throwout all the strong cityes of Juda, citye by citye: & sayde to the iudges: take hede what ye do, for ye execute not the iudgmētes of mā, but of God, which is wᵗ you in the iudgement. Moreouer, in Jerusalē dyd Jehosaphat set of the leuites, and of the prestes and of the auncient fathers ouer Israel, in ꝑ iudgement & cause of ꝑ Lord. And they returned agayne to Jerusalem. And he charged them sayinge: Thus shall ye do in the feare of the Lorde, wᵗ the trueth & a pure herte: What cause soeuer come to you of your brethren ꝑ dwell in their cyties, betwene bloud & bloud, betwene law and cōmaūdment, betwene statutes & ordynaūces, ye shall warne them, ꝑ they trespace not agaynst the Lorde, & so wrathcome vpō you & on youre brethren. And they dwelt therin, and haue buylt the a tēple therin for thy name, sayinge: * yf euell come vpon vs, as the swerde of iudgement, pestilence or hongre: then, yf we stand before this house in thy presence, for thy name is in thys house, and crye vnto the in our tribulacyon, heare thou, and helpe.

* ii.par.vi.

And nowe behold, the chyldrē of Ammō, and Moab, & moūt Seir, by whō ꝑ woldest not let thē of Israel go, when they came out of the lande of Egipte: but they departed frō them, & destroyed thē not. Se, howe they rewarde vs, to come for to cast vs out of thy possessyon, which ꝑ hast geuen vs to inheret. O our God, wylt thou not iudge thē: for we haue haue no myght agaynst thys great cōpanye that commeth agaynst vs. Nether wote we what to do: but oure eyes be vnto the.

And all Juda stode before the Lorde wᵗ their yongeones, theyr wyues & theyr chyldren: & ther was Jehaziel the sonne of Zacharia the sonne of Banaia ꝑ sonne of Jeiel the sonne of Mathania, a leuite of the sonnes of Asaph, and vpon hym came the spyrete of the Lorde, euē in the myddes of the cōgregacion. And he sayde: herken all Juda, and ye enhabiters of Jerusalē, & thou king Jehosaphat: Thus sayth ꝑ Lord vnto you: be not afrayd nor faynte herted by reason of thys greate multitude: for ꝑ battayll is not youres: but Gods. To morow go ye downe agaynst thē: for they come vp at Ziz, & ye shall finde them at the ende of the broke before the wildernes of Jeruel. Ye shall not nede to fyght in thys battayll: but steppe forth & stāde, & beholde ꝑ helpe of the Lorde which is with you: feare not, nor let youre hertes fayle you, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morowe go out agaynst thē: for the Lorde wylbe with you.

And Jehosaphat bowed hys face to the erth, and all Juda and the enhabiters of Jerusalem fell before the Lorde worshippynge the Lorde. And the leuites of the chyldren of the Cahathites and of the childrē of the Corahites stode vp, to prayse the Lorde God of Israel with a loude voyce on hye. And whā they arose earlye in the morynge, they gat them out vnto the wyldernesse of Thekoa. And as they wēt out, Jehosaphat stode and sayde: heare me, O Juda, & ye enhabiters of Jerusalem. Put your trust in the Lord your God, that ye maye be foūde faythfull. Geue credence to hys prophetes, & so shall ye prospere. And he gaue the people councell, and set some to syng vnto the Lord, & to prayse him in the bewtye of holynes, & to go out before the army, as they went, and to saye: prayse ꝑ Lorde for hys mercy lasteth euer. And what tyme as they begāne to laude & prayse, then the Lorde stered vp certayne of the chyldren of Ammon and Moab, which layed wayte for thē that were of moūt Seir: which were come agaynst Juda. And they were ouerthrowen with strokes amonge them selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose against ꝑ enhabiters of mount Seir. And they slewe and destroyed them. And whan they had made an ende of the enhabiters of Seir, euery one helped to destroye another amonge them selues.

And whē Juda came to the edge of ꝑ wildernes, they loked vnto the multitude. And beholde, they were deed carcasses fallē to the erth, & none escaped. And whan Jehosaphat and hys people came to take awaye ꝑ spoyle of thē, they founde amonge thē aboundaūce of goodes, rayment and pleasaunt Jewels, which they toke for thē selues, more thē they could carye awaye: so ꝑ they were three dayes in gatherynge of the spoyle, it was so moch. And the fourth daie they assembled in ꝑ valley of blessinge: for there they blessed ꝑ Lord. And therfore they called the name of ꝑ same place, the valeye of blessyng vnto thys daye. And so all the men of Juda & Jerusalem returned with Jehosaphat theyr heade, for to go againe to Jerusalē with gladnesse: for the Lorde had made them to reioyse ouer theyr enemyes. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteryes and harpes, & shawmes, euē vnto the house of the Lorde. And the feare of God fell in the kyngdomes of all lādes, whā they had hearde that the Lorde fought agaynst ꝑ enemyes of Israel. And so the realme of Jehosaphat was in tranquyllite: and hys God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

And * Jehosaphat raygned vpō Juda, & was .xxv. yere olde when he begāne to raygne, & raygned .xxv. yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Asuba the daughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Asa his father, & bowed not therfrō, doynge that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde. Howbeit the hylaultars were nott taken awaye, for the people had not yet prepared theyr hertes vnto the God of theyr fathers. The rest of ꝑ actes of Jehosaphat first & last beholde, they are wrytten amōge the sayinges of Jehu the sonne of Hanani, which noted thē in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

* iii.reg.xv.f

After this dyd Jehosaphat kyng of Juda ioyne him selfe wᵗ Ahaziahu kinge of Israel, whose mynde was to do wyckedly. He coupled hym selfe with hym, to make shippes to go to tharsis, And they made the shyppes in Ezion Gaber. And Elieser ꝑ sonne of Dodanah of Maresa prophesyed agaynst Jehosaphat, sayinge: because thou hast ioyned thy selfe with Ahaziahu, the Lorde hath broken thy worckes. And the shippes were broken, ꝑ they were not able to go to Tharsis.

the lordes of Israel. * Jehozam was .xxxij. yere olde whā he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eight yere in Jerusalē. And he walked in the waye of the kinges of Israel, lyke as dyd the house of Ahab, for he had the daughter of Ahab to wyfe, & he wrought euell in the eyes of the Lorde. Howbeit, the Lord wolde nott destroye the house of Dauid, because of the * couenaunt that he had made with Dauid, as he promysed to gyue a light to hym and to hys sonnes for euer.

* In hys dayes the Edomites rebelled, whā they were vnder the dominyon of Juda, and made thē selues a kinge. And Jehozā wēt forth wt his lordes, and all hys charettes were wt hym: & he rose vp by nyght, & smote ỹ Edomites, which cōpased him in, & the captaynes of ỹ charettes. But Edom rebelled styll, so ỹ they wolde not be vnder the hande of Juda vnto this daye. That same time also dyd Libna departe from beyng vnder his hande, because Jehozā had forsaken ỹ Lorde God of his fathers. Moreouer, he made hyl aulters in the cyties of Juda, and caused the enhabiters of Jerusalem to cōmyt fornycacyon, and prouoked Juda to Idolatrye.

And there came a wrytynge to him from Elia ỹ prophete, saying: Thus sayth ỹ Lord God of Dauid thy father: because ỹ hast not walked in the wayes of Jehosaphat thy father, & in the wayes of Asa kynge of Juda, but walkedst in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, & hast made Juda & the dwellers of Jerusalem to go a whorynge, lyke to ỹ whordome of the house of Ahab, & hast slayne thy brethren, euē thy fathers house, which were better then thou: beholde, wt a greate plage wyll the Lorde smyte thy folke, thy childrē, thy wyues, and thy goodes. And thou shalt suffre great payne: euē a dysease of thy bowelles, vntyll thy guttes fall out by reason of thy sycknes, daye by daye.

And so the Lorde stered vp agaynst Jehozā the spyrete of the Philistines, & the Arabians ỹ were besyde the blacke mores. And they came vp into Juda, and wasted it, and caryed away all the substaūce ỹ was found in the kynges house, and hys sonnes, and his wyues: so that there was neuer a sonne lefte him saue Jehohahaz which was the yongest amōge hys sonnes. And after all these thynges, the Lorde smote him in his bowelles wt an incurable disease. And it came to passe, ỹ in processe of tyme, euen after ỹ ende of two yeres, hys guttes fell out in his sycknes: and so he dyed of very euell diseases. And they made not burnynge for him lyke the burnyng of hys fathers. Whē he begāne to raygne, he was .xxij. yeare olde, and raygned in Jerusalē .viij. yere, & lyued wretchedly: howbeit they buryed hym in the citye of Dauid: but not among ỹ sepulchres of the kynges.

¶ The .xxij. Chapter.

¶ Ahaziahu raygneth in the rowme of Jehozam. Jehu kynge of Israel killeth Ahaziahu. Athalia putteth to deeth all ỹ kynges ympage, only Joas escapeth.

AND * the enhabiters of Jerusalem made Ahaziahu hys yonge sonne kinge in hys steade. For the men of warre * that came with the host of the Arabians, had slayne all hys eldest sonnes. And so Ahaziahu the sonne of Jehozam kynge of Juda, was made kynge. Two and fourtye yere olde was he, whā he began to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Jerusalem. hys mothers name was Athaliahu ỹ daughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Ahab, for hys mother (by her councell) emtysed him to do wyckedly. Wherfore he dyd that which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd they that were of ỹ house of Ahab: for they were hys cōsselers after the deeth of his father, to his destruccyon. And he walked after their counsell, and went with Jehozam sonne of Ahab king of Israel, to fight agaynst Hazael king of Syria at Rameth in Gilead: and the Syriās smote Jozā. And he returned to be healed in Jezrel, of the woūdes which were geuen him at Rama, when he fought wt Hazael kyng of Syria. And Ahaziahu the sōne of Jehozam kynge of Juda went downe to se Jehozā the sonne of Ahab at Jezrel, because he was diseased. And it cam of God, ỹ Ahaziahu shulde be despysed for hys commynge to Jehozā: for whā he was come, he wēt out with Jehozā agaynst Jehu the sonne of Nimsi, * whom the Lorde had anoynted to destroye the house of Ahab.

And so it came to passe ỹ whā Jehu was executynge iustice vpon the house of Ahab, & had foūde the lordes of Juda and the sonnes of the brethren of Ahaziahu that wayted on Ahaziahu, he slue thē. * And he sought Ahaziahu, and they caught hym where he was hyd in Samaria, and brought him to Jehu. And when they had slayne hym, they buried hym: because (sayde they) he is the sonne of Jehosaphat, which sought the Lord with all hys hert. And the house of Ahaziahu had no power to kepe styll the kyngdome.

* But when Athaliahu the mother of Ahaziahu sawe ỹ her sonne was deed, she arose and destroyed all the kynges seed in the kynred of ỹ house of Juda. And Jehosabeth the daughter of ỹ kinge toke Joas the sonne of Ahaziahu, & stale hym frō amonge ỹ kynges sonnes ỹ were slayne, and putt hym and hys nource in a preuye chambre. And so Jehosabeath the daughter of kinge Jehozā the wyfe of Jehoiada the preest, and the syster of Ahaziahu hyd hym from Athaliahu that he was not slayne. And so he was wt them hyd in the house of God syxe yere. And Athaliahu raygned ouer the lande.

AND * in the seuenth yere Jehoiada beyngе bolde, toke the captaynes of hundredes, Azariahu the sonne of Jeroham, and Ismael the sonne of Jehohanam, Azariahu the sonne of Obed, Maasiahu the sonne of Adaiahu, and Elisaphat the sonne of zichri, and made a bonde wt them. And they went aboute in Juda, and gathered the Leuites out of all the cyties of Juda and the auncyent fathers of Israel: and they came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God. And he sayd vnto them: beholde, the kynges sonne must raygne, * as the Lorde hath sayde of the chyldren of Dauid.

This is it therfore that ye shall do: The thyrde parte of you shall (on the Sabbath) come to the preastes, Leuites, and kepers of the porches. And another thyrde parte shalbe by ỹ kynges house, and another thyrde parte shalbe at the gate of the foundacyon, and all the people shalbe in the * courtes of the house of the Lorde. But ther shall none come into the house of the Lorde, saue the preastes & they that ministre vnto the Leuites. They shall go in, for they are holy: but all the people shall kepe the watch of the Lord. And the Leuites shall cōpase the kynge rounde about and euery man shall haue hys wepon in hys hāde: and what other man soeuer doth come into the house of the Lorde, he shall be slayne: and let them be with the kynge, whan he cōmeth in, and whan he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Juda dyd accordynge to all thynges ỹ Jehoiada the preaste had cōmaunded, & toke euery man hys men, ỹ came in on the Sabboth, wt thē ỹ went out on the Sabboth daye: nether did Jehoiada ỹ preast let the cōpanies departe. And Jehoiada ỹ preast deliuered to the captaynes of hūdredes, speares, shyldes, and boukelars, that had pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in ỹ house of God. And he set all the people euery mā hauyng his wepō in his hande, frō the right syde of the tēple, to the left syde of the temple, alonge by the aulter and the temple, rounde aboute the kynge. And they brought out the kynges sonne, and put vpon him the crowne, and * the testimonie, (and they gaue hym in hys hande, the lawe that was to be kepte) and made him kynge. And Jehoiada & his sonnes annoynted him, & sayde: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliahu hearde the noyse of the people, runninge & praylinge the kynge, she came to ỹ people into the house of the Lorde. And she loked, and beholde, the kynge stode in his place at the enterynge in, & the Lordes and the trompettes were by the kynge, & all the people of the lande reioyced, blowinge wt trompettes, & dyd playe with instrumentes of musycke, & taught to synge & prayse. But Athaliahu rent her clothes, and sayed: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the preaste went out to the captaynes of hūdredes that were gouerners of the holte, & sayde vnto thē: haue her out without the doze of the temple: and whoso foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the swerde. For ỹ preaste sayde ỹ they shulde not slay her in the house of ỹ Lorde. And they layde handes on her, tyll she was come to the entrynge of the horsgate besyde the kynges house and there they slue her.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene hym and all the people and the kynge, that they shulde be the Lordes people. And all the people wēt to the house of Baal, & destroyed it, and brake hys aulters and his ymages, & slue Mathan the preaste of Baal before the aulters. And Jehoiada put the offyces for the house of the Lord vnder the hāde of the preastes and Leuites, * as Dauid had distrybuted them in the house of the Lorde, to offer burnt offerynges vnto the Lorde, * as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, with reioysynge and syngynge, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set porters by ỹ gates of the house of the Lorde, that none which was vncleane in any thynge shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes & all the nobles, and the gouernoures of the people, & all the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lord, and they came thorowe the hye gate into the kynges house, and set the kynge vpon the seate of the kyngdome. And all the people of ỹ lande reioyced, and the cytie was in trāquillite, after ỹ they had slayne Athaliahu with the swerde.

Moreouer Uzia buylt towres in Ierusalem by the corner gate, & by the valeye gate, and at the turninge of the wall, and made thē stronge. And he buylt towres in the wylderneſſe, and digged many welles: for he had moche catell, in the valeys and playnes, plowmen and vynedreſſers in the mountaynes and in Charmel, for he loued husbandrye:

And Uzia had an host of fyghtynge men that went out to warre in the armye accordynge to the nombre of theyr office vnder the hande of Jeiel the scrybe & Maasiahu the ruler, & vnder the hande of Hananiahu which was one of ỹ kynges Lordes. And the hoale nombre of the auncient fathers, & of the men of myght were two thousande and syxe hundred: & vnder the hande of them was the armye of the men of warre, euen thre hundred ¶ and seuen thousande, & fyue hundred ỹ made warre with the power of an armye, helpyng the kynge against ỹ enemies. And Uzia prouided them throwe out all the host, childes, speares, helmettes, habergynnes, bowes and slynges for to cast stones. And he made sotle engynnes in Ierusalem, which he inuented & layed on ỹ towres and corners, to shote arowes and greate stones with all. And his name spredd farre abroad, because he was helped so excellētly, so ỹ he became very mighty.

But in his strength, his hert arose to hys destruction: for he transgressed agaynst the Lorde hys God, & went into the temple of ỹ Lorde, to burne cense vpon the alter of incēse. And Asariahu the preaste went in after him, and with him foure skore preastes of the Lorde that were valeaūt men. And they stode by Uzia the kynge, and sayde vnto hym:

* Nu.xviii.a * it pertayneth not to ỹ Uzia to burne incēse vnto the Lorde, but to the preastes the childzen of Aaron, that are cōsecrate for to offre incense. Come therfore out of the sanctuarye D for thou hast trespaced, and it is no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.

And Uzia was wroth, & had incense in his hande to burne it: & so whyle he had indignacyon agaynst the preastes, * the leprosye *iiij.Re.xv.a sprange in his forehead before the preastes in the house of the Lorde, euē beside the incense aulter. And Asariahu the chefe preaste with all the other preastes loked vpō him: and beholde, he was become a leper in his forehead, & they vexed him thēce. And Uzia the kynge contynued a lepre vnto the daye of hys deeth, and dwelt seuerall in an house beynge a leper and shutte out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham hys sonne had the gouernaunce of the kynges house, and iudged the people of the lande.

which bet him, & caried awaye a great multitude of hys captiue, and brought them to Damascon. And he was delyuered into the hāde of the kynge of Israel, which smote him with a greate slaughter. For Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu slue in Juda an hundred & twentye thousande in one daye, which were all kyghtinge men: and that because they had forsakē the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And zichri a mightye mā of Ephraim slue Maasiahu the kynges sonne, & Azrica the gouernour of the house, and Elcana ỹ was next to B the kynge. And the childzē of Israel toke prisoners of theyr brethren, two hundred thousande wemen, sonnes, & daughters, & caryed awaye moche spoyle of them, & brought the spoyle to Samaria.

But there was a prophete of the Lordes (whose name was Obed) and he went out before ỹ host that came to Samaria, & sayde vnto them. Beholde, because the Lorde God of youre fathers is wroth wᵗ Juda, he hath delyuered them into youre hāde. And ye haue slayne them with cruelneſſe, ỹ reacheth vp to heauen. And nowe ye purpose to kepe vnder the childzen of Juda and Ierusalem, and to make them bondmen and bondwemen. And do ye not lade youre selues with synne in the syght of ỹ Lorde youre God: Nowe heare me therfore, and delyuer the captynes agayne which ye haue taken of youre brethren. for els shall ỹ great wrath of God be vpō you.

Wherfore, certayne of the heedes of the ¶ childzen of Ephraim, as Asaria the sonne of Jehohanā, Berechiahu the sonne of Meſſillemoth, and Jehezkiahu the sonne of Sallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, stode vp agaynst them that came from the warre, and sayde vnto them: bringe not in the captiues hyther. For where as we haue offended towarde God allready, ye entēde to adde more to our synnes & trespace. For our trespace is great allready, and there is a fearce wrath agaynst Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes lefte the captiues and the spoyle before the Lordes and all the congregacyon.

And the mē that were nowe rehearsed by name, rose vp, and toke the prisoners, & with the spoyle clothed all ỹ were naked amonge them, and arayed them, & shoed them, & gaue them to eate and to drinke, & anoynted them, and caryed all that were feble of them vpon asses, & brought them to Jericho (the cytie of Paulme trees) to theyr brethren: & then they returned to Samaria agayne.

* At that same tyme dyd kyng Ahaz send *xvij.re.xvi.b
vnto ỹ kynges of Assur, to haue helpe of thē. And the Edomites came agayne, and slue some of Juda, and caryed awaye captynes. And the Philistines inuaded the cities in the lowe countrey, and towarde the south of Juda: & toke Bethsames, & Aialon, and Gederoth, and Socho with the townes longynge therto, and Thimna with the townes of the same: Gimso, and the townes therof, and dwelt there. For the Lord brought Juda lowe, because of Ahaz kynge of Juda, which made Juda naked, & trāsgressed sore against the Lorde. And Thilgath pilneser kynge of ỹ Assyrians came vpon him, and troubled him rather then strengthed hym. For Ahaz toke awaye a porciō out of the house of the Lorde, and out of the kynges house, & out of ỹ Lordes houses, & gaue vnto the kynge of the Assyrians: and yet it helped him not. And in the very tyme of hys tribulaciō dyd kyng Ahaz trespace yet moare agaynst the Lord. For he offered vnto the Gods of them of Damasco, which bette hym, & he sayd: because the Gods of the kynges of Syria healpe thē, therfore wyll I offer to thē, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruccyon, and the destruccion of all Israel. And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and brake them, and * shut vp the dores of the *ii. Para. xxviii.c.

The rest of hys actes and hys workes fyrst and last: beholde, they are written in the boke of the kynges of Juda & Israel. And Ahaz slepte with hys fathers, & they buryed hym in the cytie of Ierusalem: but brought hym not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Israel. And Hezekia his sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ The.xxix. Chapter.

& raygned nyne & twenty yere in Ierusalē. And his mothers name was Abia ỹ daughter of zacharias. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, in all poyntes as dyd Dauid hys father. He * opened the dores *ii. Para. xxviii.d.
of the house of the Lorde (in the fyrst yere and fyrst moneth of hys raygne) and repayred them. And he brought in the preastes and ỹ Leuites, and gathered them together in to the est strete: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites, & now be sanctifyed and halowe the house of the Lorde God of youre fathers, & synge fylthinesse out of the holy place. For oure fathers haue trespaced, and done euell in the eyes of the Lorde oure God: and haue forsake him, & turned awaye theyr faces from the habitaciō of the Lorde, and turned theyr backes on it. And besyde ỹ they haue shut vp the dores of the porche and quēched the lampes, & haue nether burnt incense, cense, nor offered burnt offeringes in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wrath of the Lorde fell on Juda and Jerusalem: & he hath brought thē to trouble, to be wondred on, and to be hissed at, cuē as ye se with youre eyes. For, lo, oure fathers were ouerthrowen with the swerde, and oure sonnes, oure daughters & oure wyues were caryed awaye captiue for the same cause. And nowe it is in my hert, to make a couenaunt with the Lorde God of Israel: ỹ he maye turne awaye his heuye indignacyon from vs. Nowe therfore my sonnes, be not
* Nu.xviii.a negligent: for the Lorde * hath chosen you to stāde before hum, and for to minstre and serue hym, and to burne incense.

C Then the Leuites arose: Mahath ỹ sonne of Amasai, & Joel the sonne of Asariahu of the chyldren of the Cahathites. And of the sōnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Asariahu the sonne of Jehalelel. And of the sonnes of the Gersomites, Joah the sonne of Simma, and Eden the sonne of Joah. And of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri & Jehiel. And of the sonnes of Asaph, zechariahu and Mathanahu. And of the sonnes of Heman, Jehiel & Simei. And of ỹ sonnes of Jedithū Semaia and Uziel. And they gathered their brethren, & purifyed them selues, & came accordynge to the cōmaundement of the kynge and the wordes of the Lorde, for to clense the house of the Lorde. And the preastes went into the vnner partes of the house of the Lord to clense it, and brought out all the vnclennesse that they foūde in the tēple of the Lorde into the court of the house of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke it, to carye it out into the broke Cedron. They beganne the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth to purifye, and the eyght daye of ỹ moneth came they to the porche of D the Lorde: and purged the house of the Lorde in eyght dayes, and in the sixtene daye of the fyrst moneth they made an ende.

And they went into Hezekia the kynge, & sayde: we haue clēsed all the house of ỹ Lord, the aulter of burntofferinge, with all his vessels, & the shewbreed table with all his apparell: and all the vessels which kyng Ahaz did cast a syde when he raygned & transgressed, them we haue prepared and sanctifyed: and beholde, they are before ỹ aulter of the Lord.
E And Hezekia the kynge rose earlye, & gathered the Lordes of the cytie and went vp to ỹ house of the Lorde. And they brought seuen oxen, seuen rāmes, seuen shepe, and seuen hegoates, to be a synne offeryng for the kyngdome, for the sanctuarie, & for Juda. And he commaunded the preastes the sonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the aulter of the Lorde.

And they slue the oxen, & the preastes receaued ỹ blonde, & sprinkled it on the aulter: lyke wyse, whan they had slayne the rāmes, they sprinkled ỹ blonde vpon the aulter: they slue also the shepe, & they sprinkled the blond vpō the aulter. And then they brought forth the hegoates for the synne offerynge before ỹ kynge and the congregacyon, & put theyr hādes vpon them. And the preastes slue them, and with the blonde of them they clensed the aulter, to make satisfaccion for all Israel: for the kynge cōmaunded, ỹ the burnt offerynge and the synne offering shulde be made for all Israel. And set the Leuites in the house of ỹ Lorde with symbales, psalteries and harpes F

uid and of Gad the kynges sear, and Mathā the prophete. For so was the commaundmēt of the Lorde thorowe the hāde of his prophetes. And the Leuites stode, hauynge ỹ instrumentes of Dauid, and the preastes helde the trompettes. And Hezekia commaunded to offer the burnt offerynge vpō the aulter. And when the burntoffering begāne, the songe of the Lorde beganne also, & the trompettes wt the instrumentes that were ordeyned by the hande of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregacion worshypped, synginge a song, and blowinge with the trompets, & all thys continued, vntyll the burnt offerynge was fynyshed.

And when they had made an ende of offerynge, the kynge and all that were present wt hym, bowed them selues, & worshypped. And Hezekia the kynge & the Lordes spake to the Leuites to prayse the Lorde with ỹ wordes of Dauid, & of Asaph the sear. And the Leuites sange prayses with gladnesse, and ỹ other bowed them selues, and worshypped.

And Hezekia answered, & sayde: nowe ye haue consecrate youre handes to the Lord: go to therfore, & bringe in the sacrifices & thank- G offerynges into the house of the Lorde. And the congregacyon brought in the sacrifyces & thanke offerynges & burntofferinges, as many as were of a free liberall hart. And ỹ nombre of the burntofferinges which the congregacion brought, was lxx. oxen, an hundred rammes, & two hundred shepe: which were, all for the burnt offeringe of the Lorde. And D ther were dedicated syxe hundred oxen, D
and thre thousande shepe.

And the preastes were to fewe, to sleye all the burnt offerynges: but their brethren ỹ Leuites dyd helpe them, till they had ended the worke, and vntyll the preastes were sanctifyed. For the Leuites were purer herted to be sanctifyed, then the preastes. And therto ỹ burnt offerynges were many with the fatte of ỹ peace offeringes & the drinke offerynges ỹ be longe to the burnt offerynge. And so the seruice pertayninge to the house of the Lorde was fynished. And Hezekia reioyced & all ỹ people, that God had made the folcke so ready: and that the thynge was so soone done.

C Hezekia remeth the feast of passeouer.

AND Hezekia sent to all Israell and Juda, and wrote letters to Ephraim & Manasse, that they shulde come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, and offer Passeouer vnto ỹ Lord God of Israel. And the kynge helde a councell with his Lordes
Num.ix.b. and all the congregacion of Jerusalem * to kepe ỹ feast of Passeouer in the seconde moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme: because the preistes were not sanctifyed sufficiently, nether was the people gathered together to Jerusalem. And the thynge pleased the kynge and al the congregacion. And they decreed that it shulde be proclaymed thorowe out all Israel frō Bersabe to Dan, ỹ they shulde come, & holde the feast of Passeouer vnto ỹ Lord God of Israel at Jerusalem: for they had not done it of a greate season as they shuld haue done by the lawe.

So the postes went with letters of the hande of the kyng, & of his Lordes thorowe out all Israell and Juda: & at the commaūdement of the kynge they sayd: Ye childrē of Israel, turne agayne vnto the Lord God of Abraham, Isahac & Israel, āde let euery one returne to the rēnaunt that are escaped you out of the hāde of the kynges of Assur. And the preastes sprinkled the blonde, which they receaued of the hāde of the Leuites. For there were many in the cōgregacio, ỹ were not sanctifyed: & the Leuites dyd sley Passeouer for al ỹ were not cleane, & that myght not execute ỹ holy worke of the Lorde. For many of ỹ people, and very many: out of Ephraim, Manasse, Isakar and zabulō were not cleansed, & yet dyd eate Passeouer agaynst ỹ lawe apoynted. Wherfore Hezekia prayed for the, and sayd: the good Lorde be mercyful vnto thē: For he set hys whole hert, to seke the Lorde God euen the God of his fathers: but all the other dyd not so accordyng to vnfayned holynesse. And the Lorde hearde Hezekia, and healed the people. And the chyldrē of Israel that were present at Jerusalem, helde the feast of swete bread seuen dayes with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the preastes prayled, and magnifyed the power of the Lorde daye by daye, vpon instrumentes.

And Hezekia spake hertely vnto all the Leuites that had vnderstandyng and were of a good mynde toward ỹ Lorde. And they dyd eate thorowe out that feast, seuē dayes longe, & offered peaceofferynges, & thanked the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And ỹ hole assemble toke councell, to do so other seuen dayes, and they helde those seuē dayes with gladnesse. For Hezekia kinge of Juda toke out (from amonge his catel) for the congregacio, a thousande pōge oxē, and seuē thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue out to the congregacion a thousande yonge oxen, and ten thousande shepe. And a greate nombre of the preasts were sanctifyed.

And all the congregacyon of Juda wyth the preastes & Leuites, & al the congregacio that came out of Israel, and the straungers that came out of the lande of Israel, āde that dwelt in Juda, reioyced: & there was great gladnesse in Jerusalō. For sence the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel there was no soche ioye in Jerusalem. And the preastes and the Leuites arose, āde blessed the people, and theyr voyce was hearde of the Lord, and theyr prayer came vp vnto heauen, his holy dwellynge place.

And to the preastes & Leuites thorowe out the houshold of theyr fathers, from twētye yere & aboue to wayte when their courses came. And to the families of all their babes, wyues, sonnes & daughters thorowe all the cōgregaciō. For vpon the fydelyte of them were they the holy thynges bestowed. And to the chyldren of Aaron, the preastes, whych were in the feldes & suburbes of their cyties, cytie by cytie the mē (whose names were expressed afore) shulde geue porcions, euen to all the males amonge the preastes, and to all the Leuites accordynge to theyr nombre.

And of thys maner dyd Hezekia thorowe out all Juda, & wrought it that is good, and eyght and true, before the Lorde hys God. And in all the workes ẏ he beganne for the seruice of the house of God, for the lawe, and for the cōmaundemētes, he sought his God, & that dyd he with all his hert, & prospered.

¶ The .xxxii. Chapter.

¶ Sennacherib (or Sanherib) beseegynge Jerusalem is strycken of the Angell. Hezekia dyeth, after whom succeadeth Manasse.

A *iiii.Regum xviii.c Esa.xxxvi.a Eccl.xlviii.d After ẏ these deades were faythfully done *Sēnacherib kynge of Assur came, & entred into Juda, & compased ẏ stroge cyties, and thought to winne them for him selfe. And so whē Hezekia sawe ẏ Sennacherib was come, & that he was purposed to fyght agaynst Jerusalem, he toke coūcel with his Lordes, and men of myght to stop the water of the fountaynes without the cytie: & they dyd helpe him. For ther gathered many of the people together, & stopte al the welles welles, and the broke that ranne thorow the myddes of the lande, sayenge: why shall the kynges of Assur come, and fynde moch water? And Hezekia went to lustelye, and built vp all the wal where it was broken, & made ordinaunce vpon the towres and to ẏ other B wall without, and repayred Millo in the cytie of Dauid, and made many dartes and shyldes.

And he sett captaynes of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to hym in the large strete of the gate of the cytie, and spake tenderly to them, saying: Plucke vp yō hertes, and be strōg: Be not afraied ner discouraged for the kyng of Assur, and for all ẏ *xiiii.Reg.xix.b multitude that he hath with him: *for there be moo with vs then with him. With him is & Jere.xvii.b an *arme of flesh. But with vs is the Lorde oure God, for to helpe vs, and to fyght oure batayles. And ẏ people toke a courage thorow the wordes of Hezekia kyng of Juda.

*xiii.Reg. xviii.d *After thys dyd Sennacherib kynge of Assur send of hys seruauntes to Jerusalem, (but he hym selfe remayned besyde Lachis: hauyng all his power with him) vnto Hezekia kyng of Juda and vnto all Juda ẏ were C at Jerusalem, sayenge: Thus sayeth Senxxxii.Reg. xviii.c nacherib kyng of Assur: * wherī do ye trust, Dye that dwell in Jerusalem which is beseged? Doth not Hezekia entyce you to geue ouer youre selues vnto deeth, hongre, and thurst, sayeng: the Lorde our God shall ridd vs oute of the hande of the kynge of Assur? Hath not the same Hezekia put downe hys hye places and hys aulters, and commaūded Juda and Jerusalem, sayinge: Ye shall worshyppe before one aulter, and burne incense vpon the same?

Know ye not, what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? were the Gods of the people of otherlandes able or mighty to saue their lādes out of my hād? which of all the Gods of those naciōs (ẏ my fathers destroyed) coulde delyuer hys people out of myne hand? And shall yō God be able to delyuer you out of myne hāde? Wherfore, nowe lett not Hezekia deceaue you, ner persuade you of this facion, nor yet beleue him.

For as no God among all naciōs and kingdomes D, was able to rydde hys people out of my hande and out the hande of my fathers: How moch lesse shall your goddes be able to kepe you out of myne hand? And yet mo thinges dyd his seruaūtes speake against ẏ Lord God, and agaynst his seruaūt Hezekia. And (Sennacherib) also wrote a letter, to rayle on the Lord God of Israell, & spake agaynst him, sayinge: as the Gods of the nacyons of other landes haue not bene able to delyuer their people out of myne hande. Euen so shal not the God of Hezekia delyuer hys people out of myne hand. And they cryed wt a loude voyce in the Iewes speach vnto the people of Jerusalē ẏ were on the wall, to feare them and to make them faynt harted, & that they might so take ẏ cyte. And they spake against the God of Jerusalem, as against the Gods of the nacyons of the earth, which were the worckes of the handes of men.

But Hezekia the kynge, and the prophet E Isai the sonne of Amoz prayed agaynst that blasphemy, and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lord sent an angell, which destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and captaynes of the hoost of the kyng of Assur, ẏ he turned his face agayne wt shame toward hys awne land. * And when he was come into ẏ house *xiiii.Reg.xix of his God, they that came of hys awne body, slue hym there with the sweard. And so ẏ Lord saued Hezekia and the inhabiters of Jerusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib kīg of Assur, and from the hand of all other, and mayntened them on euery syde. And many brought offerynges vnto the Lord to Jerusalem, and presentes to Hezekia king of Juda: so that he was magnifyed in the syght of all nacions from thence forth.

F *In those dayes Hezekia was sycke vnto the death, & prayed vnto the Lord, which answered him, & shewed hym a wonderfull miracle. But Hezekia dyd not agayne vnto God acording to it ẏ he had shewed hym, for his hert arose: & there came wrath vpon him and vpon Juda & Jerusalem. Notwithstāding Hezekia submitted hym selfe (after that hys hert was rysen vp) he, & the inhabyters of Jerusalem: and the wrath of the Lord came not vpon them in the dayes of Hezekia.

And Hezekia had exceadynge moche ryches and honour. And he gat hym treasures of syluer and golde, precious stones, and spices, shyldes, and of all maner pleasaūt Iuelles: and made store houses for the frutes of G corne, for wyne and oyle: and stalles for all maner of beastes, and foldes for shepe. And he made him cyties, and had of shepe and orē great aboundance. For God had geuen him substaunce exceadinge moch. This same Hezekia stopped the vpper water systynges of Gihō, and brought them downe to the west syde of the cyte of Dauid. And Hezekia prospered in all hys worckes. And when the prynces of Babylon sent vnto him Imbassatoures, to enquyre of the wondre ẏ chaunced in the lande, God left hym * to trye hym, *Deu.viii.a and that all that was in hys hert, myght be knowne.

The rest of the dedes of Hezekia, and hys goodnes, behold, they are wryten in the vysyon of Isai the prophete the sonne of Amoz in the boke of the kīges of Juda and Israell. And Hezekia slepte with his fathers, & they buryed hym in the most worthy place of the sepulchres of the sonnes of Dauid: and all

Juda and the enhabiters of Jerusalem dyd hym worshyppe at his death. And Manasse hys sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ The.xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ Manasse is taken presoner, and after that he commeth out, he destroyeth the Idoles. He dyeth, and after hym succeadeth Amon, whych is kylled of hys awne people, and Josias hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

A *ii.par.xxxiij.a

MAnasse was.xij. yeare olde * when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned.lv. yeare in Jerusalē: But dyd euell in the syght of the Lozd, lyke vnto the abhominacions of ỹ heathen, whō the Lozde cast out before the childzen of Jsrael. For he went to, and buylt the *ii.par.xxxiij.a hylaulter, * which Hezekia hys father had broken downe. And he rered vp aultars for Baalim, and made groues, and worshypped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. And he buylt aulters in ỹ house of the Lozd: * ii.Re.xxi.b ii.Par.vi.a and.vii.c where as the Lozde yet had sayd: * in Jerusalē shall my name be for euer. And he buylded aulters for all the hoost of heauen, in the two courtes of the house of the Lozde. And he burnt hys chyldzen in fyre, in the valey of the sonne of Hinnō. He was a sozcerer, he regarded the cryenge of byrdes, vsed inchauntementes, and mayntened wozkers wᵗ spyrytes, and seers of soztunes: āD wzought moch euell in the syght of the Lozde, to angre hym with all.

23 And he put the kerued ymage & an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God had sayd to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: in this house and in Jerusalem whych I haue chosen afore all the trybes of Jsrael, * wyll I put my name for * ii.reg.xxi.b ii.Reg.viii.b ii.Par.vi.a and.vii.c euer, and will nomore bryng the seate of Jsrael from of the lande which I haue ordeyned for your fathers. If so be that they wyll be diligent and do all that I haue commaunded them in al the lawe, and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moses. And so Manasse made Juda and the enhabiters of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the heathen, whom the Lozde destroyed before the chyldzen of Jsrael. And the Lozde spake to Manasse & to hys people, but they wolde not regarde.

Wherfore, the Lozd brought vpō thē the captaynes of the host of the kyng of the Assirians, whych toke Manasse in holde, and ¶ bounde hym with chaynes, and carryed hym to Babylon. And when he was in trybulacion, he besought the Lozd hys God, & humbled hym selfe exceadyngly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym and God was entreated of hym, and hearde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. And then Manasse knewe, that the Lozde was God.

After this he built a wal without the cytie of Dauid on the west syde of Gihō in the valley as they come to the fish gate, & round about ☞ Ophel, and brought it vp of a very great heygth, & dyd put captaynes of warre in all the strong cyties of Juda. And he toke awaye straunge Gods & ymages out of the house of God, and * all the aultars that he had buylt in the mount of the house of God, *ii.par.xxxiij. and.xxxv.a and in Jerusalem, and cast them oute of the cytie. And he prepared the aultar of ỹ Lozd, and sacrifyced theron peace offerynges, and thankoffrynges, and charged Juda, to serue the Lozd God of Jsrael. Neuertheles, ỹ people dyd offer styll in the hylaulters, howbeit vnto the Lozde their God onely.

The rest of the actes of Manasse, and his prayer vnto his God, and the wozdes of the seers and of them that spake to hym in the name of the Lozde God of Jsrael, beholde, they are writen in the sayēges of the kynges of Jsrael. And his prayer, and howe that he was hearde, and all his synnes, and his tresspasse, and the places where he made hylaulters, and set vp groues, and ymages (before he was mekened) beholde, they are wrytten among the sayenges of the seers. And Manasse slepte with hys fathers, and they buryed hym in hys awne house: and Amon his sonne raigned in his rowme. Amō was two and twenty yeare olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned two yeare in Jerusalē. But he did euell in the syght of the Lozd, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrificed to all ỹ kerued ymages which Manasse hys father had made, and serued them, and submitted not him selfe before the Lozd as Manasse hys father had mekened hym selfe. But Amon tresspassed greatly. And his awne seruauntes conspyred agaynst him, āD slue hym in hys awne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had conspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the same people of the lande made Josia hys sonne kynge in hys rowme.

¶ The.xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ Josia destroyeth the Idoles, and restoreth the temple, in which is founde the boke of the lawe. He sendeth to Hulda the prophetisse for councell.

JOsia was eyght yeare olde whan he began to raygne, * and he raygned in Jerusalem thyrtye and one yere. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lozde, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, āD bowed nether to ỹ ryght hād ner to ỹ left. In ỹ. viij. yere of hys raygne (whē he was yet a childe) he beganne to leke after the God of Dauid hys father. And in the twelueth yeare he beganne to pourge Juda and Jerusalem from hylaulters, groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall. and they brake downe the aultersN *ii.par.xxxiiij.a

aulters of Baalim euen in hys presence: and other ymages that were in greater honoure B then they, he cauled to be destroyed. And the groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it vpō the graues of them that had offered to them. And he burnt the bones of the prestes vpō the aultres of them, and clensed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the cyties of Manasse, Ephraim, Simeon vnto Nephthali. And in the wyldernesses of them rounde about, he plucked a sondre the aultes and the groues, and dyd beate them and stampte them to powdre, & beate downe all the ymages thorow out all the lande of Jsrael: and returned to Jerusalem agayne.

In the eyghtene yere of his raygne when *xxxiiij.a he had purged the lande and the temple * he sent Saphan the sonne of Amaziahu, and Maasiah the gouernoure of the cytie & Joah the sonne of Joahaz the recorder, to repayre the house of the Lozde hys God. And when they came to Helkiah the hye preast, they delyuered them the money that was brought in to the house of God, whych the Leuites that kepte the entryes had geathered of the hande of Manasse and Ephraim, and of all that yet remayned in Jsrael, and of all Juda and Ben Jamin, and of the enhabiters of Jerusalem. And they put in the handes of the workemen, that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lozde: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lozde, to repayre and mende the house. ¶ Euen to masons and carpenters gaue they it, to get stone and tymbre, for couples and for beames of the houses, which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men dyd the worcke faythfully.

And the ouerseers of them to courage thē forward, were Jahath and Obadiahu Leuites of the chyldzen of Merari: & Secharia & Mesullam, of the chyldzē of the Cahathites, and other of the Leuytes whych all couldе skylle of instrumentes of Musicke. And ouer the bearers of burthes and ouer all ỹ wrought, in whatsoeuer workemānshyppe it were, were there Scrybes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

And whan they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the lord, *xxiij.b Helkia the preaste * founde the boke of the lawe of the Lozd geuē by Moses. And Helkia answered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the law, in the house of the Lozde, and Helkia gaue the bo- D ke to Saphan. And Saphan caryed the boke to the kyng, and brought the kyng worde agayne, sayenge: all that was commytted to thy seruauntes, that do they. And they haue gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lozd, and haue delyuered it in to the hādes of the ouerseers of the worke, and to the handes of the workemen. And then Saphā the scribe shewed the kyng, saying: Helkia the preast hath geuen me a boke, & Saphā redd in it before ỹ kyng.

And it fortuned, that when the kyng had heard the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes: and the kyng commaunded Helkia and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micah, and Saphan the scrybe, and Asaia a seruaunt of the kynges, saying: go & enquire of the Lozde for me and for thē ỹ are left in Jsrael and Juda, concerning the wordes of the boke that is found. For great is the wrath of the Lozde that is fallen vpō vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of ỹ Lozd, to do after all that is wrytten in this boke.

And Helkia and they that the kynge had appoynted, went to Hulda a prophetisse the E wyfe of Sallum the sonne of Tokhath the sonne of Hasra keper of ỹ wardrope (for she dwelt in Jerusalem with in the secōd wall) and so they cōmuned with her. She answered them: thus sayth ỹ Lozde God of Jsrael: tell ye ỹ man that sent you to me. Euē thus sayth the Lozd: Behold, I wyll bryng euell vpon this place, & vpon the enhabiters therof (euen all the curses that are wrytte in the boke which they haue reade before the kyng of Juda) because they haue forsaken me, and haue offered vnto other Gods, to angre me wᵗ all maner worckes of theyr handes, therfore is my wrath set on fyre agaynst thys place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the kyng of Juda whych sent you to enquire of the Lozde, so shall ye saye vnto him: thus sayth the Lozd God of Jsrael concernyng the wordes which ỹ hast heard. Because thyne hert dyd melt, & thou dydest meke thy selfe before God, whē thou heardest his wordes agaynst this place & agaynst the enhabiters therof: & humbledest thy selfe be- F fore me, and tarest thy clothes, and weptest before me, that haue I hearde also sayth the Lozd. Behold, I wyll take ỹ to thy fathers, and thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, and thyne eyes shall not se all the myschefe that I wyll bryng vpon thys place, & vpon the enhabyters of ỹ same. And they brought the kynge worde agayne. * Then the kynge *xxiiij.a sent, and gathered to gether all the elders a. of Juda and Jerusalem. And the kyng went vp into the house of the Lozde, and all the men of Juda, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem, & the prestes & Leuites and all the people great āD smalle: & the kyng dyd reade all the wordes of ỹ boke of the couenaunt that was found in the house of the Lozde. And ỹ kyng stode at hys standyng, & made a couenaunt before the Lozd, to folowe the Lozde, and to kepe his commaundemētes, his wytnesses, and hys statutes, wyth all hys hert & wyth all his soule, & to fulfyll the wordes of the appoyntmēt wrytten in the sayde boke.

And he set in theyr rowme all them that were founde in Jerusalem and Ben Jamin, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem dyd accordyng to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Josia put awaye all maner of abhominacyons out of all landes that pertayned to the chyldren of Israell, and brought in all that were found in Israel, to worshyp, and to serue the Lorde theyr God. And they turned not a syde from after the Lorde God of theyr fathers, as longe as he lyued.

¶ The.xxxv.Chapter.

¶ Josia holdeth passeour. He fyghteth agaynst the kynge of Egypt, and dyeth. The people bewayle hym.

A *2.Chro.xxxv.c. Esdras.i.a.

AND Josia helde the *feast of passeouer vnto the Lord in Jerusalem, & they slue passeouer in the fourtene daye of ỹ firste moneth. And he set the preastes in theyr offyces, and ayded them in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the Leuytes (that taught all Israel, and were sanctifyed vnto the Lord) put the holy arcke in the house whych Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel, dyd buyld, there shall no other burthen be layd vpon youre shoulders: But now serue the Lorde youre God and hys people Israel. And prepare yourselues by youre auncient housholdes and companies, accordyng to the wrytynge of Dauid kyng of Israel, and the wrytyng of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordyng to the deuysyon of the auncient housholdes of youre brethren the chyldren of the people, & after the deuysyon of the auncient housholdes of the Leuites, kyll passeouer, & sanctifye and prepare youre brethren, that they may do accordyng to the word of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

And Josia gaue to the people flockes of sheepe and kyddes, all for passeouer and for
B all that were present, thyrtie thousand by tale, and three thousande oxen, and these were euen of the kynges substaūce. And hys Lordes gaue willyngly both vnto the people & to the preastes, & vnto the Leuytes. Helkia also, zacharia and Jehiel, rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto ỹ preastes for passeouer offerynges two thousand and syxe hundred sheepe, and three hūdred oxen. Conania & Semeiahu and Nethanel his brethren, and Hasabiahu and Jaiclād Josabad, rulers of the Leuites, gaue vnto the Leuites Passeouer offerynges, euen fyue thousand sheepe, & fyue hundred oxen.

And so the seruice was prepared, and the preastes stode in theyr places, and the Leuites in theyr distincte cōpanies at the kynges commaundment. And they slue Passeouer, and the preastes sprynckled the blonde with theyr hande, & the Leuites pulled of the skynnes of the beastes. And they fett awaye the burntofferinges, to geue them vnto the people that were denyded by auncient houses, & that they shulde offer vnto ỹ Lorde, lyke as it is wrytte i the boke of Moses. And so dyd they wyth the oxen also. And * they dressed the Passeouer wyth fyre as the maner was. ¶ And the other dedycat beastes: sodde they in pottes, caulderns & pannes, and denyded thē amōg all the people. And afterwarde, they made readye for them selues & for the preastes: for the chyldren of Aaron were busyed in offeryng of burntofferynges and the fatt vntyll nyght: therfore the Leuites prepared for them selues and for the preastes the sonnes of Aaron.

* Exo.xii.b.

And the syngers, the chyldren of Asaph stode in theyr standynge * accordyng to the commaundement of Dauid and Asaph, Heman Jeduthum the kynges sear: and the porters wayted at euery gate, and myght not departe from theyr seruice: for theyr brethrē the Leuites ☞ prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde was prepared the same daye, to offer Passeouer, and to offer burntoffrynges vpon the aulter of the Lord accordynge to the commaundement of kyng Josia.

* 1.para.xxv. and.xxvi.d

And so the chyldren of Israel that were present, offered Passeouer the same tyme, ād kepte the feast of swete breade seuen dayes. And ther was no Passeouer lyke to ỹ kepte in Israel frō the dayes of Samuel ỹ pphete: nether dyd all ỹ kynges of Israel hold soch a Passeouer feast as dyd Josia and the preastes and Leuites and all Juda, and Israel ỹ were present, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem. This Passeouer was holdē in the eyghtene yere of the raygne of Josia.

*After all thys, when Josia had prepared the temple, Necho kyng of Egypt came vp to fyght agaynst Carcamis beside Euphrates, and Josia went out agaynst hym: whych sent messengers to hym, & sayd: what haue I to do wyth the thou kynge of Juda: Be not thou agaynst thy selfe this daye: For my warre is agaynst another house, & God bade me make hast. Leaue of therfore & medle not with God whych is wyth me, least he destroye the. Neuertheles, Josia wolde not turne hys face from hym, but rather toke a duysle to fyght with him, and herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyght in the valeye of Magedo, & the shoters shott dartes at kyng Josia. And the kyng sayd to his seruauntes: carye me awaye, for I am sore wounded. His seruauntes seruauntes therfore had him out of that charet, and put him (as a kynge) in another charet ỹ they had. And whan they had brought him to Jerusalem, he dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of his fathers. * And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josia. And Jeremia lamented Josia, and all syngynge men and syngynge wemen mourned for Josia in their lamentacions, to thys daye, and made the same lamentacions an ordinaunce in Israel, & behold, they be wryten in the lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josia & hys goodnes which he dyd in folowynge the wrytyng in the lawe, and his sayenges, first and last: behold, they are wryten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land hyndered the people of Juda, and troubled them as they were buyldynge, and hyred councelers against them, to hynder their deuyce, as longe as Cyrus the kyng of Persia lyued, vntyll the raygne of Darius king of Persia. And in the raygne of Ahasuerus, (euen in ỹ begynnyng of his raygne) wrote they vnto him a complaynte agaynst the inhabitours of Juda and Ierusalem.

And in the dayes of Artharxerses, wrote Mithridath Tabeel and the other of hys councell, vnto Artharxerses the king of Persia with fayre wordes. And the scripture of the letter was writen in the Syrians speach, āu interpretated in the language of the Syriās Rehum the recorder and Samsai the scribe wrote a letter from Ierusalem to Artharxerses the kyng, as it followeth.

Then Rehum the recorder, & Samsai the scribe, and other of their companye of Dina, of Arphasath, of Tarpla, of Persia, of Arach, of Babylon, of Susan, of Deha, of Elan, & other of the people * who the greate & noble Asnapar brought ouer, and sett in the cytes of Samaria, & other, that are now on this syde the water. Thys is the coppye of the letter that they sent vnto kyng Artaxerses. * iiij. Esd. viij.

Thy seruauntes, & the men that are now on thys syde the water. Be it knowne vnto the king, that the Jewes which came vp frō the to vs, are come vnto Ierusalem (a cytie ¶ sedicyous and frowarde) and buylde the same, and sett vp the walles therof, and laye the foundaciōs. Be it knowne now also vnto the kynge, that yf this cytie be buylded, and the walles therof made vp agayne, then shall not they geue, tolle, tribute, and custome, and the kynges profyte shall incurre dāmage. And now in the meane season we haue destroyed the temple, and wolde no longer se the kynges dishonoure: Therfore sent we out also, and certifyed the kynge: that it maye be sought in the boke of ỹ Chronycles of thy progenitours, and so shalt thou fynde in the booke of the Chronycles, and perceaue that this cytie is sedicious and noysome vnto kynges and landes, and that they cause other also among them to rebell of olde, & for the same cause was thys cytie destroyed. Therfore do we certyfye the kynge that yf this cyte be buylded agayne, and the walles therof made vp, thou shalt herafter haue no porcion on this syde the water.

Then sent the kyng a answere vnto Rehum the recorder, & Simsai the scribe, and to the other of theyr companyōs that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other ỹ were beyonde the water, in Selā and Cheheth. The letter ¶ which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene opēly redd before me, and I haue commaūded to make search: & it is founde, ỹ this cytie of olde hath made insurrection agaynst kynges, and that rebellion

There haue bene myghtie kinges also at Ierusalē, which haue raygned ouer all countrees beyonde the water: and tolle, tribute, & custome was geuen vnto thē: Geue ye now therfore commaundement, that the same men be forbydden, and that the cytie be not buylded agayne, tyll I haue geuen another cōmaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shulde ỹ kynge haue harme there thorowe?

Now when the coppye of kynge Artaxerses letter was red before Rehum and Simsai the Scribe and their companyons, they went vp in all the haste to Ierusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbad them with violence and power. Then ceassed the worcke of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia.

Artharerses a king of kynges, Unto Eldras the preast & scrybe of the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and salutacion. I haue cōmaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the preastes and Leuites in my realme (which are mynded of their awne good wyll to go vp to Jerusalem)

rusalem) go with the: and therfore art thou sent of the kyng and of his seuen coūcelers, to vyset Juda and Jerusalem, accordinge to the lawe of thy God, which is in thy hande: And that thou shuldest take with the syluer and golde, which the kynge and his councelers offre of their awne good wyll vnto the God of Israell (whose habitacyon is at Jerusalem) and all the syluer and golde ỹ thou canst fynde in all the countre of Babylon, wt it that the people offre of theyr awne good wyll and the preastes geue for the house of theyr God which is at Jerusalem.

C Take thou the same, and bye diligently with the same money, oxen rammes, and lābes, with their meateofferinges and drinckofferynges, and thou shalt offer them vpon the aultare of the house of youre God which is at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethren to do with the remnaūt of the money, that do after the wyll of youre God. And the vessels that are geuen the for the ministracīō in the house of thy God, those deliuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And whatsoeuer thyng more shall be nedefull for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spende, thou shalt receaue the charges out of ỹ kynges treasure house. I kyng Artharerses haue commaunded all the treasures beyonde the water, that loke whatsoeuer Eldras the preaste and scrybe in the lawe of the God of heauen, requireth of you, that ye fulfyll the same spedely, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, vntyll an hūdred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hūdred Batthes of wyne, & tyll an hūdred * Batthes of oyle, & salt without measure. Whatsoeuer also belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauē, let the same be done without anye delaye for the house of the God of heauē, that he be not wroth agaynst ỹ realme, & agaynst the kynge, and hys chyldren. * iii. Regum. viii.

And we certifye you, that ye haue no auctozite to requyre taxinge and custome, and yearly rentes vpon any of the preastes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Nethinims ād ministers in the house of his God. And thou Eldras (after the wysdome of thy God, that is in thy hande) sett iudges and arbiters (by my auctozite) to iudge all the people that is beyonde the water, euen all soch as knowe ỹ lawe of thy God: ād thē that knowe it not, those se that ye teach. And whosoeuer wyll not fulfyll the lawe of thy God, ād the kynges lawe, let him haue his iudgement without delaye, whether it be vnto death, or to be rooted out, or to be condemned in goodes, or to be put in preson.

* Blessed be the Lorde God of oure fathers, which so hath inspired ỹ kynges hert, to garnysh the house of the Lorde, that is at Jerusalem: and hath enclyned his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kyng, & his counselers, and before all the kynges hye estates. And I was confortedeuen as the hande of the Lorde my God was vpon me) & so gathered I the heades of Israell together, that they myghte go vp with me. * iii. Eldras. viii. c.

¶ The. viij. Chapter.

¶ The nombre of them that returned to Jerusalem with Eldras.

These are the principall fathers of A thē, and this is their register that wente vp with me from Babilō, what tyme as kynge Artharerses raygned. Of the chyldren of Phinehes, Gersom: of the chyldren of Ithamar, Daniel: of the chyldren of Dauid, Hatus: of the chyldrē of zecania amonge the children of Pharos, zachary, and with him were nōbred an hundred and fyftie men. Of the chyldren of the captayne of Moab, Elioenai the sonne of zerahia, and with him two hundred men. Of the children of zechania the sonne of Jahaziel, and with him thre hūdred men. Of the children of Adin, Abed the sonne of Jonathan, and with him fyftie mē. Of the childrē of Elam, Isai the sonne of Athalia, and with him seuētie men. Of the childrē of Saphatia, zebadia the sonne of Michael, and with hym foure score men.

Of the childrē of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with hym two hundred and eyghtene men. Of the children of Selomith the sonne of Josephia, and with him an hūdred and thre score men. 25

Of the children of Bebai, zachary the sonne of Bebai, and with him eyght and twentie men. Of the children of Asgad, Johanan, the sonne of Hakatan, and with him an hūdred and ten men. Of the chyldren of Adonicam, that were the last, whose names were these: Eliphelet, Jehiel and Samaiah, and with them thre score men. Of the chyldren of Biguai, Uthai, and zabud, and with thē seuentie men. And I gathered them together by the water that renneth towarde Ahaua, and there abode we thre dayes. And I loked amonge the people and the preastes & foūde there none of the children of Leui. Then sent I to Elieser, to Ariel, Semeia, Elnachan, C Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, zachary and to Mesullam the rulers, and to Joiarib ād Elnathan which were men of vnderstandyng, and to those gaue I commaundement vnto Iddo the chefest at Casphia, that they shulde fetch vs ministers for ỹ house of oure God, and I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo, and to his brethren the Nethinims at Casphia.

And (thorow the good hāde of oure God vpon vs) they broughte vs a wyse man frō amonge the children of Moholi the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, and Sarabia with hys

hys sonnes and his brethren, euen eyghtene.
And Halabia, and with him Iſai of ꝑ chyldren of Merari, with his brethren and theyr sonnes, twētie. And of the Nethinims, whō Dauid & the Princes gaue to mynister vnto
D the Leuites, two hundred & twentye of Nethinims, which all were named by name.
And euen there at the water, beside Ahaua, I proclamed a fast, that we myghte hūble oure selues before oure God, and seke of him a ryghte waye for vs, and for oure childzen and for all oure substaunce. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kynge, soudyers & horsmē, to helpe vs agaynst the enemy in ꝑ waye: but we sayd vnto the kynge: The hāde of oure God is vpon all thē that seke hym
C in goodnes, and * (hys dompnyon) hys violence and wrath is agaynst all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and be soughte oure God for this, and he hearde vs.
And I toke out twelue of the chefe preastes, Sarabia and Halabia, and ten of their brethren with them, and weyed them ꝑ syluer and golde, & vessels that were appoynted for the house of oure God, which the kynge and his councellers and his Lordes, and all Israell that were there at hande, had geuen together. And I weyed vnto their hāde sixe hundred & fyftie talētes of syluer, & in syluer vessel an hūdred talētes, & in golde an hūdred talentes: twentie basens of golde of a thousande peces, and two costly ornamentes of good brasse, as clear as golde: and I sayde vnto them: Ye are cōsecrate vnto the Lorde, lyke as ꝑ vessels are holy also, and the golde and syluer are geuē of a good wyll vnto the
M Lorde God of youre fathers. Watch ye, and kepe it: for ye shall weye it downe before the chefe preastes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Jerusalē in the treasuries of the house of the Lord. Then toke ꝑ preastes and Leuites that weyed syluer ād golde and vessel, to bringe it to Jerusalem, vnto ꝑ house of oure God. And we brake vp, from the water of Ahaua on the twelueth daye of the fyrst moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon vs, ād deliuered vs from the hande of the enemies, ād of soch as layde wayte for vs by the waye.
And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer ād golde and vessell weyed in the house of oure God, by the hande of Meremoth
G the sonne of Uria the preaste, and with hym was Eleazar the sonne of Phinehes, & with them was Iosabad the sonne of Jesua, and Noadia the sonne of Benoi the Leuites.
Accordyng to the nombre and weyght of euery one, was the weyght all wrytten vp at the same tyme.
And the childzen of the captiuite, which were come out of prison, offered burnt offerynges vnto the God of Israel: twelue bullockes for all Israell, syxe and nynetye rammes, seuen and seuentie lambes, twelue he goates for a synofferynge, all to the burntofferynge of the Lorde. And they delyuered the kynges commission vnto the kynges officers, & to the capitanes that were on thys syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

¶The.ix.Chapter.

¶Eldras complayneth on the people that had turned them selues from God, and marped with the gentyles.

When these thynges were done, the rulers came to me, ād sayde. The people of Israel, and the preastes, and Leuites are not separated from the people of the landes (as touchynge their abhominacyons) namely of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites. Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, ād Amozites. * For they * Deut.vii. Iesus.xi. Iudi.iii.a.
haue taken the daughters of the same to thē selues and to their sonnes, and the holy sede is mixte with the nacions in the lande: and ꝑ hande of the princes & rulers hath bene principall in this treſpace.
* And when I hearde this saying, I rēte * iii.Esd.viii.
my clothes and my rayment, and pluckte of the heer of my heade, and of my beerd, and sate mournynge. And there resorted vnto me all soch as feared the wordes of the Lorde God of Israel, because of the trāsgression of the people of the captiuite. And I sate mournynge vntyll the euenynge sacrifice. And aboute the euenynge sacrifice, I rose vp fro my heuynes, and rente my clothes and my rayment, and fell vpon my knees, and spred out my handes vnto the Lorde my God, and sayde.
O my God, I am ashamed, and darre not lyfte vp myne eyes vnto ꝑ my God: for oure wyckednesses are growne ouer oure heed, ād oure treſpace is waxen greate vnto the heauen. Sence the tyme of oure fathers haue we bene in greate treſpace vnto this daye, * ād * Deut.viii. ii.Baral.xxi. iii.b. iii.reg.xxii.
because of oure wyckednesses haue we and oure kynges bene deliuered into the hande of the kynges of the nacyons, into the swerde, into captiuite, into shame, and into confusiō of face, as it is to se this daye.
And now is there a lytle & sodayne graciousnes come from the Lorde oure God, in causynge some of vs to escape, and that he maye geue vs a naple in hys holy place, and that oure God maye lyghte oure eyes, and geue vs a lytle lyfe to take breth in oure bōdage. For we are bondmē, & oure God hath not forsaken vs in oure bondage, and hath enclyned mercy vnto vs in the syghte of the kynges of Persia, to geue vs lyfe, to sett vp the house the house of oure God, and to redresse the desolacion therof, and to geue vs a wall in Iuda and Jerusalem.

And now, O oure God, what shall we saye after this? for we haue forsaken thy cōmaundementes, whych thou hast commaūded by thy seruaūtes the prophetes, sayeng: The lande vnto which ye go to possesse, it is an vncleane land, because of the fylthynes of the people of the landes, whych with theyr
D abhominacions haue made it full of vncleanesse on euery syde. * Therfore shall ye not
* Deute.vii.a gene youre daughters vnto their sonnes, nether seke their peace & welth for euer, that ye maye be strong, & enioye the good in the land, & ꝑ ye & youre chyldzen maye haue the enheritaunce of it for euermore.
And after that all these thinges are come vpō vs (because of oure euell dedes & greate treſpaces) thou oure God hast ☞ thrust downe oure wickednesses, & hast geuē vs a de☞ lyueraunce, ✓* (as it is come to passe this daye.)
And yf we turne backe agayne, to let go thy commaundementes, and make contracte with the people of these abhominacyōs, wilt thou not then be wroth at vs (& not without cause) tyl we be vtterly cōsumed, so that nothyng remayne, and tyll there be no delyueraunce? O Lord God of Israel, ꝑ art ryghteous, for we remayne yet escaped, as it is to se this daye. Behold also, in thy presence are we in oure treſpaces, & because of it maye we not stande before the.

¶The.x.Chapter.

¶The people repente, and turne, and put awaye theyr straunge wyues.

And when * Eldras prayed after
* iii.Esd.viii.g this maner, & knowleged, wepte, & laye before ꝑ house of God, there resorted vnto him out of Israell a very greate congregacyon of men and women, and chyldzen: & the people wepte very sore. And Sechania the sonne of Jehiel one of ꝑ chyldzen of Elam, answered, and sayde vnto Eldras. We haue treſpaced agaynst oure God, and haue taken straunge wyues of the people of the land. Now there is hope yet in Israel cōcerning this thyng: For now we wyll make a couenaunt with oure God, and put awaye all the wyues (and soch as are borne of them) accordinge to the counsell of the Lord, and we wylbe in the feare of the commaundementes of oure God, that we maye do accordyng to the lawe. Get the vp, for thys matter belongeth vnto the. we also wyll be wyth the, be of good confort therfore, and do it.
* iii.Esd.ix.a * Then rose Eldras, and toke an oth of B the chefe preastes and Leuites, and of all Israell, that they shulde do accordynge to thys worde: & they sware. And Eldras stode vp from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Johanan the sonne of Eliasib. And when he came thither, he dyd eate no bred, nor dranke water: for he mourned because of the trāsgression of the people that had bene in captyuite.
And they caused a proclamacyon to go thorow out Juda and Jerusalem, vnto all the chyldzen which had bene in captiuyte, ꝑ they shuld geather thē selues togeather vnto Jerusalem. And that whosoeuer came not wyth in thre dayes accordyng to the deuyce of the rulers and Elders, all hys substaunce shulde be forfett, and he shulde be put out frō the congregacyon of the captyue.
Then all the men of Juda and Ben Jamin geathered them selues togeather vnto Jerusalem wythin thre dayes, euen ꝑ twētie daye of the nyenth moneth: and all ꝑ people sate in the strete before the house of God, and trembled because of thys matter, & for the rayne. And Eldras the preaste stode vp, *Deu.vii.a. Iudi.iii.a.
and sayde vnto them. * Ye haue trāsgressed, & haue taken straunge wyues, to make ꝑ treſpace of Israel yet more: cōfesse now therfore vnto the Lorde God of youre fathers, and do hys pleasure, and separate youre selues from the people of the lande, & from the straunge wyues. And all the congregacyon answered, and sayd with a loude voyce: It shalbe so, and we will do as thou hast sayde. But the people are many, and it is a rayny wether, and the people are to faynt to tarye without in ꝑ strete, nether is this a worcke of one daye or two, for we haue offended very sore in this thyng. Let oure rulers stand therfore in all the congregacyon, and lett all them whych haue taken straunge wyues in C oure cytyes come at the tyme appoynted, and let the Elders of euery cytye and theyr Judges be with them, tyll they haue turned the wrath of oure God away from vs concernyng this matter.
Then were appoynted Jonathan the sonne of Asahel, and Jahasia the sonne of Thekua ouer thys matter: And Mosullam and Sabatha the Leuytes helped them. And the chyldzen of the captyuite dyd euen so. And Eldras the preast, and the auncient heades thorow the house of theyr fathers, all men of great fame, separated thē selues, and sat them downe on the fyrst daye of the tenth moneth, to examen the matter. And vntyll the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth they were fynishyng the busynes wyth all ꝑ men that had taken straunge wyues.
And amonge the chyldzen of the preastes there were men foundr that had taken straunge wyues, namely amonge the chyldzen of Jesua the sonne of Josedec and of hys brethren, Maasiah, and Eliezer, Jarib and Gedalia, and they gaue theyr handes

there

of Paseah, and Mesullam the sonne of Besodia, they layde the beames therof, and set on the dores, lockes and barres of it. Nexte vnto them, buylded Malatiah of Gibeon, and Jadon of Merano, men of Gibeon, and of Mitspa, where he that was captayne of this syde the water had a mansion. Nexte vnto him buylded Uziel the sonne of Harhaiah ỹ goldsmyth. Nexte vnto him also builded Hananiah the sonne of Harakahim, and they repayred Jerusalē vnto the brode wall. Nexte vnto them buylded Raphaiah the sonne of Hur, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jerusalē. Nexte vnto hym buylded Jedaia the sonne of Harumaph ouer agaynst his house: ād nexte vnto him buylded Hatus the sonne of Hasabnia. But Melchia the sonne of Harim and Hasub ỹ sonne of the captayne of Moab buylded the other pece, and the tower besyde the fornaces. Nexte vnto him buylded Sallum a syngers sonne, the ruler of ỹ halfe parte of Jerusalem, he and his daughters.

The valley gate buylded Hanun, & the cytesyns of zanoa. They buylded it, and set on the dores, lockes and barres therof, and a thousande cubites on the wall, vnto ỹ Donge porte. But the Donge porte buylded Melchiah the sonne of Rechab, the ruler of the fourth parte of Bethcharē: he repayred it, ād set on the dores, lockes and barres therof. But the welgate repayred Sallū the sonne of Cholhosah, the ruler of the fourth parte of Mitspa. He buylded it, and layed the beames, and set on the dores, lockes, and barres therof, and the wall vnto the pole of Siloah by the kynges garden, and vnto the steppes that go downe from the cytie of Dauid. After him buylded Nehemiah the sonne of Asbok, the ruler of the halfe parte of Bethzur, vntyll the other syde ouer agaynst the sepulchres of Dauid, and to the pole that was repayred, and vnto the house of the myghtie.

After him buylded the Leuites, Rehum the sonne of Bani: and nexte vnto him buylded Hasabia the ruler of the halfe parte of Keilah in hys quarter. After hym buylded they bretheren. Bauai the sonne of Henadad the ruler of the halfe parte of Keilah: and after hym buylded Ezer the sonne of Jesua the ruler of Mitspa the other pece, harde ouer agaynst the goynge vp to the house of ordinaunce that was in the corner. Agayne, after hym brake forth Baruch the sonne of zachai of indignacyon, and repayred the other pece from the turnyng corner vnto the dore of the house of Eliasib the hye preest. After hym also buylded Meremoth the sonne of Uria the sonne of Hacos the other pece, from the dore of the house of Eliasib, euen as longe as the house of Eliasib extended. After hym buylded the preastes, the men of the playne. After hym buylded Ben Jamin and Hasub ouer agaynst theyr house: and after hym wrought Asaria the sonne of Maasia the sonne of Anania nexte vnto hys house. After hym also buylded Bennui the sonne of Hanadad the other pece, from the house of Asaria vnto the turnynge of the wall, and vnto the corner.

After hym buylded Pala ỹ sonne of Usai ouer agaynst the corner and the hye tower, which lyeth out ouer from the kynges house, that was besyde the courte of the preson. After hym Phedaia the sonne of Pharhos (as for ỹ Nethinims they dwelt in the strōg holde vnto the watergate, towarde the east, and to the tower that lyeth out.) After hym buylded they of Thekua the other pece ouer agaynst the greate tower, that lyeth out warde, vnto the wall of the stronge holde.

But from aboue the horsgate forth, buylded the preastes, euery one ouer agaynst his house. And after thē buylded zadok the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After hym buylded also Semeia the sonne of Sechania the keper of the Eastgate. After him buylded Hanania the sonne of Selemia, and Hanun the sonne of zalaph the syxte, the other peace. And after him buylded Mesulā the sonne of Barachia ouer agaynst his store house. After him buylded Malachia the goldsmythes sonne, vntyll ỹ house of Nithinims, and of the merchauntes ouer agaynst the gate of Mephkad, and to the parler in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the Shepegate buylded the goldsmytes and the merchauntes.

The.iiij. Chapter.

The buyldynge of Jerusalem is hyndred and let, but the Jewes buylde it, beynge readye harneled, lest they enemyes shulde inuade them.

But when Sanabalat heard that we buylded the wall, he was wroth in hym selfe, and toke greate indignacio, & mocked ỹ Jewes, and sayde before his bretheren & the souldyers of Samaria: what do these impotēt Jewes? wyll the hethen suffre them? shall they offre? shall they perfourme it in one daye? shal they make ỹ stones whole agayne that are brought to dust, and brent? And Tobiah ỹ Ammonite was besyde him, ād sayde: Though they buylde, yet yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe theyr stonye wall. Heare (O thou oure God) for we are despised, turne their shame vpon their awne heade, & geue thē ouer into despisynge in the lande of their captiuite. Couer not their wickednesse, & let not their synne be put out fro thy presence: for they haue prouoked ỹ buylders. And so buylded we the wall, & it was ioyned whole together, vnto ỹ half heygth therof. And the people were mynded to laboure.

And it fortuned, ỹ when Sanabalat, and Tobiah, & the Arabias, Ammonites, & Asodites heard, ỹ the walles of Jerusalē were mad vp, and ỹ the gappes begāne to be stopped, they were very wroth, & cōspired all together to come, & fyght against Jerusalē, ād to make the people an hynderaunce therin. Neuertheles, we made our prayer vnto our God, & set watchmen by thē, which buylded daye & nyght ouer agaynst them. And Juda sayd: the strength of the bearers is to feble, & there is yet moch more morter, & we are not able to buyld on the wall. And our aduersaries sayd: they shall not knowe nether se, tyll we come in the middes amōge thē, and slaye thē, and hinder the worcke. But it fortuned ỹ when the Jewes (which dwelt besyde thē) came, they tolde vs as good as ten tymes, ỹ in all places where ye go vnto, they are appointed to fal vpō vs. Therfore set I ỹ people after their kiredes vnder their swerdes, speares & bowes bencth in ỹ lowe places behynd the wal, & I loked, & gat me vp, & sayd vnto the chefe mē, to ỹ rulers, & to ỹ other people, be not ye afrayed of thē, * but thincke rather vpō the greate Lord, whych ought to be feared, & fight for your bretheren, your sōnes, yō daughters, your wines, & your houses. Neuertheles, it chaūced that when our enemies heard, that we had gotten worde of it. God brought their coūcel to naught, & we turned all againe to ỹ wal, euery one vnto his labō. And frō that time forth it came to passe ỹ the half parte of the yong men did the laboure, & the other half parte of thē helde the speares, shyldes, bowes, and brest plates: & the rulers stode behynde all the house of Juda, which buylded on the wall, and bare burthens frō those ỹ laded thē. With one hande dyd euery one worcke, & wt the other helde he hys weapē. And euery one ỹ buylded, had his swerd, gyrde by hys thygh, ād so buylded they. And the trompet blewe besyde me.

And I sayd vnto the principal men, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is great and large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place therfore ye heare the noyse of the trompet, resorte ye thyther vnto vs, * & our God shal fight for vs, & we will be labouryng in the worcke. And the halfe part of thē helde ỹ speares frō ỹ morynyng spryng, tyll the starres came forth. And at the same tyme said I vnto the people: euery one abyde with hys seruaunt at Jerusalē, that in the night season we maye watch, and labour on the daye tyme. As for me and my bretheren, my seruantes, and the mē of the watch (which were behynde me) we put neuer of oure clothes, no more then the other dyd theyr harnesse, saue onely because of the water.

The.v. Chapter.

The people are vexed with hongre. He requyreth not the lyuyng of a captayne.

And there arose a great cōplaynte of ỹ people, and of theyr wyues against their bretheren the Jewes. For there were some that sayd: our sonnes and daughters and we are to many, therfore wyll we take corne for thē, ỹ we maye eate, and lyue. Some also there were that sayde: let vs sett our landes, vyneyardes and houses to pledge, and take vp corne in the darth. But som there were that sayde: let vs borowe money for the kynges trybute & that vpon our landes and vyneardes. Behold, oure bodyes as the bodyes of oure bretheren, and oure chyldren as theyr chyldren: elles shulde we subdue our sonnes and daughters vnto bondage, and some of oure daughters are subdued vnto bondage all ready, & no strēgth is there in houre hādes, and other men haue our landes and vyneyardes.

And when I heard their complaynte and soch wordes, it displeased me sore, ād I aduised so in my mynde, ỹ I rebuked the counceilers, and the rulers, and sayde vnto them: Euery one of you is to chargeable vnto hys brother. And I brought a greate congregacyon agaynst them, and sayd vnto them: we (after oure abilite) haue bought our bretheē the Jewes, which were solde vnto ỹ heathē: And wyll ye sell your bretheren agayne vnto the heathen, after that they haue bene selde vnto vs? Then helde they theyr peace, and coulde fynde nothynge to answere.

And Nehemia sayde: It is not good that ye do. Ought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heathen ỹ are our enemyes? I and my brethrē, and my seruauntes do lend them money & corne: but as for vsurye, let vs leaue it. Therfore, thys same daye I pray you se that ye restore them theyr landes agayne, theyr vineyardes, oyle gardēs, and their houses, and remytte the hundred part of the money, of the corne, wyne and oyle that ye haue wonne of them. Then sayd they: we will restore thē agayne, & wyll requyre nothyng of thē, and will do as ỹ hast spoken. And I called ỹ preestes, & toke an oth of them, ỹ they shuld do so. And I shoke my lappe, & sayde: God shake out euery mā after the same maner from hys house & laboure, ỹ maynteyneth not this word: euen thus be he shaken oute, and voyde. And all the congregacyon sayde: Amen, and praysed the Lord. And the people dyd so.

And frō the tyme forth ỹ (the kyng) committed vnto me to be a captayne of thē that were in the land of Juda, euen frō the.xx. yere vnto the.xxxij. yeare of kynge Artharerses (that is.xij. yere) I wt my brethren lyued not of soch fusenaūce as was genē to a captayne. For ỹ olde captaynes ỹ were before me, me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, ād had taken of them bread and wyne, and .xl. sycles of syluer: yee, and their seruaūtes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, and that because of the feare of God. But I laboured also in the worcke vpon the wal, and bought no lande. And all my seruauntes came thyther together vnto the worke. Moreouer, there were at my table an .C. and .l. of the Iewes and rulers, which came vnto me from among the heathen, that are about vs. And ther was prepared for me dayly an ore and .vj. chosen shep, and byrdes, & euer once in .x. dayes a greate summe of wyne. Yet requyred not I the lyuynge of a captayne, for the bondage was greuous vnto the people.

¶ The .vj Chapter.

¶ The buyldyng is yet agayne hyndred and lett.

AND whē Sanabalat, Tobiah, & Gesem the Arabian, and the other of our enemyes heard that I had buylded ỹ wall: and that ther were no mo gappes ther in (howbeit at the same tyme had I not hanged the dores vpon the gates) Sanabalat & Gesem sent vnto me, sayenge: that we maye mete and take councell together in the villages that are in the playne of the cytie Ono. Neuertheless, they thought to do me euell. And I sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a great busynes to do, and I cannot come downe. The worcke shulde stande stil, yf I were neclygēt, and came downe to you. Howbeit, they sent vnto me as good as foure times after the same maner. And I gaue thē the same answere. Then sēt Sanabalat hys seruaunt agayne vnto me the fyfth tyme, wt an open letter in hys hand, wherin was wryten: it is tolde the heathen, and Gesem hath sayde it, that thou and the Iewes thincke to
B rebell: for the which cause thou buyldest the wall, that thou mayest be their kyng in these matters, and hast ordeyned the prophetes to preach of the at Jerusalem, and to saye: He is kynge of Juda.

And now shall thys come to the kynges eares: come now therfore, ād let vs take our councell together. And I sent vnto hym, sayinge: there is no soch thynges done as thou sayst: for thou fayneste thē out of thyne awne herte. For they were all mynded to make vs afrayed, sayinge: they shall withdraw we their handes from the worcke, that it shall not be fynished. Howbeit, I strengthed my hande the more. And I came vnto the house of Semaia the sonne of Delaia the sonne of Mehetabeel, and he had shut hym self within, and sayde: let vs come together into the house of God, euen vnto the myddes of the temple, and shutte the dores of the temple: for they wyll come to slaye the, yee, euen in the nyght wyll they come to put the to death. And I sayde: C shulde any soch man as I flye? Who is that, beyng as I am, that wil go into the temple, to saue his lyfe? I wyll not go in.

And I perceaued, that God had not sent hym. Yet spake he prophecy vpon me, neuertheless, Tobiah and Sanabalat had hyred him for money. Therfore toke he the money that through feare I shulde so do, and synne: that they might haue an euell reporte of me, to blaspheme me. Myne God, thinke thou vpō Tobiah and Sanabalat accordynge vnto these theyr workes, and of the prophet Noadia, and of the other prophetes, that wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynyshed on the fyue and twētye daye of the moneth Elul, in two D and fyfty dayes. And when all our enemyes hearde ther of, all the heathē that were about vs, were afrayed, and theyr courage fayled them. And they perceaued, that thys worcke came of our God. And at the same tyme were ther many of the chefe of Juda, whose letters wente vnto Tobiah, and agayne from Tobiah vnto them (for there were many in Juda, that were swore vnto hi: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechania, the sonne of Arah, & his sonne Jehonathā had the daughter of Mesullam, the sonne of Barachia, ād they spake good of hym before me, and tolde hym my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters, to put me in feare.

¶ The .vij. Chapter.

¶ After the wall once buylded, ys the watch appoynted. They that returned from the captyuyte are nombred.

NOw when the wall was buylded, I A hāged on the dores also, and the porters, syngers & leuites were appoynted. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the castel at Jerusalem: for he was a faithfull mā, and feared God more then dyd many other, and I sayde vnto thē: let not the gates of Jerusalē be opened, vntyll the sonne be whote. And whyle they were stādinge in the watch, they shutt the dores and barred thē. And we appoynted certayne cytesins of Jerusalem, appoynted to be watchmen, euery one to kepe hys watch, and euery one to be ouer against his house. As for ỹ cite, it was large of rowme, and great, but the people were fewe ther in, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my hert, that I gathered together the principall men, & the officiers, and the people, to nombre them, ād I foūde a regyster of the nōbre of thē *which *1.Esd.v.a came vp before out of the captiuyte: & founde wryten therin: these are the sonnes of ỹ land that wente vp from the captiuyte of the carynge awaye (whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon had brought awaye) & came agayne to Jerusalem & Juda, euery one vnto vnto his cytie. They which came wt Zorobabel are these: Jesua, Nehemia, Asariah, Raamia, Nahamani, Mardochee, Belsā, Mesperath, Beguai, Nahum and Baanah.

The preastes. The chyldrē of Jedaiah of the house of Jesua, nyne hundred and thre ād seuentye: the chyldrē of Immer, a thousande and two & fyftye: the chyldren of Phashur, a thousand, two hundred & seuen & fortye: the chyldren of Harim, a thousande & seuentene.

The Leuytes. The chyldren of Jesua of Cadmiel and of the chyldren of Hodiah, foure & seuentye. The syngers. The chyldren E of Asaph, an hundred and eyght and fortye. The porters: The chyldren of Sallum, the chyldren of Ater, the chyldren of Talmon, the chyldren of Acub, the chyldrē of Hatita, the chyldren of Sobai, all together an hundred and eyght and thyrtye.

The Nethinims. The chyldren of ziha, the chyldren of Hasupha, the chyldrē of Tebahoth, the chyldren of Ceros, the chyldren of Sia, the chyldren of Phadon, the chyldren of Lebanah, the chyldren of Hagaba, the chyldren of Salmai, the chyldren of Hanan, the chyldren of Gidel, the chyldren of Gaher, the chyldren of Reaia, the chyldren of Rezin, ỹ chyldren of Necoda, the chyldren of Gasam, the chyldren of Usa. the chyldren of Phaseah, the children of Besai, the chyldren of Meunim, the chyldren of Nephussim, the chyldren of Bachuc, the chyldren of Hacupha, the chyldren of Harhur, the chyldren of Bazluth, the chyldren of Mehida, the chyldren of Harsa, the chyldren of Barcos, the chyldren of Sissera, the chyldren of Thamah, the chyldrē of Neziah, the chyldren of Hatipha.

The chyldren of Salomons seruauntes: the chyldren of Sotai, the chyldren of Sophereth, the chyldren of Pherida, the chyldren of Jaala, the chyldren of Darcon, the chyldren of Giddel, the chyldren of Saphatiah, the chyldren of Hatil, the chyldren of Pochereth of zabaim, the chyldrē of Amon. All these Nethinims and the children of Salomons seruauntes, were thre hūdred & nynetie and two.

And these wente vp also of Thel Mela, F Thel Harsa, Cherub, Adon and Immer: but they coulde not shewe theyr fathers house nor theyr sede, and that they were of Israel. The chyldren of Dalaiah, the chyldren of Tobia and the chyldren of Necoda, syxe hūdred and two and fortye. And of the preastes, the chyldren of Habaiah: the chyldren of Hacos, the chyldren of Bersilai, whych toke one of the daughters of Bersilai the Gileadite to wyfe, and was named after their name. These soughte theyr writyng in ỹ regyster of theyr generacion, but they were not founde, therfore they were put from the preasthode. And Hathirsata sayd vnto them, that they shulde not eate of the moost holy, tyll there came vp a Preaste whych shulde were Urim and Thumin.

And so ỹ whole cōgregacyō together was two & fortye thousande, thre hūdred, & thre skore: beside their seruaūtes and maydens, of whom there were seuen thousande, thre hundred and seuē and thirtye. And they had two hundred and seuēand fortye syngynge men and wemen. Their horses, seuē hūdred G and syxe & thirtye, & their Mules: two hundred & fyue & fortye. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with their handes vp, & bowed them selues, and worshypped the Lorde, fallynge downe vpon their faces to the grounde. And Jesua, Baam, Serabiah, Jami, Acub, Sebathai, Hadaia, Maasia, Celita, Azaria, Jozabad, Hanã, Pelaia: and the Leuites caused the people to geue hede vnto the lawe, & the people stode in their place. And they red in ỹ boke of the lawe of God distinctly & playnly, so ỹ men vnderstode the thinge that was red. And Nehemiah (which is Hathirsatha) & Eldras the preast & scrybe, and the Leuites that caused the people to take hede, sayd vnto all the people: thys daye is holy vnto the Lorde youre God: be not ye sory, and wepe not. *Leuit.xxv. Deute.xv.

And we decreed a statute vpon oure selues to geue yearly the thyrde parte of a sycle to the mynistracion in ỹ house of oure God, to the shewbred, to ỹ daylye meatofferynge, to the daylye burntofferynge of the sabothes, of the newe mones, and feast dayes, & to the thynges that were sanctifyed, & to the offerynges of attonement, to reconcyle Israel wyth all, and to all the busynes in the house of oure God.

And we cast the lot amonge the preastes, Leuites and the people, for offerynge of the wood to be brought vnto ỹ house of ō God from yeare to yeare, after the houses of oure fathers that it myght be brent at tymes appoynted, vpon the aultare of ỹ Lorde God, as it is wrytte ī the lawe: and to bryng the fyrstlinges of oure land, & the fyrstlynges of oure frutes of all trees, yeare by yeare, vnto D the house of the Lorde: and the fyrstlinges of oure sonnes, and of oure catell, as it is wrytten in the lawe: and the fyrstlinges of oure oxen & of oure shepe, whych we shulde bring to the house of oure God, vnto the preastes that mynister in the house of oure God: and that we shuld bryng the fyrstlynges of oure dowgh, and of oure heueofferynges, and the frutes of all maner of trees, of wyne also and of oyle, vnto the preastes to the chestes of the house of oure God. And the tythes of our lande vnto the Leuites, that the Leuytes myght haue the tithes in all the cyties of oure mynystracyon.

And

And the preast the sonne of Aaron shall wyth the Leuites haue also of the tithes of ỹ Leuites, so that the Leuites shall bryng vp the tythes of theyr tithes vnto the house of oure God, to the store houses and to the treasure houses. For the chyldren of Israel & the chyldren of Leui shall bryng vp the heueofferynges of the corne, wyne and oyle vnto ỹ store houses, there as are the vessels of ỹ sanctuary, and the preastes that minister, & the porters and syngers, that we forsake not ỹ house of oure God.

¶ The.xj. Chapter.

¶ who dwelled in Jerusalem after it was buylded and whom the cyties of Juda.

nd the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem. The other people also cast lottes, that amonge ten, one parte shulde go to Jerusalem into the holy cytie to dwell, and nyne partes to be in the cyties. And the people thanked all the men, that were wyllynge to dwell at Jerusalem.

These are the heades of the lande, that dwelt in Jerusalem and in the cyties of Juda, euery one in hys possessyon, and in theyr cyties: they of Israell, the preastes, Leuytes, the Nethinims, and the chyldren of Salomons seruaūtes. And at Jerusalem dwelt certayne of the chyldren of Juda and of Bēiamin.
